GLISSON—Sister Susan L. Glisson died at her home in Magnolia April 30th, 1895. She was born in Glisson township, Duplin county, Sept. 6th, 1826, and was therefore sixty-nine years of age at the time of her death. She was the wife of Mr. Haywood Glisson, who preceded her to glory four years ago. She was a consistent member of Holly Hill church for a number of years. She leaves six loving daughters and three devoted sons to mourn a mother's loss.

I knew Mrs. Glisson well the four last years of her life. Her character was lovely, and she possessed a warm and loving heart, a sweet and cheerful disposition; greeted all kindly, and the young people had no secrets from her. I never heard her speak an unkind word of any one.

Since August of last year she had been a great sufferer, and all was done for her that loving hearts and willing hands could do, but in vain. She had done her work and was waiting for the summons, "Come up higher." I fancy that the husband who had gone before, came out to meet her, and angels came to bid her welcome to the skies, while those who had borne her from the earth to her home in heaven lead her to her Saviour. She sees now 'not through a glass darkly,' but face to face. She sees the Saviour as He is. The veil has been removed and she looked with undimmed vision upon the "King in His beauty."

BERTHA L. JOHNSON.

Warsaw, N. C., May 25, 1895.

THURSTON—Sister Zilpha Thurston was born Feb. 2d, 1832, and died at her home in Clayton, Johnston county, N. C., April 29th, 1895, aged about sixty-three years. She professed faith in Christ, and was baptized into the fellowship of "Old Johnston Liberty" (now Clayton) church, by Rev. John F. Ellington, on the third Sunday in September, 1854. She was married May 3d, 1864, to W. J. Y. Thurston, by the same minister that baptized her. Sister Thurston was a woman of fine natural qualities, and grace made her better, of course, for by it we are saved and made partakers of the divine nature. Her last sickness was protracted and painful, but she bore all with Christlike patience and resignation. She believed all was for her good, as the Lord does not afflict willingly, but with the best interest of his people in view. She leaves a husband, four children, together with many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Sister Thurston loved flowers while living, cultivated them with a great deal of pride and care, but for some reason unknown to the writer, she requested that not one should be used on her coffin or her grave. A little singular, but true. Perhaps she had seen them used on funeral occasions too profusely, or in a way she did not fancy. Her funeral service was conducted in Clayton church, April 30th, by the writer, after which her remains were laid to rest in Clayton cemetery, to await the resurrection call at the last day. Her loved ones and friends sorrow not as those who have no hope, because of her repeated expressions of her good hope through grace, and willingness to go and be with Jesus.

WORLEY—Departed this life near Nichols, South Carolina, April 18th, 1895, Mr. Coleman Worley, aged seventy-six years. Our deceased brother was born Feb. 15th, 1819. He professed faith in Christ nearly half a century ago, and on the third Sunday in July, 1851, he was baptized into the fellowship of Spring Branch Baptist church, in Horry county, South Carolina. At the time of his death he was a deacon and worthy member of the Fair Bluff Baptist church. He was a plain, old-fashioned Christian gentleman, and was recognized as such by every one in the community in which he lived. He was a faithful and exemplary church member, and was always prompt in fulfilling his obligations to the church, and most especially his pastors. He was a very successful and independent farmer, who by a strict adherence to the principles of honesty accumulated enough of this world's goods to render himself and family comfortable.

Bro. Worley will be greatly missed by his family, his brethren and friends, and as long as life will last he will be kindly remembered by all who knew him. He had been unwell for several weeks, and it was thought that he was gradually recovering his health, but in a sudden and unexpected moment death came and claimed his victim. A few moments before his death he walked out of his house and was alone beneath a grape arbor when he was called away. But we have strong reasons for believing that he was fully prepared for the speedy summons, and that he died in blissful hope of a blessed immortality beyond the grave.

Bro. Worley was married twice, and he leaves a wife and two grown sons, with a host of friends to mourn his loss.

"Soldier of Christ, well done,
Praise be thy new employ,
And while eternal ages run,
Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

The Help Of God's Word.

There is a lamp whose steady light
Guides the poor traveler in the night:
'Tis God's own word! It's beaming ray,
Can turn a midnight into day.

There is a storehouse of rich fare,
Supplied with plenty, and to spare:—
'Tis God's own word! It spreads a feast
For every hungering, thirsty guest.

There is a Chart whose tracings show
The onward course when tempests blow:
'Tis God's own word! There, there is found
Direction for the homeward bound.

There is a tree whose leaves impart
Health to the burdened, contrite heart:—
'Tis God's own word! It cures of sin,
And makes the guilty conscience clean.

Give me this lamp to light my road;
This storehouse for my daily food;
These healing leaves, this heavenly tree.

How Kate Was Found Out.

Grandpa came slowly down the back stairway into the kitchen, where Katie sat eating an apple, and trying to look as if she had never done any mischief in all her life. He came directly toward her, and sitting down in his rocking-chair drew her up to him and patted her hair lovingly, while he looked rather seriously into her blue eyes.

"This morning," he said, "a little girl went up to my room, where her mother had forbidden her to go, climbed up at the foot of my bed, holding on by the tall bed-posts, and walking all the way up to the head; then she reached up to my watch and took it off the nail, and sitting down on my pillow looked at the watch as long as she wished. Having done that, she walked carefully down to the foot of the bed and jumped off, thinking that nobody saw her."

"Who did see me?" said Katie, letting out the guilty secret.

"Please get me the Bible, my dear, and I will tell you."

Katie stood quietly by while her grandpa put on his spectacles, and slowly turned over the leaves till he found what he wanted.

"Read that, my dear."

But Katie could only spell out the words, and so it took her some time to make it out. After two or three trials, she succeeded in reading distinctly:

"Thou, God, seest me"

Then grandpa talked very seriously with her about the sin of disobedience and the guilt of covering a sin, and Katie was very penitent, and resolved then and there to be a better girl. She looked at grandpa with great awe.

"God told him," she said to herself. "Oh, how dreadful to have God look right at me, and then tell grandpa, all alone in his room, what I did! How good grandpa must be to have God talk with him. Seems to me his face shines just like Moses' when he came down from the mount."

"Did you take off your shoes, grandpa?"

"My shoes? What for, my dear? What do you mean?"

"When God talked with you up-stairs and told you I walked on your bed, did you take off your shoes, like Moses?"

"Oh, my dear little girl," said grandpa, with rather a queer expression on his face, "God does not nowadays talk to his children face to face, but he leads and directs them just as truly as he did in the time of Moses. I think he led me to go to my room this morning, and to see on my soft feather bed the deep footprints that you left there; and then, seeing my pillow, that your mother had smoothed so carefully, all tumbled and wrinkled, and observing as I did your little mistake in hanging my watch with its face to the wall, I could not help knowing what you had done."

Now grandpa's face was very serious. "There is one verse in God's Word, my little Katie, that it would be well for little boys—and grown-up men and women, too—to remember: 'Be sure your sin will find you out.'"

Counsels for Children.

Remember always to live in peace. Hate all strife. It is a dreadful thing to be at war with those around us. Be kind to everybody. If you cannot live quietly with any one of your companions, withdraw from him. It is a sad sight to see boys and girls engaged in disputes or quarrels. The Lord Jesus never quarreled with anybody, though he was oftentimes cruelly treated.

Be very kind to the weak and poor and the unfortunate around you. God long ago said, "Ye shall not afflict any widow or fatherless child." He also said, "Thou shalt not curse the deaf, nor put a stumbling block before the blind." It is both mean and wicked to take advantage of the infirmities and misfortunes of those around us.

Use your best efforts to become wise. Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom. If you do not know a thing, ask others. This is scriptural. God said to the Jews: "When your children shall say to you, What mean ye by this service? ye shall say, It is the sacrifice of the Lord's Passover." We should think before we speak, and not thoughtlessly ask silly questions. Better is a poor and wise child than an old foolish king.

Watch your lips. Keep your tongue from evil, and your mouth from speaking guile. Life and death are in the power of the tongue. Ask yourself if it is right for you to say anything; then try to speak kindly and truly and soberly. Childhood and youth spent in sin are a great vanity. Beware of evil speaking.

Be not too fond of play. Life is a serious business. It is right that young people should have their time to play. But some hate work and hate their books and love their ease, and would rather play all the time. Learn to find your joy in doing your duty. It may be hard for you to do some things, but try your best, and by degrees they will become easier.

Obey your parents. Obey them promptly, cheerfully in all things that are lawful. I hope they would not command you to do a wicked thing. "Children, obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right. Honor thy father and mother, that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest live long on the earth." It is safe for old or young to do anything that God bids them. It is very unsafe for them not to do what he commands.

Let your conduct towards God be very humble. We are all sinners, and you are no exception. God hates a lofty spirit. We ought all to be humble, and never lift up our heads in pride.

Be thankful to God. He has done a great deal for you. What a mercy it is that he did not let loose the passion of bad men against you, as did against those children in Bethlehem, when a voice was heard, lamentation and weeping and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they were not.

Be very kind and respectful to old people. Never make fun of them. Their age itself should protect them. You remember the children that mocked the old prophet, Elisha, crying, "Go up, thou bald-head; go up, thou bald head!" And you remember how God sent forth two she-bears out of the wood, and tore forty and two young persons. Children may often be gay without any sin; but let them never make merry over the appearance or infirmities of old people, and especially of aged ministers.

Do all you can to be like Jesus Christ. He was the best model that children ever had. He is the best friend they now have. When on earth, he cured sick children just as he cured other people. Oh, that everybody, old and young, would trust the Saviour!—Dr. Plumer, in Child's Companion.

A Real Knight.

A pleasing sight it was, I do assure you. Not the first part of the scene, for the little maid was crying bitterly. Something very serious must have happened. Wondering, I paused; when around the corner came my knight. On a prancing steed? Wearing a glittering helmet and greaves of brass? No; this was a nineteenth century knight, and they are as likely to be on foot as on horseback. Helmets are apt to be straw hats or derbys, and as for greaves—well, knickerbockers are more common to day.

This particular knight was about ten years old—slender, straight, open-eyed. Quickly he spied the damsel in distress. Swiftly he came to her aid.

"What is the matter?" I heard him say.

Alas! the "matter" was that the bundle she held had "bursted," and its contents were open to view. Probably the small maid expected a hearty scolding for carelessness. And, indeed, whoever put that soiled shirt and collars in her care might reasonably have been vexed.

A new piece of wrapping paper also proved too frail. Must the child get her scolding? Poor little soul! No wonder she had sobbed so mournfully.

But the boy was not daunted. He tucked the "bursted" bundle under his own arm.

"I'll carry it to the laundry for you," he said, in the kindest voice, and off the two trudged together.

Soon after I met the small girl again. She was comforted and serene.

"Was that boy your brother?" I asked. She shook her head.

"Did you know him?" Another shake.

"I have been everything in the church, from sexton to bishop. I want to say to you, boys, I had less trouble when I was sexton than I ever had since." (Laughter.)—Bishop Haygood.

PERFECT HEALTH

"For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from Constipation, Kidney Trouble, and Indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 129 pounds; I now can brag of 150 pounds, and was never in so good health. If you could have seen me before and again after using you would want me for a traveling advertisement. I swear by Ayer's, and believe this preparation to be the best in the market to-day."—S. P. IF THE young men set up these last few weeks, to be shot at by all sorts of orators and advice-givers, will do their best to keep their heads level until cold weather, doing what they can all the while to show that they are willing to work hard for small pay and keep at it until they are worth something, determined not to loaf at any rate, and to be honest or die, they needn't bother about taking anybody's advice as to the rounds on the "ladder of fame," or "victories in the battle of life," or "working out destines," or following "guiding stars to the temple of fame," or anything of the kind.

One of the problems of the times is to obtain under-men who will take pains with their employer's business as with their own, and not expect a larger income than the head of the firm; and when one is found he is promoted so quickly that the problem is always active.

The way to get work is to do something. A college man should be ashamed to say "I cannot get work." Idlers are their own bad advertisement. The fellow who waited for the tide is probably still waiting, ready by this time to make a compromise that will leave out the fame and fortune.

Finally, brethren, if you are going to make teaching your life work, you have chosen the highest calling but one, and it is your duty to regard it as a sacred work. Do not impose on the public by "teaching a year or two for experience" or "to get a start." The supply of real teachers is large enough without such additions. If you want experience or a start, take a local insurance agency or undertake to sell books; for in these at worst you harm no one and you do get a world of experience, and there are great men who started in these occupations.

By no means would we suffer it to appear that we are not aware that young women are also graduating; but for the life of us we cannot say what we would do if we were in the place of one of them. For it all depends.

Women can make livings. We would grant that they can make better livings than men, to avoid a dispute. But it is the opinion of all sane people, men and women, that their calling as a rule is to make livings worth living. "As a rule," we said; for in the course of recent travel we saw some women lawyers and doctors who couldn't make life worth living if they would try a thousand years.

Some one has said, "All things come to him (women included) who waits;" and some one, likely as not the same man, has said, "Time and tide wait for no man," (women included). Of the two, we believe the latter is true; so if opportunity happens not to be offered some one to make somebody's life worth living, that some one had better proceed to make her own life worth living by being useful; and it will turn out all right, for it is a truth that all things come to one who works.

It is worth something to know what patriotism is; and its meaning can doubtlessly be more forcefully stated negatively. It is not patriotism to seek office. On the contrary the spoils system has overshadowed love of country so completely that its parasitical disciples are everywhere to be found, whilst a patriot, in the old true sense, in public life is as rare as the ancient cynic's honest man. It is not patriotism to array class against class; but it is criminal heedlessness. It is popular to decry wealth, just as a century ago it was to cut off nobles' heads. Yet the very foremost clamorers are seeking wealth, just as those of a century ago sought land. It is sin to use the sufferings of the unfortunate to arouse prejudice against the fortunate; it is diabolical to sow discord between debtor and creditor. There are good poor men, there are good rich men; some poor men love their country, and some rich men do, too. There is as much reason in hating a poor man because he is hungry as there is in hating a rich man because he has had breakfast. It is the man and not his belongings that makes or mars. It is not patriotism to arouse the people against bankers because bankers have money. If they are extortionate, it is well enough to despise them; but this cannot be, if the people will exercise their inalienable rights. It is not patriotism to say that the bankers desire such a state of affairs as will work hardship to the people. A banker's success is as dependent on the activity of commerce and good financial condition of the people as is a newspaper's. A leading banker of the country is editing and paying the expenses of the ablest free silver paper in America, and in many instances he sends the paper free. It is just as reasonable to say that he is advocating free silver in order to 'fleece' the people as to say the opponents of free silver have the same motive; just as reasonable to warn the people against him as it is to warn them against bankers in general. A patriot will not be prejudiced against his fellow-citizen because he is a banker or a grocer or a pauper; he will investigate his point of view, and weigh his opinions, and catch him in fraud before condemning him. This is not only patriotism, but it is common sense.

We will all have learned a great lesson when we learn to be slow to prejudice. If we keep up the sowing of strife through it, we will reap disaster and learn the lesson everlastingly too late.

If we are seeking our country's good, we are seeking it for every man in the country as well as ourselves. It is, then, a queer state of affairs when we get to hating those whom we would seem to desire to benefit. And the cold truth is, it is not the people, so much as the office seeking demagog behind the people, who are the source of this baneful spirit of hatred.

We believe in free silver coinage at the 1873 ratio, in order to give silver a fair chance; but we are not disposed to say that every one who opposes us is an extortionate wretch, any more than we are willing to permit any one to think that we hope to pay our debts with dishonest dollars.

Let the debate go on. Let each one vote for the man who stands for his opinions; but for our own sakes, let us, one and all, avoid every man and every publication that stirs us to hate our brethren. If one has a worthy cause, and is worthy of it, he will not see the necessity of arousing prejudice or resorting to abuse.

ON MORE than one occasion we have had something to say regarding the reliability of newspapers. We have unusual confidence in them generally, but there are times when we scarcely believe our eyes.

If the writer who sent out reports of certain speeches at the State University week before last is reliable, a Senator from North Carolina betrayed pitiably poor judgment, more ignorance and worse taste in a 'patriotic' speech (which purported to be soberly serious), and those who heard it made themselves chargeable with mild insanity by applauding it. The report is that Senator Butler said that "hereafter no Baptist who opposes State aid can be elected a delegate to the North Carolina Baptist Convention." If the statement were true, it would be presumptuous for the Senator to make it. And if he made it "in fun," he will find that the Baptist denomination is not a play-thing, even for a Senator and an alumnus of the University.

This is not the only statement of this kind that was made, nor was Senator Butler the only speaker who seemed to be so much beside himself.

At any rate, it is hard to see the object of such remarks. A certain degree of excess of speech on such occasions is pardonable; but it was ridiculously excessive at Chapel Hill. It has been suggested that the speakers who made these wild statements had in view the purpose of frightening young men into supporting State-aid. The statement quoted, coming from a political leader, sounds somewhat that way; but we have been thinking Mr. Butler is too shrewd to allow himself to be implicated in such an open attempt at bulldozing.

[Since the foregoing was put in type, Senator Butler has published a communication in which he makes it clear that he was merely throwing together some high-sounding phrases, after the manner of banquet orators, in a mixture of harmless prophecy and meaningless "eloquence," which the newspapers used for the purpose of which we suspected him.]

THE best of living poets seems to aspire no higher than to a page, with illustrations, in a leading magazine; and thousands are denied even this—fortunately for them and the public, no doubt.

According to this standard, North Carolina has a poet who is near the front; for we have seen his lines in the foremost magazine on this side the Atlantic, and in a great many lesser publications. If he grows on the public as he has been growing on the editors these last three years, North Carolina will give the South the first poet of her new era, although there is nothing peculiarly Southern in his lines. Henry Jerome Stockard is as far from Atlanta Constitution Stanton as can be, and we are so unpatriotic as to prefer Stanton, abominable as he is at times; but that should be nothing to Mr. Stockard, for we prefer Field or Riley to Browning or Whittier.

Mr. Stockard writes sonnets mostly; and such sonnets as never will be popular. They are heavy-worded and long sentenced, and sometimes of hidden meaning. We wish he would write easy, simple, natural poetry; for then we would feel surer of his fame and financial success as well. The Southern people are ready to immortalize the singer who sets words to the music into which their bright, hopeful, simple souls would burst. Stanton goes entirely too far; Stockard is chilly cold and dark.

A Friendly Rail in a Bad Hole.

BY REV. JNO. T. ALBRITTON.

A good, humane citizen, finding a dangerous hole in the road, will put a rail or other warning into or close by it, for the safety of the traveling public.

Graphically speaking, I now put this rail into a bad hole into which some of our Baptist orators and editors have fallen.

These stumbling brethren have boasted that the Baptists of America have never accepted government aid for their denominational schools.

Hon. George C. Pendleton, a member of the last Congress, and also a member of the committee on Indian appropriations, wrote as follows concerning government aid to denominational schools: "The government has treaties with a number of the Indian tribes which require them to educate the Indians. There are not enough government schools, so they make contracts with various denominations, including Catholics, Baptists, Presbyterians and Methodists, to educate so many at such a price."

About the livest Baptist editor in all Texas, on seeing what the Congressman wrote, read him a very caustic lecture, in which he said: "The Baptists have never touched one cent of the government money to help any of their schools. This Mr. Pendleton ought to know. If he hasn't learned that much by one term in Congress, it would be a great piece of folly to send him back. If he knew even the first letter in the alphabet of church history, he would know better than that."

Poor editor! he got into it with both feet! The Western Recorder editor said, last October, that "the Baptist Missionary Union in Boston, with which Indiana Baptists cooperate, does receive from the State money raised by taxation for its schools. It has done this for many years." This same editor told the Indiana Baptist editor that if he would look into the annual report made at Saratoga last spring, he would find this item: "Government grant, $4,514 54."

The truth is, the Baptists have been receiving government aid for their schools among the Indians almost ever since the organization of the old Triennial Convention in 1814. They may have received government aid even before that date.

Gammell, in his History of American Baptist Missions, says, on pages 318 and 319: "In most of the treaties which were made with their several tribes, large sums of money were granted them for the support of schools, and for their improvement in agriculture and the useful arts, and in the year 1819 a bill passed both houses of Congress, placing at the disposal of the President an annual appropriation of $10 000 for their instruction and civilization. For several years preceding, the moneys which were appropriated by the government for the benefit of particular tribes had been disbursed mainly through the agency of the various missionary boards of the country, and it was now decided by the President that the funds derived from the new appropriation should be expended in the same manner. The stations at Carey and at Thomas had from the beginning been nearly supported by sums paid for this purpose to the Putawatomies and the Ottawas, and in 1825 the Board began to receive a portion of the annual appropriation, which, varying with the amount of service rendered, has been regularly continued to the present time. The sums which have thus been received from the government of the United States amount in all to $104,684, and have constituted an important aid in supporting the mission schools among the Indian tribes."

I could quote much more, but I do not deem it necessary. It is a pity to deprive our orators and editors of this precious chunk of brag thunder; but it is a greater pity for them to continue blowing their heads off with it. I put up the danger signal free of charge, hoping that the editorial fraternity of the Baptist persuasion will publish it for the benefit of the orators and editors yet to come.

So far as I know, our Southern Baptists have never, since the organization of our S. B. Convention in 1845, received government aid in support of their Indian schools. It is to be regreted that any Baptists anywhere have ever done so unbaptistic a thing.

Heavenly Deposits.

"He that hath pity upon the the poor lendeth to the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again." Prov. 19: 17.

There are but very few of us that ever invest much in the Lord's bank. We are not afraid to confide in some men who have never expressed any confidence in our Father; but when our Father comes to us and tells us to lend him a little by giving to his poor, we say: "Father, you have too many of them." I have tried to think (of a class) who will have the largest deposit in the Lord's bank? If sacrificial giving is the most profitable in God's sight, I fear there are great many of us who are going to be deceived when we go up to examine our heavenly account.

Many of us are very careful about keeping our bank account in this world even, but don't seem to be concerned much about our heavenly account. I have thought much about an old brother who made an application to the Ministerial Relief Board some time ago for help. He was old and decrepit; had given thirty four of the best years of his life to preaching the gospel, and had spent about all his time and means for its dissemination. He wanted relief in his affliction, but we could only give him a small amount because of an exhausted treasury. We did want to make his last days his best days, but could not. The brethren of the Convention would not let enough of the Lord's money come for his entire support, so we had to let him suffer for the balance, or do the best he could. I think he will have a well balanced account when he gets to heaven. I wanted to say this in a general way. Now to the text:

1. There is no class of people that deserves and claim our pity and support more than the Lord's poor.

Christ said "The poor ye have with you always." When he spoke these words, there were some who were envious because of this poor woman's contribution, and thought it a waste; but Christ said, "She hath done what she could." I wonder if we have all done as well as she? This ointment cost about fifty dollars, and yet she did not regard it as costly when it was used to anoint her Master's head. It seems to me it would be worth so much more for us to help the Lord's poor old servants, than it did for this woman to anoint the Master's head. Christ said, "Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this should be told as a memorial of her."

I have thought the Lord lets these poor old afflicted preachers stay here (none of them stay long because they usually wear out before they give up) to allow us a chance to make a deposit in his bank. We grumble some sometimes about preachers having hard times, but I believe the hardest time any preacher ever sees (temporally speaking) in this life, if he preaches for Christ is, when he gets in sight of the river of death and is waiting to cross over. The poor old fellow does not care for anything in this life except to relieve bodily wants, and many of us who have plenty and to spare, never think of their wants and needs. I am glad all are not so. Recently a brother in Louisburg sent me a check for fifty dollars. Last year another brother sent a check for five hundred dollars to be deposited in the Lord's bank. They are not only showing and feeling pity for the poor, but they are, as the text suggests, having pity. They are few, but they are true, and are trying to test the Lord.

2. An investment of this kind pays a very large per cent.

How much we don't know. We are anxious to build our fine churches and school buildings to show the world how much we appreciate our religion, but sometimes I think we never realize how much investment there is in it for the Lord. We never know what we get from a deposit of this kind (giving to the poor) until we get to heaven. The world wants an earthly monument, but God wants no monument erected here for him. He keeps this account, but because no fuss is made about it, and our old preachers never brawl and criticise, they are let alone to die or make the best of it they can; and when he does die, he scarcely has a decent burial, and many apparently are glad that they are out of the way. We all know they are objects of charity, but how many of us help them?

At family prayers one morning the father prayed to the good Lord to help the poor. His little son, rising from his knees, said: "Father, if I had your corn in the crib and meat in the smokehouse, I would answer your prayers." What these brethren and sisters want who are in need and on the Ministerial Relief Board, is something to satisfy the appetite, and to protect their bodies. Let us send these to them, and let our prayers go with our gifts.

I am glad the Lord left the per cent. for the amount we deposit in his bank indefinite. I think we will get much more than we expect now. I sometimes think these old preachers who have been reduced to poverty and want here, are expecting great things of the Lord after a while. I stood by the coffin of one sometimes ago, and looked into his lifeless face, and thought of his work and what I knew of his struggles through life, and how little he cared for worldly things. He had been transformed into second childhood; but his faith was strong and his hope secure. His mind was not on timely things much of the time, but he talked much and thought much about things in eternity. He knew not how much the Lord had in reserve for him, but he was confident he would do what he had promised. He was not so much interested in the amount he had, as he was in the enjoyment of it after coming in possession of it beyond the river of death.

There is no promise in God's word so positive as this, connected with any deposit made in his bank. We have no promise so pointed as this. Filled with so much encouragement, should we not take God at his word, and invest more in his bank, where we can reap a larger per cent. after a while than any earthly investment made in this world? Let us do more for these poor old preachers who are worn out in the Lord's cause.

"Let the Facts be Known."

BY REV. J. H. STALLINGS, D. D.

The article in your issue of the 5th inst. under the above head is, it seems to me, wise. In order to properly carry out the suggestions, it will be necessary for the clerks of the Associations to have church letters prepared with the requisite blanks. I have never seen a letter that contained the proper blanks so that the average church clerk would give the information needed. Every letter ought to have in its financial statement blanks showing how much has been forwarded to the treasurer of the Baptist State Convention, or to other proper person for each object, and how much is sent up to the meeting of the Association. Most letters state the aggregate for each object, without distinguishing between that sent before the meeting and that sent to the meeting. This creates confusion, and leaves an open door for misunderstanding.

If Bro. Jones' suggestions are adopted, it will be necessary to have blanks showing the number that contribute to each object. It is too late for the Associations to order such letters prepared and distributed to the churches; but it can be attended to at the Union Meetings which assemble this month. Let every Union appoint a judicious committee to formulate a letter which shall give all the facts necessary to be known, have the same printed and sent to the clerks of the churches. The necessary funds can be raised by each Union to have it done.

All recognize the extreme importance of getting every member to contribute something. It will never be done, even approximately, until the Bible rule, "Let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him," is adopted. Paul directed the Corinthians, a mercantile people, to do this "upon the first day of the week," which they could easily do. So can all mercantile people now. So can all who receive daily or weekly returns. But those who receive monthly, quarterly, semi-annual, or yearly returns, cannot. They, however, obeying the spirit of the direction can lay by them in store when they receive. Most of our people are ready to give something, if they have it, when the call is made. The trouble is that so many do not prepare by "laying by them in store" when they have; but they go on and consume all they get, reserving only enough to meet absolute demands for food and raiment, and consequently have nothing when the call comes. Now, most of my people are farmers, and the largest per cent. of our people in the State are of the same occupation. I suggest that every one "lay by him in store" when he reaps his grain, and it is ready for market, a certain quantity "as God has prospered him," and that he sell it and hold it sacredly for the Lord's cause, and dispense it as the interests of the cause demand. Let him do this "with the first fruits of all his increase," and he will always have something to give. Let farmers' wives and daughters do the same with their eggs and poultry, marketable garden vegetables, and the fruit, and they will always have something to give.

Town and city churches always contribute more liberally than country churches, and a larger per cent. of their members give. It is not because the former are more able, nor is it because they are more pious; but it is because receiving daily or weekly or monthly, the most of them always have something, and can "lay by in store" and give when the call is made. Many of the latter get their returns in bulk when they gather, and then dispose of it in such a way that they have nothing left, and cannot give when the calls come. The only remedy is for them to lay aside when they gather and dispose of what is laid aside and hold it sacred for the Lord's cause. I sincerely hope that our brethren and sisters will prayerfully consider this, and adopt the plan suggested. I am using every effort to get my people to do it. If ever done by all or by most of our people, there will be no lack of money for every good cause. Not only so, but there will be abundant prosperity in our land. "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first-fruits of all thy increase, so shall thy barns be filled with plenty and thy presses shall burst out with new wine."

The question, What portion each should "lay by him in store," I propose to show from the Scriptures, in a future article.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1895.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The RECORDER wishes to thank its friends for the sympathy they have expressed for it, and takes this opportunity to assure them that neither pains nor expense will be spared to keep its usefulness unimpaired, and to make it such a paper as will fully meet the growing demands of the great denomination of which it has been the organ sixty years.

The paper is for the time being in the same hands and under the same influences as during the last two years of the late editor's illness. It is also in touch with the committee appointed by the last Convention to meet this emergency, whose action we hope to announce in the near future.

The RECORDER will always be faithful to the trusts which are placed in it. In close adherence to the Word of God, and in persistent effort to aid in furtherance of the ends of our Convention and its agencies, the conscientious fidelity of the late editor will be held up for a constant example. The need for enlargement has become apparent, and we are glad to announce that this matter is under consideration.

The RECORDER needs friends now more than ever before; and one and all may be assured that anything they do will not be forgotten.

Communications and business letters should be addressed to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, Raleigh, N. C. Checks, postal orders, etc., should be made payable to the BIBLICAL RECORDER. J. W. BAILEY.

SO WELL deserved is it, that we have no apology to offer for giving most of our space this week to Wake Forest College. President Taylor's address ought to be preserved by every reader.

IT SEEMS advisable to say that the strong sermon we published from "Rev. John Robertson, Presbyterian, of Scotland," was preached by him when he was a Presbyterian. Since then, however, he has had to get out of that fold (naturally, indeed), and the Presbyterians are trying to make it appear that he is "an independent man."

AND now they are having trouble with a Danish translation of the Bible. The American Bible Society has put the great commission in that language so as to read: "Go ye and make disciples of all nations by baptising them," etc. Accordingly, there is going to be a great deal to be answered for by the translators when the final reckoning comes—and all because of baby sprinkling.

WE have seen it stated several times that our educational interests in general are more properous than ever. Probably there are more young men and women in our higher schools than ever before. There are more young men and women in the world. We have no evidence, however, that the incomes of our private schools are as large as usual. We know that some academies and preparatory schools are suffering because in the rush for numbers, the higher schools have taken their students.

LAST year the Disciples were given permission to build a "Divinity House" in connection with the University of Chicago, though not on the property of the institution. Recently the Cumberland Presbyterians were given permission to build a Divinity House at the University for ministerial students of their doctrine.

It is said that the University can have but one Divinity School proper (and that Baptist), but it can affiliate "divinity houses" of all denominations. May this not be taken, at least, as a compliment to the University, equipment?

WE WERE highly gratified to see that Wake Forest has received recognition from Johns Hopkins University that has not been accorded any other institution. Out of nine honorary scholarships, her sons have been awarded four for the coming year and another has been given an ordinary scholarship. The more one knows of the difficulty with which honorary scholarships are obtained, the prouder he will feel of this announcement; and what makes this more gratifying is the fact that the scholarships reflect credit on nearly every department of the College, the young men respectively representing Modern Languages, Political Economy, Latin and Greek, Chemistry and Biology and Mathematics. The following are the names of the young men: W. A. Montgomery, Jos. S. W. Sikes, W. B. Daniel, W. A. Foster, J. B. Haskins. We congratulate them and their instructors.

WAKE FOREST BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Wake Forest College fittingly closed a good year last week. It has met a crisis with a solid front, and comes out stronger in foundation, friends and hope. The work of the members of the faculty last summer was abundantly fruitful. The College has assumed a more personal relation to the denomination, and efforts now being made are intensifying and extending this every day.

The Board of Trustees was unusually active, a great deal of business of general and particular import coming up.

The vacancies caused by deaths were filled by the selection of two prominent and aggressive laymen of the denomination, Mr. N. B. Broughton and Mr. W. C. Dowd, and one of our most substantial pastors, Rev. J. B. Boone.

Prof. N. Y. Gulley was elected to the head of the department of Law and the Chair of Political Science. He is one of the best-known Baptists at the North Carolina Bar, his practice having rapidly grown, and his integrity having been maintained from the beginning. He has for a year or more practically had charge of the trusts which have just been formally placed upon him, and has proved himself fully equal to the large opportunities which they offer. The Summer Law School will open in July and continue eight weeks.

Prof. Gorrell was formally elected to the Chair of Modern Languages, which he filled with great satisfaction during the session just closed. He is one of the closest students in the State and one of our most scholarly young men. He is also popular with the boys, which is no small consideration.

Mr. R. W. Haywood, for a year Tutor in Latin and Greek, was made Instructor in those branches. He stood at the head of the Class of 1894 with a remarkably high average. As Tutor, he has done a great deal of responsible work, has maintained himself in the esteem of his former fellow students, and shown ample evidence of his worth as a teacher.

President Taylor will return to his College duties, which the necessity for endowment and condition of the times compelled him to relinquish.

As Chairman of the Faculty, during the session, Prof. Poteat was in no new relation; and as we look back over the year, we find that there have been fewer of those inevitable school-life troubles at the College than in many years.

Rev. C. W. Blanchard, whose work is well known to our readers, was instructed to continue his efforts. We are sure the College could not have a better field representative; and with him canvassing for endowment and the members of the faculty aiding him in looking up students and representing the College in general, we have no fears for the coming year.

Admittance to the College of professional ball-players was prohibited.

The officers of the Board were re elected, an honor which their aggressive interest in the College more than merited.

IT IS encouraging to see that prominent brethren are considering the wisdom of establishing academies in our Associations. If we had a Robeson Institute in every Association in the State, Wake Forest would be over-run with well-prepared young men, and our people would be quickly brought to realize the real need for a Baptist Female University.

We believe the usual plan is to purchase the property for the Association and leave the election of a board of trustees to the Association, the trustees electing a faculty and directing the school.

We hope there will be institutions like this in all parts of the State before long. No doubt they would be a paying investment from denominational, educational and financial points of view.

Now, some one may be afraid we are carrying religion too far—making our children narrow, or something of the kind. In the first place we have yet to make the acquaintance of the man who carries his religion too far. And in the second, if we do not see to it that our children are brought up under the proper influences, we would like to know who will.

We would not have any one to think that we desire our school teachers to make church annexes of their institutions; and we do not know any who do. We do advocate a livelier interest in our churches in regard to education, local and general; we do seek more solid, well-managed, Christian schools. They will insure the proper training of our children. They will help protect Christian colleges in the struggle with State-aid.

WAKE FOREST never conferred honors more worthily than she did last week. Every title that she gave will be worn with credit to her.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Rev. W. M. Sorrell of Cary, N. C., has accepted a call to the church at Pine Level, N. C.

....An effort is being made to raise for the use of our Seminary a $60,000 fund in honor of Dr. Broadus.

....The Examiner says that the new Secretary of State, Hon. Richard Olney, is of Baptist lineage and himself a graduate of Brown University.

....Baptists had a rally in Charlotte Sunday. Pastors Pritchard and Pruett and others made speeches. Bro. Pruett will tell us about it next time he writes.

....Evangelist H. M. Wharton took charge of the meeting in Bro. Oliver's church, Wilmington, Sunday, after Evangelist Crane had preached about ten days.

....We were glad to meet Rev. J. T. Jenkins of Morehead City in Raleigh last week. He is very hopeful of his new field, and we wish him abundant success in it.

....President Taylor, Profs. Carlyle, Poteat and Ferrall have done good service at various schools recently. We think Dr. Taylor had engagements at half a dozen.

....Rev. A. W. Setzer of Wake Forest College will supply for the church at Cleveland during vacation, and will also hold several meetings in Burke county in August.

....Rev. C. L. Greaves of Wake Forest College has accepted a call to our church at Sanford and will be ordained and installed in July. He is one our most promising young men.

....At the meeting for prayer and conference on the Holy Spirit in Richmond, Va., June 18th, Rev. A. C. Dixon will deliver an address. The meeting is interdenominational.

....Prof. R. L. Paschal has returned to his home at Siler City for vacation. Since graduating from Wake Forest he has been successfully engaged in teaching at Fort Worth, Texas.

....Bro. I. T. Newton recently held a series of meetings at Brevard, in the western part of the State, which have proved very fruitful. The church is anxious to have him become its pastor.

....We were glad to see our friends, Rev. J. B. Newton and Bro. A. W. Early of Aulander in Raleigh last week. Bro. Early's third son Herbert W. graduated with honor at Wake Forest last week.

....Rev. W. C. Newton of Clayton passed through Raleigh Saturday on his way to New York, where there will be a reunion of the children of our late missionaries, Bro. and sister C. C. Newton.

....Negro Baptists in Portsmouth recently dedicated their $35,000 house of worship. "The dedicatory services," says the Atlantic Baptist, "will continue until July 21st," during which time twenty ministers will preach.

....Rev. J. H. Lamberth, Mt. Airy, Rev. J. A. Campbell, Poe's, Rev. J. G. Pulliam and wife, Smithfield, Rev. H. A. Brown, Rev. Rufus Carter, Fair Bluff, were among those with whom we had a pleasant word as they went on to Wake Forest last week.

....Rev. J. Paul Spence, who graduated with honor at Wake Forest, and has since attended Crozer Theological Seminary, has returned to Elizabeth City to spend his summer vacation. Bro. Spence supplied the Elizabeth City pulpit very acceptably last summer.

....In order to get notices of the Union Meetings in this week, it was necessary to condense some of them. We could have avoided this by issuing a supplement, if the programs had been sent us the first of the month. Let the committees bear this in mind next time.

....Rev. R. T. Vann, D. D., and family left Saturday for his old home at Como, Hertford county, where they will spend the summer. Mr. Vann's physicians in Philadelphia tell him to take perfect rest, and, so he will remain away several months.—Scotland Neck Democrat.

....Rev. D. R. Rickard of Lexington, a member of the rising Wake Forest Senior Class ('96) was a pleasant visitor to our office last Friday. He will hold meetings and fill various pulpits this summer. He told us that the next Senior Class at College would number about forty.

....Pastor Gwaltney of Wake Forest is in Knoxville, Tenn., with four Wake Forest students, attending the annual meeting of those interested in the Student's Volunteer Movement. The work suggested by this movement has been of great advantage to the students who pursued it at Wake Forest.

....Rev. G. M. Webb preached two sermons last Sunday at Carpenter's school house near Crouse, and the building would not hold more than half the people present. The last service about 17 stood for prayer. One gentleman proposed to give an acre of land in Crouse, and $10 towards building a church for the Baptists.—Cleveland Star.

....The rising walls of the Female University, and the handsome picture of it as it will be, were attractions to brethren and sisters going to Wake Forest last week. Bro. Stringfield is expecting several thousand dollars in pledges to be redeemed in the next few months. It would be a great blessing if the building could be pushed right on to completion.

....Rev. T. T. Speight, D. D., has resigned the pastorate of Lewiston Baptist church. His farewell sermon was preached Sunday to the regret of his many friends. May the Lord bless him in his work wherever he may go. The church has appointed a committee to secure a pastor, and has been instructed to call Rev. T. C. Britton, recently of China.—P., in Patron and Gleaner.

....The Baptist church is nearing completion. It will be one of the handsomest churches in the State and our Baptist people should feel a just pride in it. Architect Zimmerman says it will be ready for occupancy by July 1st. The Morganton Electric Light and Power Company will install fifty-four incandescent lights in this building, and the lighting effects will be very brilliant.—Morganton Herald.

....We were pleased to have a visit from Rev. M. A. Adams last week, on his return from Wake Forest. He will complete his first year as pastor at Reidsville this week, and he has planned to make it the occasion for mission and Bible conference, June 19-21. Rev. J. B. Richardson, Rev. C. W. Blanchard, Rev. A. C. Dixon, Rev. R. J. Willingham, Rev. F. H. Jones, Dr. C. A. Rominger, and others are expected to take part.

....Rev. Blakely H. Matthews of Plymouth writes from Newbern June 11: "I am on my way down to the sea-shore to hold a meeting for the good brethren at Davis Shore. Bro. Burgess, the excellent pastor of the Tabernacle of Newbern, told me he baptized nine last night into its fellowship. They have a nice chapel almost completed. You won't find any happier men than brethren Burgess, Whitty and Patterson. Bro. S. J. Porter will take charge in a few days of the First church. The Baptist cause is moving in Newbern."

....We were glad to have a visit from Rev. Junius W. Millard, Henderson's new pastor. He expressed himself as delighted with the prospect of working in his native State, and evinced a lively interest in industrial affairs as well as religious, being particularly gratified at seeing the changes for the better in respect of manufacturing interests since he left for the Seminary. Of course he was at Wake Forest last week. Bro. Millard won an enviable name in Kentucky, and we are sure he will be used for great good in North Carolina.

....Pastor Hocutt says our house of worship at Haw River will be ready for the Union Meeting fifth Sunday. He is glad to say that quite a number of brethren have responded to his call for help, but he will have to hear from many others in order to dedicate free of debt. "Allow me to say this: I do not think that there is a place in the State that needs help more than Haw River; neither do I think that there is a place that promises a greater and an earlier return of fruit-bearing. Brethren, do not allow this opportunity to help a worthy cause pass by. A little help now from each will put this church where she will be self-supporting."

BRILLIANT WEEK AT WAKE FOREST.

MONDAY NIGHT.

The class exercises held to night is the first step in the closing exercises in 1895. The class is composed of twenty-three men. The average age we reckon at twenty years. Mr. Parham, President of the Class, was also the Valedictorian; Mr. Buxton, the Class Historian, was so close to him, however, that it was difficult to decide which should wear the much coveted distinction. Mr. Kerr, of Caswell, the Orator of the Class, was entirely at ease, and gave his colleagues a fine example of a man who had something to say, and who knew how to say it in a clear, earnest, forceful style. Mr. Buxton of Northampton, the Historian, "brought forth things new and old," as he recited incidents of the Class of '95, also referring to the members personally in a manner highly amusing to the audience. This part of the exercises had a counterpart in the Class prophecy, as uttered by Mr. Newton. He was, as will be seen, out of his own country, and so proceeded to tell what was to come to the members of his Class with a boldness and certainty that must class him with the prophets. Mr. Beasley was the Poet. His effort at good reading showed that he was trying faithfully to put the author in the best light possible. He spliced or cut short metres according to the necessity of the case, and never failed to show the jingle at the right time.

Altogether, the first of the Commencement afforded a pleasant hour to the audience, which was unusually large for this stage of the exercises. At the close of these exercises, the Class was given the usual delightful reception at the hospitable home of President and Mrs. Taylor, who were assisted by the young ladies of the village.

TUESDAY, ALUMNI DAY.

Many familiar faces are to be seen; some of these are old students, who are from all sections of this State, and many from other States, who on this occasion delight to honor their Alma Mater by their presence.

At 8 o'clock p. m. a large crowd is in Memorial Hall to hear the annual address before the Alumni Association. This part of Wake Forest has gained much interest that it did not possess some years ago. But as the members of the Association have been impressed with the necessity of aggressive and loyal efforts on their part for the success of the College, these meetings have gained new life and nobler purposes, which are seen in the patronage and progress of the Institution.

PROFESSOR POTEAT'S ADDRESS.

Special interest attended this meeting, for the orator of the evening, Prof. W. L. Poteat, never fails to interest those who know his power as a scholarly speaker. The following is only an imperfect reference to the oration, which was delivered in Prof. Poteat's best and most effective style:

The Professor discussed some of the characteristics of the intellectual life of the century now closing and their bearing upon the religious life. While there is no necessary relation between the stages of human development and the arbitrary chronological divisions in use among us, there may, nevertheless, be a general coincidence between them. Certainly there is a well marked development which coincides roughly with the nineteenth century.

I. The characteristics of that development must be sought in the interplay of intellectual opinions and moral sentiments. The two dominant forces which survive from the second century into the modern world are Christianity and the Greek feeling for truth represented by its lineal descendant, modern science. Of these two, science is the force which most distinctly characterizes the nineteenth century intellectual activities.

(1) The present century has witnessed a new renascence of the human mind. The fifteenth century movement was great rather in what it aspired to do, than in what it actually achieved; it remaining for our own age in a large measure, to realize those aspirations.

(2) The newly awakened intellectual energy found its sufficient arena in the unexplored fields of Nature. No phenomenon was beyond its investigation. The sense of mystery attracted it like the impalpable drawings of a hidden magnet. The record of discovery which followed is unmatched in all history. The world has made greater progress in natural knowledge in the present century than in all the earlier ages combined. The following broader features of this scientific progress since 1880 were specified: the molecular constitution of matter; the cell structure of animals and plants; the conservation of energy, evolution, spectrum, analysis and its application to celestial physics; the antiquity of man and of the earth; the application of electricity to communication, lighting and machinery; biogenesis, embryology, and the germ of disease. Humanity presents no finer spectacle than in its struggle up the steep ascent of nineteenth century science. There are but two extenuations of the crime of the detractors of this brilliant record; their uncompromising devotion to vital beliefs which they suppose to be threatened, and ignorance of the context and implications of science.

(3) Ours is the age of criticism. Long established principles have been subjected to analysis from the new point of view and the touchstone of the new knowledge has been applied to the foundations of ethics and the credentials of Christianity. Doubts, which in a former age did not venture beyond the intimacies of a close fellowship, now walk abroad, and the "results" of the higher and lower critics are common property. The spread of the critical spirit has been accompanied by the decay of authority and emancipation from traditional discipline.

(4) It is an age of industrialism. The "fruits" of abstract science are visible in the heightened comfort of life, the rapidity and ease of communication, the transmission of powers, the applications of them and electricity, the softening down of sectional and national distinctions.

(5) It is an age of realism. The homely absorption in the affairs of the work a day world, which is peculiar to no age or clime, has in our day been accentuated and dignified by alliance with a named and championed philosophy of life and things, a cult with creed and apostate, whose literary archbishop is M. Zola. Its influence is manifest in current philosophy, in science itself, in art, in literature, and in the practical conduct of the masses of men. In a word, our nineteenth century culture is scientific.

II. Faith. In answer to the question, How has the religious life fared in this scientific atmosphere? the speaker discussed in some detail the following points:

(1) The religious asphyxia and paralysis, which have marked the culture of our period, are incidental to our passage into the wider horizons of truth opened up in modern science.

(2) The positive gains to religion from science, as the resurrection of the life and thought of ancient Israel, the reconstruction of the human life of Jesus, a living Scripture in the room of a mosaic of texts, a nobler conception of God, the dropping of foolish and extravagant interpretation, the emancipation of the individual in matters of religious belief and the recognition of theology as a human effort to systematize our knowledge of divine things, Christianity itself being absolute, but our apprehension of it progressive. The several tests of its divinity and its universality it has met when it has come into contact with a new social theory or a new body of teaching and has swiftly or slowly expanded to include them, for example, the Greek philosophy, the Roman state, and lastly modern science.

(3) Faith has come to be recognized as an independent organ of spiritual knowledge as authoritative in its sphere as sense and the reason in theirs. And here the personal religious experience of M. Renan was dwelt upon because it was regarded as typical.

(4) We are witnessing now the convergence of isolated lines of inquiry into a harmonious culture. The first symptoms of convergence are a sensitive jealousy of trespass upon the pre-empted territory, animosities, and open conflicts. But as they draw still nearer, the contact which began in conflict ends in embrace, and the parties discover that neither is complete without the other.

Our period has been universally touched with doubt, but it is as keenly alive to the necessity of faith as any that has preceded it. Faith is emerging freed of impediments, spiritualized in conception, and legitimated to the enlightened mind, and we may turn with helpfulness to the development of the twentieth century.

III. The function of Wake Forest in the next century was discussed in the concluding portion of the address. Attention was called to the striking fact that the history of the College is exactly coincident with the intellectual revolution which was sketched. Its foundation was determined upon in 1833. Among the resources of the College were reckoned the fact that it was a Southern institution (the South had an important role in the coming destiny of our common country), its large and enthusiastic constituency, its traditions. Its temptations were the ambition of mere numbers, the university ideal of original research and professional schools, and excessive development of competitive athletics. Its future was held to be assured in the permanence of its function of liberal culture in a Christian atmosphere, and in the loyal support of its able body of alumni.

Prof. Poteat is an easy, graceful speaker and combines in a happy way reason with entertainment. His address to-night was the superior of any heard in the years past.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

At 11 o'clock the chapel was filled with an audience which would inspire the best efforts of the orator of the day, Hon. Thos. W. Mason. After a most earnest and appropriate prayer by Dr. C. S. Blackwell of Elizabeth City, Dr. Taylor introduced Mr. Mason in the following words: "The young men of the two Literary Societies of Wake Forest have learned to obey at least one Scriptural injunction, 'Covet earnestly the best gifts,' and on this occasion they learned it was not necessary to leave North Carolina, the home of orators for a demonstration of this fact. I take great pleasure in introducing as the orator of the day, Hon. Thomas W. Mason of North Carolina." Every one felt from the first that the speaker was master of the situation, and as he unfolded the message, "What Will You Make of the State?" in language beautiful and clear, in thought profound and bold, and a style which easily puts the orator in the first rank among public speakers.

THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

Rev. H. M. Wharton, D. D., of Baltimore, preached the baccalaureate sermon in Wingate Hall at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Dr. Wharton has more than national fame as a traveler, author, editor and evangelist. He is editor of the Evangel, and author of three popular works. He is yet a young man. He started in life as a lawyer in Virginia, his native State. His power of popular song is not among the least of his drawing powers. That he draws, is testified by the fact that wherever he appears the audience is only limited by the capacity of the building.

Rev. J. F. Love of Virginia and Dr. A. M. Simms conducted the introductory service. Dr. Wharton took for his text Matt. 22: 42, "What think ye of Christ?" Young men, you have been asked many hard questions, and have answered them to the satisfaction of your teachers here in college halls. But as you now leave the grindstone with sharp mental scythes for the harvest field of life, I ask you a still harder and more important question: "What think ye of Christ?" Don't think you know it all now. The greatest temptation you will ever have is now upon you. But know you that no learning will ever put you beyond the knowledge of God in Christ Jesus. I don't believe any man ever gets beyond Jesus Christ. I don't believe there is an infidel in the world. Even Mr. Ingersoll by the side of his dead brother confessed, "Love can see a star, and Hope can hear the rustle of a wing." What do Christ's enemies think of Him? They said he was a wine bibber and an imposter. An imposter is one who plays on the credulity of others for his own gain. Christ playing on others for personal gain! No! Christ was on the loss for others from the cradle to the grave. He spent himself for others all the time. He gave himself to redeem each of us. Still he promises to go with us now to help us in all our struggles. Gen. Stonewall Jackson said that Christ "with him" kept him calm on every battlefield. My ambition is to help this old world and help every man and child I touch in it. I want to be so good and helpful that even the undertaker will be sorry when I die. To do this I must have Jesus to help me day by day. But the enemies of Jesus say he does not carry out his promises to help us. But he can and does give the blind their sight, and the deaf their ears. A blind man had had an operation performed on his eyes, and his sight given to him again. He started home from the distant city to meet his wife and children whom he had never seen. He gets off the cars. They rush to his arms. "Oh!" he exclaims, "you are the prettiest woman and you the most beautiful children in all the world." Yes, he gives us sight to see God, glory, and the angels—to see new beauties in the universe. How beautiful now are all things when he opens our eyes!

2. What do Christ's friends think of him? No other name is given in heaven and in earth whereby we can be saved." His friends believe, by experience, that he will do more for us than we ask. Spurgeon's mother was a Congregationalist, and often prayed for her son Charles' conversion. He was converted and came home and said, "Mother, I was converted to day, and expect to become a Baptist preacher. "Oh, my son, I prayed that you become a preacher, but not a Baptist preacher." "Yes, mother, but God always does better for us than we ask." For Christ always gives gold for silver, brass for iron, and stone for wood. He saves to the uttermost, and is worthy of your fullest trust.

THURSDAY MORNING.

Large crowds are coming on every train, and the Seniors, whose day this is, are stimulated to be at their best. We have a short comment on each speech delivered which would be pleasant reading to the friends of these young men, but our report has already gone beyond bounds, and our friends must take the will for the deed.

The music was never so sweet and cheering as it has been at this commencement.

After prayer by Dr. W. L. Wright of Richmond, Va., the following young gentlemen were presented as the ones chosen to represent the class of 1895:—

Salutatory Address, Samuel Roland Buxton, Jackson, N. C.

Valedictory Address, Frank Earl Parham, Granville county, N. C.

The following handed in theses:—

Wordsworth—the Man and the Poet—Robert T. Allen, Wake Forest, N. C.

England and the Renaissance—Oliver L. Hoffman, Burke county, N. C.

The Puritans in England—J. Malcolm Holding, Wake Forest, N. C.

Shelley's Case—Hugh Long, Union county, N. C.

The Early Church in England—John R. Moore, Robeson county, N. C.

Mental Culture—William Royall, Wake Forest, N. C.

At the conclusion of these exercises, Dr. Taylor announced that the diplomas would be delivered to the members of the class by Prof. W. L. Poteat, who is acting chairman of the faculty during the absence of the President.

DR. TAYLOR'S ADDRESS.

The address of Dr. Taylor to the class was one of the finest to which we have ever listened, and in compliance with repeated requests of those present, we are glad to print it as delivered:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—Before addressing myself specifically to the young gentlemen who are about to receive their diplomas, my baccalaureate address to day will be to your wider presence. Its subject will be "An Ideal Christian College." As to the auspices under which they should be sustained and controlled, there may be honest difference of opinion: but there must and will be colleges consecrated to culture under Christian influences is no open question. To society at large they are helpful. To the individual student they are invaluable. To the churches of every denomination, they are not mere luxuries, but absolute necessities. Religion and education must live together. Their bill of divorcement may no man write.

Christian colleges count not themselves to have attained perfection. And it is only as they keep before themselves some exalted ideal that they are ever likely to attain it. I have my own conception—call it a dream, if you will—as to what a Christian college ought to be, and possibly, may be. The artist's cunning is not mine—and if it were, the time is lacking now, to trace in detail the fair picture. Only a few hints as to the broader lines may be suggested.

1. The Ideal Christian College will be recognized as sustaining immediate relations to the building of the kingdom of heaven in the world. The constant purpose which runs through the evolution of the ages is the founding and upbuilding of this kingdom. The intrigues of diplomacy, the pomp and pride and circumstance of war, the fall or rise of empires, are all subordinate thereto. All these are but the scaffolding of a slowly rising temple. If any so-called Christian college has no clearly recognized and direct relations to this work, sublime, because divine, the reason for its existence is gone.

2. A college founded with so lofty an aim and inspired by so holy a purpose will be as broad as the truth will let it be. For all truth is essentially narrow. The laws of nature are nowhere elastic or sentimental. To say that two and two are five is broad and wide—wide of the truth. Straight is the gate and narrow is the road which leadeth unto successful experiment, accurate knowledge, correct conclusions. But a narrow road road may be trod by men of broadest minds and largest sympathies. An ox cart needs a wider road than a locomotive. But the locomotive has more definite convictions. "Narrow" is a good word. But judgment is not always shown in the use of it.

3. The Ideal College will be impatient of anything short of the most thorough and extended instruction. It will blink at no truth, because it needs not. To new truth, as well as to old, will it give hospitable reception. But it will insist on submitting its credentials to the closest scrutiny. A college means scholarship or it means nothing. The degrees of the Ideal College will in every case authenticate real learning,—knowledge which will not be nebulous and amorphous, but crystalline with the sharp edges of accuracy. No college has the right to ask the patronage even of those who would be its natural supporters, unless it can offer the best instruction by men of real ability. For any young man, with his future before him, is worth more than any college.

4 The Ideal Christian College will lay great stress on the study of the Bible. We have already passed the period when this was considered the peculiar, if not exclusive, function of the minister. But in the college of the future more attention will not be given to the literature of heathen ancients and half heathen moderns than to the Oracles of God. Pilate put writings in Greek and Latin above the cross of Christ. Too long have they been allowed to remain in our colleges in this unnatural position. Not that classic culture should be lowered or ignored, for Christianity needs and demands it. But the Cross and the Word that reveals it will be lifted above it all. And the men who will control the Ideal College as trustees and instructors will not regard as open questions the chief end of man, the ideals of character, the facts of redemption. The gospel of the grace of God will be considered by them as far more important than art, science, or literature. All instruction, so far as possible, will be permeated with the warmth and light and glory of religion. And instructors will recognize in their positions possibilities of usefulness only second to those enjoyed by the Christian ministry.

5. The Ideal College will not be hampered by lack of means with which to do its work. The more clearly its high mission and destiny are recognized, the more generous will be the streams of consecrated wealth which will flow into its treasuries. Men will rejoice to know that there is a way to transmute gold and silver into spiritual and intellectual force, and will be glad through permanent endowments to perpetuate their own influence into unborn centuries. The plant of such a college should be adequate to the work to be done. Buildings, crowned with architectural beauty, will crowd a campus made lovely by art and nature and will mutely educate the æsthetic taste. Museums, libraries, laboratories, will supply all the working tools that professor or student may need. Endowments and scholarships, the voluntary gifts made in the name of patriotism and religion, will enable it, on the one hand, to deal liberally with all its officers, and on the other to bring the blessings of liberal education within the reach of all who are prepared to receive it.

6. The discipline in this Ideal College will be easily managed. Located in a community whose every member will be in hearty sympathy with its aims and efforts, its students will be largely delivered from temptations presented by those who are prompted by lust for gain or social pleasure. The relations between its instructors and students will be those of mutual respect and friendship. The development of Christian manliness, of truth, purity, honor, will be effected, not by the enforced wearing of moral straitjackets, but through inclination of right principles and ceaseless encouragement to self-restraint.

7. Will athletics live in the Ideal Christian College? Yes, abide and flourish. The monastic idea that the soul belongs to God and the body to the devil is dead; but its results are not. The Ideal College will teach each student to aim for bodily strength, vigor, activity, grace, beauty. And, as an end to this, athletics will receive every encouragement. But they are prone to fall from grace, and need to be soundly converted. When this happens, intercollegiate football—a brutal, dangerous game, when played by strong men—will leave all Christian colleges and come back no more. Hired professionals or semi-professionals will under no subterfuges or pretexts be found on their teams. The colleges of the future must either relinquish their claim to be considered Christian institutions or else they must practice on their athletic grounds the same principles that they teach in their lectures on Ethics. Yet, doubt it not that the Ideal College will win its victories. But its pennants will wave all the more proudly, because in every case they will have been won by unpaid students in honorable conflict.

8. Will the Ideal College produce leaders in State as well as in Church? Why not? If they stand for culture and manliness as well as for Christian principle, they ought to be able to send forth men who cannot be bribed with money or office, men who dare to tell the people the truth, men who will have more regard to public good than to selfish interests, men who will be independent enough to disregard the lash of party bosses. And these are the men needed in America to day. But if the day shall ever come when the low arts of the politician trickster shall be essential to leadership, it will be high honor to an Ideal College if its sons shall not be promoted.

9 What should be the relations of the Ideal Christian College to sister institutions of learning? They should, most assuredly, be relations of amenity, of cordial co-operation, mutual helpfulness, honorable competition. If anywhere in the world petty jealousies, heart-burnings, bitterness, clamor, evil speaking, and appeals to passion would seem to be out of place, it is in the wide republic of the Liberal Arts.

Young gentlemen of the class of '95, I have been speaking of an Ideal College. But you may remember that I said just now that a man is more than a college. For the achievement of his best in self-making or world-moving, he, too, must have his personal ideal. My parting word to you is this: Fill your minds with the knowledge and your hearts with loving thoughts of Jesus Christ until he be formed within you, not only as your hope of glory, but as the model of your lives and characters. Farewell.

This closes one of the most interesting seasons Wake Forest has ever experienced. The exercises have all been on a high plane, instructive, stimulating and refreshing.

The report of the Board of Trustees showed the largest attendance of students in the past five years. The financial status of the College is much better than last year, and the friends and officers of the College will redouble their efforts in the interest of students and endowment during the coming year.

HONORARY DEGREES.

Honorary degrees were conferred as follows:

LL. D. on Judge W. T. Faircloth; President J. B. Gambrell, Mercer University, Georgia; President J. P. Greene, William Jewell College, Missouri.

D. D. on Rev. H. A. Brown, Winston; Rev. J. B. Richardson, High Point; Rev. W. R. Gwaltney, Wake Forest; Rev. A. M. Simms, Rev. E. M. Poteat. J. C. C.

Tributes to the Late Editor.

Editor Recorder:—A few days since came the sad news that my dear friend and brother, Dr. C. T. Bailey was dead, and I hasten to express my sympathy and condolence.

In this brief communication I will attempt no sketch of his life, or analysis of his character, but only recall a few characteristics of the man that may enable us to appreciate more justly his worth, now that we have lost him. One of these was his honest conservatism. He was cautious in advocating of endorsing new ideas, new movements, &c.; and in this, as in other things, he not only showed good judgment on his own part, but also a conscientious regard for the many patrons of his excellent paper. The editor of a religious paper as largely patronized as the RECORDER is, wields a mighty influence, and he owes it to himself and to his readers, to first be sure that he is "right and then go ahead." He was generally on the right side of current questions, and hence did not have to recall his words, take water to avoid his pursuers, or wear two faces. His blows were sturdy, deliberate, and fell at the right time, and on the right place. His Cato like honesty made some think that he was cynical; but one had only to be in his company a short time to notice that there ran through him a broad streak of geniality and good nature. In his capacity of watchman on the walls of Zion, he cried aloud and spared not, but his gentle nature often prompted him to bind up the wounds that his courage as an editor compelled him to make. Though conservative and slow to adopt new theories, yet when he did endorse, whether the thing was new or old, he pressed to the front, and acquitted himself like a man.

Another striking peculiarity was his cheerful, lively disposition. While in North Carolina, I met him at a good many Associations, Conventions, &c., and it mattered not how dull and tired the crowd might be when Dr. Bailey rose to speak for the RECORDER or for anything else, a ripple of relief seemed to spread over the assembly, usually followed by broad smiles, or hearty "bodily shakings." He once remarked in the presence of the writer that "his doctor once told him if he did not learn to be cheerful, he would die," and added, "I have been trying ever since." Certainly the Christian can afford to be cheerful, and he who helps to dispel the popular error that religion is long-faced and sad-eyed, is doing a good work.

Another evident peculiarity of our deceased brother was his abiding interest in the ministers and laymen of his adopted State. Though born and reared in Virginia, in early manhood he was called to North Carolina, and was honored by the people of his adopted State by being placed in the editorial chair of the RECORDER, a place he filled acceptably until he passed from us. He did not seem to have editorial pets. If any preacher was anxious to have himself puffed in the RECORDER, he mistook his man, and continued to be anxious. And Dr. Bailey was right in all this. The relation of a veteran editor to the preachers of his State especially, is like that of a father to his family. If he makes pets of a few, and scarcely ever notices others, it is but natural they should feel slighted. Of course, the wide awake editor, who wishes to give spice to the contents of his paper by noticing men and measures, will of necessity have occasion to mention some men oftener than others; but this does not prevent his showing a hearty interest in those who occupy less prominent places, and who are endowed with no special gifts for leadership among their brethren.

I might say more, but others will write more fully. I lived and preached in North Carolina about eleven years, and among the many that I claimed as my friends, I found none truer to the end than Dr. Bailey; and when that sad event occurred, it brought to me a sense of personal bereavement. His like for me will be hard to find. Many doubtless were the friends and relatives that followed him to his grave; yet you may count me in the procession. Many were the loving hands that covered the mound above him with the flowers of the summer time; you can count mine among them, for I send from my native State this chaplet to his memory. Peace to his ashes! May the Lord comfort the bereaved family.

C. A. WOODSON.

Brookneal, Va.

Dear Recorder:—My soul is grieved and my heart nigh unto breaking. No more can the RECORDER family begin their letters thus: "Dear Bro. Bailey." I feel my own nothingness in the sight of God and man, but I do want so much to say that "Dear Bro. Bailey" was everybody's friend. He was my friend. He helped me by his words of cheer and advice.

Dr. C. T. Bailey loved young preachers. He stood ready at any time to help them. He loved North Carolina, his adopted State. No man was better known and honored in the State than he. He has been the life of many a session of the North Carolina Associations. He took life easy, was full of good cheer and ready humor, but innocent and human.

He was a Baptist, a theologian of the old stock, pure and simple. He hated anything that was low and degrading. He believed that the local churches of the Lord Jesus Christ was an all sufficient organization. He disliked man-made things in the Christ-made churches.

I use to say when a mere boy, "What will the RECORDER and the Baptists of North Carolina do without dear Bro. Bailey?" I did not want him to die. But in the dear Father's will we acquiesce. He has gone to heaven. He is not dead—no, no, he lives, he lives; but he lives no more in the flesh, and I shall never see his like again. "My father! my father! the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof."—CHAS. W. MATTHEWS.

Closing Exercises of Robeson Institute.

Tuesday and Wednesday last were the days in which occurred the closing exercises of the record year of Robeson Institute.

Rev. W. S. Creasy, D. D., of Charlotte was to have preached the sermon on Tuesday night, but owing to sickness in his family, could not come. Rev. J. D. Bundy, pastor of the Methodist church here, was secured as a substitute, and although he only had two hours notice, preached a most appropriate sermon. He made a strong plea for Christian Education, showing that Christianity is the only true foundation upon which any one can build. A man may seek happiness in various ways. In the pursuit of wealth or honor, in the gratification of appetites or pleasure, and in many other ways men seek to satisfy that longing desire for happiness; but should they attain the object of their ambitions, it doesn't bring the happiness which they demand, and like the preacher they exclaim "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." But "let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter, fear God and keep his commandment, for this is the whole duty of man." It was an excellent gospel sermon, and was well received by the large congregation.

Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock there was a Demorest contest. There were eight contestants, seven young men and a young lady. All acquitted themselves well, but the committee awarded the medal to the young lady, Miss Mollie Britt. Three medals had been offered, one in each department to the one who, in his special department, was the only one who complied with all the conditions and therefore the only one who received a medal. This medal was presented by Hon. Alfred Rowland, in a beautiful and inspiring speech. It is just to Mr. Van Birthright to say that he fulfilled two of the conditions; he received no demerit and made the highest average of any student in school, but unfortunately he entered when the session was a few days advanced.

At this juncture E. K. Proctor, Esq., came to the platform with a sealed package which he presented to Prof. Duckett in behalf of the students in his department. The package proved to be a neatly framed, written testimonial, with their signatures, of the high esteem in which he was held by his pupils. This was a novel but excellent way of showing their well merited appreciation. Prof. Duckett announced that the final exercises by the school would take place in the Opera house at night, and he hoped the people would not remain away because of the extreme heat, as he assured them it would be cooler then, which prophecy proved true, so that many now think Bro. Duckett should add a weather bureau to the already well equipped Institute of which he is principal. The exercises at night consisted of music, declamations, dialogues, etc., and were creditable in the highest degree. The large crowd that filled the spacious building were entertained and edified by what they saw and heard.

Mr. E. K. Proctor, Jr., in behalf of the Trustees, made some statements in regard to the Institute, which statements were most gratifying.

Among other things, he stated that the faculty would remain unchanged except that Miss McIver, who has presided over the musical department since the opening of the Institute, would be succeeded by Mrs. Fox, wife of Rev. D. W. Fox, pastor of the Presbyterian church at this place.

Miss McIver's work was perfectly satisfactory to the trustees and her patrons, but she was not an applicant for the position for next year. At the solicitation of the trustees, Mrs. Fox has consented to take charge of the music. She is a worthy successor of Miss McIver. She comes from a musical family, and was thoroughly trained at Saratoga, N. Y. A hundred and sixty-seven students were enrolled last year. We hope for two hundred next year.

Dear Sir:—It gives me pleasure to acknowledge the prompt payment in full of the policy for $10,000 held by Mr. S. H. Wiley in the Ætna Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Wiley died July 3d, 1894. The proofs were forwarded July 6th, and the Company's check in full settlement was sent July 13.

Yours truly,
(Signed) THEO. F. KLUTTZ, Executor.

P. S.—I consider Mr. Wiley's life insurance the best property that he had.
(Signed) KLUTTZ.

Notes and Comments.

BY REV. J. C. HIDEN, D. D.

In discussing the question, "Had the Massorites the Critical Instinct?" Professor Willis J. Beecher says: "In this connection it is hardly possible to understand our Saviour's expression that one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, in any sense which does not make it an allusion to a current, familiar idea of the importance of textual exactness."

This idea of the passage had never occurred to us before, and at first it seemed to be a little wild, though we are not altogether sure that it is. We have, however, a wholesome suspicion of ingenious interpretations generally, though we admit that such suspicions may be carried to excess. Professor Beecher's general conclusion is that "the conception of the need of a remarkable textual accuracy has attended the transmission of the standard Old Testament text as far back as we can trace the history of the transmission, and presumptively as far back as the original writing of the books."

Whether this "presumptively" does not presume too much, is a question which naturally occurs to the cautious student. Professor Beecher's interpretation of Christ's words is suspiciously ingenious. When we read the Saviour's words in their connection, it is not easy to imagine that he was thinking about what we now call "textual exactness." When the prophet spoke of "the sun of righteousness," are we at liberty to suppose that he was thinking of the sun as the central body of the solar system? Surely not. And there is little reason to believe that modern "Spherical Astronomy" was more foreign to the prophetic circle of ideas than was "textual criticism" to the circle of ideas of the sermon on the mount.

It is not the amount of food which you eat, but the amount which you digest, that will help you to work; and even if you eat enough, and then digest it well, it does not follow that you will work, but only that you will have the capacity. So in spiritual things. You may hear an abundance of excellent preaching; you may appreciate it, understand it, enjoy it, but if you make no attempt to put into practice the truths to which you are so fond of listening, you may, in course of time, become little better than a religious gourmand. "I want to be fed," says many a church member who listens to preaching and does nothing for Christ. Spurgeon, in speaking of the large number of spiritual epicures, says they remind him of the text in the first chapter and fourteenth verse of the Book of Job: "The oxen were plowing, and the asses feeding beside them." A most palpable and Spurgeonic hit.—Cor. Watchman.

The Apostle Paul's injunction that if any would not work, neither should he eat, has its force in the spiritual world as truly as in the physical. The man who is most regular and constant in spiritual work is apt to have the best and healthiest appetite for all proper spiritual food, and will be most certain to have a good and wholesome spiritual digestion. We do not mean to "spiritualize" our text, but simply to point out that the principle laid down by Paul has its application in the spiritual world.

Brother preacher, you may be working hard in an obscure field, with little to encourage, and much to dishearten you. It may be that you see little prospect of a better fate than that of dying at your post, battling against error and sin. You may be called away by the Master before you can see any adequate results of your toil. What then? Have you labored in vain, and spent your strength for nought? Nay; for you may be clearing the way for those who are to come after you.

Walk through that dark, trackless forest in the western wilds; and as you gaze upon the grand proportions of some mighty giant of the woods, you admire its size, its beauty, its symmetry, its foliage. Near it stands a smaller tree, scarred, hacked and blasted. It has no green leaf, no living branch, no trace of beauty. But look back through a hundred years of history, and you will see that that dead oak is the noblest thing in all that forest. The hardy pioneer, carrying his life in his hand, was making heroic efforts to explore that wilderness. In his work of engineering for civilization he entered this dense forest, and lest he should lose his way, he lifted up his axe and "blazed" the young tree. He "girdled" it all around the trunk, that he might see it from any direction. The tree withered and died. It may not be much thought of now; but that dead oak is one of the landmarks of progress. Brethren, let us not be discouraged. We may perish in our struggles for the truth of God; but if we must die at our posts, let us be landmarks in the progress of that truth. "Had I as many sons as I have hairs, I could not wish them to a fairer death."

"An Appeal for the Regions Beyond."

Dear Recorder:—The number of white Baptist preachers in North Carolina, according to Bro. Cobb's statistics in the Baptist Almanac, is 816. Now is it not surprising that only thirty out of this number have expressed their willingness to do a week or ten days' mission work in some destitute section of our State?

Many of our brethren may say they are willing to do this work, and possibly will do it, but do not care to put their name on the Regions Beyond roll.

Now, brethren, if this is the way you feel about it, you are not practicing what you preach when you get up before your membership and ask them to pledge their co-operation with you in a meeting or any other righteous movement. You are discouraged if they don't stand up or come and give the hand when you make the request.

Now, when the ministers of North Carolina are called upon to put themselves on record for a religious movement that carries the greatest possibilities, why should they be silent? This may have much to do with the coldness in our churches: willing to having others do, but not do ourselves. If half the ordained ministers in the State would each give ten days work it would amount to four thousand one hundred and sixty days. And if these meetings should average ten conversions, it would add to the Lord's host 4,160 souls in one year, and all this work could be done without a cent of expense to our State Board. I cannot believe this is overdrawn. We only need to have our hearts in the work, and there will be no trouble about results.

Brethren, when I look upon such an open door before us I feel that we should never say "Thy kingdom come" again till we get the prayer in our hearts instead of upon our lips. Why can't we, and why don't we, put our hearts to the work? The fields are white for the harvest, but where are the reapers? There are enough Baptist preachers in North Carolina to cover the State with the gospel as the waters cover the sea. I believe when we literally lift the banner of Christ and march upon the unoccupied fields that there will be no lack of followers.

As a pastor and member of the State Board, I beseech you, my brethren, to put yourselves on record in this State mission movement. It is a greater surprise to me that you do not than it would be if one of my deacons should refuse to give me his hand and promise to fight sin. N. S. JONES.

The Work at Reidsville.

Dear Recorder:—For sometime I have been intending to write you about our work, but owing to the press of time I have not found it convenient.

I am now at the close of my first year's work in Reidsville. It has been hard—exceedingly so—though greatly blessed of the Lord. We have just completed a good house at Sunny Side, about five miles from town, and hope to build one more this year. Our plan of work is cash. We never go beyond our finances. Our mission work this year has exceeded to date that of any previous year. We have an average of 550 in the Sunday schools every Sunday. My congregations are larger now than at any time during the year, taken as a whole. I think this speaks well for this extremely hot weather.

We have recently added to our church music three violins and a cornet. This has caused some old issues to be revived, and some have left the church; though, all things considered, this is not a bad sign. There has been more or less division for four years. I think the church is more of a unit now than it has been for a good long time.

We have had some severe trials this year. We had to withdraw from a man and his wife, who had been usually faithful, for rotten doctrines. They became Seventh Day Adventists; and now we have had to withdraw from several for other reasons. It has all been done tenderly, and all the time we have been baptising and receiving by letter until our membership is now over 400.

Last November we ordained Bro. J. R. Kallum, and he was preaching very acceptably; indeed, we were looking for a life of usefulness and fruitfulness from him in the ministry; but like a great many of our hopes, they all came to an untimely end, when last Monday he came before our Board of Deacons and surrendered his credentials, declaring that he had made a mistake in entering the ministry, and that the further he went the more glaring his mistake became, until he could not longer remain in the ministry. He is very honest in the matter. It pains us very much, and yet we feel that he did the right and manly thing under the circumstances. M. A. ADAMS.

"My experiences with churches make me think that ministers are like cats. When you first go to a new place everybody says:

"'Come pussy! come pussy! nice pussy!' and you come.

"Then they begin to rub your fur and say:

Plough deep!
Sow not thy precious seeds
Among the scarce uprooted weeds,
Or thou shalt weep
To find thy crops all choked and dead,
And naught but thorns and tares instead.

Between Ourselves.

The society in the newly organized Tabernacle church in Newbern is unique and a model, in that every woman of the church is also a member of the Society.

The Societies at Leaksville, Belcross, Mt. Tabor, Murfreesboro and Siler City are asking for letters from Home Missionaries for whom they intend to pack boxes of clothing.

Although but few, we are able to send this quarter $31.00—$8 69 of which the Infant Class contributed by use of the pyramid boxes.—Mrs. A. B. Stephens, Rutherfordton.

The Society at Aberdeen reports a strange state of things. They say: "Our number grows smaller, but our contributions increase." Interest and knowledge make gifts independent of numbers.

The Society at Spring Hill wish to "adopt" the missionary family to whom they have just sent a box. They think that thus they can be thinking and planning for the box the whole year and make it much more valuable.

The Societies following have recently packed Home Mission boxes: Wake Forest, value, $75.00; Spring Hill, Pee Dee Association, value, $20.00; Whiteville, Columbus Association, value, $35 00; Ahoskie, West Chowan Association, value, $33.00.

The President of the Wake Forest Society, in speaking of their box, said: "You know we had thought we could not get up a box, but you see we have. I hope we shall never be so wanting in faith again, but will always believe we can do what it is right to do."

The new letters for this year are coming in from our advance guard on the frontier, and many are in need of just such help as we can send them. Letters will be sent on request to any Society or church wishing to prepare a box. Preparations can not be begun too early. Much of the value of a box is lost if it does not arrive until the winter is half over.

The Society at Henrietta is going forward rapidly. One of their plans which is awakening much interest, is a monthly missionary program given by the children. It must and does keep some one very busily at work to drill these little people in their songs and recitations. but it is work that pays, as other societies who are trying the same plan will testify.

The box-packing time at Whiteville was a time of rejoicing. The Secretary writes a letter brimming over with joy. "This is our first box," she says, "and I can most truly say I have never had such a rich feast of God's grace in my heart, and I believe I but echo the sentiments of each of the sisters. I can say, it is—'it is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

Mrs. Grant of Goldsboro makes a suggestion which will be welcomed by those who are looking for something bright and pretty for the children: "I want to recommend the exercise, 'How some dollies came to go as missionaries' to other societies." She says: "Four copies can be gotten for twelve cents from Mrs. Lucie F. Harrison, 21 Lagrange street, Worcester, Mass."

A young lady leader of a Children's Band says: "I enjoy it more than all the rest of my life put together." Some weeks ago a young man came into the open meeting of the Band, where the children recited a number of missionary facts and poems. "After the meeting he, who had been very bitter against missionaries before, said the children had said some things that had put him to thinking, and that our Society should have his most earnest prayers and a little later his support." Surely a little child shall lead them.

An echo from self denial week comes in the following letter from a Society in the country: "The work hitherto among our sisters had indeed been discouraging. This time they did splendidly. Our number is small, somewhere between 15 and 20. We raised $9.50. One of our poorest, a widow sent in thirty-five cents, her self-denial savings. One sister deducted a portion of what she had expected to pay for a new hat. Another gave what she had intended paying for a dress ($5 00) and decided to do without, feeling that if our substitutes on the fields were willing to sacrifice home, friends and so many of the necessaries of life for Christ's sake, she could surely deprive herself of that much."

Child Life in China.

A man who dies leaving no sons to keep up the family name, no sons to perpetuate the worship of him and his ancestors throughout future ages, is under Heaven's deepest curse, is despised by his friends and neighbors, and a disgrace to the family name.

"Our sons, their wives and children, belong to us," says the practical Chinaman, "but our daughters belong to strangers. We bring up daughters, teach them to work, waste food and clothing and shelter on them for fifteen or eighteen years, then they are utterly lost to us. After they are married, they work for a stranger's good, they bear children for a strange name, and worship at a stranger's grave."

The practice of killing girls at birth is common, but it is difficult to ascertain the statistics. In a family where there are several sons, a daughter is often welcomed and tenderly cherished. Where daughters are allowed to live, they usually win their way into their parents' hearts, although they are not petted and indulged as the sons are.

If a little child dies, his mother wraps him in a piece of matting, and takes him beyond the village to cast out for dogs to devour. She must not mourn too much, or the gods will rejoice in her grief, and may take another child.

Many are the devices for protecting a baby from the evil influences which are supposed to be around him from the moment of his birth. A picture of an archer is pasted upon the wall to shoot the dog who brings disease and death.

A hundred different families are visited, and contribute a cash apiece to buy an earring for the boy that he may fool the gods—jealous of man's happiness—into thinking he is a girl.

If the son is intensely beloved, he may be given the name of a girl, slave, or priest. If the latter, his shaven head and small garments of priestly cut will propitiate the gods.

If the child lives and thrives, great is the rejoicing. When he is a hundred days old, a feast is given in his honor, and he is dressed in a smart little suit of bright colors. It may consist of a scarlet coat, a purple or yellow sleeveless vest which is worn above the coat, a pair of bright green trousers, white stockings, and red cloth shoes.

In winter the child of a well to do family is dressed in a little fur coat, and wadded cotton or silk garments, including a warm hat or hood profusely decorated with embroidery or silver ornaments.

The poor child depends upon wadded cotton garments for warmth in winter, and, until he is twelve or thirteen years old, from early spring until late autumn he rejoices in Adam's first garb.

Until a girl is about six, her dress resembles her brother's except in a little difference in the garment's cut, and that the daintiness of needlework and coloring take the place of richness of cloth.

The heads of both are shaven, leaving only a little glossy black hair on the back of the head, which is neatly plaited, and tied with a bright silk or cotton cord.

At five or six years of age, the girls' feet are bound; very loosely at first, but the long white bandages are daily tightened until the little toes are directly under the great toe, and the bones of the foot are crushed and broken. Foot binding is a source of untold misery to a Chinese woman; constant pain, fearful running sores, and general weakness and ill health often result.

The child gets, as a rule, very little training in obedience. He will be taught to revile his friends from the time of his earliest speech, his parents thinking the vile language flowing from innocent baby lips something very amusing.

When he becomes older, this reviling is discouraged; but he has already become proficient in the evil art, and will indulge in it whenever angry. The child may disobey time and again without punishment, but suddenly the mother, if cross or worried, will take up anything at hand,—a broom, a stool, a pair of scissors,—and beat severely.

If the child can get away, and stay away until her anger has cooled, he usually escapes punishment. The training is very often confined to the use of rough and abusive scolding and an occasional slap over the head.

Obedience to parents, as known in a Christian land, is, of course, unknown in China; but the common sentiment is in favor of the reverence of parents, and a son will support his parents, and obey them marvelously in important matters, and worship them after death, but the little loving acts of true obedience are sadly missing.

A little girl is sometimes very much indulged by her mother, and is taught little or nothing in the way of housework and sewing. She goes to her mother-in-law at a great disadvantage, and meets with many troubles under her severe training. Usually the girl is taught to sew and cook, does the grinding, and is house-maid to her numerous brothers and sisters, until she is married at the age of sixteen or eighteen.

If her parents are wealthy, she may study for a few years under a private teacher with her brothers, but an educated woman is the rare exception. The cutting of intricate paper flowers and the making of fine embroidery are her pastimes, with an occasional visit to family friends, or sight-seeing on feast days, under stright chaperonage.

The poor girl is less restricted, and, if she lives in a country village, goes about the streets and visits her neighbors quite freely. But all Chinese mothers of any social standing at all watch their daughters closely, and strive to keep them pure and modest.

When a girl becomes old enough to spin, or make straw braid, she is usually allowed to keep the money she makes, to provide her bridal outfit.

About New Year's time, a few toys—as stuffed yellow tigers, clay images, whistles, etc.—are for sale; but the little child has few toys or amusements. He considers it a happy day when he has a few cash to spend for nuts or sweetmeats, and seems to take more pleasure in eating than in anything else.

A boy indulges in many games from which his sister is restrained both by her bound feet and general sentiment. The women and girls often gather in their doorways, on summer evenings to watch the boys at their games—wrestling, walking on stilts, ball-playing, kite flying, battledore and shuttlecock, etc. But the Chinese boy never engages in his sports with the zest of a Westerner; and, after he enters school, his teachers discourage games as undignified, and beneath the notice of an educated gentleman, with his flowing sleeves, stately manners, and long finger-nails.

The poor boy is sent out on the hills to gather grass and sticks for fuel, or is apprenticed to a trade. If he is a farmer's boy, he finds plenty to do about his father's farm, and his life contains very little playtime. He does not work as hard as the Western boy, for he is usually poorly fed and clad, and takes much time to rest, which he spends in smoking, gossiping, or lolling about.

Every family that can afford it sends one or more boys to school at six or seven years of age, and from the time of entering school the pupil is a being set apart from his less favored brothers. He at once becomes a gentleman; he is not expected to engage in any manual labor or help about the home any more; and if, after many years of schooling, he is unable to get an official position, or a place as a teacher, he will sponge on his relatives and friends, or send out his wife to beg, or starve, rather than work with his hands. If the boy is bright and industrious, he may rise to any position of power and wealth which is within the Chinese civil service.—Mrs. Geo. S. Hays, in Sunday-school Times.

A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sickroom. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your pains and aches under a pleasant smile. No one cares to hear whether you have the earache, headache or rheumatism. Don't cry. Tears are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. "The good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic or hypochondriac is not wanted anywhere and is a nuisance as well," says a family doctor.

This remarkable statement, to which we direct special attention, is from a Tennessee farmer: My age is 63. I suffered intensely from Catarrh 10 years. Had intense headache, took cold easily, had continual roaring and singing in my ears. My hearing began to fail, and for three years I was almost entirely deaf, and I continually grew worse. Everything I had tried, failed. In despair I commenced to use the Aerial Medication in 1888, and the effect of the first application was simply wonderful. In less than five minutes my hearing was fully restored, and has been perfect ever since, and in a few months was entirely cured of Catarrh. ELI BROWN, Jackson, Tenn.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

A Chair of Mechanical Engineering has been established at the State A. & M. College for whites. A water system and heating apparatus will be put in the buildings. ——James W. Tufts has purchased 5,000 acres of State land in Moore county, on which he will erect cottages for Northern immigrants. ——The Silver Convention was duly held at Memphis last week. It is doubtful if it did its cause any good, as party men were quick to get control of it. ——Hon. Jno. M. Rose of Fayetteville died Thursday. ——Bids for the erection of a new house for the president of Shaw University have been received, and the lowest is that of Clark Waring, of S. C., $10,000. ——Senator J. B. Gordon of Georgia has announced that he will retire to private life. He recently ordered 20,000 peach trees from the Riverside Nurseries, Pitt county. ——Efforts, with promise of success, are being made to establish a daily Republican paper at Winston. ——The huckleberry crop in our Eastern section is reported to be quite heavy; large shipments being made. ——The State of South Carolina bought 9,000 gallons of whiskey at Charlotte last week at $1.15½ a gallon. ——A telephone line will be run from Raleigh to Hamlet. ——Hon. Samuel L. Patterson of Caldwell co., was chosen Commissioner of Agriculture last week.

In General.

Our government has issued a proclamation warning all citizens against having to do with the Cuban troubles. This is in accordance with our treaty with Spain. ——News has been received that missionary property in Chentu, China, has recently been destroyed by mobs, but none of the missionaries were hurt. ——Judge Goff's decision that the South Carolina registration law is invalid, has been overruled by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and his injunction was dismissed. This makes matters better for the State. ——225 Mormon elders are at work among the more ignorant people of the South. There are two in nearly every county in North Carolina and about as many in South Carolina. "It is a free country." ——It is reported that the Southern Railway and Passenger Association, which recently boycotted the Seaboard Air Line, is about to disorganize, nearly half of the lines embraced in it being thus inclined ——Troops were called out last week to prevent a race riot at Abbeville, S. C. When they arrived, all was quiet.

A Glorious Time at Franklinville.

On June 9th, 1895, I closed a meeting of eight days at Franklinville. I was aided by Bro. J. T. Jenkins of Winston, who recently helped me at Ramseur. The chapel in which we worship is named in honor of Bro. Joe Moore of sainted memory who laid the foundations of the cause here.

The Baptists have had a hard struggle to build up here, as they were weak and poor and the field largely preoccupied by others. Our meeting was attended with a number of difficulties. The heat was against us for several days and our day services had to be suspended. Then the tongue of slander and misrepresentation was turned upon us, and along with this one of our best members was paralyzed and will perhaps never recover. But God overruled all for his glory.

Bro. Jenkins did some of his best preaching and won the hearts of the people of the community.

As a result of the meeting, we received twelve for baptism, two by letter and one restored. The 9th was a big day with us. I went to Ramseur and baptized seventeen, while Bro. Jenkins held the fort at Franklinville. The baptismal scenes will long be remembered. At the latter place eight were baptized about sundown in the presence of an immense audience. This scene was peculiarly impressive owing to the hour, place and the candidates. There was an aged mother and two daughters; a neice of Bro. Joe Moore's; the sister of Bro. J. C. Caddell, who had formerly been a Presbyterian in name but a Baptist in heart, and a little son of Bro. J. D. Hackney. All of the candidates were bright and happy which moved the great audience to tears.

Our little church is very much revived and strengthened.

It seems a pity that a man so gifted as Bro. Jenkins in this work should give it up for the pastorate, but he needs rest and study. The Deep river country is a good field for Baptist work. There are many others yet who will trouble the waters of this dear old stream. I am afraid stern necessity will force me to abandon this field which will be very sad and trying to me, for I do most dearly love the people of these two little towns. Yours for the Master,

S. F. CONRAD.

Mr. C. D. Upchurch, formerly Superior Court Clerk of Wake county, died on Monday, the 17th inst., in the mountains of he State, where he had gone for his health The disease was consumption. Mr. Upchurch was the son of Mr. W. C. Upchurch of Raleigh, and died in his thirty-ninth year. The remains will be brought to Raleigh for interment.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Dr. Thomas H. Buckler, of Paris (formerly of Baltimore), Suggester of Lithia as a Solvent for Uric Acid, says:

"Nothing that I could say would add to the well-known reputation of the BUFFALO LITHIA WATER I have frequently used it with good results in Uric Acid Diathesis, Rheumatism and Gout, and with this object I have ordered it to Europe, from Coleman & Rogers, of Baltimore. Lithia is in no form so valuable as when it exists in the Carbonate, the form in which it is found in BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Nature's mode of solution and division in water which has passed through Lepidolite and Spodumene Mineral formations."

Dr. William B. Towles, Professor of Anatomy and Materia Medica in the Medical Department of the University of Virginia.

"I feel no hesitancy whatever in saying that in Gout, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatism, Stone in the Bladder, and in all Diseases of Uric Acid Diathesis, I know of no remedy at all comparable to BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Its effects are marked in causing a disappearance of albumen from the urine. In a single case of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys I witnessed decided beneficial results from its use, and from its action in this case I should have great confidence in it as a remedy in certain stages of this disease. In Dyspepsia, especially that form of it in which there is an excessive production of acid during the process of nutrition, in some of the peculiar affections of women, and in Chronic Malarial Poisoning, etc., I have found it highly efficacious."

Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, of New York, Professor of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital:

"In all cases of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, I have found BUFFALO LITHIA WATER of the greatest service in increasing the quantity of urine and in eliminating the albumen."

A Complete Wreck

A STORY OF PECULIAR INTEREST TO WOMEN.

HOW THE LIFE OF A YORK STATE WOMAN WAS WRECKED—LIFE LOST ITS JOYS—BUT THE CLOUDS PASSED AND HAPPINESS CAME AGAIN.

(From the Binghamton, N. Y., Republican)

We have heard so much talk throughout the county of late concerning Mrs. Martha Gates of Maine, Broome County, N. Y., that yesterday a reporter of the Binghamton Republican, interviewed her for publication, and her story which will interest all women, is as follows:

"I was born in Hartford, Cortland County, New York, 42 years ago. I have been married 21 years and am the mother of eight children. About two years ago I was afflicted with troubles incidental to my sex and suffered agonizing pain. The trouble continued to grow worse, until last winter I was compelled to take to my bed. I called in a regular physician, but his treatment did not seem to do me much good, and only relieved me for a little time, after which my condition became worse than before. I was confined to my bed for three months and was absolutely unable to attend to my household duties. I could hardly feed myself so weak had I become. I had to be waited upon day and night and was a physical wreck. There was very grave doubts about my ultimate recovery. The best hope the doctor could hold out to me was that I might be able to get around again and attend to my household duties after remaining in bed a few months longer. But instead of getting better I grew steadily worse. One day I happened to read in the paper about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and decided to give them a trial. Immediately after taking them and before I had used a half a box I saw a marked change for the better in my condition. All this time, however, I was confined to my bed. I continued taking the medicine until I had used four boxes and by that time I was able to be about and around again. The improvement has been steady ever since. I am still a little weak, but am growing stronger as fast as nature, aided by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will let me. I have great faith in these pills and shall use them hereafter. My husband, who felt real miserable all the Spring, took them and they made a new man of him. I have also used them for my daughter, aged 19 years, who has found them very beneficial for troubles incidental to her sex. So far as I am myself concerned I consider it a wonderful cure."

Mrs. Gates has lived in North Maine for many years, and is highly respected. Any statement she makes is cheerfully acquiesced in by her friends and acquaintances.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Work Around Snow Hill.

Dear Recorder:—I accepted the pastorate of Snow Hill Baptist church, last January. On going there, I found several devout Christians. They seemed discouraged, as they had been without a pastor for two years, although the little flame of Christ's love had not gone out; and I, as best I could, began to fan the few sparks with the Word of God. We are now enjoying a spiritual growth in the church. I have also discovered an anxiousness to hear the Word in the country near. I have been invited to preach at two or three points in the country. On last third Sunday I went out six miles from Snow Hill to a Freewill Baptist church, where permission had been asked for me to preach. There I found a large, anxious and attentive congregation. I was requested to continue preaching at that place once a month.

My congregation at Snow Hill is very attentive and increases in number. Since I began work there, a brother and a sister have united with us by letter, and it is very probable that one will be baptized soon. Brethren, pray God's blessings upon this part of God's vineyard.

W. A. FERRELL.

We are glad to note that a meeting was held last week by the citizens of Wake Forest at which a Board of Trustees were elected for the purpose of starting a preparatory school in the building erected there some years ago by Prof. L. W. Bagley.

Mr. E. H. Wright of Asheville was recently drowned by falling from his boat while fishing with his little children in Henderson county.

MARRIED.

NORWOOD—CRITCHER—On June 1st, 1895, by Rev. J. A. Stradley, Mr. J. T. C. Norwood and Miss Lucy J. Critcher, all of Granville county, N. C.

WALL—PRIVETT—On June 5th, 1895, at the home of the bride's father, near Wakefield, N. C., by Rev. O. C. Horton, Mr. Junius A. Wall of Wilson's Mill, Johnston county, N. C., and Miss Leonora May Privett of Wake.

DIED.

CAIN—John Cain was born in Bladen county, Dec. 18th, 1812, and died at his home in Bladen county on the morning of May 2d, 1895, being nearly eighty-four years old. He was a man of fine sense, refined feelings, and a Christian gentleman.

About 1842 he professed religion and joined the Missionary Baptist church at Beaverdam, Bladen county, and was baptized by Elder Wm. Ayers. In 1843 Brier Branch church was organized, and he was chosen deacon, and served in that capacity for fourteen years. On September 27th, 1857, he with others, was organized with Sandy Point, now Cypress Creek church, which church he served as deacon for twenty-seven years. Wise in council, well-informed in doctrine, and filled with zeal for the cause, he was always ready with his means and time to serve the cause of his Master. He was the minister's right hand man in the true sense of that term.

He was blind about four years before his death, but the eyes of his understanding never failed. He was a man of strong faith. He said he never had a doubt. He was confined to his room for about eight years, and during his most excruciating pain he said was the happiest moments of his life. During this time the Bible was his daily companion. The life of Spurgeon, the Advocate, some Baptist and political papers, were among his reading matter. The BIBLICAL RECORDER had been his companion for years.

STROUD—The Lord has taken another servant of his to himself. Deacon Alfred P. Stroud died in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mattie Dossett, in Chatham county, March 23d, 1895, in the seventy-sixth year of his age.

At the age of eighteen Bro. Stroud was received into the fellowship of Antioch church, Orange county; and, at different times, was a member and deacon of Mt. Gilead, Rose of Sharon, (now First church, Durham,) Yates and Mt. Vernon Springs. At the time of his death he was superintendent of the Sunday-school of the latter.

It was the privilege of the writer to be associated with the subject of this sketch several years on the Executive Committee of the Mt. Zion Association. As one of the results of this association, the following appeared: Bro. Stroud consulted the Lord's will first; he would bear, without complaint, the labors and trials that befell him; he would never sacrifice principle to be on the popular side, nor for worldly gain; and he would make any sacrifice possible to glorify God and to serve humanity. Bro. Stroud was faithful—more cannot be said of any.

Having finished his course, our brother has gone to his reward, leaving many relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

JOHN C. HOCUTT.
Burlington, N. C., June 5, 1895.

SIMPSON—At the University Hospital, Baltimore, Md., May 18th, 1895, Martin L. Simpson of Elizabeth City, N. C., departed this life in the thirty-ninth year of his age. He leaves a wife and two small children. He was a native of Elizabeth, where he had been in business since a youth. No man was better known or more generally beloved. In token of the high esteem in which he was held, at the hour of his funeral all the places of business were closed, and the majority of the people came into the church or stood in the street or church yard. Such a general outpouring of the people has never been witnessed perhaps in the history of the town.

The church, by rising vote, at the last conference spread the following upon the records as a report from the Board of Deacons, of which Bro. Simpson was a member:—

"We, the Board of Deacons, and the pastor of the Baptist church of Christ, feel that in the death of Martin L. Simpson, our fellow office bearer, we have lost a willing co-worker and our church a faithful servant. With added official responsibilities imposed in the recent past, it was the pleasure of us all to note in him a deepened personal interest in all the work of the church. Yet in the midst of the activities of life, in the ripening period of his spiritual experience and at a time when he seemed most needed at the head of an interesting young family, God in his higher wisdom and infinite love called him to his reward. With the same unfaltering faith that enabled our brother to meet death, we bow in prayerful submission to the will of our Father in heaven. We would commend to the remembrance and imitation of all of our brethren those lovable traits of Christian character by which Martin L. Simpson bound himself in loving fellowship to this church and linked himself in disinterested friendship to this entire community."

One of Bro. Simpson's brothers in the flesh still resides here; the other is the faithful pastor of the Baptist church in Giddings, Texas. But few of our laymen were more intelligently posted upon and interested in all of our denominational enterprises. His death is a real loss to our local church and to the State at large.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in his infinite wisdom to suffer the hand of death to be laid on our beloved sister Jessie Baughn, who fell asleep in Jesus at her home near Madison, on April 14th, 1895, in the eighteenth year of her age; and, whereas, she had been a member of Dan Valley Baptist church for nearly one year, a patient sufferer and an earnest witness for Christ all this time; therefore, be it

Resolved 1. That it is with unfeigned sorrow and a deep sense of our loss that we contemplate the removal from us of this good sister.

Resolved 2. That in our sorrow we find ample ground for comfort in our sister's simple but sturdy faith, her modest but earnest piety, the kindly influence of her life, and the peaceful passing of her spirit to its eternal home.

Resolved 3. That we will strive, with the Lord's help, to emulate the Christian virtues of our deceased sister, and thus commend to the world the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Resolved 4. That we tender to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this the hour of their great sorrow.

Resolved 5. That these resolutions be recorded on our church book, that a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and that a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER with a request to be published.

Done by order of Dan Valley Baptist church, April 20th, 1895.

BELLS

There must be some reason for it

We never have compelled anyone to use Pearline. We'd like to, but it isn't feasible. Besides, it isn't necessary. Millions use Pearline, and have tested and proved it. It's too old to be unknown, if it were a fraud, but where is the thing as popular and yet so young? If you know Pearline, you know the reason. In all washing and cleaning, there's nothing that saves as much labor and does as much work. It hurts nothing, saves wear on everything, costs no more than common soap and is more economical. Reasons enough for most women; think, are they not good enough for you?

Beware peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers who tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 190 JAMES PYLE, New York.

Trust In God.

Whate'er my God ordains is right,
His will is ever just;
However he order now my cause,
I will be still and trust:
He is my God—
Though dark my road,
He holds me that I shall not fall,
Wherefore to Him I leave it all.

Whate'er my God ordains is right,
My Light, my Life is He,
Who cannot will me aught but good—
I trust Him utterly;
For well I know,
In joy or woe,
We soon shall see as sunlight clear
How faithful was our Guardian here.

Service.

Two angels, waiting, stood before the throne,
Summoned for service. "Go," the mandate said,
"To yon far world: find on his dying bed
A child; convoy him hither. Overthrown
Through stress of war, a conquered king makes moan.
Gather the wasted people whom he led,
And rule and guide the kingdom in his stead.

Then each made haste to answer: "When God's voice
Utters the command, or great or small,
Our eager will can never know a choice.
Enough for us that we may serve at all;
Whether to soothe a child, or rule a state,
Only obedience makes the service great."

—Margaret J. Preston in Sunday school Times.

A Girl's Accomplishments.

Under this general heading may I speak a few frank words on subjects most often neglected?

Dear girls, I know that you can play the piano exquisitely, and sing charmingly, and sketch from nature, and do a dozen other sweet and beautiful things, but, tell me truly, do you know how, for instance, to make a cup of tea?

"How absurd!" I hear you say. "Does she take us for idiots? As if everybody did not know how to make tea!"

No, you are mistaken. Half of the mischief lies in the fact that young people think that these little things can be known without learning. Yet I have a vivid recollection of a young college graduate who brought back from her mother's sick-room a cup of black, ill smelling liquid, which she called tea, and a thick piece of much-burnt bread, which she called toast, and, setting them down in dismay, said ruefully: "She just tasted them, and that was all! and they don't look inviting. What is the matter with the horrid stuff? I put in a whole tablespoonful, and boiled it a long time to make it good."

Poor mother, dependent on such a daughter! The same young woman, by the doctor's orders, essayed to make some gruel, and then some beef-tea. Do you know how simply both are made and do you at the same time know the horrible possibilities of both? Then I need not only tell you that this dear girl graduate, who had taken the Latin prize and the medal for excellence in English composition, knowing nothing about gruel or beef-tea, did the worst.

What is the moral? If you know absolutely nothing else about house-work, do resolve to become skilful in making simple, plain dishes for the sick. You can never know how entirely some one dearer to you than your own life may be dependent upon you for these things.

But, if I were you, I would not be willing to stop with this. In these days of many cooking schools, with work so planned that one may take vacation under the great old trees, and yet learn from skilled teachers the entire art, from tea and toast to all the belongings of a State dinner, why in the world should not the girls resolve to add to their accomplishments that of excellent cookery?

I spent a week in the home with a pretty girl of limited means, and one day made bold to admire a dress that she wore, which fitted her to perfection, and was beautifully made.

"I like it myself," she said frankly; "and the best of it is, that it cost so little. I can afford to wear it quite often and be happy."

When she mentioned the sum, I exclaimed incredulously: "Oh, how can that be possible? You certainly have forgotten the dressmaker's bill."

"No," she said merrily. "I employed a dressmaker who did not send any bill; I made it myself."

Further questioning developed the fact that she not only made, but cut and fitted, her own and her mother's dresses. A natural aptitude for the work had been cultivated by a three month's stay with a leading dress-maker, and she was independent in that important and wearing line forever after. "I do not always have time to indulge myself," she exclaimed naively; "but I am sure to do my own sewing when I can; it is so much easier than hunting up a dressmaker and being cross over her mistakes for months afterwards."

I fancy that I hear some of you quoting that word "aptitude," and rejoicing in it. You have no natural aptitude for anything of the kind? May I venture to hint that nine-tenths of you are mistaken? You have forgotten the skill with which you fashioned the clothing of Araminta Adeline and her successors in the years behind you, and have let the aptitude run to waste. If I were a girl again and could make the opportunity, I would assuredly learn dressmaking.

Yes, indeed, I know there are other things to be done with a needle. I once had as a guest in my house a sweet girl friend, who was able to create wondrous flowers and birds and bugs even out of bright-colored silks and wools. Her banner-covers and center pieces and the like were objects of general admiration.

One Saturday my mending basket was piled high with work, and I was a victim of sick headache. My guest came sweetly with offers of help; and I, reflecting that she was the oldest daughter in a large family, ventured to enlist her services for two flannel undergarments which needed careful repairing. She worked laboriously all the long afternoon, but, oh, the result! It almost seemed to me that the very patches felt mortified, so crooked and ill-shaped and puckered were they. As for the wearers of those unfortunate garments, they were masculine, and knew not what was the matter; but they pulled at the sleeves, and jerked the neck-bands and grumbled until Sunday and headache being over, the accomplished young woman's work was taken out stitch by stitch.

Yes, it is an accomplishment to know how to patch and darn properly, and one that, to my mind, every self-respecting girl should make her own.

Yesterday I received a letter from a young woman, a graduate from one of our leading schools. The letter covered three pages, and there were five mistakes. Not in spelling or grammar; in these respects it was faultless, and the writing was beautiful. But it was an ordinary business letter, and the business terms that are in general use seemed to be unknown to her.

While I was reflecting over this, I picked up a newspaper of marked literary strength; and the first thing I saw was an article written by a prominent educator, in which the startling statement was made that ninety percent of our fairly well-educated young women are unable to write a business letter of ten lines without mistake. If this even approaches the truth, is it not time that we make the art of letter-writing one of our accomplishments?

There are at least half a dozen other important arts about which I wished to talk with you. One was that easily acquired, and very rare and beautiful one of reading aloud. Another was how to argue with an intelligent being, keeping low-voiced and sweet spirited the while. Another—but I must not; I have already passed beyond the inexorable number of words to which this talk must be limited. Some day, when I meet you face to face, and we do not have to count our words, we will talk it out together.—Pansy, in Golden Rule.

Be Observant.

An observing boy will become an observing man, and as boy and man he will have an advantage over those who have not cultivated the faculty.

A child may know more than a philosopher about matters that may not have come under the observation of the philosopher. A little girl entered the study of Mezeral, the celebrated historian, and ask him for a coal of fire.

"But you haven't brought a shovel," he said.

"I don't need any," was her reply.

And, then, very much to his astonishment, she filled her hand with ashes, and put the live coal on top. No doubt the learned man knew that ashes were a bad conductor of heat, but he had never seen the fact verified in such a practical manner.

"Do you notice anything peculiar in the movements of those wasps?" he asked, as he pointed to a puddle in the middle of the road.

"Nothing, except that they seem to come and go," replied one of the boys.

The other was less prompt in his reply, but he had observed to some purpose.

"I notice they fly away in pairs," he said. "One has a little pellet of mud, the other nothing. Are there drones among wasps as among bees?"

"Both were alike busy, and each went away with a burden," replied the naturalist. "The one you thought a 'do-nothing' had a mouthful of water. They reach their nest together; the one deposits his pellet of mud, and the other ejects the water upon it, which makes it of the consistency of mortar. Then they paddle it upon the nest, and fly away for more materials."

You see, one boy observed a little, and the other a good deal more, while the naturalist had something to tell them that surprised them very much.

Boys, be observant. Cultivate the faculty. Hear sharply, look keenly. Glance at a shop-window as you pass it, and then try how many things you can recall that you noticed in it.—Selected.

Never run into debt until you see a sure way to get out of it.

Small and steady gains bring the kind of riches that do not take wings and fly away.

A friend speaks through the Boothbay (Me.) Register, of the beneficial results he has recieved from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me any relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are in need of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills. I am perfectly confident that they will do good."

THERE may have been "honor among thieves" once upon a time, but not since thieving became a colossal system practiced by respected citizens on a grand scale. The downfall of the great Whiskey Trust is a case in point. It was formed by a number of men of station and wealth for the purpose of stealing the profits of the nefarious liquor traffic from the small manufacturers and retailers. The failure of the combine, however, after sinking millions of dollars, brought to light evidence that those who had been chosen to run the great stealing system turned on those who hired them. A worse complication of crime could not be conceived. It is bad enough to sell whiskey at all; it is worse to sell it by the million gallons; it is worse still to starve out the poorer sellers, in order to secure a monopoly and oppress all buyers, and all other makers and sellers; and it is worse still, but not at all surprising, that the wealthy scoundrels who organized this colossal system of diabolical evil were cheated by the officers whom they were paying to operate it.

We thank the Lord that the vilest trust of them all is dead by its own hand. May a similar fate overtake the cigarette trust, which we have good reason to confidently assert is doing as much harm to humanity as a whiskey trust could. Cigarettes do not destroy as many homes as whiskey does, but it is because they mark their victims before they have homes of their own.

APPETITE is the strongest shape that Satan assumes. It is appetite that maintains the sale of liquor and tobacco. But this is not half the story. There was a good brother in the office the other day who evidently had endured his share of the ills of flesh; and for a warning to us he attributed them every one to eating too much when a boy, and he prayed us to be careful. In his opinion nearly as much suffering and nearly as many premature deaths are caused by over-eating as by drinking liquors or using tobacco. We would not put any one on diet. But we are entirely willing to take full responsibility this summer weather for the injunction, "Be temperate in all things"—in eating, in drinking, in working, in talking and thinking; these last two with especial reference to the vexatious problem of finance.

A NEWSPAPER reports a farmer as chiding certain townsmen on being far behind him in knowledge of the financial problem. It is not a joke. These last three years the people in the country have been studying political issues, particularly "the financial question," while the townsman has been content to leave it to his party leaders. Of late, however, the wave has broken over the cities, and now when the farmer comes to town, he finds merchants ready to dispute or agree with him intelligently. Probably for the first time in the history of the country, the people all over the land are pretty well informed on a single political issue, (for it cannot be said that they are informed on the question as problem of political economy). It is hard to find a farmer who cannot sustain himself in good company in advocacy of free coinage of silver, and one cannot be found who has no opinion of his own on the course his party ought to pursue, which latter is something entirely new, greatly to the consternation of party leaders. It is a good sign when people become informed and show that they are thinking independently.

ACCORDING to Mr. Mulhall, the statistician, eighty-seven persons of every hundred over ten years of age in this country are able to read and write, that is, 41,600,000. And we have his good authority for it that never before has a nation possessed this number of instructed citizens. May we not then be prepared for unrest such as no other nation has experienced? The awakening of souls is not a gentle process; it is as an earthquake to tradition and dogma. With the general tendency toward increase of educational facilities and compulsory education, it is likely that the generation now rising to rear the first timbers in the new century will have part in a nation of aroused thinking beings; and one would be sanguine to hope that it will be less turbulent than this in the last decade of the old.

To be well educated, to be courageous, to be honest in such times as are coming will have all to do with the careers of those who have part in them and with the final shape the social structure takes.

CUBA AND SPAIN have been acting over again the tradegy of the foolish boy, who cried "wolf" when there was no wolf, and the shepherds who learned not to heed him, sadly for the sheep. The cry that Cuba was breaking away from Spain and would be annexed to the United States, is an old and oft-repeated one. So, when it was heard early in the spring, Spain took little thought, and America, for a time, took less. But the insurgents have held out until now; and Spain is at least so aroused that a great body of troops have been sent over, and the United States has taken the matter so seriously that she has formally warned all her citizens to have no hand in the affair. Spain will probably overcome the revolutionists, but only for a time; for the seed of liberty has been sown deep in Cuban soil.

Formosa, the bold little island that thought to take advantage of China's humiliation and Japan's complications with Russia, and make a bold stroke for republican government and freedom, has had to give up to the rising kingdom of the East.

Newspaper correspondents, who supply once a week the foreign matter from London for some of our papers, write a great deal of the ever about-to-be war between European powers; but the war is hardly in sight, and we are inclined to think the talk is good only to fill up with in a dull season. It strikes us that, since the Rothschilds control the money of Europe and therefore hold the real power of the continent, war is not an early probability; for the uncertainty of war is too great to have any but a depressing effect on property of all sorts, and that is all the mighty Jews have an eye to.

We have occasionally published news of the Armenian massacres by the Turks. The trouble is not over yet; but England, France and Russia are demanding certain wholesome reforms of the Sultan. The main ones may be briefly stated: That in the six Armenian provinces, the governors shall be Mahometan or Christian, according to the religion of the majority of the people in each province, the vice governors in all cases to be of the religion of the minority; taxes not to be collected by soldiers but by municipal agents, and to be expended systematically; arrests to be made by warrants and followed by prompt trial. The Sultan has refused to comply, but for the first time in half a century he is without the jealous protection of England (so greatly have the Armenian outrages incensed the English common people), and it is altogether probable that "the sick man of the East" will be compelled to accede. It would be better for the world if the European nations would rise above petty jealousies and divide the Sultan's domains among themselves.

A CAREFUL calculation shows that the people in New York City pay $6,500,000 yearly for amusements, and $5,500,000 yearly for church support, preaching, etc. That's a difference, financially, of $1,000,000 in Satan's favor, not to mention the amount Christ loses in vainly spent money. In view of these figures, representing such towers of strength, it is not surprising that Rev. Thos. Dixon, Jr., never succeeds in saying all he wants to say on the "Gates of Heaven and Hell in Modern Babylon."

By the way, we notice that the Salvation Army recently dedicated a $350,000 house and site in New York City. Say what we may about methods, this body of workers has done good in London, New York, Chicago, and hundreds of other large cities. If never a soul were saved through it, its work would be worth something, because it has taken devotees of the world from stations high and low and set them to working for the betterment of mankind. Even if a man be a hypocrite, his attitude of working for the uplifting of his fellowmen toward salvation would make him a better man. Thus, if the Salvation Army takes a society belle from the ball-room, a sot from the till, or a magdalen from the brothel, turns her from the evil of her ways, and trains her to live in the attitude of love for mankind, whether as a worker she succeed or not in lifting up any one, the instrumentality that prompted her is not to be left out when we come to count the human forces for good in the struggle against evil.

What Shall we Make of the State?

BY HON. THOS. W. MASON.

I address you to-day with my heart full of sympathy. I realize the dignity of the office to which you have called me. He who loves his country cannot stand in this presence and be moved only by the emotions of friendly greeting.

I have come to join you in congratulating our young friends upon the good fortune which has brought them to this honored seat of learning. I have come to rejoice with you, as North Carolina welcomes each one of them to his place in her household. The hour is so full of meaning that our joy gives place to the deeper emotions of hope and fear. The smile of welcome fades into the sober lines of anxious forecast.

What will you make of North Carolina, gentlemen? What shall we make of our State? The question is my theme. It has come to me and taken hold of me as the inspiration of this hour. You have honored me as your guest. By your invitation, I have come to see some of you put off the gown of the collegian and put on the toga of manhood; and the question springs to the lips: What shall we make of our State?

Let us not answer this question lightly, I pray you. Let us remember that the State will be what we choose to make of it. Let us remember also that our care of the State is our talent, of which the coming years will reckon with us. Our good name is in our own keeping, surely; so, also, let me remind you, is the good name of the State in our keeping. Shall I point you to some happy household where all that is false, and mean, and selfish, dies upon the threshold; where the household gods are truth and honor; where the cricket upon the hearth sings its lullaby to those who sleep in the arms of virtue; where the moon, with the coming sunlight, calls to prayer and thanksgiving for another day in which to do good? So, also, will the State be true, and noble, and generous, and peaceful, and God-fearing, and beneficent, if we choose to make it so. It is our household. Our venerated Mother sits at the hearth stone. Is there a spot upon her garments? We put it there. Is there a line of sorrow upon her brow? We gave the pain that wrote it there. Is there a downward glance when some proud sister looks her in the eye? Some deed of ours has caused her cheek to burn with shame. Are her garments unspotted; is her brow serene; is her eye lustrous with conscious worth when she greets her sisters? Then we have been true to each other and true to her.

The State is our inheritance. It is ours, with all that is good and all that is evil in our social life. It is our ancestral blood, that warms the heart, and lights the eye, and speaks from the lips. It is our expression; our impersonation of the duty we owe to each other. It gives to us whatever of rank, whatever of privilege, whatever of safety we enjoy in the citizenship of the world. We wear its colors wherever we go. Paul, pleading his defence at Jerusalem, told his accusers of his proud birth and his loyalty to his faith; of the Truth that had blinded him with its dazzling light and of his glorious mission to the world; and yet they were binding him for the scourge, when he asked them: "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman and uncondemned?" It was enough. He showed the colors of the State; he pleaded his citizenship; and every Roman eagle flew to his defence, as he stood firm and secure upon the twelve tables of the Roman Law.

The good that we enjoy of our inheritance comes to us as the gift of wisdom and virtue; the evil that afflicts us is our hateful legacy of folly and vice. Our fruitful soil, our forests that adorn the earth, our rivers that flow down to the sea, our rolling hills, and far-reaching plains, and peaceful vales; our mountains clothed in the majesty of undisturbed repose, these all are the gifts of nature and are good to look upon; but these do not constitute the State. The same earth and air and sky that saw the imperial splendor of Rome, saw also the hut of the savage rise above the ruins of her temples. The ploughshare and the loom; the white wings of commerce and all the forms of art; these all are the works of man with which he ministers to his wants or adorns his home. And these are good to look upon; but these do not constitute the State. They are the toys with which the children of the household amuse themselves. They waste and perish in their using, and States have died when they had them most.

The sentiment of the people constitutes the State. The home, the school, the church; the law, with its administration, the manners of the people, these give to it form and substance. These are its senses, through which it touches and is touched by the world. Through these it sees, and feels, and thinks, and acts. By these it grows in wisdom and strength; or shrinks and decays in error and weakness. By these it speaks to us at the fireside, from the secular and from the sacred desk; in the legislature and in the forum; from the hustings and from the bench. By these it lifts up its voice, "trumpet tongued," from the press. By these it ministers at the couch of suffering and adds its smile to the assembly of joy. By these it speaks to the maiden and her lover, as they plight their troth, and blesses the sanctity of their marriage vows. By these it sweetens all toil with the hope of just reward. By these it comes to the sepulcher, in the early morn, bringing its spices to anoint the memories of those who have lived for its honor and died for its defence.

Our homes, our schools, our religion, our laws, our manners, these are the keepers of the House; the guardians of the State. How shall we measure their excellence, or judge of their fitness for the trust committed to them? Shall we measure it by their capacity to accumulate wealth; to open mines; to build railroads, and factories, and cities? Shall we measure it by their capacity to add to our numbers; through the skill that proposes to lower the shores that guard our civilization to the inflowing waves of population? Shall we judge of their fitness, by their capacity to enlarge the horizon of knowledge; to measure the stars; to explore the earth; to tell us "whereupon are the foundations thereof fastened, or who laid the corner-stone thereof, when the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy, or who shut up the sea with doors?" Shall we measure it by their capacity to please our pride of life; to lull our senses with perfumes from the exotics of luxury? History does not so teach us. Rather, it teaches us that States ministered to by wealth, and numbers and learning, have perished from "the fulness of satiety." Let me repeat to you here the words of the historian Froude. He is telling us of the last days of the Roman Republic, when that proud State, greatest of all her sisters, leaving to the world her legacy of laws and of language, was passing from their view into the valley of the shadow of death. I am sure some of the lines of this death-bed scene will startle you and arrest your attention: "Public spirit in the masses was dead or sleeping; the commonwealth was a plutocracy. The free forms of the constitution were themselves the instruments of corruption. The rich were happy in the possession of all that they could desire. The multitude was kept quiet by the morsels of meat which were flung to it when it threatened to be troublesome. The seven thousand in Trail, the few who in all States and in all times remained pure in the midst of evil, looked on with disgust, fearing that any remedy which they might try might be worse than the disease. All orders in a society may be wise and virtuous, but all cannot be rich. Wealth which is used only for idle luxury is always envied, and envy soon curdles into hate. It is easy to persuade the masses that the good things of this world are unjustly divided, especially when it happens to be the exact truth. It is not easy to set limits to an agitation once set on foot, however justly it may have been provoked, when the cry for change is at once stimulated by interest and can disguise its real character under the passionate language of patriotism." May we not write under this picture of the dying State these words: Our Warning.

Is there no true standard by which we can measure the merits of those who have the care of our household?

Let us not be concerned for the accumulation of wealth. It is least to be desired and most to be feared of all things that can come to us. Rather, let us be concerned for the decay of men. Let us not be concerned for the increase of our numbers; we shall grow in numbers fast enough. Rather, let us be concerned for the happiness of our household. Let us not be over-anxious to extend the bounds of knowledge; we need not fear for our intellectual growth; the days of unlettered darkness are behind us. Rather, let us be anxious lest knowledge sow, in its wake, the teeth of the dragon. Let us take no thought for the things that minister to the pride of life. Rather, let us be careful of its purity and health.

Wealth, population, learning, plenty, these all are good; but not one of them an unmixed good; not one of them that has not been enlisted among the enemies of the State; not one of them that has not carried the dagger of Brutus under its cloak.

We must make no mistakes in our standards of merit. Herein lies the security and happiness of our household. How, then, shall we reach the true standard of merit? How do we measure the moral quality of an act? Not by its results; not by the applause or disapproval that waits upon it; but by its intention. Will not this axiom of science lead us to the true measure of public virtue? Good intention, generous impulse, unselfish purpose, sense of duty, faith in God, as the source of good; are not these the lineaments of those who are the only safe guardians of the State? These may seem homely virtues, but with them alone abide peace and honor and length of days. Our homes may be palaces and our manners the courtesy of kings; our schools may adorn themselves with all learning; our churches may make broad their phylacteries, and send their steeples to the skies; our laws may be written in characters of gold; and yet the sentiment of the people—the State—may be the unreasoning rage that released Barabbas and slew the Christ.

Are not these homely virtues the lineaments of those whose memories we cherish most in our history? We do not remember these former guardians of the State because they added to our wealth or our numbers or our learning. These were their lesser services. We cherish their memories, with pride and gratitude, because their service was luminous with the purity and unselfishness of their motives. They gave to public virtue its true meaning. They lifted up and ennobled the sentiment of the people. They enthroned truth and honor as household gods. They esteemed wealth, and numbers, and learning, and all the works of art only as they ministered to the security and happiness of the household. They were not self seekers. They did not concern themselves to be counted greatest in the State. They learned their lesson of service from him who has taught us that obedience and humility are gems in the crown of social virtues. These were "good men and true." We invoke their memories and virtue comes to us and strengthens us, in our weakness, as from the hem of his garment, who was their peerless exemplar.

Happily for us, we have had these "good men and true" as the guardians of our household. We have had them in our homes; they have taught us in the school and in the church; they have served us in the legislature and in the forum; they have spoken to us from the hustings, from the bench, from the press, and in all the walks of life. Happily for us, we have them now. It would delight me to call the names of some of those whose chairs are now vacant at our fireside. But you will surely not forget them. My purpose is to point out to you their worth, and to remind you that the good we now enjoy is our because of their faithful guardianship. Nor will I dwell upon those who have troubled us, and whose unfaithful service has brought reproach upon our name and disease and pestilence to our hearthstone. Unhappily for us, we have had these bad men as the guardians of the State. I will not pain you by saying that we have them now. Nor need I call the names of any of those whose vacant chairs are their best gifts to us. You will know them when you measure them by your true standard of merit. My purpose is to remind you that the evil which afflicts us is ours because of their unfaithful service.

Again, are not these homely virtues the lineaments of those acts which we cherish most in our history? We have marked our days in the calendar on which we cease from toil that we may sit together and renew our vows of duty to each other as we invoke "the tender grace of a day that is dead." These are the days when the State rose to some high occasion; when some great deed was done, the memory of which makes us truer to each other, and drives from our midst every note of discord. We do not meditate upon the results of these great acts; we reverence the motives that gave them being. We know that they were intended for our good. So it is we have marked the 20th day of May in the calendar as our Independence day. Nor do we ask whether it was wise in the men of Mecklenburg to resolve on that day, in the year 1775, to be an independent State. We know that this deed was done for the honor and happiness of our household. These men of 1775 did not count results. They felt that the honor of their household demanded that they should no longer remain the subjects of King George. They left results to him in whom they trusted for deliverance; and in his providence, victory came to them. And so it was that on this 20th day of May, our day of Liberty, we met to remember those who in 1861 put on the gray uniform. Nor did these men of 1861 count results. They, too, were moved to their great act by the motives that transform the man into a hero. They too left results to him in whom they trusted for deliverance; and in his providence, victory did not come to them. And yet we love and cherish them the more tenderly; we reverence them none the less because they did so well for a cause they could not win. In the worry and vexation of life we sometimes cry out, "Let the dead past bury its dead;" let us forget our strife; let no stone be placed in our way to remind us of our struggle. I would that we could forget all enmity against our brother; but when we forget those who went out from our household wearing our colors with honor, then may we hide our faces from the sunlight, and may our household gods fall from their places, and be broken upon our hearthstone! How our hearts warm with gratitude when we dwell on their great acts in our history that bear the impress of high, unselfish purpose! How proud we are of our household name! How little care we for the things that perish when imperishable honor is our inheritance! One such great act, like Marmion's blast upon his bugle-horn, "is worth ten thousand men." I wish there were none other in our history.

Every household has its days of humiliation and sorrow—its days of darkness. We, too, have had our dark days. There are pages in our history which we shall always wish to blot out; acts that bear all too clearly the impress of evil purpose; where no lineament of virtue can be traced. There is no need that I should point these out to you by name. You will know them by their hideous deformities; and you will turn away from them, loathing, as virtue turns away from crime. My purpose is to remind you that these constitute our baleful legacy of folly and vice, which we must be careful to put away from us, as the husbandman separates the tares from the wheat.

We must think of our State as our household. We must not think of it as something apart from ourselves. We must not confound it with the government in its varied function. I have used so point me to you that the government is but one of the guardians of the State. We must not think of it as residing only at Raleigh. We must not regard it only as it is expressed by those who bear its commission in office. We must think of ourselves as a part of the PERTINENT questions. Do you study, do you reason to come to a conclusion, or do you study to find grounds to sustain a conclusion which you have already reached and desire to hold to? In other words, do you "try all things," or do you get "set" a certain way and fight against all things else?

How greatly concerned some of us are to sustain our prejudices!

"THEY saw Him in their nets," says the Watchman, and the six small words are food for more thought than is sometimes put in an hour and a half discourse. It is a test: Do we see Him in our nets? It is a suggestion: We may not have been carrying out the Masters's instructions as he calls to us through the mists. Do we look for Him in our nets? Do we ask for His sympathy and direction and power?

CHRISTIAN workers have said much about "a second pentecost;" but such an outpouring of the Spirit's power as occurred that day has never since been witnessed. Now why?

That same mighty Spirit is still with us, his power is infinite; the promises of Jesus as ever unquestionable; the love of God as fresh and full as it was when he gave his Son to the cross. Clearly, then, the reason is confined to the human side of God's plans.

Let us expect a pentecost; let us pray constantly for it; let us examine ourselves, and ask God to remedy our failings.

AS ANNOUNCED officially by Bro. A. M. Simms, chairman of the Executive Committee, Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards has been called to aid Secretary Stringfield in the arduous task of keeping up the payments on the rising Female University building, which are to be made as the work proceeds.

Six thousand dollars come due shortly. If it is not raised, then the work stops; and delay means loss of interest, loss of usefulness, loss of valuable time. If it is possible—and all things are possible—we must not delay. Bro. Stringfield cannot attend to his large correspondence and cover as much territory in his capacity as money-raiser as he needs to; so Bro. Edwards comes in to help.

We need not introduce Bro. Edwards to our people. He made many friends as pastor at Goldsboro and Fayetteville, and has been active in our conventions. He is an able man, and will do hard work. We ask for him a kind reception and the sympathetic co operation of the Baptists of the State.

A MAN actually requested us not long ago to give some reason why Baptist parents should send their daughters to Baptist schools, regardless of the difference of cost made by State aid.

We want to say here that the talk about the RECORDER advertising the State Normal and Industrial School by opposing its policy is plainly without foundation. President McIver has said (if one of his friends is to be believed) that the proportion of Baptist girls has fallen off; and, moreover, he has shown sufficient desire for us to "let up." The Normal and Industrial School will some day settle down to its true mission and do a great work for good. Till then, there is no letting up in this quarter.

Briefly, we should send our daughters to our schools because it is to their interest that they be surrounded by the influences of our religion, and it is also to the interest of our religion. Because others disregard first principles, is no reason why we should; voluntary religion and voluntary education are old and true principles of our denomination. We cannot afford to blind our children to these principles by making them the object for which they are disregarded. We get more than book learning in schools, whether we go after it or not. Impressions, ideas, habits and character are some of the products; and we need to be most jealously careful of the influences in the making of them. It is, to say the least, dangerous to send a young and inexperienced girl to Greensboro to lodge in town and attend school. A settled woman may not lose by it, but a girl will, no matter who she is.

If the Christian religion is worth anything at home, it is worth as much at school; if its influences are to be sought at home, so also should they be in the school. A State institution cannot possibly be as clearly and strongly religious as it ought to be, and its lack in this respect cannot be made up for with money. To let a boy or girl take their chances for religious training at a State institution because it is cheaper, will turn out to be a mighty dear bargain, unless the home influences are unconditionally strong.

THE TRAINING OF CHILDREN.

A child is like a colt—it has to be trained; upon its training depends its future liberalness. Some parents turn their children out, as Texas ranchmen do their calves, to take care of themselves. In after life, they are quite surprised at the almost inevitable result, that the calf makes a better showing than the child. A human being cannot, without damage, be treated as an animal. To achieve even fair results, it must be watched and faithfully tutored. If eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, it is equally the price of character. Yet it is appalling to think of the rarity of religious conversation in the home. Base-ball, politics, Corbett, crops, are all discussed freely and heartily in some Christian (?) homes, whilst purity of life and nobility of purpose are rarely mentioned. Perhaps many a Christian reader of this article cannot recall a single occasion on which he ever mentioned the name of Christ to his offspring. May be, others are aware of the fact that they never made a personal effort to lead their children to the Saviour. You talk about other things in which you show intense interest, and the children readily and logically conclude that these are the chief things of life. Is it strange, then, that they grow up worldly and frivolous? Is it strange that they become tricky and treacherous? Do you marvel that here and there one of them robs a bank, while another becomes a drunkard? Look to your example, Christian parent. On one occasion a church-member came up to us on the street in the midst of a protracted meeting, and said: "I wish you would speak with my boy; I've tried to make something of him, but I can't do anything with him. Unfortunately, he is given to drink." This same parent was at the time under the influence of liquor, seeming never to have realized that to make something of his son it would be necessary to make something of himself.

A dying girl in a North Carolina town, the daughter of a Universalist, having embraced skeptical views of the Bible because, no doubt, of family influences, cried out in her last hours, "I don't believe there's a Christian in the family." And she upbraided the home circle for not telling her of the religion of Christ. This bitterness of heart may be felt in many a home, though never expressed. It is said that one Sunday night Mr. Spurgeon was urging parents to go home and speak to their children on the subject of personal religion; to do so that very night, even if they found them asleep to awaken them and converse with them on this vital question. One mother in the congregation resolved to follow the admonition. Sure enough when she returned home, she found her daughter asleep. But she awoke her and said, "O, my daughter, I felt that I must awake you and talk to you about your precious soul." What was the mother's surprise when her daughter put her arms about her neck, and bursting into tears, exclaimed, "O, mamma, for two years I have been waiting and wondering why you did not say something to me about giving my heart to Jesus!" The next Sabbath the daughter was received into the church.

In the religious training of children, both parents should co-operate. Division often proves disastrous. Both should belong to the same church, and that the Baptist; for in no other church is the very best instruction to children possible. We were traveling up a steep mountain once on a train which, because of the difficult grade, had to be drawn by two engines. The train ascended without difficulty, since both pulled the same way. But imagine one engine pulling up, the other down! Yet that's a picture of many a home; one parent is trying to lead the children heavenward, the other is exerting opposite influences.

Lord Holland gives us an instance of the value of parental example. His son, Charles James Noe, when home from school, was walking in the garden with his father, who pointed to a wall which he intended to have pulled down. "Oh!" said Charles, "I should like to see a wall pulled down." "Well, my boy, you shall," said the father. In the boy's absence the promise was forgotten, and the wall was pulled down. When the boy's vacation came, he said to the father, "You promised to let me see that wall pulled down." "My boy," said Lord Holland, "you are right, I did. It is too late now to do just what I said I would; but you wanted to see a wall pulled down, and so you shall."

And the mason was actually required to pull down the wall and build it again.

"It cost me twenty pounds," he said; "but if it had cost me a hundred pounds I should have thought it a cheap way of impressing on my boy's mind, as long as he lives, the importance that a man of honor should attach to a plighted word."

MISSION CONFERENCE AT ATLANTA.

As ordered by the Washington Convention, a committee of the secretaries of our general boards and the secretaries of our State boards, with Rev. J. B. Gambrell, Chas. Manly, G. W. Hyde, B. H. Carroll, met at Atlanta last week. The attendance was full, although Secretaries Willingham and Bell were sick; and the work most important.

It was decided to combine the Foreign Mission Journal and the Home Field into one monthly journal more than twice as large as either; the editor to be regularly chosen; the purpose to be to print evangelical literature, and as far as possible aid the Boards in their work. The publishing will probably be done by our Sunday-school Board, and the magazine is expected to pay its running expenses easily. Rev. J. B. Gambrell, Rev. C. Durham, Rev. B. H. Carroll, were appointed a committee to carry out these plans.

It was suggested that a meeting of mission secretaries like this ought to be held every year, to bring the workers and the plans into contact and contrast.

Other matters of minor interest were acted upon, which will be mentioned later.

The meeting was a success; and it is gratifying to be able to say that our Baptist Convention at Elizabeth City was the first in the South to ask for the union of the two mission papers, Dr. Durham introducing the resolution.

A MILLION DOLLARS was recently given in a lump to Columbia College, and a few days later the University of Pennsylvania received two gifts of a half million each. These sums did not come from men notoriously rich, but from men of learning who know the value of money and who know that it can hardly be more usefully employed than in education.

The number of those who are using educational institutions as channels for their benefactions is constantly increasing. Endowed institutions are the hope of education in this country to-day, and they will be always. In many instances they have been so magnificently endowed that they are far and away beyond the competition of State-aided institutions. But in many more they are not. These latter it is our duty to sustain and defend until they have been endowed.

As surely as Wake Forest lives, as surely as the Female University opens its doors, will the necessity arise for a million dollar Baptist educational endowment in North Carolina. We can get along with less for a time; but we ought not to cease looking for, praying for, and working for that million dollars. There are hundreds of men who could give it.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Mercer University of Georgia has recently fallen heir to about $25,000.

....Rev. J. H. Yarboro has changed his address from Mars Hill to Boone, N. C.

....The meeting for Conference on the Holy Spirit was duly held at Richmond last week.

....Rev. N. B. Cobb, D. D., went last week East to preach at Mt. Olive and other places.

....We hope the Union Meetings will be largely attended. Let the laymen set the pastors an example.

....Rev. J. K. Fant of Littleton has been visiting friends and relatives in his native State, South Carolina.

....Pastor S. B. Barnes of Hill Side church will soon be aided in a meeting by Bro. Cale of Potecasi.

....Rev. L. R. Pruett of Charlotte has been aiding Bro. Alderman in meetings at Concord with good results.

....The Seaside Chautauqua begins to-day (Wednesday) at Smyrna. We hope those who attend will have a pleasant and profitable time.

....Rev. Dr. T. E. Skinner is at Morehead for his health, keeping everybody there in a good humor with his kindly pleasantry and solid sense.

....Rev. M. P. Davis, who graduated at Wake Forest this month, is located at Creedmore for the present. He is a hard worker and a safe young man.

....Prof. R. L. Moore and Miss Edna Corpening were united in marriage by Rev. H. C. Moore, at North Catawba, June 13th. We extend our best wishes.

....A church will be constituted at McMillan's school house, Cumberland county, next Sunday. Rev. Jno. Prevatt and Rev. W. B. Harrell will take part.

....It is about time somebody were starting a discussion of pastoral vacations,—not for the purpose of promoting or prohibiting them, but just to be discussing.

....Rev. W. B. Gwaltney passed through Raleigh Tuesday morning on his way home from Knoxville, Tenn., whither he had been in attendance on the ten days' session of the Southern Students' Conference. Hereafter we will give his account of this meeting.

....Our church at Aberdeen, Rev. C. J. Anderson pastor, was dedicated last Sunday; Rev. L. Johnson preaching the sermon. Bro. N. B. Broughton made a Sunday-school address and Rev. C. Durham preached at night. Bro. Johnson is aiding in a meeting there now.

....Rev. J. E. Dowd, who has pursued special studies at Wake Forest the last three years, is now at Rives Chapel, N. C., to which office his mail should be sent.

....Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Clate, daughter of Mrs. T. S. White of Elizabeth City to Mr. James Hufham Aydlett, all of Elizabeth City, July 10th.

....Rev. W. C. Newton will occupy the pulpit of our Goldsboro church during the summer, at least. He intends going to our Seminary this fall. He is a most promising young man.

....It will be of very great help to us if our delinquent friends will make some small payment just at this time. See the label. And don't get discouraged and discourage us by stopping.

....Rev. G. L. Finch of Pulaski, Va., and Miss Ida Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Barnes, were united in marriage at Wilmington June 26th. We wish them God's blessings.

....Rev. I. S. Boyles, who graduated at Wake Forest this month, is sick at his home at Pilot Mountain. We are glad to know that he is not ill, but only too sick to keep his appointments.

....In their annual Convention at Paducah last week, the secretary's report showed that Kentucky Baptists gave $43,165.50 to Missions last year. The meeting was a good and profitable one.

....Fifteen hundred dollars debt on our Board of Education. That will never do. Read Brother Mitchell's appeal, and help, brethren, help. This money is due to people who need and deserve it.

....Rev. Jno. E. White of Edenton will rest up a few weeks at his father's, Apex, N. C., next month. We are glad to have him so near Raleigh. He did good service supplying our pulpits last summer.

....Dr. Durham has gone on a missionary tour to the Hyde county section to spend several days in meetings. He returned only last week from the Atlanta meeting, in which he took a most prominent part.

....Prof. Carlisle of Wake Forest has gone to the University of Chicago to study Latin. He intends taking a degree from that institution. Prof. Brewer is at Cornell pursuing special work. The College grows.

....President B. L. Whitman of Colby University, Me., has been chosen president of Columbian University, Washington. He is a magnificent man, physically, intellectually and religiously. We hope he will accept.

....Dr. Chas. Lee Smith, of the Chair of Political Science in William Jewell College, Mo., is spending his vacation at Carolina Beach. We are glad to be able to give our readers an interesting letter from him next week.

....Rev. C. S. Blackwell of Elizabeth City made his first visit to Wake Forest week before last. He was greatly pleased, and will go again. We are glad to see him taking such a hold on our denominational work.

....Dr. A. C. Osborn of Albion, N. Y., has been chosen to succeed Dr. Becker as president of Benedict Institute, South Carolina, a school at Columbia for the negro race, under the control of the Home Mission Society.

....We regret to see Rev. J. W. Powell going down to Georgia. He's too good a man to lose; and Georgia people are quick to grasp a good thing. Bro. Powell asks us to address him at Rochelle, Georgia, for a month at least.

....Rev. D. B. Nelson has been called to Old Salem church. This church has been without a house and a pastor for some time. Now they have a beautiful brick house and one of the best men we know for pastor.—W. N. C. Baptist.

....Rev. M. M. Landrum and Rev. J. L. Shinn and Rev. J. W. Mull, men who always set good examples, are the latest to join the regions beyond. The harvest season is coming, brethren; let us have a host of harvesters ready.

....Two of our Secretaries are sick with fever, Rev. R. J. Willingham and Rev. T. P. Bell. Let thousands of prayers ascend to the throne for these two useful men yet in their best years. We learn that Dr. Willingham is convalescent.

....It grieves us to hear of the death of Bro. A. N. Daniel at Wilson. He was a good and true man and a worthy servant of God. Dr. Mundy was telling us of his faith and resignation not many weeks ago. God comfort his dear ones.

....Probably we shall have an immense majority against us when we say that the responsive reading of Scriptures in public worship is about as unprofitable an exercise as could be devised.—The Watchman. Here's one that's with you.

....At Davidson College week before last twelve members of the senior class presented the play well-known to theatre-goers, entitled "The Rivals." It "a good beginning makes a bad ending" works both ways, Davidson's class of '95 will do well.

....Rev. Dr. J. M. Wells, pastor of the First Baptist church, Fort Worth, Texas, recently baptized Rev. J. D. Wherland, for thirteen years a minister of the Congregational Church, and Rev. Joseph Estill, a minister of the United Brethren Church.

....Rev. Dr. J. W. Carter has returned from his trip to Bayboro, where he aided Bro. W. F. Fry in a meeting. This was Dr. Carter's first visit to this part of the State, and he is very glad that he took it. He reports that Bro. Fry is doing good, solid work, and moving onward, as well as could be expected in a section that is not yet strongly Baptist. Bro. Fry will succeed Bro. Burgess of Newbern at Vanderbeers.

....Rev. T. E. Hill, who acceptably served four churches last year while attending Wake Forest College, and received a Society medal besides, is now located at Henderson, from which place he will continue to serve his field.

....Honors are falling thick upon Wake Forest College. The latest is the adoption by Harvard University of a work which Professors Sledd and Gorrell have been editing, as a regular text book in that foremost of educational institutions.

....We are glad to say that Rev. J. H. Vernon is making fair progress toward recovering from an operation recently performed. We hope he will receive strength from the Lord and be fully restored after his long illness. He is at Danville, Va.

....Considerable anticipation is being indulged in with regard to the Southern Biblical Assembly to be held at Asheville, beginning July 17th. Many of the most prominent of our ministers in the State and the South are announced as intending to be present.

....We are glad to note that our friend and brother W. G. Upchurch, one of the most substantial members of the First Baptist church at Raleigh, and a prominent citizen, has returned from a trip to Baltimore much improved in health. May he be fully restored to his wonted vigor.

....Rev. W. R. Cullom has been installed as supply at Scotland Neck. He needs no introduction at our hands. He is a full graduate of Wake Forest, and of the Seminary. He was tutor in the latter. He has had very successful experiences as a preacher in North Carolina and Kentucky.

....Rev. W. B. Morton will worthily wear the honor which the Wake Forest Alumni conferred upon him when they made him president of the association. It is a great honor to be placed at the head of the sons such an institution as Wake Forest College, and we congratulate Bro. Morton.

....We observe that some of our contemporaries have fallen into the annual June habit of discussing "The Value of a College Education;" and with the usual meagre success. For it all depends, first, on the fellow who has got it, and, secondly, on how far he expects it to carry him in the world.

....Rev. J. A. McKaughan, who is doing faithful work at Enfield, writes: "The interest in the Lord's work on my field is growing. My congregations are increasing. The outlook for our work at Enfield is more hopeful than at any recent period. Pray for us that the Lord may give us an abundant harvest."

....At the recent anniversary of the Church Missionary Society of England, Dean Farrar said that the British Empire owed more to the despised Baptist cobbler, Carey, and the poor contribution of £13 2s. 6d. of the Baptists, than it owed to the genius of Warren Hastings or the fiery battle-spirit of Clive.—Examiner.

....We notice that Dr. Thos. Hume has been in demand as usual at various educational institutions for addresses to graduating classes. He went to Williamston, S. C., to deliver an address before the Female College of that place recently. He is now resting among the hills of Burke county, and will later go to his summer home in Virginia.

....Rev. E. C. Bobbitt passed through Raleigh last week on his way to Smyrna to the Seaside Chautauqua. He was a little ahead of time, in order to help Bro. Spilman and the good Smyrna people, of whom he was once pastor, to make ready for the occasion. Railway rates are low and a trip to this meeting would be beneficial to many a run down worker.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon will be one of the speakers at the fourteenth international Christian Endeavor Convention, the theme being "Denominational loyalty and interdenominational fellowship." Evidently, Bro. Dixon is in a bad row of stumps this time. If we were in his place, we would envy the man who is said to be able to keep silent in six languages.

....The School men who believe in advertising are the ones who get the students. As a medium for reaching mothers and fathers, the RECORDER is unsurpassed in North Carolina. We published more school advertisements last year than any paper in the State, and we are going to break our own record this season. We have special rates; you ought to see them.

....Furman University and Greenville Female College, South Carolina, had their closing exercises the same week with Wake Forest. The Baptist Courier says they were about the best they ever had. Dr. Lansing Burrows delivered the address; Rev. R. W. Lide made the alumni address. Eleven male graduates, one female, of Furman; ten girl graduates of the Seminary.

....Mr. J. R. Hunter, a graduate of Wake Forest, received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Johns Hopkins University this month, and has since been chosen over a great number of applicants to fill the Chair of Chemistry in Richmond College. We know Bro. Hunter personally. He is a strong man, a fine student and an earnest Christian. Virginia Baptists have made no mistake. Prof. Hunter is a brother of Bro. C. J. Hunter of Raleigh.

....Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards has closed his work as pastor at Fayetteville. Looking backward it is seen that under his ministry the membership of the church has grown considerably—from 145 to 238, sixty-eight of the additions having come by baptism. A flourishing mission Sunday-school has been established, and it has proved a fine feeder to the church. Improvements have been made on the church property to the amount of several hundred dollars. Already a native infidel family of Cumberland county has become thoroughly identified with this Christian work, and we are glad to know that he will remain in our State.

....With Oullom at Scotland Neck, Blalock at Rockingham, and Millard at Henderson, we have much to thank the Seminary for this year. They are all three good, strong men.

....We were glad to have a call from Prof. F. P. Hobgood Saturday as he went on to Morehead City to attend the Teachers' Assembly, of which he is a very prominent member. Among other good doctrines, the professor believes in advertising, and our readers may look out for a column of interesting reading from him next week.

....We have heard two competent judges, Rev. C. Durham and Bro. John Pullen, speak in terms of high praise of the last work from the late Dr. A. J. Gordon's pen, "How Christ Came to Church." It is published by the American Baptist Publication Society, uniform with Gordon's admirable "Ministry of the Spirit." These works will strengthen any Christian's library.

....Hon. Thomas W. Mason's address printed in this issue is as good and sound on politics as any we ever published on religion. It is honest and manly. It will be good reading not only for young men, but for old ones. Doubtless the orator found it hard to handle so difficult a subject without laying himself open to partizanship, but there is no one who could say of what party faith the speaker is an apostle, although his sentences are clear and his principles unmistakably bold.

....The Foreign Mission and the Home Mission Society of the Northern Baptists each have received $100 000 from the Sampson estate. Indigent Baptist ministers in Massachusetts received a fund of $50,000, and $20,000 was given to aid widows and orphans of Baptist preachers in Massachusetts. The First church, Washington City, received $10,000, the Grace church, same city, $10,000, and Dr. Judson's church $20,000. Stetson University, Florida, received $60,000.

....We recently saw a clipping in the Wilmington Messenger containing the statement that the funeral of a Baptist preacher, Rev. W. B. Woodruff, had lately been preached at Elkin by a Methodist preacher. We wrote to Rev. J. E. Greene, who replied as follows: "The late Rev. W. B. Woodruff was once a Methodist preacher. Later he joined the Baptists. He died two years ago, a very old man, and had not done any preaching for some time. The funeral was preached according to his own request. Rather strange and hard to explain."

....We were glad to have a visit from Rev. C. W. Blanchard Monday. He was on his way to Goldsboro from Reidsville, where he attended the exercises last week. He reports a pleasant and profitable time, although Rev. A. C. Dixon and Rev. R. J. Willingham did not come as expected. Rev. F. H. Jones of Virginia was there and added to the interest of the occasion. The Reidsville work is in promising condition. Bro. Blanchard is well settled in his work, and is putting in good and steady strokes. He sets the mark at three hundred students next fall, and we are with him.

....A correspondent from North Carolina, in writing to the Baptist Courier, of South Carolina, says that the BIBLICAL RECORDER charges advertising rates for the notices from the manager of transportation committees relative to the coming meeting of the B. Y. P. U. A. in Baltimore. We are very slow to believe this.—Atlantic Baptist. Did you not see the name of the writer, whose character every one but the Baptist Courier knows? We never did such a thing in our life. If we took the trouble to correct the false statements made by "The Many," we would have to leave out some good reading matter. Bro. Blackwell, the transportation leader, will tell you that we have never hesitated to print every announcement he ever sent.

....Evangelist Wharton preached his farewell sermon at Wilmington the 21st inst. He is an able preacher and has been largely blessed in his work; but we are sure his Evangelization Society methods are a hindrance to him. He goes next to Selma, Ala., to take up revival work which his partner, Dr. Barron, has been carrying on, the latter coming to Charlotte the 26th to begin meetings in which Dr. Wharton will lead after the 29th inst. The meeting at Charlotte began in Dr. Pritchard's church Monday night, Rev. Mr. White of the Presbyterian church preaching; Mr. Sloan, the A. R. P. pastor, preached Tuesday night, and if Dr. Barron was not there Wednesday night, Rev. Mr. Ivey, Methodist, of Wilson, preached. Dr. Creasy, Methodist, an introducer of the individual communion cup, will preach Thursday night. After this week the meeting will be taken out of the Baptist church and be carried on in an auditorium. There will be singing by a regular evangelist's companion.

....A regenerated man is either a saved man or an unsaved man. If he is saved, then he will go to Heaven if he is faithful to the end. If he is unsaved then the new birth is defective, insufficient, a failure. No sane man if informed will say that. Christ said: "He that heareth my words and believeth in Him who sent me, hath everlasting life and shall not come into condemnation, but is past from death unto life." Did He speak wisely? Was he informed? Who dare say nay? Is it true a man will be lost if regenerated, and trying to live right before God? Is the being born again to be supplemented by something else without which it is impossible to see God? The Scriptures of Inspiration, as reason and analogy, teach that the Christian life is growth—that when a man is born again he is born into the Kingdom of Righteousness which is in the soul—that when he is so born he is also 'justified by faith'—there is no longer any condemnation.—Wil. Messenger. That is good Baptist doctrine, from a good Methodist. We feel like sending for Bro. Hoffham to give Bro. Kingsbury the right hand of fellowship.

....By an unfortunate oversight the name of Rev. Edgar E. Folk, the able and energetic editor of our excellent Tennessee contemporary, the Baptist and Reflector, was omitted from our list of those who received the degree of D. D. at the hands of Wake Forest College last week. Fortunately for us, Dr. Folk is a newspaper man, and no doubt knows how these things will happen. Bro. Folk is a North Carolinian, a Wake Forest graduate, and is well beloved in the Bertie section, where he was better known than in any other part of our State. He is well known and well-beloved throughout Tennessee, and is prominent in our Southern Baptist Convention.

....We have received program of the Baltimore meeting of the B. Y. P. U. A., July 18-21. Among others we note the following names on the list of speakers: Rev. H. M. Wharton, Rev. A. C. Dixon, Prest. W. R. Harper, Rev. R. H. Conwell, Rev. B. H. Carroll, Rev. W. J. Sholar, Rev. Geo. B. Eager, Rev. E. M. Poteat, Mary J. Reeside, Chief Big Tree, Rev. J. B. Cranfill, Rev. C. S. Blackwell, Prof. F. W. Boatwright, Rev. M. B. Wharton, Rev. J. L. White, Rev. J. B. Gambrell, Rev. F. H. Kerfoot. There will also be a "salutation of flags and minute (small!) guns" on Friday. It will be noticed that the bid for Southern favor is very strong: not only a Southern meeting place, but largely Southern speakers.

....President Winston published a column and a half article in Harper's Weekly about the University. In the course of it he used the following language: "The work of the institution is largely hampered by lack of funds; and ignorance, prejudice, and sectarian fanaticism have again and again sought to cripple or destroy it. But it stands for popular education, for broad culture, and for human progress in all directions, and it must win the battle eventually." Whereupon our esteemed contemporary, the Wilson Mirror, remarks: "Had he left out the fling at the effort made during the last campaign to reduce the appropriations and forborne to characterize those who honestly differed with him as to how far the State should educate, as ignorant, actuated by prejudice and sectarian fanaticism, then there could have been naught but highest praise for the spirit and purpose of the article."

....Richmond College held its annual exercises last week. They mark an era in the institution's history and probably in Virginia Baptist history. Prest Boatwright was formally inducted into office. Ex-chairman of the Faculty Puryear, Professor of Chemistry, resigned his professorship, and Professor Harris of the Chair of Greek took formal leave to go to his new place in the Seminary. We could hardly be reconciled to see Prof. Puryear go, but if so it must be, then the Board has made it most agreeable for us by electing Prof. A. M. Carroll to take charge of the Chair of Greek and Prof. Hunter to take the Chair of Chemistry. Mention of the latter is made elsewhere. Prof. Carroll is a Richmond College man, a Ph. D. of Johns Hopkins, and has studied in Germany. The institution is fortunate to secure him. He is a son of our beloved friend and brother, Dr. J. L Carroll. After twenty nine years of service, Prof. Edmund Harrison of the Chair of Latin was pushed out. We do not know the conditions of the institution, but we cannot help feeling regretful at the loss to the institution of Profs. Puryear and Harrison after so many years of efficient service. There were twenty graduates.

Board of Education.

Thirty-six young ministers have been aided by the Board the past session. The amount allowed them is nine dollars per month. This is to pay their board, including room-rent, washing, &c. And this is made a loan rather than a gift.

The young ministers who have means pay their own way. The Boards helps only the poor. The session closed with a debt of $1,500. This is the result of delay on the part of so many of our churches in sending up their contributions. Let the churches see that their contributions are sent forward promptly, and this indebtedness will soon be paid off. Let every pastor see that his church or churches have an opportunity of making a contribution annually to this great and good work for the Master's sake. And let the contributions be forwarded to our Treas., J. D. Boushall, Raleigh, N. C., or send them up to the approaching associations, if more convenient.

Let us rally to the support of our Lord's poor ministers, and help them, struggling nobly to prepare themselves for the great work to which he has called them.

The Board will continue to aid about the same number next session. We hope to be able to do this, pay off the debt, and report out of debt at our next Convention. Would not that be glorious? And how easily it can be done, if the brethren will come up to the help of the Lord. Brethren, send in your contributions to the Board of Education. Help our young ministers. And may the Lord help you.

Help, and Help Quickly.

Dear Recorder:—The work on our house of worship at Haw River is nearing completion. It will be dedicated the fifth Sunday while our Union Meeting will be in session.

Let me ask the brethren and sisters in this State, and especially those within our own Association, to respond, as far as possible, to our appeals for help.

Many have helped; but many more must help, or we will have a debt to hamper us in our work. Send your contribution to me as early as the 5th Sunday.

Fraternally, JOHN C. HOCUTT.

To the Baptists of North Carolina.

At last the walls of our Female University are being built; and, as the payments are large and fall due as the work progresses, we will have to exert ourselves in every way to collect from every portion of the State as rapidly as possible. As a temporary help we have, therefore, solicited the co operation of Rev. J. H. Edwards, late pastor of Fayetteville, that he may assist Bro. Stringfield in his labors in behalf of the school.

We feel grateful for the interest our people, in every section of the State, are manifesting in behalf of the work, and we believe it will not be long until we may rejoice together in the completion of this much needed building. We bespeak for our agents the hearty, prayerful and substantial co-operation of all our brethren and sisters.

Baptist Female University, the Most Popular Work Ever Begun in the State.

Dear Recorder:—Evidently the most popular work ever begun in our State, is the establishment of the Baptist Female University. That we are to have an institution for our young women so endowed that we can put the cost of education within their reach, a loan fund with which we can aid very many indigent young women, with buildings and equipments equal to any in the South, reaches the hearts of our people as no other enterprise can do.

We have begun the work on the principal building, relying upon the Lord through his servants to furnish the money with which to carry it on to completion. We are going to have a struggle to tide over the summer with the work. The good Lord put it into the hearts of all who read these lines to send us what they can at once. Send money to F. H. Briggs, Treasurer Baptist Female University, Raleigh, N. C., or to me.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Wake Forest College held at Wake Forest, N. C., on June 12th, 1895:

Since the last meeting of the Trustees, one of our number, the Rev. C. T. Bailey, D. D., has died, and it not only accords with propriety and our sense of duty, but it is our desire to give expression to our estimate of the value of his life and services, and our sad recognition of our loss by his death. Dr. Bailey was at the time of his death in the sixtieth year of his age. He came to us from the State of Virginia, and for the last twenty-five years has labored in North Carolina; and for the past twenty years he has been a leader in our denominational work. He was for a long while an active and useful member of the Board of Trustees of the College, and was for many years a member of the Executive Committee and the important committee on investment of the funds of the College. But the field of his greatest development and greatest prominence was as editor of the BIBLICAL RECORDER, which position he held for the last nineteen years of his life. He was of decided personality. His history as a member of this Board was marked by candor and frankness in his discussions and conduct, the standing by his own judgment and convictions. He was a brave, manly contender; he was of a genial nature, and the memory of some of his striking, sparkling witticisms will abide with us. He was a fine humorist, and with that he had good judicial power, which element, though rare in combination, yet when found, make a character of great force, especially in its relation to the movements of men. It is Resolved, first, That we are conscious of the great loss sustained by Wake Forest College in the death of Rev. C. T. Bailey, D. D., one of her Trustees, but the heritage of his faithful labor on her behalf still remains, for which we are grateful.

Second, That to the Trustees personally, between whom and Dr. Bailey there had been such long and pleasant association, his death is an occasion of profound sorrow.

Third, That the Secretary of this Board send a copy of these expressions to the widow of Dr. Bailey and to the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

Dr. Bailey as A Friend.

I feel deeply and sincerely grieved by the news of Dr. Bailey's death, which reached me through the last issue of the RECORDER. I feel that in his death I have lost a personal friend. My first acquaintance with him was by correspondence with reference to some of my first attempts at writing for the RECORDER. The correspondence was so genial and pleasant that I knew him before I had met him. I learned to love him even before "first sight." When I met him I found him indeed the genial and warm-hearted friend that his letters had indicated. By contact, or personal acquaintance, the love and friendship became intensified. I loved him because he was a warm-hearted and lovable friend. I don't think I ever passed through Raleigh in the day-time without calling at the RECORDER office to see Dr. Bailey, if for nothing else. However busy he might be, he would stop to give me a cordial greeting and welcome, and to say something pleasant and encouraging.

I never felt afraid to write to Dr. Bailey freely about any matter that pertained to the Master's cause, always expecting a prompt and frank reply. He never disappointed me. He was free from that extreme propriety and reticence which make one afraid to ask a question; neither was there in the reply, an intimation between the lines that one was impertinent.

In the social circle I have seen him pleasantly and instructively entertain a room full of delighted listeners for hours at a time. He was pure-minded, whole souled and deeply devout. His wit and humor were natural to him, and without them he would not have been Dr. Bailey, but Samson shorn of his locks; much of his strength would have been gone. He would not have been himself without being just what he was. He hated cant.

To attempt to imitate is to fail. Dr. Bailey was a magnificent success as a friend as well as editor. Wit and humor bestowed by Nature, wisely controlled and directed, are elements of strength and manly power and "important guides and aids which Nature has appointed of human conduct." "Though dead he yet speaketh" in the many hearts who loved him because of his kindly smile and loving heart.

In his life of cheerfulness he was a standing testimony to the fact that Christianity and a Christian life need never make a man melancholy, nor make him less lovable as a friend full of good cheer, nor less pleasant and approachable in business or the social circle; but that Christianity adorns and beautifies, the better fitting one for all the walks and relations of life, making friendship the warmer and intensifying love.

"Servant of God, well done,
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

M. J. WILLOUGHBY.

Notes from Greensboro.

For the past month the Greensboro pastor has been on the fly, just barely lighting on Sunday to do his pulpit work. He has attended five school closings and one Normal Institute in Sampson county, where he spoke to Prof Frank Howard's school. Prof. Howard is a Wake Forest man and is doing a fine work in his section. It was a pleasure to visit the old town of Fayetteville and preach for the people at the Baptist church. The opportunity at this point is very fine for work, and the brethren hope soon to have a leader on the field. The Baptists have a fine opportunity in that section, and ought to seize it at once.

Our people in and about Greensboro are sorrowing over the death of Dr. Bailey. Personally I am bereaved of one of my best friends. We shall all miss his presence and counsel, but his influence will abide to bless us.

The Greensboro church is moving ahead slowly. Our work is difficult and our people have very much felt the financial depression, yet we have kept our work up, and there are with us tokens of God's favor. Our congregations are large and the outlook is hopeful. We have begun to talk about the coming of the Convention, and at our next conference expect to lay some plans for it. Our church membership is small and the Convention is large, hence the importance of beginning to plan and work early. Our church people and our friends will entertain the delegates, and for the visitors we have plenty of hotel room. Our hotels are as good as any in the State, and they will provide, no doubt, for a large number of visitors. Bro. Van Deventer is already thinking about the young people's part, as instructed by the Charlotte Convention. He hopes to have a most helpful program. Our people are looking forward to the occasion with pleasure, and we hope that great good will be accomplished for our work.

Piedmont Association, the youngest child of the Convention, will gladly welcome its sturdy parent. We hope to fill every Baptist pulpit in the whole Association with a Baptist preacher, and so far as they are opened, every other pulpit.

We are looking forward to a great Convention, the greatest in the history of the denomination.

The fact that the local committee at Baltimore has to provide the very best board and lodging for 15,000 people from July 18th to 21st, it is necessary for all who intend going from North Carolina to send me their names so that I can secure board and lodging for each person for four days for five dollars.

The Baltimore Committee deals with the Transportation Leader of each State and not with individuals.

Condemned Out of His Own Mouth.

The classes of our society are even now snapping and snarling at each other. Poverty is the mother of all revolution and unrest, and the great masses are coming on and saying, "We want to run things," and yet ignorance cannot run anything. It cannot run itself.

The General Rule.

The Christian Inquirer had a subscription list of 7,000, and it was an able paper. Its failure goes to show that even in New York, where the facilities are exceptionally good, a first-class religious paper cannot be maintained at a subscription price of $1.50 a year. It is a principle with the Recorder never to make a cent out of our subscribers. We scrupulously spend on the paper every cent the subscribers pay. All the profit, if there be any profit, must come from the advertisers. The subscribers get back all they pay for.—Western Recorder.

A Question for the Pastors.

What can be done to get the people to read more? It is astonishing how little most people read, and how little they apply what they do read. I have tried my utmost to get those around me to read the RECORDER, but frequently have failed.

If you can just keep the RECORDER as good as it has been in the past, may you live long to hold close to the truth, and send it forth to those who will receive it.

State. Louis XIV. said of himself, "I am the State." It would have been better for his memory if he had said: I am the guardian of the State. We must not forget that each one of us has his household duties to perform from which he can never be excused. I quote to you this language of a recent text-writer: "The true conception of the State is that of an organism in which each part is at once a means and an end to every other part, whatever benefits one member benefits every other, and whatever injures one member injures every other. The State is the organic brotherhood of man."

We must think of the State also as our sovereign. We must remember that we owe to it not only every household duty, but all that we possess; life, liberty and property. We cannot separate ourselves from it or disown our allegiance. Our sovereign can restrain of us our liberty, and deprive us of our life and property. And yet our sovereign is but ourselves: our own creation. The band of Art shows us the composite picture in which one face bears the united features of each member of the household. And so in the countenance of the State—our sovereign—we see reflected, each one of us, our own likeness. How careful, then, ought we to be that no spot defiles her garments, that no line of sorrow is written across her brow, that no cowering glance or blush of shame is hers, when we stand in the presence of our venerated Mother and Sovereign. Let not folly nor vice bring upon her the curse that fell from the lips of the veiled prophet, Mokanna, upon his deluded worshippers, "Ye would be dupes and victims, and ye are."

What, then, shall we make of our household? Let us not make of it the home of the plutocrat and his hirelings. We have put away from us African slavery, at great cost of treasure and blood; let us not now bind our free links with fetters, though they be of gold. Let us not make of it the home of the sycophant, the flunkey, the parasite, the lick-spittle; let us put away from us all the vile brood who

"Crook the pregnant hinges of the knee

Let him find no place at our fireside who barters one jot or tittle of the duty he owes to the honor and good name of our household. Let there be no smell of treachery upon our garments. Let us beware of the turn-coat in our midst. He may be honest; his religious or political conscience may demand of him to reverse his garment; but let him submit his motives to rigid scrutiny. At best, he is a troublesome member of the household; and our safety requires that we assign him to no higher place of trust than that of "high private of the rear rank." Dalliance with our beliefs blunts our moral sense. Let us disown the time-server; the self-seeker; the place-hunter. Let us no longer commit our colors to him who uses his office not as a trust committed to him, but as his own private property, and who debauches the public conscience with the spoils of office that he may enlarge his estate by the purchase of political slaves. Let us shut our door in the face of all that is false and mean and selfish.

Pardon me for speaking thus seriously. We must be more that ever careful of our household. Our Republic is in danger—far more danger than when the Northern and Southern States fought each other to establish a Union founded upon their different constructions of the Constitution. Happily, the last guns of that conflict were spiked in the closing days of the month just past, at Chicago. Now men's heart's fail them not for the life of the Union, but for the life of the Republic. There is widespread distrust of the guardians of the State. It is taking hold of the very life of the people. Fearful portents appear above the horizon. We must do all we can, as a household, to save the life of our Republic. Let history write for us one more great chapter, if need be, that here in the purity of our hearthstone our Republic found its last place of refuge and rest.

First of all, then, let us make of our household the home of virtue; of true women and true men, who will never bow the knee to Baal, and whose aims are always their "country's, God's and truth's." How shall we reach this noble ideal? By cultivating our sense of duty. How shall we cultivate our sense duty? By enquiring whether each act which we are about to perform is intended for the good of our household; by putting away from us all selfish purpose; by cultivating our faith in God that our moral vision may be clear. These are simple rules of conduct, and yet they will suffice. If we observe them, we shall keep our house in order, and all things will be added to us of which we have need. How shall we enforce these rules of conduct? Let no one bear our commission in office who does not observe them; condemn every act that does not bear their impress. Shall we commit our guardianship to the incompetent, the selfish, the vicious, the weaklings of our household, that may bring shame and ruin to our hearthstone. Let us care for our weaker brother, but let us not, in the name of the State, constitute him our guardian. We shall not look below the surface of our history before we shall discover that those pages which we shall more and more wish to hide from us, as the years go by, were written when these rules of conduct were forgotten. We shall discover in the very faces of these acts, which we deplore, those marring lines which tell us that the actors, without sense of duty to God or man, were moved by evil intention, mean impulse, and selfish, ignoble purpose.

I ask your pardon for repeating that we must make no mistakes in our standards of merit. Let us institute no uncertain tests of public virtue, I pray you, in these closing years of the nineteenth century. Let us not teach ambitious youth that our test of merit is the quickness with which they attain to preferment by duplicity, treachery and meanness. Rather, let us raise our standards higher. Let us teach the young of our household that if they wish to win approval they must wear always upon the r breasts the white flower of duty and honor.

We shall have need to raise our standards higher. There is so much now to be done. The cares of the State will increase as the years go by. The education of the people will continue to be of larger concern; the supervision of those industries which the State has called into being for our welfare and happiness, brings added cares. More and more we shall appeal to our sovereign to settle our differences and tell us which is right and just. Our old civilization, with its individualism and simplicity, is passing away. When it has gone out with the century, those of us who once gathered flowers in its gardens of beauty may be pardoned for coming, in the dawn of another era, to its tomb, bringing our wreaths of grateful memories and repeating our tribute to the dead old year:

He was a friend to me."

Gentlemen, you will enter into the life of another century—into the larger life of the State. Your Alma Mater will clothe you for your household duties, and follow you with anxious, longing eyes. We have need of your young glorious manhood. In the name of the State, I welcome you. Be careful of your health, of your muscle and strength. But, more than all, be careful of your moral fibre. Train your sense of duty. Let no selfish, ignoble purpose mar the purity of your motives. Make our household stronger and happier by your presence. Cherish its honored name in your "heart of hearts." Make it the home of virtue, I pray you, and its colors will adorn you when you enter into the citizenship of the world.

A Well-Rounded Man.

Dear Recorder:—As I am under special promise to write for you occasionally, I have made up my mind to delay no longer.

One of the greatest difficulties which a newspaper man has to encounter is the selection of a subject. A wise man said hundreds of years ago that there was nothing new under the sun, and this truth is never so justly appreciated as when one takes up his pen to write an article for the newspaper. I did think at first of writing an article on the B. Y. P. U. A., but I have not a sufficient amount of grace to tackle this crase which is simultaneous with that of the free coinage of silver. I also thought of the N. E. S., but my ideas are not fully developed along that line, and therefore I refrain. I have concluded to write about a well rounded man. It may do some one good as it doth the upright in heart.

In the discussion of this subject, I wish it to be understood that I am not personal in this article—that is, I have not selected any that is alive at this moment as a model. I am just going to take up the well-rounded man as he mentally exists in all brains. He is everywhere recognized as a distinct species of the genus homo. If you hunt for him in the political world, you will find that he is an earnest advocate of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, when he is among a majority of those who have attended the financial lecturers of Prof. Knee Pants; on the other hand, if you find him among the advocates of "sound money," you will discover that he believes Mr. Coin to be the greatest fraud in the United States. If you find him among the gilt-edge people of the social circle, you will discover that he believes in blood—that there is apostolic succession or hereditary refinement which is handed down from generation to generation. If you find him among the bankers, merchants and great commercial men, you will hear him saying that money is power and it is bound to rule as long as the sun continues to shine. On the other hand, if you find him in the rural districts, you will hear a declaration of the fact that he believes in equal rights to all and special privileges to none. If you find him among the good temperance people and hear him talk about the evil of the saloon, you will come to the conclusion that Grover Cleveland is going to vacate the White House in favor of the prohibition candidate. But if you find him among those who believe in taking a little wine for their stomach's sake and often infirmities, and you will hear a logical, well-arranged sermon from that old supperannuated text, "Prohibition does not prohibit."

Sometimes the well-rounded brother gets among the preachers and their constituents. When he gets with a certain class, how he does make the fur fly when he gets after the city and town preachers with their white cravats and beaver hats and fat salaries! Then, again, when he gets with the big preachers, how he does laugh and criticise the bob-tails and backwoods exhorters who murder grammar and go back on the old blue-back speller.

I might go on ad infinitum to discuss the well rounded man, but suffice it to say that at will he can assume the exact proportions to correspond with the force of circumstances and illustrate obedience to the text, "Be all things to all men." In closing this article we confess that we are disturbed as to the future destiny of the well rounded man. Who is he and what is he any how? And where is he going when he comes to die? He certainly has not offended any of Adam's lost and ruined race. He was kind, friendly, loving and sympathetic with all. And if he did say some things hard to be explained to Christian ethics, it was all said behind the doors in the midst of friends—for the well-rounded man is with his friends all the time.

I have no apology to offer for this article: it may amuse you these hot days and help you to meditate and dream at night.

Woman's Missionary Department.

Corresponding Secretary of Central Committee, Mrs. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

SUBJECT FOR JUNE—ANCIENT AND MODERN MISSIONS IN CHINA.

CHINA.—"Behold * * these from the land of Sinim." Missionaries, 38; native assistants, 28; stations, 57; churches, 13; membership, 1,077; baptisms, 123; schools, 14; scholars, 335. Contributions, $1,580.52.

STUDY TOPICS.—The importance of China as a mission field. The work already done there. The Stations occupied by our Foreign Board. The necessity of enlargement in the work. The special value of woman's work in China. The duty of American Christians towards the Chinese in this country.

As Dr. Yates stood to Southern Baptists the pioneer and foremost leader of missions in China, so Dr. William Ashmore, in much the same relation, still stands to the Southern Baptist work in the same country.

Dr. Ashmore began mission work in Swatow, China, in 1859, and after more than forty years, sums up under the title of a "Curious Thing in China and Why," some very interesting facts and figures concerning the conversion of the aged in this mission field. He says: "Among the saved at home are but few old people.....It is not so out here. The old people may be old idolaters, but they are not case-hardened by having resisted the gospel hundreds and thousands of times in early years, until at length, and when they get up to about fifty years of age, it falls upon them with no more force than a handful of peas has when thrown against a granite rock.

"Since our Baptist mission was started at Swatow, there have been baptized into its membership 1,670 persons. Out of these nearly half were baptized after they were fifty and no less than 361 after they were sixty years old!"

Then follows a table of the individual ages of those over sixty.

"Can anything be more impressive?" he exclaims. "Look at the seventies among them—ninety-eight baptized after they were seventy. And the eighties, too—82, 84, 81, 88, 87. There would be more of the latter if they could get away from their villages to reach some place to be baptized, but they cannot. We take the gospel to them, in their streets; they stand in their own doorways, and hear, and believe, some of them, as we are fully persuaded; but they are too feeble and decrepit to venture away from home. We have heard of them afterwards, and how they turned from idols from that single hearing, and began to pray to the living God.

"People are familiar with the sentiment that 'the old heathen are too far gone and cannot be reached, and therefore we must let them go and begin with the young.' It is all right to take hold of the young, but we are not to let go of the old folks in order to do it. We have two hands; and the gospel is not for young people only, but for old people as well. It is cruel to give them the go-by. In the opinion of all of us here, they are a most hopeful class. They appeal to us piteously—not in so many words, indeed, but in the dimness of their vision, the feebleness of their step, and the very desolateness of their darkened old age. With them it is now or never; with us it ought to be now, now, now, and ever."

***

In writing recently to a friend, Dr. Yates' daughter says, referring to an aged and very deaf woman to whom Mrs. Yates had ministered, "This is the same old woman on whom father wore out his voice, I am sure. She could not hear any one preach but him. She would sit through the services, evidently not hearing a word, but when father preached she would nod approval when anything struck her; sometimes saying out loud, 'That's true,' or 'just so,' or something of that kind. Finding that she could hear him, I think father watched her face and pitched his voice accordingly, and so gradually strained it."

***

Those who were at the meeting of the Union in Washington, or read the account given of that meeting several weeks ago, will recall Mrs. Graves' description of what she called her "infant class" in one of the Sunday-schools in Canton. These "infants" in knowledge were aged women from eighty to one hundred years old, lame, blind, deaf. They were all ignorant and poor, yet eager to hear the glad tidings, in the short moment before it should be eternally too late.

Eliza Benson's Self-Denial.

"Good mornin', Miss Benson. It's dretful hot, ain't it? No, I can't stay but a minit." Yet, as Mrs. Benson hospitably pushed towards her visitor a rocking-chair, she was persuaded to sit down by the door and rest a little before going out into the sun again. "I don't want to hender you this mornin'," she said. "I see you're preservin' plums, an' that's always a sight of work; mine ain't quite ripe enough yet. I s'pose you'll be busy pretty soon now, gettin' ready to go down east to see your folks, won't you?"

"I don't know, I haven't decided yet," Mrs. Benson answered, going hastily over to the screen door to brush out an intruding fly. Something in her troubled manner warned the inquisitive visitor not to make any comments on this answer, so a little embarrassed silence fell upon them.

Presently Mrs. Peters slowly arose and tied on her faded sun-bonnet, "Well, I must be gettin' along, or my daughter 'll wonder where I be.

Late that afternoon, when the long row of preserve jars had been wiped off and set away to cool, and the big kitchen had been restored to its wonted neatness and order, Eliza Benson went out into the vine-covered side porch for a little rest and quiet. She leaned back in the comfortable rocker with an exclamation of relief, her eyes drinking in the pleasant homely picture spread out before her.

The tall grass in the door yard which the late rains had freshened was waving in vivid greenness again, gay rows of late poppies bordering it at the walk. Down by the fence, the long line of bee-hives was alive with the humming colony of honey gatherers. Beyond stretched the orchard, the trees laden with the promise of an abundant harvest, the delicious fragrance of the early apples even then floating towards her.

Her thoughts went back to the last missionary meeting held in the neighboring city church which she attended. She heard again the eloquent appeal for help—help to carry on the work which, lacking means, must soon be given up. Then mention was made of two young women who had offered themselves for the foreign field, but who could not be sent as the treasury was empty.

In closing her appeal, the secretary had said, "We have always given generously, my sisters, but have we ever given until we have felt it? Let us come up to our next meeting with an offering for the Lord's work which shall tell of something sacrificed, of something given up for the Master's sake."

Driving old Billy home from the meeting, Mrs. Benson had wondered what more she could give up. For years she had laid aside for the Lord a tenth of her little income, and had found that the rest hardly sufficed for her needs. She could think of no way to increase her store, and her gentle soul was troubled, for the cause of missions was very dear to her. Must the Lord's work suffer for lack of means? Suddenly the remembrance of her one indulgence, if it could be so called, came to her mind. Forty years before, Eliza Benson had come a bride with her ambitious young husband to make a home in the then far West. All her small hoard, earned in district school teaching, had been put with his to purchase the small farm. Early and late they had toiled; now success had come to them, so that their farm, just on the outskirts of a growing, bustling city, stretched out in broad and fertile acres, and Rufus Benson was a rich man. But the struggle had dwarfed his whole nature.

He kept a watchful eye on all the household expenses, and Eliza was only allowed the money from the dairy products for her personal use. By the strictest economy, she had each year saved enough from this sum to take her back to the old homestead, where the aged mother and younger sister still lived. She had felt as if she could not endure her hard, narrow life without this yearly change, and the loving sympathy so freely given by the dear ones at home. She had just been able to lay aside the money for her journey and it was the sudden recollection of this which had startled her.

Could it be possible that the Lord asked her for this money? Oh, no! she could not give up this pleasure, the only one of her starved life; some other way must be thought of.

So she had considered the matter settled, until Mrs. Peter's question that morning had revealed to her that she was still in doubt. Would it be right for her to spend this money for her own pleasure, while souls were perishing in heathen darkness? On the other hand, did she not owe some duty to her aged mother, whose failing health warned her that this visit might be the last enjoyed with her, and who was looking forward with such eagerness to her coming?

Instantly she seemed to be answered: "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me."

In that moment was revealed to her as never before the bitter anguish with which her missionary sisters parted from their loved ones, while to her also in her hour of trial and indecision was given grace to endure, even a joyful willingness. She could trust the Lord with her dear ones, and leave him to satisfy all her heart hungerings.

At the next gathering of the missionary circle, the collection basket was filled to the brim with the envelopes containing the self-denial gifts.

The leader at the close announced the large offering, adding that she was deeply thankful that so large a number had tested the blessedness of self-denial for the Lord, speaking especially of the generous gift of twenty-five dollars which some sister had been abled to contribute.

But no one ever knew, except the Lord and the little woman over by the door, how much of Eliza Benson's self-denial cost her, nor of the compensation that had come in the assurance of the Lord's acceptance of her gift.—L. B. H., in Helping Hand.

Closing Exercises of Roanoke Female College.

The thirty-fifth annual session of this honored institution, which closed on the 4th inst., was one of the most successful and encouraging which the College has enjoyed in years. The new teachers from North Carolina, Misses Lounder and Rountree, made a fine impression on the people of Danville generally, as well as on the patrons and friends of the school. A fine spirit pervaded the entire school, and the order and health were unsurpassed.

The closing exercises were of a high order, Dr. Thames preaching the sermon before the Girls' Missionary Society, and Rev. Hugh Smith of Martinsville the commencement sermon. Dr. A. B. Dunnaway, Churchland, Va., was booked for the baccalaureate address, but a delayed train caused a break in the connections, and he could not reach Danville in time. His address will keep, and be all right for another occasion.

There were four full graduates, viz., Miss Annette Fuller of Martinsville, Va., Miss Pauline Iden of Manassas, Miss Manie Martin of Henry county, and Miss Mary Sue Taylor of Pittsylvania.

There were also four English graduates, viz., Miss Alma Bouldin and Emma Jones of Danville, and Misses Nannie Comer and Kate Reynolds of Pittsylvania.

Several medals were awarded,—the President's medal to Miss Mary Martin, the Weller Scholarship medal to Miss Nannie Comer, the Averett Mathematics medal to Miss L'zzie Gregory, the Composition medal to Miss Frances Marlow, the Music medal to Miss Empsie Lipscomb, the Vocal Music medal to Miss Mary Sue Taylor, and the medal for improvement in instrumental music to Miss Lizzie Haley. Miss Janie Shepward received the medal for excellence in Penmanship, and Miss Beulah Lee the medal for improvement in penmanship.

The graduates were addressed briefly by Dr. Thames in his inimitable style. Teachers and pupils went home in fine spirits and with bright hopes as to the future of the College, once presided over by such men as Hume, and Lake, and the Averetts. J.

Adoniram Judson. A Biography, by his son, Edward Judson, D. D. 12mo, 190 pp. Price, 90 cents. Philadelphia: American Baptist Publication Society, 1420 Chestnut Street.

Carlyle has said that the history of the world is the history of its great men. This is not wholly true for it demands many other elements than its great men to give an accurate history of a period. This is conspicuously true of Adoniram Judson in connection with the origin of the foreign missionary movement in our country. We have in relation to him the arousing of attention to the regnancy of the Great Commission, the darkness of heathen lands, the consecration of young manhood and womanhood to the foreign field, the organization of societies, and the beginning of the work of bringing the "ends of the earth" to the Christ. All this Dr. Judson tell us of, so far as his limits permit, in this memoir. In the procuring of material Dr. Judson has made use of his former book, but the story has been entirely rewritten. It can never be an old one, any more than can the Acts of the Apostles. This memoir of Dr. Judson is the first of the series on "Notable Baptists." Other volumes will follow from time to time on "Andrew Fuller," "James Manning," "Francis Wayland," etc. The publishers have given the book an attractive and distinctive dress, which will be characteristic of the series. Biography ought to have a larger place in the reading of thoughtful people than it has, and this effort of the publishers to popularize the lives of some of our own distinguished men should receive substantial encouragement.

Maxims of Life.

Keep good company or none.
Never be idle.
Cultivate your mind.
Make few promises.
Live up to your engagements.
Keep your own secrets.
Live within your income.

Four things a man must learn to do,
If he would make his record true:
To think without confusion clearly,
To love his fellow men sincerely;
To act from honest motives purely;
To trust in God and heaven securely.
—Henry Van Dyke.

This is a question so often asked. When we remember the long reign of terror in which it has swayed its fearful sceptre; when we reflect that no clime, no age, no sex or condition of life can exempt, or even give us partial security against its fearful ravages; when we remember that the young and the old, the good and the vicious, the peasant in his humble hut, and the autocrat upon his gilded throne, are equally exposed and equally susceptible to its unyielding fetters; and when we look abroad and trace its destruction back as it has swept over the broad face of the earth, and like a monster of Death has borne to the tomb thousands and tens of thousands of the fairest and brightest of the human family; when we figure up the long catalogue of victims who have been swept away by its resistless powers, we do not wonder that the question has been so often asked with deep solicitude, "Is Dropsy a curable disease?"

A valuable discovery, outside any medical book, or published opinion—a vegetable preparation, entirely harmless—removes all symptoms of dropsy in eight to twenty days; cures cases pronounced hopeless by the best of physicians. From the first dose the symptoms rapidly disappear, and inside of ten days at least two thirds of all the symptoms are removed; thirty to sixty days effect a permanent cure.

It cures dropsy in its various forms—dropsy of the chest (hyprothorax), generally called heart dropsy; of the abdomen (acites); cellular dropsy; (anasarca), known as general dropsy, and other forms of dropsy yield readily to this remedy.

It is well known that many persons have been humbugged, deceived and disappointed: for this reason the proprietors send ten-day treatment FREE, thus enabling the patients to test this great remedy and know that it does all it claims to do.

Some may say that your case is complicated and Green & Sons cannot cure you; be not discouraged. All cases of dropsy are complicated, more or less. Drs. Green & Sons are constantly curing persons of dropsy—cases of long standing, complicated cases, cases that have been tapped a number of times, cases that have been worn out and pronounced hopeless by the best of physicians.

Under this proposition, can any person be wicked enough to cry humbug?

DROPSY TREATED FREE Positively CURED with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases called hopeless. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. BOOK of testimonials of miraculous cures sent FREE. 10 DAYS TREATMENT FREE by mail. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Specialists, ATLANTA, GA.

Woodlake, Neb., September 20, 1892.

Drs. H. H. Green & sons:—Allow us to say that through your wonderful treatment you have wrought a miracle. Our daughter, Ida J. Leach, after she was given up by all our best physicians as hopeless with dropsy, and we had despaired of her life, and selected her resting place, through your wonderful medicine and advice, is to-day a living monument of health, to the surprise of all who know her. We hope that your wonderful discovery may be perpetuated by your successors for the benefit of this generation. Sincerely yours,

DAVID LEACH, P. M. (the father.)
JANE E. LEACH, (the mother.)

We certify the foregoing to be correct.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The corner-stone of a new Methodist church at Elkin was laid June 21st.——The Glen Rock Mining Company of Salisbury, proposes to set to work with a plant that will handle 1,000 tons of ore a day in a Montgomery county mine. The Russell Gold Mine, Montgomery county, has been bought by Northerners and will be worked.——The Knights Templar of Wilmington are looking forward to the erection of a $40,000 Odd Fellows' building in that city.——A $100,000 cotton mill will be built at Yadkin Falls.——The Irish potato crop in our eastern counties is not a good one this year. The berry crop all over the State is said to be good and the prospects for grapes is fine.——Col. Richard Dodge, a native of Reidsville, died in New York last week, aged 69.——The crop report for June, made up from returns of over 1,000 correspondents, has been summarized by the Department of Agriculture to-day. Wheat 88 per cent. of condition in average crop year, oats 84, rye 87, rice 83, cotton 69, corn 84, peanuts 84, tobacco 83, clover and meadows 93. The low figure of condition of cotton will naturally attract attention. The condition of horses is reported as 92, cattle 93, sheep 91, hogs 92. As to fruit, etc., apples are 65, peaches 71, pears 66, plums 80, blackberries 91, cherries 67, raspberries 88.——An effort is being made to collect the license tax on piano and organ sellers, but it is feared that the law is unconstitutional. Doctors, Lawyers and Dentists are paying their tax.——A telephone system is being put in at Statesville.——The Goldsboro Headlight says that incendiaries destroyed two churches—one a Methodist, the other a Free Will Baptist—in one township in Wayne county last week.——The Salisbury Watchman has been revived as a Populist paper and made its appearance this week. Mr. J. Z Green is the editor.——Iredell county proposes to build a monument to her Confederate dead and is trying to raise the funds.——The State W. C. T. U. met in Charlotte last week. Mrs. M. B Cartland of Concord was re-elected President, Mrs C. E. Craven, Concord, Cor. Secretary. The membership is said to have increased by 300 last year.——The Friends have an Orphanage at Archdale, at which three Baptists and three Episcopalians were recently accepted.——Four boys were run over and two seriously injured by a hose wagon going to a fire in Wilmington the 19th. The fire was at Fore & Foster's factory and did damage to the extent of $1,200. It was of incendiary origin, as was another fire in Wilmington recently.——Mr. R. S. Pullen died at Raleigh Sunday, in his seventy-third year. He had done more for the upbuilding of Raleigh than any other one man. Pullen Park was given by him to the city. His death is a public loss.——The N. C. Teachers' Assembly is in session at Morehead. The colored teachers met at Raleigh last week.——The Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias met at Mt. Airy last week. C. H. Webb of Asheville was elected Grand Chancellor. The next meeting will be at Fayetteville.——The faculty of Elon College are said to purpose making a vigorous canvass for students this summer.——Mr. W. H. Kerr, formerly of this State, was drowned in Chesapeake Bay recently in an effort to save his son, in which he succeeded at the cost of his own life. He had become well known as an inventor and manufacturer.——It is stated that all the cotton factories at Durham will be enlarged and improved.——The Durham Recorder has been sold by Editor Heckney to the Fair brothers, who will run it.——Prof. J. I. Foust has been chosen superintendent of city schools at Goldsboro. He is a graduate of the University, and has been superintendent of the Wilson schools.——Representative Campbell of Cherokee, chairman of the committee consisting of himself, Phillips of Pitt and Bryan of Chatham, appointed by the late Legislature to investigate the alleged wrongs of Mrs. P. D. B. Arrington, was in Raleigh last week; had several witnesses summoned; but the other members did not come, and the effort failed.——The undertakers met in annual session at Morehead last week. Old officers re-elected.——The State University Summer School of Law will open July 1st, conducted by Ex-Chief Justice Shepherd and the venerable Dr. Manning who has sent out so many successful lawyers.——Several persons have been arrested under suspicion of complicity in the long series of incendiary fires at Kinston. We hope the guilty ones will all be found out and given the full limit of the law. It is seldom that a town is so terrorized as Kinston has been.——The Fayetteville Military School will be removed to Wilson.——The keeper of the Phoenix hotel at Winston has been compelled to give up his place because it was told that he was using for the usual purposes some ice that had been partially used in preserving a corpse.——It is almost certain that the Southern Railway will have the Albemarle & Raleigh Railway finished, which will give them the shortest route from Raleigh to Norfolk. This will be helpful to Raleigh and to the country through which the road will run.

In General.

A Democratic Convention in Kentucky seemed to be anti-free-silver; the Republican League in session at Cleveland, Ohio, decided to postpone definite action. Contention in regard to coinage is still wide spread and on a high key.——The report of liquor commissioner Mixon of South Carolina says the Dispensary system lacks $19,000 of paying out clear of debt. It borrowed $50,000 from the State to begin business with and still owes $31,000 of this; at present it is legitimate for liquor to be shipped into the State for private purposes.——The public affairs of New York City will undergo another examination after July 1st.——Horseless carriages (propelled by power produced by petroleum gas) are being tried in New York and Paris with promising success.——The Rosebery administration in England proposed to erect a statue to Oliver Cromwell, but the effort was defeated. The administration is so weak politically that it may resign at any time.——The great canal connecting the Baltic and North seas was opened last week with unusual display and ceremony. The Emperor of Germany and other royal heads took part. The navies of the principal nations of the world were represented.——It is now confidently asserted that Russia and France have formed an alliance.——Gov. Atkinson of Georgia was extremely ill all last week with appendicitis. He is improving.——The Scotch-Irish of America had their annual congress at Lexington, Va., last week.——The English House of Commons in the course of the debate on the Welsh church disestablishment bill June 19, accepted the amendments offered by the opposition placing the church, schools and public chapels under a representative body instead of disendowing them as the bill originally proposed. This is a compromise, but still a step toward disestablishment.——The Southern Railway and Steamship Association, an organization after the manner of trusts and combines, is making efforts to get the Seaboard Air Line to sign an agreement with it, which will give the organization a monopoly of transportation in our section of the country.——Wages of 6,000 employees of a Pennsylvania steel company were raised ten per cent. last week.——Corn is quoted on the market at 52 cents, cotton between 6½ and 7¼ cents, wheat 75 cents, oats 30 cents.——To show that money is becoming easier, it is stated in the daily papers that loans to the people from the banks have increased $10,000,000 a month for the last three months.

It was publicly talked all over Clare County, Mich., for some time before the Courier-Herald sent a reporter to Dover to fully investigate the Coulter matter. He finally went, and we publish to-day his full report. The Coulters are prominent people, though Mrs. C. in response to the question whether she objected to being interviewed, said, "Certainly not." Her story follows:

About 14 years ago we decided to take up our abode in Dover and everything went along smoothly for several years, business progressed and being of a saving temperament we accumulated quite an amount. Our family increased as the years rolled by and we now have 5 children living, the oldest 15, youngest 3, but sickness made its way into our household, and doctors' bills flooded upon us, until we have nothing left but our home, and these sweet children. Everything went to satisfy the claims of physicians.

"About 3 years ago I had a miserable feeling at the back of my ears, my right hand became paralyzed and the paralysis extended to my arm and throat, and would affect my head and eyes, sometimes for days I would lose my sight, my face was deformed, lifeless as it were, my nose was drawn to one side and I presented a pitiable appearance and never expecting to regain my natural facial expressions. I employed the best physicians that could be procured expending thousands of dollars for their services but could not obtain relief. At last, they stated my case was beyond the reach of medical skill, and it would be but a short time until the end would come. This certainly was not very encouraging to me, but I never gave up hope. In connection with the receiving the attendance of physicians I have tried every medicine known to the apothecary but never received any relief until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People came to my assistance. Before I had taken half of the first box the deformity in my face had left me, and before four boxes consumed the paralysis had disappeared entirely and much to my surprise I felt like a new woman. I have not taken any medicine since last spring, just about a year ago and my trouble has not appeared since. I owe my health, my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"A short time since my little boy John was afflicted with St. Vitus' dance. He could not walk across the room without assistance, in fact he would fall all over himself, but after taking a few boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills St. Vitus' dance entirely left him, and no trace of the affliction is left. These Pills are worth their weight in gold. You may say in this connection that I am willing at any time to make affidavit to these statements, and furthermore I will answer any communication concerning my case, as I consider it nothing more than right and just that I should assist suffering humanity."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Scotland Neck School Closing.

The exercises of the male school were held Thursday and Friday nights of last week. The principals, Messrs. Prince and Wilson, had made admirable arrangements for the occasion, and at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night the audience room was filled with patrons and friends.

Miss Delia Skittlethorpe, of Plymouth, rendered an instrumental solo, and E. E. Hilliard then introduced Rev. J. S. Dill, of Richmond, who delivered the literary address, taking for his subject, "the young man and his vocation."

The speaker distinguished between "vocation" and "avocation," illustrating the distinction by saying that his "vocation" is preaching the gospel, but his "avocation is occasionally to deliver orations.

Three things were considered in the young man's vocation:

(1) Choosing the vocation. (2) Preparing for it. (3) Faithfulness to its claims.

Dr. Dill spoke nearly an hour, and his oration was masterly. Apt illustrations and anecdotes were wisely employed to give emphasis to the truths presented. All pronounced it a great oration.

THE DEBATE.

Soon after the school was opened the first of last September the students organized the Alamedan and Calomathean literary societies.

The question discussed was, "Resolved, That more honor is due to the man of letters than the statesman."

The speakers on the affirmative D. Stern and J. E. Webb; on the negative, S. Stern and J. S. Brinkley. The speeches were very fine for boys of their age and observation; indeed some said they had not heard better college debates.

At the conclusion of the debate the vote was left to the audience, but Mr. W. A. Dunn stepped upon the platform and said that so equal had been the discussion many were unable to decide how to vote. He moved that it be left as a draw. The motion was carried, and then the vote was passed over. President Savage then introduced J. A. Bowling, representative of the Alamedan society, who delivered an oration on "North Carolina's War Governor." Then S. A. Capps was introduced as representative of the Calomathean society, who delivered an oration on "The Southern Christian."

The speeches were very fine and the audience gave hearty approval, both of the debate and the orations, by frequent and long applause.

Mr. W. A. Dunn, one of the principal patrons of the school, in behalf of the principals, Messrs. D. M. Prince and C. W. Wilson, thanked the audience for their good attention, and spoke in high terms of the school and its faithful principals. He urged the people of the community to see to it that our schools, male and female, be heartily and liberally supported, for they deserve it.

Messrs. Prince and Wilson came to Scotland Neck last summer entire strangers to the community, but they have succeeded in making a first class school, and have made a most favorable impression upon the community. They are fine and faithful workers, scholarly and accomplished, and Scotland Neck, with Eastern Carolina generally, is to be congratulated upon the good work they are doing for the education of boys and young men. They have had a most successful year and will open their next session 26th of August with very flattering prospects.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

Wake county has issued $6,000 worth of bonds to build bridges.

MARRIED.

LYON—NICHOLS—On June 12th, 1895, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. D. B. Nichols, in Wake county, N. C., by Rev. Jno. C. Hocutt, Mr. Willie R. Lyon and Miss Lura Nichols.

DIED.

ATKINSON—Sister Katie Atkinson, wife of H. C Atkinson, departed this life June 4th, 1895. She leaves a husband and five children and near relatives to mourn their loss, but their loss is her gain. We believe she is at rest. She professed faith in Christ about eight years ago and joined the church at Enfield, and remained a member until her death. Sis. Atkinson died at the age of thirty-three years and three days. She was born in Duplin county, N. C.

HENRY—Bro. John H. Henry died at his home in Person county, N. C., May 30th, 1895, at the age of seventy-two years and five months. He was a member of Clement church, and lived a consistent life. He was a worthy, successful citizen, and had the respect and esteem of the community. In his last illness he regretted not having done more for his Master, but had a strong, abiding faith in him. He leaves a devoted Christian wife who has the prayers of many friends.

H. T. W.

CORDELL—BOWLIN—"In their lives they were lovely and pleasant, and in their death they were not divided."

Sister Emma G. Cordell died in Vance county, N. C., June 9th, 1895, in the thirty-fourth year of her age. She died in twenty minutes after it was known she was seriously sick. Rarely ever has Christianity developed a more beautiful and lovely life than was hers. She leaves a devoted husband and loving children crushed by this sudden bereavement.

Sister Etta Bowlin was a married daughter of Sister Cordell. She died on the same day, and in the same home, in the eighteenth year of her age. Being in delicate health, the shock caused by the sudden death of her mother was more than she could bear. She was a lovely young Christian woman. Ah, how soon did death sever the fond ties that bound her to her loving husband. Her two infant children are too young to know their loss.

Rock Spring Baptist church is sorely bereaved in the loss of these two dear sisters.

They lived in daily loving intercourse; they loved the same Saviour; they belonged to the same church; they died the same day; they had one and the same funeral service; they lie in the same cemetery; in the resurrection they will be raised at the same time; in heaven they will dwell forever together.

PASTOR.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst, on April 24th, 1895, sister Lillah Davis, the beloved wife of Samuel A. Davis, and a member of Centerville Baptist church; and while we feel that earth is poorer, heaven is richer for her presence; therefore, be it Resolved 1. That by her death we have lost a most valuable, earnest and much-beloved member, who by her modest manner and Christian graces has endeared herself to and won the esteem and admiration of all with whom she was associated.

2. That the warm sympathy of this church be sent the heart-broken husband and family of our deceased sister, prayerfully committing them in this hour of their sorrow and bereavement for consolation to the care of him who doeth all things well and who alone can soothe their wounded heart.

3. That also as members of the Ladies' Aid Society of this church we tender to the bereaved ones of our departed sister our loving sympathy, trusting that the example of devotion to God left by her may be a stimulus to them and us to press forward to truth and right.

4. That these resolutions be spread upon the church books, and a copy sent to the Atlantic Baptist and BIBLICAL RECORDER with the request to publish them; also a copy be transmitted to the husband and family.

MRS. EMMA BEDGOOD,
MRS. MARY JENNINGS,
MISS CATHARINE WILLIAMS,
Committee.

Fentress, Norfolk county, Va.

WHEREAS, Our Woman's Missionary Society of Warwick Baptist church has been painfully afflicted by the death of our beloved sister, Harriet L. Perry, who died Feb. 8th, 1895, a faithful and useful member, and in the church a Christian laborer; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That by her death the Society of this church have a cause to deplore the loss of one who, during her membership, won the confidence and esteem of all with whom she was associated, and by her sincerity of purpose, loyalty to duty, gave promise of usefulness in the cause of Christ.

2. That in our sorrow we desire to bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, trusting, when we cannot understand, and recognizing his perfect wisdom and love alike, in the life and death of his children.

3. That we offer our deepest sympathy to her much-loved and aged husband and two sweet little girls and friends and commend them to God, who is ever ready to help those that love him in time of deepest affliction.

4. That in our bereavement we can but count our loss as her great gain. To live in the world is a great privilege, but to depart and be with Christ is far better.

5. That the foregoing resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Society, and a copy be sent to her bereaved husband and children, and one to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

Appeal.

The childish voice rose to my ear,
Sweet-toned and eager, praying me,
"I am so little, Granma dear,
Please lift me up, so I can see!"

I looked down at the pleading face,
Felt the small hands' entreating touch,
And stooping, caught in swift embrace
The baby boy I loved so much.

And held him up that he might gaze
At the great pageant of the sky,
The glory of the sunset's blaze,
The glittering moon that curved on high.

With speechless love I clasped him close,
And read their beauty in his eyes,
Sweeter than blooms of Paradise.

And in my heart his eager prayer
Found echo, and the self-same cry
Rose from its depths through heaven's air,
"Oh gracious Father, lift me high!

"So little, and so low am I,
Among earth's mists I call to Thee,
Show me the splendors of Thy sky!
O lift me up, that I may see!"

—Youth's Companion.

Small Sins.

There is a Scripture text about little foxes that destroy the vines. Everything of this sort in Holy Writ is to an extent allegorical, and we might, with great benefit to ourselves, see if we cannot study out some every-day application for all of these gems of thought.

The daily life of almost every household is made full of irritation by the little foxes of disagreeable habits, petulance, fault-finding and carelessness. One of the most philosophical of men used to say that he could better tolerate a person with one large bad habit than one who had a multiplicity of little weaknesses and follies. There is very much in this for serious thought. Because we refrain from great sins we seem to take it for granted that we can indulge in a great many little ones and console ourselves with the reflection that we are quite as good as other people. This is a poor sort of philosophy, and one that is bound to lead us very sadly astray. Who doesn't know the man, woman or child who gets up in the morning, as the rest of the family are wont to express it, "wrong end to!"

Perhaps there is a little irritation at the outset, caused by the impossibility of finding some articles of dress; then the shoe buttons come off, the comb breaks, the pitcher of water is upset—any one or all of these may occur; and by the time the unfortunate is ready for breakfast, the whole troop of little evils are in full play. Any levity about the "wrong end up" fashion of getting up is met with an outburst of temper; the breakfast does not suit, everything goes wrong, until the meal is over. Fortunate it is if the malcontent is of the male persuasion and must leave the house and go to business or to work. Then there may be quiet in the family. But if it is mother or daughter or some one who must be tolerated as belonging to the household for the rest of the morning, all of the munitions of war at hand, and a full fledged domestic infelicity is quite likely to be the next thing in order. As a matter of fact, tempers and little irritabilities are the most absolute waste of mental, moral and physical force. They do no good whatever, and only make those who indulge in them exceedingly disagreeable. There is some comfort in the idea that the clouds will blow away after a while, for these petulant, peppery, hot-tempered persons generally get over their bad spells in short order. This is one of the worst sort of foxes that invade the domestic paradise. A more disagreeable kind are those that turn to sulkiness and sullenness, and are snarly like a cross dog. These persons often pride themselves on their capability of keeping silence. They say in self-defense that they have said nothing, forgetting that the atmosphere that they carry with them is sometimes a thousand-fold more trying and irritating than the most violent outbursts. It takes these people a long time to get over their ill-temper spells. Meanwhile, if others of the family are inclined to the same indulgence, the condition of that establishment is anything but delightful.

The world is full of men, and women too, who give way to ill-bred and ill-natured habits; little ones, to be sure, but none the less trying. Because one is innocent of great offenses furnishes no sort of excuse for an habitual indulgence in little ones. Happy are they who have such control of tongue and temper that they do not allow themselves to say or to do things for which they cannot fail to be sorry and ashamed soon after. Humble-pie and repentence are bitter doses, and when one feels it necessary to apologize or explain, the punishment is greater still. It is well to train children to steadiness and evenness of temper, so that in after years they may not open the doors of their hearts to the multitude of petty vices that are only too enter in and abide there.—New York Ledger.

Girls On The Farm.

A few years ago the newspapers published an account of two girls who ran away from their homes on a farm because they were tired of its monotonous life and wished to see something of the world. Undoubtedly this is a sample of many similar cases. The lives of women on a farm are often subject to an even greater monotony than those of men. The farmer's sons are out in the field or off on business to a neighboring village. Occasionally they visit the city. In many families only the oldest son remains to take care of the farm. His brothers learn it as soon as they have grown beyond the district school age and go out into the world to seek their fortune. The girls are not similarly favored. In most cases they must center all their interest in their home life. Since that is true, that home life should be made attractive. In this the most remote household among the hills can keep in touch with the great outlying world by means of newspapers, magazines, and books. The imagination of young women is active and must be fed. Good books will supply this need.

Books alone are not enough, however, to fill the lives of girls on the farm with interest and pleasure. They should have a variety of simple amusements, chief of which should be their association with those of their own and of the opposite sex. The girls ought to have evenings when they can entertain their friends with games, with pleasant conversation, and a little feast of fruit or nuts and home-made candy. Young people need young society. Young girls are all the brighter and better for sensible friendships with young men. The summer should bring the farmer's daughter a multitude of out of door amusements. A part of the houseyard she should have for her flower garden, another for her tennis or croquet ground. These and other simple pleasures would make her life much nearer an ideal one.

An occasional trip to the nearest town or city would be an important element in her education. Great temptations often arise from a false conception of the outside world. Simplicity and ignorance imagine it to be an enchanted place where dull care is forever banished. Let the daughter on the farm have a chance to see both the light and dark sides of the outer world. If her life is made what it should be she will come back from the crowded streets to the peace and beauty of the country as to her heart's own home.—New York Press.

Thoughtless Conversation.

"Our busy tongues from evil stay." Is there anything more disagreeable than a babbling, thoughtless talking person, always annoying, but not always harmless?

"In fact, there is nothing makes me so much grieve
As that abominable tittle, tattle

Thoughtless speech, especially in small communities, is doing much to injure people, and places them in false positions. How unmercifully women are slaughtered by the cruel criticism as often unfounded as it is cruel! and the one injured is powerless to help herself, and must bear her wrongs in silence, even though that silence condemns her. We have many people who will hear a remark and only know too well that it is innocent, yet they will retail it in a manner that will cause hard feelings, and inflict injuries that will last a life-time. One is often amazed at the conversation of well-informed and refined people who would revolt at the idea of being called a gossiper. If a woman dresses plain and does her own work, "she is a mean, stingy thing." If she reforms, hires a girl and gives more attention to her dress, "she is an extravagant, vain being, who will soon bring her husband to ruin." When death and sorrow comes, if a woman is bowed down with her grief and remains at home, we will hear the remarks, "that is all put on," "she is not sincere," and "there is no use of her doing so." But if she should make her appearance in society sooner than they expected, poor woman, she is then considered "heartless," and every action is watched and criticised. As a rule, women are kind-hearted, and when the test comes they will undergo any self-sacrifice to be of service to another, and it is a wonder why they do not rise superior to thoughtless, cruel conversation. Would they only remember that their own faults are standing out in "bold relief," this would render criticism of others ridiculous. When we so dislike to be the subject of ill natured remarks, why are we always so willing to fly at others? We hurt them just as they would hurt us; and once more we find a place to apply the Golden Rule. Our conversation may not be lofty or eloquent, but it can be gentle and charitable without malice, scandal or thoughtless speaking, always considerate for the feelings of others, and making no sweeping assertions that will injure our neighbors. A good cure for gossip is culture.—Christian Neighbor.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA SOLD ALL AROUND THE WORLD
"A year ago, my partner died, and the whole burden and responsibility of a large grocery business fell upon me. The increased care and hard work so taxed my strength that I became all run down, had no appetite, was weak, nervous, and endured all the torments which headache, indigestion, and total loss of energy could inflict. The medicine recommended me did no more good than so much water. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being favorably brought to my attention, I tried it, and, in a short time, began to feel better. I continued to take this medicine for two months, at the end of which time I felt like a new man. My appetite, energy, and strength returned, and all traces of headache and nervousness disappeared. I am convinced that if I had not taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I should be totally unable to attend to business."—Wm. H. Brown, 33 Gorham St., Lowell, Mass.

Anonymous communications will always find their way to the waste basket.

In sending letters of business, it is absolutely necessary that you give your postoffice address in full.

The date on the label of your paper indicates when your subscription expires, and also serves as a receipt for your money.

Obituaries, sixty words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each word should be paid in advance.

When writing to have your paper changed, please state the postoffice at which you receive the paper, as well as the one to which you wish it changed.

Remittances must be sent by Registered Letter, Postal Order, Express or Draft, payable to the order of the Publisher.

THE election of a new Commissioner of Agriculture for our State ought to mean sothething to the Commonwealth, this great organism whose chief resource is the wide and varied pursuit of agriculture. It has room to mean something—a great deal of room. Heretofore it has meant little or nothing. If it does not mean something soon, it never will. For the people are getting tired, and no one can blame them if they show it.

We do not know much about running an agricultural department of a government. We do know, however, that to reach the people it must be more efficient, its officers must be more active and more able to command popular attention and respect than they have been for several years. We do know that the publication of a few pamphlets on the rate of increase of microbes and the methods for propagating them, the relative weights of well and sick cattle, or the effect of cut worms on cabbages (illustrated), will not win a place in the popular affections for any department. We do know that if these dissertations must be written, every one who has part in the writing of them should be above writing anonymous communications to newspapers insinuating false things of respected educators.

Commissioner Patterson is a new man. We hope he will succeed in giving the people of the State reason to spend their money on an agricultural department. He has the advantage of his predecessors' experience. He has a good name, and he comes from a good section. Let the people mark whether the department, to the head of which he has been called, is a help to them; and let them express their opinions accordingly. If he fails, then let us spend our money for something else, or, better still, keep it in our pockets.

SPEAKING of the slowness of public officers to carry out their campaign promises, an ex office holder says that the trouble lies in the politician's fear of making enemies, political parties being so divided that the loss of a few votes is likely to turn one down.

An aggressive public policy usually multiplies an administration's enemies for a time, and while it may make enough friends to counterbalance the enemies, the latter are quicker to make themselves heard and felt, and therefore more to be dreaded. For instance, the city of Raleigh could macadamize her streets by issuing bonds, the interest on which would not be as great as the amount she is now paying to keep the streets in intolerable condition. It would be common sense and economy to issue bonds, it would be patriotic in the administration to urge this; but certain people say bonds are debts and debts increase taxes, and they say the streets are good enough for them any way—until the question of bonds is dismissed, at least. And the authorities accordingly keep quiet on the subject.

An aggressive policy is more easily attacked than a moderate one, because it offers more avenues of approach. And there is always some malcontent hanging round ready to take any advantage he can to get into office.

It will not be long before the people pledge candidates to do just so much and no more, and it will not be long before officers will learn to carry out their pledges to the letter. We have been on the way to this point many years; we took a great step in 1894. A few years more of growth in independence and we will have finished the costly journey so full of wanderings from the path.

IT HAS frequently been told of Lord Rosebery that in youth he said he desired to marry the richest woman in England, to win the famous Derby (horse-race) and to rise to the highest office possible to be attained outside of royalty—the premiership. He married the woman, won the Derby twice, and became premier. He lost his wife, he lost his office, and he now has only his horses, his money, and his fame. The evil objects of one's ambition are often easiest to reach and hardest to get rid of when they become troublesome.

Lord Rosebery is an extraordinary great man. He is still young. Of noble birth, he assumed to espouse the people's rights, worked hard, became an accomplished scholar, speaker, writer and statesman, and has never known what it is to fail (for it is not failure that his ministry has fallen; it is logical that the successor of Gladstone is a disappointment, and even the Grand Old Man himself would have failed to accomplish all that he had led the people to expect of him at his return to power.) As premier he has accomplished but little. He has, however, had great obstacles constantly hindering him. He was weak with the Lords, because, though himself a lord, he said that the House of Lords is an anomaly. He was weak with the Commons because he was a lord, seemed to be too kindly disposed toward them, and owned race horses. Moreover, he succeeded Gladstone by chance, not by standing before the people as the leader of his party. Taken all in all, he has done as well as could be expected.

The return of Lord Salisbury heralds an era of conservative politics in England. He is an old man now, and his principles are well known. He is a good premier for the lords and nobles and their followers, but it does not take him long to make the common people uneasy. No doubt the liberals will return in good time; and it is kind to allow the Queen to die surrounded by her favorites, —not that she is ill, but that her days are numbered like anybody's else.

There has been no election in England, although a change has been wrought fully as great as occurs in the United States when a president of one political doctrine is succeeded by one of the opposite doctrine. How it came about is worth telling, although it was by no unusual means.

In England the Queen (or King) amounts to nothing, except socially and as a mouthpiece. The prime minister is the real executive, like our president. True, he is appointed by the Queen, but it is her business to appoint the leader of the party that has gotten a majority in the latest election of the members of the House of Commons. And she appoints other officers who have relations to the prime minister like the members of our cabinet bear to our president; but it is her business to appoint only such officers as the prime minister selects. Elections of members of the House of Commons come every seven years by law; but they may come oftener, for the Queen can dissolve Parliament and call for an election at her will, although she wouldn't likely care to do it so long as the prime minister and his cabinet (he and they together called "the Ministry") are in agreement with the majority in the House of Commons.

But when the majority in the House of Commons votes down a recommendation of the Ministry, the vote is taken to signify "want of confidence," and then the Queen need not be so cautious of dismissing the Ministry, or the Ministry may voluntarily resign, or the Queen can dissolve Parliament and call for an election. (This latter she does when the Ministry is of her way of thinking, which the late Ministry was not.)

Now, on June 21st the House of Commons voted down some recommendation of the Secretary of War (one of the Ministry) The House had for some time been less and less friendly to the Ministry; so without attempting to push matters further, the premier resigned, carrying his ministers with him of necessity.

The Queen then called her old premier, Salisbury, to head the new Ministry. He realizes that he is not strong enough in Parliament, particularly the House of Commons, to effect anything; and accordingly the Queen will dissolve Parliament and call a new election.

It is expected that a Conservative House of Commons will be elected, Rosebery being a Liberal and Salisbury a Conservative. No doubt something about financial affairs will be said in the campaign, but we will know more of this later.

IT IS not every one that writes a book, after all; and it is just about one in a million that makes money by writing a book. Last year only 2,821 new books by American writers were sent from American presses. This is more than one thousand less than the number of new books sent out from them in 1893: a wholesome sign.

A library that contains one hundred books by North Carolina writers can boast a rare distinction. We are not a book writing State, although we are getting to be. We have heard of two novels coming out and two books of verse, that one history of the State is in preparation, and we know of another already in manuscript. God speed them.

B. Y. and O. P. Union.

BY REV. JNO. T. ALBRITTON.

I trust I am in profound sympathy with all laudable efforts of our young people for self-improvement and enlarged usefulness. There is certainly room for advancement along all the lines of Christian activity.

Our laxity of life and doctrine, the meagreness of our contributions to the world's evangelization, the distressing indebtedness of our mission boards, and the widespread apathy and indifference that close the eyes and ears of many professed Christians against the world's needs and the church's obligations,—all these are sufficient to awaken in the thoughtful Christian deep concern for the future of the church. Something must be done. What shall it be?

Many wise and excellent brethren say the proper thing to be done is to organize thoroughly the young people of the churches. They say this Y. P. movement is a necessity, and that God is in it. I am not sure that either statement is true. I fear that the brethren are mistaken.

The same reasons assigned for the organization of our young people apply with equal force to our old people. Really, I have found in the churches I have served during my ministry greater activity among our young people than among the older ones along some lines of Christian work. If there is necessity for the organization of our young people the same necessity exists for the organization of our old people. Therefore, let us have a B. O. P. U. as well as a B. Y. P. U. Having progressed thus far, I would have the two movements stand before me, while I read to them the marriage ceremony, making of the two one organization, inseparable, indivisible henceforth and forever.

This happy union would be the B. Y. and O. P. U. But this would be the primitive church. We would get back to first principles.

The infinitely wise Redeemer planned for all ages and conditions when he built his church. The mother church was founded in Jerusalem—no mean city. It was therefore a city church. From that day to the end of time there has not been and there never will be any work required of Christian men and women which cannot be better done by the church than by any other organization. The church of Christ is of sufficient breadth and elasticity to prosecute all the legitimate work of all the religious societies now existing and yet to be born. I would say nought against any society within the church, working with and through the church for the furtherance of heaven appointed work. These are nothing more than committees carrying out the expressed will of the church and her Divine Head. But the Lord's people should become entangled with no society that tends to diminish their zeal, devotion, contributions, and general efficiency as members of the church of Christ.

As for other organizations, they are all of human origin, and God may or may not be in them; while the church is the work of the Master Architect of the universe, the divinest piece of masonry known to earth or heaven, and we know that God is in the midst of her. "His dwelling place is in Zion." Says Jesus, "I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

I cannot sing, but I will say with all my heart—

"I love thy kingdom, Lord,
The house of thine abode,
The church our blest Redeemer bought

Mount Olive, N. C.

S. B. C. Committee on Methods of Work at Atlanta.

At the last meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention the following resolutions were adopted:

"That a committee of seven be appointed, three of whom shall be the secretaries of the Board of this Convention, the duty of which shall be to hold a meeting as early as practicable at some suitable point to consider, in connection with the Secretaries of State Boards, how we may better reach the masses of Southern Baptists and bring them to more thorough co operation in the work of the Convention; and that the expense of the committee be divided between the Boards.

2. That the committee just ordered be instructed to arrange for an early consolidation of the Foreign Mission Journal and the Home Field."

The committee was organized by the election of Dr. J. B. Gambrell of Georgia as chairman, and O. F. Gregory of Maryland as secretary.

Several hours were spent in hearing statements from the secretaries of State Boards of the difficulties of arousing "the masses of Southern Baptists" to interest in and contributions for the work of missions, and also the plans of work pursued in their respective States.

These reports showed that while all have the same end in view, viz, the training of the churches to enlarged views of the duty of evangelizing the world, and the necessity of endeavoring to get every baptised believer to contribute to this end, yet the views of the how to accomplish this were so widely divergent that the wisdom of the Convention in providing for this meeting was made evident. The two days' session of frank and brotherly criticism of methods and suggestions for improvement, all felt to be helpful, and would tend to unify our methods.

MISSIONARY JOURNALS.

The following committee was appointed to submit a plan for consolidating the mission journals of the Home and Foreign Boards: Bros. C. Durham, W. B. Crumpton, E. O. Ware.

This committee submitted a report which was discussed for nearly a whole day, and after many amendments, the following was at last adopted:

1. That the Foreign Mission Journal and the Home Field be united and published as a live and vigorous mission journal, representing all the interests of the Southern Baptist Convention.

2. That a committee of three be appointed to make all necessary arrangements to carry out the above, and if satisfactory arrangements can be made for its publication and management with the Sunday school Board, the publication of this journal be given to said Board.

Committee: Drs. J. B. Gambrell, C. Durham, and B. H. Carroll. It was distinctly understood that this committee would confer with the Home and Foreign Mission Boards before concluding arrangements.

PLANS OF WORK.

After discussing various plans submitted by a special committee, the following recommendations were adopted:

1. A committee of three, consisting of Drs. P. G. Gibson, J. W. Warder and L. T. Tichenor, was appointed to devise one or more plans of systematic beneficence adapted to the condition of our churches and designed to secure a contribution from every member of every church, these plans to be submitted to the State Boards for their approval and adoption, and by these Boards recommended to the churches.

In order to secure the adoption of these plans by the churches, State Boards are requested to employ every proper means, among which we recommend:

1. That a system of institutes for our pastors and deacons, and such others as may be induced to attend, be held in each State, designed to increase the knowledge and stimulate the zeal of our brethren in all the work devolving upon our churches, and especially in the work of giving the gospel to the whole world.

2. That each State convention or general association appoint a committee on Co operation, whose duty it shall be to press the plans for systematic beneficence adopted by their respective States, and where no general plan is in operation, to formulate a system and have it adopted by the churches.

3. By holding popular meetings at suitable times and places for the purpose of enlisting our brethren more zealously in the Master's work, and leading them to adopt business methods in their mission collections and every part of church work.

4. That the associational meetings be made more practical, that executive committees of the most earnest and practical brethren be appointed to see that all the churches are brought into co-operation in the general work of the denomination.

5. To use our denominational press, and such tracts, leaflets, and other forms of literature as may be conducive to the enlightenment and elevation of our brethren, and that the editors of our State papers are requested to press these great interests to the front.

6. That the Secretaries of the Boards of the S. B. C. be instructed to supply Secretaries of State Boards with such tracts as they may need for distribution.

7. That the churches be urged to encourage, control and direct the woman's work and training of the young people in harmony with all organized denominational work.

8. The Boards of the S. B. C. are requested and expected to jealously co-operate with the State Boards in their efforts, and by their moral support and by financial aid, when needed, to do all in their power to make effective the plans of these State Boards which they have put into operation.

9. That as representatives of our State Boards we assure the Secretaries of the three Boards of the S. B. C. of a hearty welcome at any time in our States, and of our earnest co-operation in the prosecution of their work.

The attention of the committee was called to the following report adopted at the session of the S. B. C. in 1888:

"We might maintain as a cardinal principle of Baptist polity, recognized in Article II. of our Constitution, that the Convention may address itself through its Boards to all the churches, as freely as the State organizations may do, limited only in the one case as in the other, by the will of the churches themselves; but recognizing the paramount importance of avoiding any appearance of conflict and of securing for the Convention the heartiest sympathy of brethren who are charged with State work, we recommend—

1. That such State organizations as prefer to devise and execute their own plans of raising money for the Boards of the Convention be regarded as the agencies of the Convention for raising the quotas of their respective States, and, in case it shall at any time appear to either Board of the Convention that any State will probably fall short of raising its quota, it shall be the duty of the said Board, in co operation with the State Board and the Vice-President, to employ such means as may be deemed best to supply the deficiency."

SPECIAL PRAYER.

Dr. Gambrell was requested to prepare a short address to the people of the South, requesting our brethren to continue instant in prayer, and to unite with us and each other in making the week beginning July 21st a season of special prayer for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and for the power of God to be given to his people that they may do the work appointed to their hands.

O. F. GREGORY, Sec.

WILLIAM JEWELL COLLEGE—RAILWAY ENTERPRISE—THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

What Wake Forest College is to North Carolina Baptists, that William Jewell College is to the Baptists of Missouri. This institution is the oldest and one of the best endowed colleges west of the Mississippi, and its alumni are found in every State of the Union and in every continent of the globe. In a recent address, a distinguished scholar ranked Wake Forest and William Jewell as two of the four best Baptist colleges in the world.

On the 12th inst., "the pride of Missouri Baptists" closed the most prosperous year in her history. Eleven seniors received the degree of A. B., and the following honorary degrees were conferred on distinguished alumni: LL. D. on Hon. W. M. Robinson, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Missouri; D. D. on Rev. R. P. Johnston, pastor of the First Baptist church of St. Joseph, Mo.; and D. D. on Rev. M. L. Thomas, pastor of the LaFayette Baptist church of St. Louis, Mo.

The closing exercises were interesting throughout. President J. P. Greene of William Jewell College preached the baccalaureate sermon, Prof. J. R. Sampey of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary delivered the address before the Missouri Board of Ministerial Education, and President W. R. Harper of the University of Chicago delivered the address before the Literary Societies. The "Alumni Day" orators were Dr. J. C. Armstrong, editor of the Central Baptist, Rev. J. M. P. Martin, Hon. L. B Ely, and President Greene. The Alumni Banquet was greatly enjoyed. Among the guests were two natives of North Carolina who are highly esteemed in Missouri: Rev. S. M. Brown of Kansas City, and Rev. N. B. Pittman, recently of St. Joseph, but now pastor at Mexico.

The most unique feature of the week was the entertainments of the Excelsior and Philomathic Societies. These consisted of orations, recitations, papers, instrumental music, and original Society songs.

During the session, 297 students were enrolled, which exceeds by thirty the enrollment of any previous year. There is every reason to believe the attendance next session will far exceed 300, as every dormitory has already been engaged. The Trustees have planned for two new buildings.

"There is a magical tie to the land of one's birth," so the closing exercises over, I left the next morning for a pleasant vacation in the Old North State. Of course I selected that prince of routes, the Southern, which takes one through Kansas City, Memphis, Birmingham, Atlanta, Greenville, Charlotte, Greensboro and Raleigh on to the coast. This thought suggests the thought that the South has two of the best railway systems in the United States. I refer to the Southern and Memphis railways which form a continuous line from Washington to Kansas City. They traverse a section of our country made historic by the civil war, and with their connections give the quickest access to all points of the West and South.

When it is remembered how disagreeable traveling in the South was a few years ago, it seems almost marvelous that the Southern Railway now runs through palace sleepers from New York to St. Augustine and to Memphis via Atlanta, and that the Memphis Railway runs similar coaches to New Orleans and to Atlanta via Memphis. Then, too, these roads have the finest equipment, make the best time, and give the lowest rates. They deserve great credit for what they have done and are doing to develop the South.

Since the Southern Railway is the only one that has access to and runs its cars into the Atlanta Exposition grounds, it will be the favorite route to that magnificent Southern enterprise on which $3,000,000 is to be expended. No one can afford to miss seeing this "World's Fair," which is to open Sept. 18th and close December 31st. There are to be twelve magnificent exposition buildings, besides those of the States and for special exhibits. Its "Midway Plaisance," in attractions and amusements, will equal that feature of the Columbian Exposition. The West is manifesting great interest in the Atlanta Exposition and it promises to be the means of more closely uniting the interests of that section with those of the South.

CHARLES LEE SMITH.

It is related that an old time legislator who, after several sessions devoted to the service of his country, was promoted to private life, remarked as he was about to return to his home on the prarie: "I'll tell you now it is about this business of making laws, it's just like making sausage. The less you know about it the more you think of the product."

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1895.

THE conventional year is nearly half gone; the Associations a little more than a month off. Now is the time to begin a rally all along the line for State Missions. Fifteen thousand dollars is the mark set for this year.

DO YOU know what gave Andrew the power to bring his brother to Christ? asks Dr. W. E. Hatcher in the Convention Teacher. And he answers truly, "It was the magnetism of a real experience." That's the kind of magnetism that means something. Would that we could see more of it.

IF YOU get the time to spare, allow us to suggest that it will be a good idea to use it laying plans for building, equipping and maintaining a Baptist school in your section. Some one ought to feel himself moved to arouse every Association in the State on this subject. Education is the handmaiden of Religion, the hope of pure politics and the potent enemy of the saloon.

IF THE people only could be aroused to the needs of missions as they are to the financial question, what a spreading of the gospel there would be. Perhaps it is well, however, that none of the advocates of free coinage or bimetalism or gold standard have urged their solution as the one that would enable every church member to realize that it is his duty to give as the Lord has prospered him.

THE RECORDER begins its sixty-first year this week. There are about us many suggestions of the saying, "the workers die, but the work goes on." Our Convention has lost some of its foremost men in recent months, none of them past their prime—Pace, Heck, Bailey, Carroll; but there is no lessening of its work for the Master whom they served so zealously. God does not call his workers to rest until he has provided for the work, which is of vastly more importance than the servants who are spent upon it. Let us then press on for the kingdom with all our might, nothing fearing.

The RECORDER looks forward with hope. Its friends have always been many and true, and we thank God for them. While it has been a faithful servant, it hopes to increase its efficiency, maintaining its faithfulness. It enters another volume confident of the prayers of the great host of North Carolina Baptists for the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and trusting in their generous co-operation in making it a yet greater power for good.

WE KNOW there will be a great deal more voluntary work in the State this summer and fall by our pastors than is indicated by the Regions Beyond roll. We keep looking out for a great number of additions to the list every week, but something holds the brethren back.

There is just this much to be said: It does not amount to anything whether names are given or not, so far as that matter is concerned; but it seems to many that not enough of this kind of work is done, and this roll or reports to Secretary Durham ought to be used to show just how much is done, so that we all may know. It is a plain proposition that, if one hundred preachers will preach ten days each year in some destitute community in the State, it will result in great glory for God, strength to our denomination and good to men. If, as we think, there are a hundred who do engage in work of this kind, they might let it be known, as an encouragement to their hundreds of fellow preachers in the State.

WE have another case of "I told you so." Not long ago we predicted that the advocates of the B. Y. P. U. A. would be shouting for the ridiculous Baptist Boys' Brigade. One of the latter has been organized in this State. "God is in it" and it is "filling a long felt want," adding great "enthusiasm" to the work, etc., etc., without doubt.

We do not take credit to ourself for this prediction. We would have been blind indeed not to have perceived that after the bar of Scriptural authority was removed, all the stray cattle in the land would find it easier jumping over into our pastures. We are hopeful, however, that they will never get acclimated.

We would have been dull as a dunce not to have known that as soon as the B. Y. P. U. A. failed to effect all the cures that the pastors were told it is good for, a new remedy would be tried. We still hope, however, that God's church, being divine, will survive all the courses of medicine that are [illegible] it.

O, Brethren let us cling close to God's own Word, given us for a guide!

REV. J. L. CARROLL DEAD.

Rev. John Lemuel Carroll, D. D., passed from this life into the rest that remaineth for the people of God in the early morning hours of June 26th, at his home in Chapel Hill. He had been in failing health several months, but his courage would not permit his friends to lose hope of his recovery until recently. Several weeks ago he wrote us with a glad heart that he had again occupied his pulpit; but the rally did not last long: God had need of him above.

The announcement of the death of this good man will carry sorrow to many hearts. He was widely known because of his activity in denominational meetings and for the power of his speeches in them. Moreover, he took a kindly interest in almost every one he knew, and had won a host of personal friends. To them as to us his death, though anticipated, is none the less sorrowful.

Dr. Carroll was born in Duplin county, this State, Dec. 21st, 1836. He made known his faith in Christ at an early age and became an active member of Beaver Dam church, by which he was licensed to preach in January, 1858. He received part of his education at Wake Forest College, completing it at the University of North Carolina, from which he graduated with distinction in 1863. He was ordained in the University chapel the preceding year, and became pastor of several churches. For a time he was instructor in Oxford Female College and later pastor of the church at Oxford.

In 1869 he accepted a commission that brought him lasting distinction, and which deserves to go on record as one of the great achievements of his career. St. John's College at Oxford was about to go down for lack of support; and it seemed that all that could be done to relieve the situation had been done. But he proved to the contrary, taking the agency for the institution and arousing such interest in it as put it forever out of danger (now Oxford Orphan Asylum). After this he was located at Wake Forest, being a member of the Board of Trustees, of which he was also secretary. During this period he was active in his pastoral work, successfully serving a number of churches. From Wake Forest he went to Warrenton, Va., where he acceptably served the Baptist church a number of years; but his native State claimed him, and he came back to serve the French Broad church, Asheville, of which he was the first pastor. At the time of his death he had been pastor at Chapel Hill five years. The funeral was preached Thursday evening from the French Broad church by pastor J. T. Betts, assisted by Rev. J. S. Felix, D. D., and Rev. G. W. Gwinn, D. D., of Louisville, in the presence of a large concourse of people.

Dr. Carroll leaves a loving wife and three sons, whom we commend to the mercy of the God of their father and the comfortings of that hope which he bore to so many in his long and useful career as pastor.

The day after the death of Dr. Carroll, his venerable co-worker, Dr. J. D. Hufham, who knew him better than any of his brethren, wrote:—

"It grieved me learn that Dr. Carroll was dead. He was an able and godly man. With a liberal endowment of what is called tact he would have been a very great man."

Any one who read the sermons of our brother, brief, bold, clear and deeply Baptist, will agree with this estimate. In some respects Dr. Carroll was a great preacher. Certainly as a sermonizer or as an extemporaneous speaker in our Associations and Conventions he was not excelled. His powerful effort at Charlotte last December—a few weeks before the first warning of his break-down—in behalf of the aged preachers will not soon be forgotten by those who heard it. There was the eloquence of pathos and deep earnestness in his speeches and sermons, and yet he could use humor with good effect. Most of all, he would cling to the old landmarks and stand by the old truths. How much we seem to lose when such a man is taken in his prime!

Dr. Carroll was bound to us by peculiarly tender ties. Always a strong friend of the late editor of the RECORDER, he made a special effort to show his devotion when affliction came upon his co-worker, who preceded him by only a few days to their Father's house of eternal rest. If he could help with tongue or pen, he would do it. His letters, his encouraging words, his articles, his speeches at the Conventions, his fatherly attention to the writer at Elizabeth City, at Dallas, Texas, and at Charlotte, were expressions of the godly, big-hearted nature of the man. We mourn the loss of a good, strong, true friend, but we mourn not without hope; it is better, at least with him, and God will take care of those whom he bereaves.

LET every reader study the report of the Atlanta Conference and Chairman Gambrell's call for prayer in this issue.

While the Conference has laid good plans, the Baptists of the South have yet to determine whether they will amount to anything. It seems to us that the Conference was both aggressive and prudent—a rare combination. The suggestions are conservative, but if our Associations act vigorously upon them, a radical change for good will be wrought. Our Associations are requested to do nothing that is objectionable, and yet the activity that would be aroused by a committee of live brethren to co-operate with the boards and the good seed that would be sown in the Institutes, as suggested, would effect a great increase of gifts for God's treasury.

As to the week of prayer: It has been often said that the keeping of set days or seasons produces laxity during the rest of the time. This is probably so, but it ought not to be.

There are church members who would be greatly benefited by keeping a day of prayer; it is a good way to begin to "pray without ceasing." There are others who make their days and their weeks days and weeks of prayer. We do not think it will weaken any one's spirituality to pray earnestly and long for God's help in effecting our plans for awakening the indifferent; but we would not encourage any one to pray a week and stop. In fact any one who would do this hasn't enough spirituality to hurt much any way.

The manifest tendency of the workers to fall back upon the power of prayer through God is greatly encouraging. Prayer has brought our principles through the ages, and prayer must carry them on to the uttermost parts of the earth. Along with this tendency it may be noticed that Christendom is also seeking a closer presence of the Comforter. What can we not expect with the guidance of the Holy Spirit and trust in the Lord's promises!

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Rev. I. T. Newton has accepted the call of the Brevard church.

....Elizabeth City brethren and sisters have pledged $1,600 toward buying a $2,500 pipe organ.

....Rev. C. R. Hairfield of Wake Forest College will be located for the summer at Greystone, Va.

....Rev. D. J. Harris baptized two young women into the fellowship of Beulah Baptist church June 23d.

....An epidemic of cholera is raging in Brazil and somewhat retards the work of our missionaries at Rio.

....Rev. Charles Hadley of the Telugu Mission has returned to Maine in better health from Southern Pines, N. C.

....Rev. C. S. Farriss and wife of Florida are spending vacation in North Carolina, at Bro. Richardson's, High Point, N. C.

....Bro. Caddell brought the RECORDER forty new subscribers to begin its sixty-first year. Now for a year of constant climbing upward.

....There were 127 graduates at Brown University this year. The venerable old Baptist stronghold grows stronger with the years.

....Rev. C. J. F. Anderson had a very fine day at Spurgeon Memorial, Norfolk, and had one by letter and three for baptism. —Atlantic Baptist.

....Rev. Samuel Gibson, who is supplying the Baptist pulpit, preached two excellent sermons last Sunday morning and evening.—Hendersonville Times.

....Good news comes from Rev. Dr. H. W. Battle's work at High Point in the meeting with Bro. Weaver; great interest and promise of many conversions.

... Rev. R. N. Pratt has been elected special agent of Furman and Greenville Female College, to canvass for pupils and funds, says the Baptist Courier.

....Rev. R. D. Cross was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry at Lexington last Sunday. Rev. R. W. Weaver of High Point preached the sermon.

....Dr. J. B. Gambrell, who was to have led the Southern rally of the B. Y. P. U. A., has requested Rev. H. M. Wharton to take his place. We do not blame him.

....We were made sorry to hear of the death of Bro. Joseph T. Waff, one of the most useful men in the old Chowan, and one of the best men to be found anywhere.

....The Law School at Wake Forest opens this week. About twenty-five students are expected. The members of this class will be prepared to stand examination before the Supreme Court this fall. Prof. Gulley has moved to Wake Forest to reside permanently. This is a great loss to Franklinton church and business circles, and a decided gain for Wake Forest. Bro. Gulley will make a great success of the Wake Forest Law Department.

....Greensboro is the centre of gravitation this year. Not long ago the Odd Fellows met there, the N. C. Press Association meets there this month and our Convention in December.

....Rev. E. E. Britton has declined the call to Lewiston. Rev. A. Cree, Jr., one of the youngest and most promising pastors in the State, will supply the pulpit until a pastor is secured.

....Oxford ought to be happy. The Methodists have just subscribed $6,000 toward building a $10,000 church, and Bro. Hardaway is pushing the work on our handsome new edifice.

....Rev. Green Clay Smith, pastor the Metropolitan Baptist church, Washington, D. C., died June 28th. He was prominent in the civil war and in politics before he entered the ministry.

....We were glad to see Rev. C. W. Scarboro of Murfreesboro in Raleigh last week. As usual he is looking forward to holding several meetings this season, this time with Bro. W. V. Savage.

....Rev. J. S. Tanner, a recent graduate of the Louisville Theological Seminary, has been elected assistant professor of New Testament interpretation in the Divinity School University of Chicago.

....There were fourteen graduates in the Theological Seminary of Colgate University, and twenty eight in the University proper. The vacant presidency of this institution will be filled this week.

....Mercer University, Georgia, is in need of $50 000, and President Gambrell has been released from his usual duties and instructed to go into the field for a year to raise the amount and get students.

....Our brethren down east are more active than ever building churches, and they are putting them just where they are needed. If you can, you ought to respond to Bro. A. H. Porter's appeal for help.

....Rev. J. J. Payseur, one of our young preachers, who taught with success at Matthews last session, and Miss Jennie Mitchell of Walkers Ferry were united in marriage the 18th. We extend our best wishes.

....Brother Willingham writes that our State was looked to to send in for Foreign Missions from May 1st to June 30th, $1,500; he received $152 49. The rest is in somebody's pocket, and it may be in their way sometime.

....We thank Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Eldridge of Murfreesboro for an invitation to the marriage of their daughter, Eva Alberta, to Mr. Lloyd J. Lawrence, July 10th, at the Baptist church. We wish the young couple many happy days.

....The great Christian Endeavor Convention meets in Boston July 10th to 15th; the B. Y. P. U. A. meets at Baltimore July 18th to 21st; and then they will adjourn "amid great enthusiasm" and begin talking about the next meeting.

...."Baptists Abroad" will be many this year. Secretary Rowland has gone, Dr. F. M. Ellis is going, Dr. T. T. Eaton expects to go and carry a party with him, and so does State Mission Secretary Holt of Tennessee and Rev. P. T. Hale of Alabama.

....We were glad to hear that Rev. John T. Edmundson has decided to take up regular pastoral work after several months of successful work as an evangelist. He is an able preacher and a good pastor. He is now in Baltimore at 510 N. Calhoun St.

....If there is a boy in your reach who ought to go to college, you will do him and the denomination a service by making him acquainted with the opportunities Wake Forest offers. Dr. Taylor will send him some good literature, if you will forward his name.

....We sympathize with Rev. J. L. Bennett of Union county, whose son, Bro. K. A. Bennett, died June 25th, after ten months illness. He was twenty-three years old, was a member of the Baptist church, a good Sunday-school worker, and died triumphantly.

....We are glad to lay before our readers the high testimonials to the faculty that Prof. Hobgood has secured to aid him in the work of the Oxford Female Seminary. Our brother is determined to place his institution at the very front, and he is going about it in the right way.

....Prof. Thomas Henry Huxley, F. R. S., an eminent English Physiologist and Naturalist, died in London June 29th. He was seventy years old. He was the ablest exponent of the Darwinian theory, and his death is a loss to that cause and a gain to Christian Science.

....Rev. H. W. Mahony, the oldest Baptist preacher in South Carolina, died in Clarendon county the 18th ult. He was 91 years of age, and was pastor of one church more than three score years. He was pious, faithful and useful, and was rewarded with the love and trust of all who knew him.

....The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church of Raleigh had interesting missionary exercises Sunday June 30th. Well prepared papers were read by several brethren. In the regular morning service Pastor Carter preached a powerful missionary sermon, after which a collection was taken.

....Hon. Eustace C. Fitz made the following bequests in his will: To Brown University, $5 000; Colby University, $5,000; Wellesley College, $10,000; Newton Theological Institution, $10,000; American Baptist Missionary Union, $10,000; American Baptist Home Mission Society, $10,000.

....After a successful year as principal of the Auburn Academy, Rev. Julian E. Yates retires to further prosecute his ministerial studies at our Louisville Seminary. He is one of the many young men who are waking up to the need of the best preparation possible for the work before them. We will have more young men at the Seminary next year than ever before.

....Prof. W. L. Poteat came in our office for a few minutes talk on his return from the Teachers' Assembly Saturday. He reports having had a pleasant trip. He is very much interested in the welfare of the Assembly and is hopeful of its future.

....It will be noticed that while heretofore several of the State Normal and Industrial School teachers have been compelled by law to conduct teachers' institutes, this year they are not. It may also be noticed that there is no political campaign this year.

....Rev. W. A. Smith of Cedar Rock was in to see us last week. He has done well as preacher and teacher since he graduated at Wake Forest. His Academy at Cedar Rock is one that we heartily recommend for a practical education or for preparation for college.

....The Fisherman and Farmer has gotten out a handsome trade issue—a credit to its section and the State. It gave a picture of our church and of several of our brethren. Such enterprise as this helps a community, and we hope our contemporary will receive many evidences of just appreciation by the public.

....Wake Forest is still winning honors. At Morehead City last week, Mr. I. M. Meekins was awarded the medal for the last oration. He is a young man of unusual ability as a speaker, ready and bright and master of an attractive delivery. He is from Columbia, N. C., and will become a lawyer.

....Prof. J. R. Hunter, the new Professor of Chemistry at Richmond College, was a pleasant visitor in our office last week. He is spending a few days in this county visiting friends and relatives. He has been to Richmond and is very much pleased with the college, and says it has a great prospect before it.

....Bro. T. W. Bickett, Esq., of Louisburg delivered the address at Auburn Academy last Friday night. He has succeeded largely to the law practice of his partner, Judge Timberlake; and, as those who knew him at Wake Forest foresaw, he is making a reputation for himself as an able advocate and honorable lawyer.

....Rev. George N. Cowan of Webster, N. C., student of Wake Forest College, has accepted the call to succeed Rev. W. C. Newton, now supply at Goldsboro, as pastor at Clayton and other points in Bro. Newton's field. Bro. Cowan has been at Wake Forest three years, has studied hard and developed unmistakable ability as a preacher.

....Prof. J. C. Clifford, who has for two years successfully conducted the large and flourishing Wakefield Academy, passed through Raleigh Monday on his way home, Davie County. He will teach in the combined schools at Dunn, N. C., next year. Bro. Clifford is a Wake Forest man and is rising steadily in his chosen profession.

....Rev. M. C. Lockwood, who recently resigned the pastorate of the First Baptist church, Cincinnati, because, as he stated in his letter, he could not keep the church on a self-supporting basis, preached recently for the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church of Baltimore, whose pulpit is now vacant. Is this a straw?—Indiana Baptist.

....We were glad to have a visit from Prof. A. P. Harris, Wake Forest '92, last week. He was on his way to Morehead seeking well-earned recreation after a year of vigorous work teaching at Troy, Montgomery county. He says the school building at Troy has been nearly completed, and the prospect for a number of students is good.

....We regret that a mistake prevented us from sooner giving an account of the Ronda Intercollegiate School, of which Rev. J. E. Greene is principal. It will be found this week on page four. Next week we will give an account by Rev. I. W. Thomas of the closing exercises of Taylorsville Collegiate School, which was also unavoidably delayed.

....Eight persons were baptized at Finch's mill Sunday as a result of the recent meeting held at the Baptist church. Two persons were baptized at the church Sunday night. We think, or hope, that much good was done by the meeting. The congregations were treated to good sermons all during the meeting.—Lexington Dispatch. Rev. R. Van Deventer aided Pastor Carrick in this meeting.

....Rev. Squire J. Becker of Wake Forest, who is spending his vacation at his home at Jerusalem, N. C., is supplying for Bro. Conrad at Fork Church. He will work during the summer in meetings in the South Yadkin Association. He will do good work. Bro. Conrad will spend his time raising money to lift the indebtedness on Ruffin and Walnut Cove churches.

....We are under many obligations to Rev. J. H. Lamberth for a picture of the sainted Elias Dodson—known all over the State. It is said that only one picture of Bro. Dodson was ever made, and that one was taken in a group unknown to him. Bro. Lamberth has done a noble service by going to the expense of having this enlarged to cabinet size and a number of copies made, so that the face of the good old "Indiana' friend" may not be forgotten.

Only a Word.

Only a word about our second quarterly report.

The year dating from the State Convention in December is half gone. The two quarterly reports submitted amount in the aggregate to $2,270.85 Of this amount, $947 09 has been given to Foreign Missions; $1,139 66 to Home Missions; $146 11 to State Missions; $32 00 to the Orphanage; $9.95 to Ministerial Education, and $5 82 towards the expenses of the Central Committee.

This is a very hopeful showing for half of the year. We rejoice in it.

Now comes the "tug of war"—the summer quarter. Why this is the quarter in which least is given we have never been fully able to determine. There are reasons pro and con. On the one hand, there is general scarcity of money; on the other, the ability to hold meetings more regularly and the abundance of garden and dairy produce which in so many instances supply the farmers' wives and daughters with mission money: on one hand, there is the going away; on the other, there should be the friendly visit and the added interest to the Society near by. Whatever be the reason, the fact remains that year after year the reports falls behind during the summer months.

One hot summer evening sometime ago, an appeal was made in a prayer meeting for volunteers to sit up with a number of sick people who needed such aid. Said the earnest speaker, "I tell you, my friends, I find plenty of day-time Christians in this town, but midnight Christians are mighty scarce."

Are summer-time Christians also scarce? Our missionary societies will want a large number of unwilting, unwavering, summer-time Christians to make the report of this quarter equal to the two which have gone before.

There is not one who would not shrink from the verdict on our work: "But when the sun was up, it was scortched, and because it had no root, it withered away."

[From an Address by Dr. Arthur T. Pierson, in Missionary Review.]

"Who shall write the history of these twenty-five years of organized work in missions, whereby woman has been made such a mighty factor in a world's evangelization?

"There are new lessons which we have all been taught in this quarter century which deserve great emphasis at this 'silver anniversary.'

"Our sisterhood have taught us all the value of cheap literature for spreading missionary intelligence. Instead of the cumbrous volumes which it takes money to buy and time to read, look at the missionary leaflets scattered abroad, often without price, and yet in a brief space embodying matters of the most attractive sort for perusal, and in the most condensed form that could be inclosed in a letter, read in a horse car, and which stimulated appetite for further research.

"How the women have taught us the power of many little gifts to make a full and steady stream of beneficence! Woman has for the first time accomplished the organization of the littles, depending not on a few large gifts from the rich, but on countless little offerings—a cent a day; $3 65 a year—and what is the consequence! Behold this stream of gifts pouring into the Lord's treasury amid all financial depressions, with scarce a diminution in the most critical years—nay, with a regular advance.

"These woman's boards have put a new emphasis on the value of frequent meetings for conference and prayer. The church has been depending too much on annual sermons and great occasions. We need a perpetual impulse and inspiration. The women have undertaken to supply this by a multitude of smaller gatherings, frequently held, where there has been contact with representatives of the mission field, new and systematic dissemination of intelligence, and joint prayer for all the precious interests involved.

"These twenty-five years have revealed the great source of supply of laborers—viz., a consecrated home life. Woman is the mould of the generations to come. The home and cradle—who shall ever tell how much they mean in the perpetuation of God's seed of servants! Hence, when woman began to come to the front in missions it was natural and inevitable that there should speedily follow a new uprising of sons and daughters. And so came, in 1886, the Student Volunteer Movement, the new crusade of missions, which is to my mind the most surprising and marvellous uprising of youth ever known in church history. It may be directly traced to the higher intelligence and consecration of wives, mothers, daughters, and sisters of twenty-five years ago.

"Woman has taught us the value of the individual in mission work. Every member of the body has its own adaptation and adjustment to the body's wants and its own function and office, so that none can say to any other, 'I have no need of thee.' A large part of the unevangelized in heathen, Moslem, and pagan lands have been unapproachable by man. The harem, zenana, seraglio, have excluded men, even as physicians. The comical experience of an American doctor in Syria is an illustration. Being urged to prescribe for the favorite wife of a pasha, he insisted that he must see the patient. This being denied, he must at least see her tongue and feel her pulse. Presently from behind the curtain a hand was thrust and a tongue protruded through a slit. He said, 'This is a healthy pulse and a normal tongue; there is nothing the matter with your wife.' 'That is not my wife's hand and tongue, of course,' said the pasha; 'that we could not allow; it is the hand and tongue of her maid.'

"Did it ever occur to us that God may have permitted the exclusive law of the zenana and harem to shut out man in order to call forth the energies of woman as the only possible angel of ministry to the sisterhood of the Orient?

"This quarter century is not a goal, but a starting point. To rest upon past successes is to forfeit future advance. There must be a new standard of giving, praying, working—a new self-oblivion in God and his work. Coleridge wrote of "'The petty done; the undone vast'"

Some reckon their age by years,
Some measure their life by art;
But some tell their days by the flow of their tears,
And their lives by the moans of their heart.
—Father Ryan.

Oxford Female Seminary.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

Mrs. S. D. Twitty for a half dozen years has been connected with the Seminary as its Lady Principal. Of her ability and qualification, His Excellency, the Governor of North Carolina, writes:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, May 11, 1895.

PROF. F. P. HOBGOOD, Oxford, N. C.:

Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in bearing testimony to the high character and splendid literary attainments of Mrs. S. D. Twitty, who is employed as a teacher in the Oxford Female Seminary. I have known her for many years. She was governess in my family and I know of no one whom I esteem more highly. She is a woman of rare ability and possesses peculiar qualifications which eminently fit her for the education of young ladies. She is in every way capable of filling any position to which she may aspire.

ELIAS CARR.

Of Mrs. M. A. Lacy, whose past connection with this Seminary has been eminently satisfactory to our patrons, Rev. Thomas Hume, D. D., Professor of English in the University of North Carolina, writes:

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA,
CHAPEL HILL, N. C., June 6, 1895.

Mrs. Mary Lacy is one of the most faithful teachers I know. I have been impressed with her varied and genuine accomplishments ever since she was a member of my Faculty in Danville, Va. As a mathematician she is exceptionally gifted, but she has shown marked ability in acquiring and teaching languages. Her strength of character, her high moral purpose, her Christian earnestness, her sincerity, added to her large experience and thorough scholarship, constitute her a most valuable member of my Faculty and society. I commend her heartily to you and your patrons.

THOMAS HUME, Professor
Of English Literature, Univ. of N. C.

RICHMOND, VA., March 25, 1888.

I have sincere respect for the Oxford Female Seminary, N. C. In Prof. F. P. Hobgood it has an admirable presiding officer. To his charming and sterling qualities as a Christian gentleman, he adds a genius for affairs, a rare tact in government, and genuinely broad views on the subject of woman's education. He gathers around him strong and skilled teachers, and does his work under the convictions of a good Christian conscience. He has done excellent service as an educator, and he is still at it, growing with the passing years in experience and influence. WM. E. HATCHER.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.

Miss Marguerite Gaff, the Music Director, is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory, and was for two years a pupil of the Leipsic, one of the best of the German Conservatories. During the past year she conducted the department with marked ability.

Miss Anna T. Sharp, who, next session, will take charge of Vocalization and Elocution and Physical Culture, is a graduate of the South Jersey Institute, both in its Literary and Music Departments, and for several years has been a pupil of the New England Conservatory of Music of Boston. Prof. F. W. Hale, Manager of this Conservatory, writes as follows:

"Miss Anna T. Sharp is qualified to do just what you require to teach Vocalization and Elocution. She has followed a very creditable course here, and is sure to be an excellent teacher."

"Miss Anna T. Sharpe has studied voice with me for two years. I have found her a brilliant pupil, and as far as I have observed her in teaching she is a skilful instructor. Miss Sharp has a good mezzo-soprano voice and sings with a great deal of expression. I am confident Miss Sharpe will give full satisfaction, either as a teacher or concert singer."

SCHOOL OF PHYSICAL CULTURE.

BOSTON, MASS., May 20, 1895.

To Whom it may Concern:—It gives me great pleasure to recommend Miss Anna Sharp as a finished teacher of Swedish Gymnastics. For two years I have watched her progress, and can freely say that in the large classes of the New England Conservatory she is one of the most perfect in Elocution, which eminently fits her for a position as teacher. Miss Sharp possesses also the qualities of good judgment and precision, which are two requisites of a good teacher in Swedish Gymnastics. I only wish her the success she deserves.

ADELINE DEWALT REYNOLDS,
School of Physical Culture of N. E. Cons.

Mr. Samuel R. Kelley, the Professor of Elocution in this Conservatory, writes:

"This is to certify that Miss Anna T. Sharp is thoroughly competent to assume the position of instructor of Elocution in any school of grade, that she is intelligent in all her methods, and painstaking, that she is magnetic in her own public work. It therefore gives me great pleasure to recommend her."

ART DEPARTMENT.

After an absence of one year, Miss Ida Poteat returns to resume charge of the Art Department. This time she has spent both in teaching and in studying Art under the best masters in New York City. She was the most brilliant Art pupil in the President's School, the Raleigh Female Seminary, and for several sessions since that time she studied in the Cooper Union Art School of New York City, and under the best private teachers of that City. Her work with us, while she was in charge of the department, was of the most satisfactory character; and her former pupils will learn with pleasure that she is to return.

CHARGES FOR ANNUAL SESSION.

Music extra	50.00

Blood purifiers, though gradual, are radical in their effect. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is intended as a medicine only and not a stimulant, excitant, or beverage. Immediate results may not always follows its use; but after a reasonable time, permanent benefit is certain to be realized.

What Shall I Take?

is the anxious question asked by those who are not feeling well—have no appetite—are out of sorts—have no energy—feel tired out. Perhaps you are feeling sick yourself!

Many medicines are recommended, doctors consulted—(in many cases) much money spent in this search for health—and yet it can all be avoided.

Wise people commence at once taking

and are soon made well and strong. Nearly every prescription given by physicians for such troubles contains IRON——which some people say they cannot take. Try Brown's Iron Bitters—it is warranted not to give headache, stain the teeth or cause constipation as all other Iron Medicines do.

Genuine has the crossed Red lines on the wrapper.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

Rev. Levi Branson is revising his business directory of the State.——The U. S. Government will make another attempt to build a light house at Diamond Shoals off Hatteras, $1,000,000 having been appropriated for this purpose.——Agent J. L. M. Curry of the Peabody Education Fund sent Supt. Scarborough $1,000 last week for institute work; but as under the present law there is no appropriation of funds for institutes, the amount will be divided among the six State Normal Schools for negroes.——A Northern and Western Company has bought for $21,000 a tract of 1,030 acres of farming land in the extreme western part of the state, and will probably settle a South Dakota colony on it.——A "henery" has been established at Asheville with capacity of 2,500 chicks a week——Statesville has been advanced from a third to a second class post office. The town seems to be making wholesome progress. The excellent Landmark now comes to us twice a week. May it speedily find it desirable to become a daily.——Mrs. M. J. Hall of Ashe county, who died recently left $1,500 in her will for building a Methodist church at Jefferson.——The directors of the State Normal and Industrial have decided to purchase 112 acres of land adjoining the present property of the institution, at a cost of $12,000.——Dr. Maynard, appointed by the Legislature, is recognized by authorities as quarantine physician at Wilmington; but former incumbent, Dr. Curtis, is expected to test his hold.——A ruby mine is being developed near Franklin.——Prof. W. A. Withers of the State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts has been appointed crop statistician for North and South Carolina, at a salary of $900 a year.——The Charlotte and Newbern divisions of the Naval Reserves have suspended.——22 young men graduated at the State A. & M. College recently.

In General.

Here are the figures of our government's financial transactions in the year ending July 1, 1895: Receipts $312,500,000; expenditures $356,000,000. The year was begun with a deficit of $43,803,260; so the deficit for the two years is $107,303,260. These figures are semi official and subject to slight correction.——Under the protection of Belmont-Morgan and other bankers, the government gold reserve has reached the $100,000,000 mark, the first time since December 1894.——The Cuban insurrection is still active, but the engagements of the troops are mostly skirmishes and of small consequence.—The suit of Supt. of Public Instruction Massey of Virginia against the Norfolk Pilot for libel is in progress.——The market report at the beginning of this week is as follows: Cotton 6¼ to 7⅛; wheat 70; corn 47½; oats 25½; pork 13 40; peanuts 2½ to 3½——The Seaboard Air Line has made the following changes in its management: W. W. Gwathmey, jr., appointed chief engineer, T. W. Whisnant, Supt. first division, Wm. Moncure second division, V. E. McBee third division.——The Kentucky Democratic Convention tried to evade the financial issue by reasserting the famous two-faced Chicago platform, and nominating a man for Governor who is nominally a bimetalist and a silver man, but practically opposed to free silver coinage at 16 to 1. A bimetalist may be anything, but he is mostly a dodger.——Many evidences of a revival of business activity are reported, increase of wages, new factories, rise in iron, etc. We are waiting for the evidence that counts down here: 10 cent cotton.——It has been determined by the courts that liquor can be imported in South Carolina. This works sadly against the Dispensary system.——The late Mr. E. F. Keerl of Baltimore bequeathed his entire estate, about $800,000, to the Protestant Episcopal church; but a contest will reduce the amount by half.——Efforts are being made with prospect of success to hold a great prize fight in Dallas, Tex., this fall. The Governor ought to stop it, if he has to call the Legislature to do it.——San Francisco had a fire June 27 that destroyed $1,500,000 worth of property and caused one death. Three hundred families are homeless.

The Blue Ridge Inn.

MOUNT AIRY, N. C.

This elegant hotel is now open for the accommodation of summer visitors. Large, airy, well ventilated and comfortable rooms, all recently overhauled and newly furnished, spacious parlors and verandas, electric bells in all rooms, hot and cold water on every floor, and the purest mountain water. One of the finest mountain views to be seen anywhere is presented from the windows of the hotel. The cuisine is first class and guests are guaranteed polite and careful attention. Get out of the overheated city for a few weeks and come and let our pure mountain breezes woo back the bloom to the faded cheek and give the lusterless eye its old time sparkle. Our service is first-class and our rates are reasonable.

J. D. BOUSHALL, Manager Ætna Life Insurance Co., Raleigh, N. C.

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge the prompt settlement of the policy held by Rev. C. T. Bailey with you. You will be gratified to know that your Company is the first of the number to take up its policy.

I have reasons to believe that the Ætna is not surpassed for safety by any company in the land.

With best wishes, yours sincerely,

(Signed) J. W. BAILEY.

Onward to Baltimore.

I have heard from nearly one hundred people in North Carolina who expect to extend the great B. Y. P. U. Convention in Baltimore July 18th to 21st. Geo. W. Whiteside, chairman of the local committee, says: "Headquarters of the North Carolina delegation will be at First Baptist church on Lafayette Ave. near Freemont Street. This is one of the most delightful localities in all Baltimore. Delegates will be cared for in private homes near this church at $1.25 per day including meals."

All persons from North Carolina must report at the above place immediately on arrival to be assigned homes. I will give my personal attention at all times to the North Carolina crowd.

From Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, through trains will cross our State via the "Seaboard Air Line," "Atlantic Coast Line" and the "Southern." The first two lines will land their people at Norfolk, July 17th, in time to take the 6:30 p. m. Bay Line steamer for Baltimore the same day. I will go by that steamer that evening. The "Southern" will land their passengers at West Point, Va., where special steamer will take them to Raltimore, where they will arrive early in the morning of the 18th. After assignment to homes we will repair to the great tent in Druid Hill Park where we of the "Green" will be greeted by 15,000 of the "Blue," "Red" and "Gold." From the platform of this great tent, for four days we will be instructed, stimulated and thrilled by scores of the brightest and brainiest Baptist speakers on this continent.

All transportation lines in the State are instructed according to arrangement to sell round trip tickets for one fare.

You need not belong to a B. Y. P. U. Society in order to go and get all the privileges. If you want to go, write to

CALVIN S. BLACKWELL,
Transportation Leader.

Elizabeth City, N. C.

Hollins Institute, Va.

The modest card of this long-established and celebrated school for young ladies will be found in another column. It is the most extensively equipped school for young ladies in Virginia. It seems to prosper under all conditions—it holds its own in times of peace and in times of war, in times of prosperity and times of depression. During the war it was the only school in the Old Dominion, for either sex, that kept up its organization and work, and during that period it overflowed with pupils; and now in this season of sore financial depression it is still full. Parents and guardians would do well to look into this school. It possesses merits of a high order, or it could not so continuously prosper. It draws pupils from a wide area; 31 States were represented last session.

He Will Not Drown Himself.

(From the Troy, N. Y., Times)

R. W. Edwards, of Lansingburgh, was prostrated by sunstroke during the war and it has entailed on him peculiar and serious consequences. At present writing Mr. E. is a prominent officer of Post Lyon, G. A. R., Cohoes and a past aid de camp on the staff of the commander-in-chief of Albany Co. In the interview with a reporter, he said:

"I was wounded and sent to the hospital at Winchester. They sent me together with others to Washington—a ride of about 100 miles. Having no room in the box cars we were placed face up on the bottom of flat cars. The sun beat down upon our unprotected heads. When I reached Washington I was insensible and was unconscious for ten days while in the hospital. An abscess gathered in my ear and broke; it has been gathering and breaking ever since. The result of this 100 mile ride and sunstroke, was, heart disease, nervous prostration, insomnia and rheumatism; a completely shattered system which gave me no rest night or day. As a last resort I took some Pink Pills and they helped me to a wonderful degree. My rheumatism is gone, my heart failure, dyspepsia, and constipation are about gone and the abscess in my ear has stopped discharging and my head feels as clear as a bell when before it felt as though it would burst and my once shattered nervous system is now nearly sound. Look at those fingers," Mr. Edwards said, "do they look as if there was any rheumatism there!" He moved his fingers rapidly and freely and strode about the room like a young boy. "A year ago those fingers were gnarled at the joints and so stiff that I could not hold a pen. My knees would swell up and I could not straighten my leg out. My joints would squeak when I moved them. That is the living truth.

"When I came to think that I was going to be crippled with rheumatism, together with the rest of my ailments, I tell you life seemed not worth living. I suffered from despondency. I cannot begin to tell you," said Mr. Edwards, as he drew a long breath, "what my feeling is at present. I think if you lifted ten years right off my life and left me prime and vigorous at forty-seven I could feel no better. I was an old man and could only drag myself painfully about the house. Now I can walk off without any trouble. That in itself," continued Mr. Edwards, "would be sufficient to give me cause for rejoicing, but when you come to consider that I am no longer what you might call nervous and that my heart is apparently nearly healthy and that I can sleep nights you may realize why I may appear to speak in extravagant praise of Pink Pills. These pills quiet my nerves, take that awful pressure from my head and at the same time enrich my blood. There seemed to be no circulation in my lower limbs a year ago, my legs being cold and clammy at times. Now the circulation there is as full and as brisk as at any other part of my body. I used to be so light headed and dizzy from my nervous disorder that I frequently fell while crossing the floor of my house. Spring is coming and I never felt better in my life, and I am looking forward to a busy season of work."

Dear Recorder:—Sunday, June 9th, pastor Hamrick began a series of meetings at the Baptist church, which continued two weeks; having services only at night. These meetings were conducted in an informal way, and no special effort was made to stir up an excitement among the people, but a deep earnest work seemed to be going on in the hearts of the people, both among the Christians, and the unconverted. Eight joined the church, seven of whom were baptized last Sunday evening. The ordinance of baptism was administered before a large audience by the pastor in a very impressive manner. One still awaits baptism, and several others, who professed faith in Christ during the meeting, are expected to join soon. Quite a number of others were left earnestly inquiring the way of life, and our prayers are that they too may soon be enabled to emerge from nature's darkness into the marvelous light and liberty of the Gospel of our Saviour.

Bro. Hamrick did most of the preaching, but was assisted some by Rev. J. T. Hord and others. Yours in Christ,

J. C. GILLESPIE.

DIED.

GALLOP—Died June 12th, 1895, Dexter Carroll Gallop, infant and only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gallop, Elizabeth City, N. C. Although his earthly existence embraced only two months and twenty-six days, the fond parents had twined the tendrils of their hearts about him, and now they grieve because those tendrils are broken. May the Lord of all grace and comfort give them the strength they need. J. P. SPENCE.

SEELEY—Died at Elizabeth City, N. C., June 22d, 1895, Otelia Seeley, the beloved wife of A. B. Seeley, after a lingering illness, in the forty-fifth year of her age. Sister Seeley had been a faithful member of the Baptist church of Christ since her early girlhood, and died in a triumphant faith. She had been greatly afflicted for many months, but through all of her unutterable suffering she murmured not. The end came in great calmness, and she departed without a struggle. The Lord was graciously with her in the dark valley and shadow to radiate it all with the light of his love. She leaves a devoted husband and two married children, besides a large circle of relatives and friends, to mourn her departure. Her going has made earth poorer but heaven richer. She will ever be held in loving remembrance by all who knew and loved her. C. S. B.

Tributes of Respect.

On May 28th, 1895, near Downsville, N. C., Caldwell county, occurred the saddest accident within the memory of our people. The boiler of Teague & Killian's steam saw mill exploded, killing Pender Oxford, Gordon Oxford, William Jones and Edward Deal, and wounding Elijah Winkler and Rufus Porch.

The undersigned committee having been appointed by the Baptist church at Union, Caldwell county, to prepare a tribute of respect to the memory of William Jones, Gordon Oxford and Isaac Pender Oxford respectfully submit the following:

WILLIAM L. JONES.

William L. Jones was born in Alexander county, and was aged about thirty years. He was an orphan from childhood, and had no near relatives living. He professed faith in Christ and joined Union Baptist church in the year 1890.

WILLIAM GORDON OXFORD.

William Gordon Oxford, son of Sion H. and Lizzie Oxford, was seventeen years and two months old at the time of his death. He was not a member of any church, but was a young man of excellent qualities, kind to his associates and respected by all who knew him.

ISAAC PENDER OXFORD.

Isaac Pender Oxford, son of Sion H. and Lizzie Oxford, was twenty-one years, nine months and twenty days old. He professed faith in Christ in 1890, and at the same time united with the Baptist church at Union, of which he was a faithful and consistent member till the day of his death. His moral qualities were more than ordinary. He was sober, industrious, and faithful to all trusts and confidences reposed in him. He was never known to use unchaste language or indulge in any improper conduct. He had a kind word for all, and the breath of scandal was never on his tongue. He was a natural mechanical genius, and will, if possible, be more missed by our people than any young man that could have been taken from our midst. The members of the committee feel their inability to express the high regard they entertain towards him, but can truly say in the language of Shakespeare, "His life was gentle and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, This was a man!"

We further submit the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Lord in his infinite wisdom to remove from our midst these dear friends and brethren in the manner above described; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That it is with unfeigned sorrow and deep regret that we contemplate their loss to us.

Resolved 2. That we humbly submit to the will of divine wisdom in this sad dispensation of providence.

Resolved 3. That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in this the hour of their great sorrow.

Resolved 4. That these resolutions, with the above obituaries, be spread on the church record; that a copy be furnished the family of the deceased, and that a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and Lenoir Topic for publication, with request that others copy.

For many years I suffered from Catarrh, which destroyed my hearing, and for 25 years I was so deaf that I could not hear a clock strike by holding my ear against it. I had tried every known remedy, and nothing gave me the slightest relief. I obtained Dr. Moore's treatment, and in three weeks my hearing began to improve, and now I can hear common conversation across a room; can hear a clock strike in an adjoining room, 30 feet away. I think I am entirely cured, and my hearing permanently restored.

Cedar Rock Academy & Business Institute.

CEDAR ROCK, N. C.,
W. A. SMITH, B. A., Principal.

This school is situated in a fine farming section in Franklin county, 11 miles east of Louisburg. The surrounding community is densely settled by a cultured, hospitable and progressive people. The moral and religious influences are excellent. The good water and wholesome air makes it a healthful locality, almost entirely free from malaria.

We prepare for college or for practical business life, and make a specialty of preparing young men and young ladies for teachers in the academies and public schools. The Commercial and Music Departments also offer superior advantages. The music department is well supplied with the very best instruments, and is in charge of an experienced and thoroughly competent teacher. Young ladies wishing to make a specialty of music are offered excellent advantages, since we have a sufficient supply of instruments to give all the practice desired.

For the School of Art a special teacher has already been employed whose whole attention will be given to that department.

Board, including furnished rooms, within a short distance from the academy, can be had at $7.00 per month. Girls, unless otherwise requested, are required to board with the Principal. Young men and young ladies are not allowed to board at same boarding house under any circumstances. We take a special oversight of the girls committed to our charge. Mrs. Smith (wife of the Principal) endeavors in every way possible to see after their interest.

Tuition rates are very low, ranging from $1 to $2.50 per month. The session of 1895-'6 opens Aug. 19th. For further information write the Principal for catalog. W. A. SMITH.

Live on the Field of Battle.

Live on the field of battle;
Be earnest in the fight;
Stand forth with manly courage;
And struggle for the right
Live! live! live!
On the field of battle!

Watch on the field of battle;
The foe is everywhere;
His fiery darts fly thickly,
Like lightning through the air,
Watch! watch! watch!
On the field of battle!

Pray on the field of battle!
God works with those who pray;
His mighty arm can nerve us,
And make us win the day.
Pray! pray! pray!
On the field of battle!

Die on the field of battle;
'Tis noble thus to die;
God smiles on valiant soldiers—
Their record is on high.
Die! die! die!
On the field of battle.

The Fool Family.

An annonymous Spanish author of the seventeenth century wrote an amusing and instructive pedigree of fools, which is perhaps as good a text as can be found, for the year eighteen hundred and ninety four. I shall not give the entire genealogy; indeed it would be quite impossible for me to do so, since fools constitute a majority of mankind. Certainly the wise men think so. "All men think all men mortal but themselves," says Dr. Young, and though few men admit their own folly, most men are quick to see the folly of others.

But here is the fools' family tree. Lost Time married Ignorance, and had a son called I Thought, who married Youth, and had the following children: I Didn't Know, I Didn't Think, Who Would Have Expected. Who Would Have Expected married Heedlessness, and had among other children, To-morrow Will Do, There's Plenty of Time, Next Opportunity. There's Plenty of Time married Miss I Didn't Think, and had for family I Forgot, I Know All About It, Nobody Can Deceive Me. I Know All About It espoused Vanity and begot Pleasure, who became the father of Let Us Enjoy Ourselves and Bad Luck. Pleasure married Folly for a second partner. Consuming their inheritance, they said one to the other, Let us spend our capital and enjoy ourselves this year, for God will provide for the next. But Deception took them to Prison, and Poverty to the workhouse, where they died. Their grandchild, Despair, begged enough money for a rope and hanged himself—"which," says the author, "is the end of the family of Fools."

But he is greatly mistaken; the fools are not all dead; and some of them are very much alive. Lost Time, To-morrow Will Do and There's Plenty of Time are to be met in the street, at the club, in store and house, in society and in church, and even in the sick room and the chamber of death. Pleasure, Vanity and Folly hold their assemblies everywhere, and spend their capital and take no thought for the morrow as gayly and heedlessly as they ever did in the seventeenth century in old Spain.

We have had abundant evidence, in New York and Chicago and Washington at least, during the past year, of the folly of mankind. We have also learned the inspiration and inerrancy of such words of wisdom as these: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge, but fools despise wisdom and instruction." "He that walketh with wise men shall be wise; but a companion of fools shall be destroyed." "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." "Boast not thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."—New York Observer's "Augustus Letters."

When You Visit.

When you are invited to pay a visit to a friend, you should, if possible, find out how long your visit is to be, so that you may not interfere with any other plans your hostess may have made. It would facilitate matters very much if every one that invites a friend to stay with her would state the limit of the invitation as well as the time of coming.

Do not begin your visit with a disappointment. If you have signified your purpose to arrive on a certain train, let nothing but illness prevent your taking that train. If you are ill, telegraph at once so that no one may be put to the trouble of meeting you.

Be punctual at all meals. Get up as soon as the rising bell rings, and do not let the breakfast be delayed on your account. It should be unnecessary to say this, but I have known girls that would "lie just a minute after being called, then dawdle over their dressing, and be ten minutes late, making all of the rest wait for them, since the hostess naturally does not wish to serve breakfast before the appearance of her guests. A visitor becomes an unwelcome one if she does this, and she will not speedily be asked to repeat her visit.

Keep your room in order. Before you go down to breakfast see that your bed is taken apart, and the clothing put to air. Take care of all your toilet articles and your own clothing.

If your hostess has more than one servant, you will probably find your bed made and your room arranged when you go upstairs from your chat with your hostess after breakfast. If she does her own work, or has only one servant, whose duties keep her in the kitchen, go quietly to your own room, and take care of it yourself.

Do not exact constant attention from your hostess. While she is about her household duties, you may write your letters, read, or do anything to amuse yourself; only be amused, and do not act bored or hurt because you are left to yourself. If you are sufficiently intimate with her to ask to go with her while she is busy, offer to help her, make the tasks pleasant by doing them together.

Before you leave home provide yourself with all the little toilet necessities: pins, safety pins, needles, darning silk and cotton, thread, silk, scissors, and plenty of stationery and stamps.

Do your part in entertaining. Be bright and cheerful. If you have any pleasing accomplishment, be ready to display it if asked by your hostess, and respond to her request as if it were a pleasure to confer a pleasure.

In short, be thoughtful and considerate, be sensible and helpful, be natural and be amiable, which, I hope, is being natural. You will in such a case be a model visitor.

Living by the Day.

My friend, learn to take short views. If you have money enough to day for your daily wants, and something over for Christ's treasury, don't torment yourself with the idea that you will yet fetch up in an alms house. If your children cluster around your table to-day, enjoy the music of their voices, train them for God and trust them to God without racking yourself with a dread that the little one may be carried off by scarlet fever, or the older ones may fall into bad marriages or some other disaster. Faith carries present loads, meets present assaults, feeds on present promises, and commits the future to a faithful God. Its daily song is:

'Keep thou my feet; I do not ask to see

So we exhort you again most earnestly to take short views. Let us not climb the high wall till we get to it, or fight the battle till it opens, or shed tears over sorrows that never come, or lose the joys and the blessings that we have by the sinful fear that God may take them away from us. We need all the grace that he can give us for to day's burdens and to day's battles. I would not penetrate in the secrets which to morrow hides, if I could It is far better to know whom we trust, and that he is able to keep all that we commit to him until the last great day.

"Why forecast the trials of life
With such sad and grave persistence,
And look and watch for a brood of ills
That as yet have no existence?

Strength for to-day is all we need,
For we never will see to-morrow;
When it comes the morrow will be a to-day
With its measure of joy or sorrow"
—Dr Cuyler.

Liquor and Labor.

In one of the towns of Illinois a banker put his private mark on the money he paid out on Saturday night to the wage workers of the town who patronized his bank; and on Monday night, of the $700 paid out and marked privately, over $300 had come back to him from the saloons of that town!—Ex.

Scientific authority now acknowledges what practical farmers said long ago, that corncobs have a feeding value when ground with the corn. At first they denied this, because analysis did not show it; then they thought they might be of benefit by mixing with the meal and preventing it from packing so closely. Now Sir Lyon Playfair, of England, says that when ground along with the grain the "cobs are of great value on account of their percentage of potash, and the potash is necessary as a chemical agent to change the blood to milk, and the albumen to caseine in cheese."

"Divide the volume of money and you divide the value of products."

"Divide the volume of money and you double the debt."

"Double the volume of money and you divide the debt."

Make sure that, however good you may be, you have faults; that, however dull you may be, you can find out what they are; and that, however slight they may be, you would better make some patient effort to get quit of them.—Ruskin.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

RESTORES
Color, Fullness and Texture TO HAIR
Which has become Wiry, Thin, or Gray.

"Some five years ago, I was not a little alarmed to discover that my hair was falling out, threatening speedy baldness. AYER'S Hair Vigor being recommended, I procured a bottle and at once applied it to my hair and scalp, continuing to do so for several weeks, and was happily surprised that my hair stopped falling and new hair came out full of life and vigor. AYER'S Hair Vigor does not only restore new hair, but gives new life and vigor to its growth, and is a blessing to all who use it." Rev. D. J. BURT, Baptist Minister and Clerk of the Superior Court, Dawsonville, Ga.

Biblical Recorder

SUPPLEMENT.

RALEIGH, N. C., JULY 10, 1895.

OUR SUPPLEMENT.

We issue this supplement to the BIBLICAL RECORDER in the special interest of our Baptist Sunday School Chautauqua. The matter for this supplement has been prepared by Bro. N. B. Broughton, the President, and his co-laborers in this movement.

The coming session of the Chautauqua already gives promise of a great gathering. We hope every Sunday School Superintendent and Teacher that can do so will be present.

RED SPRINGS AS THE PLACE OF MEETING.

There are many reasons why the Committee are to be congratulated for having unanimously voted in favor of Red Springs as the meeting place of the Chautauqua this year.

In the first place Red Springs is within easy reach of everybody who is at all likely to attend. We are on the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad, five miles from the Atlantic Coast Line, eleven from the Seaboard Air Line, twenty-four miles from Fayetteville, sixty-five from Sanford, and about four hours from Greensboro, where all the railroads centre.

Then we have ample hotel accommodations, a luxury we did not enjoy at Mt. Vernon Springs. Many of us remember the jam and confusion at the Mt. Vernon (though the proprietor did everything in his power for our comfort) and the sardine-like pressure of the people at meal time. Here we can entertain four times as many people, giving every three or four men a good airy room, for the same money we paid at Mt. Vernon.

Red Springs will not offer a small building, but a grand Tabernacle, built for just such meetings as this, and having capacity for seating very comfortably four thosaund people. Our Presbyterian brethren built the Tabernacle, but ask us to take it without money or price, and to feel just like we owned every shingle on it.

Instead of one or two springs, the woods are full of them here. The water is the best appetizer I have ever seen. It is exactly what the man "run down" by the toil and burden of business needs. Dyspeptics will find it invaluable. Five days' use of this water will kill any case of the blues.

Then we have the local surroundings. There are a great many excellent people living near here. It is an old Scotch settlement and the people are hospitable, high-toned and cultured. The neighborhood itself could furnish a bigger Chautauqua, so far as number is concerned, than we had at Mt. Vernon, and the Robeson Association which lies all around Red Springs, they tell me, has five thousand Baptists in it.

Above all, this section needs the Chautauqua. Our people need the stimulus this grand meeting always gives. We feel that it will be indeed a benediction to us to have so fine a representation of the Baptists of North Carolina as the meeting will bring, and that the Sunday School work, so much neglected and so poorly done, will be quickened into new and vigorous life as the methods and plans and aims of the work are unfolded to us by those who have made it a life study.

Now, are not these good reasons for coming to Red Springs? We hope our people will make some sacrifice, if need be, to attend the Chautauqua, and we know well enough, if they will only come to Red Springs this year, they will be easily induced to come in 1896.

ARCHIBALD JOHNSON.

RED SPRINGS, N. C., May 21, 1895.

WHERE ARE YOUR BIG MEN?

We showed our programme to a good brother the other day and he asked, "Where are yonr big men?"

That brother has never been to one of our Chautauqua meetings, or else he would have known that all of our men are big men, and that is just where so much pleasure and profit comes in.

It is a meeting of workers and learners. No man knows it all, or even thinks he does. That is, if any such brother has come to us we didn't find it out.

THE CHAUTAUQUA LAST YEAR.

What some of those who attended the session last year have to say of the impressions and benefits received by being present:

It is utterly impossible for me to enumerate the many good impressions received at the session of the Chautauqua at Mt. Vernon Springs last year. Never can I forget that meeting—that delightful music, those sermons so soul-stirring and helpful, those splendid addresses. Indeed, the exercises of the entire session are all fresh in my memory now, and I believe they have been an inspiration to me that will last even into eternity. Greater earnestness or more spirituality I have never seen in any meeting. Surely the Holy Spirit was with us, and God's blessing upon us.

The benefits to be derived from such a meeting are inestimable. If possible I shall attend again this year. Indeed, I do not see how I can afford to be absent. N. D. WELLS.

Princeton, N. C.

I attended the second annual meeting of the N. C. Baptist Sunday School Chautauqua at Mt. Vernon Springs August 28 to September 2, 1894. New ideas received from practical suggestions by Sunday School workers, and new methods gathered from mutual interchange of ways and means of teaching and conducting classes in the Sunday School, gave me much encouragement and great inspiration, and as a result of the good obtained at the meeting, I have realized increased interest and brighter hopes in the prosecution of my labors in the Sunday School work. With other workers at the Chautauqua, I was deeply impressed with the presence and power of the Spirit at every session, and at our separation I felt that we could sing "with the spirit and the understanding," "God be with you till we meet again."

Raleigh, N. C. W. H. DODD.

It gives me great pleasure to say that the meetings of the Sunday School Chautauqua are exceedingly interesting and helpful to the Sunday School teacher and Christian worker. I have attended a good many religious meetings, and desire to say that I have never attened one that I enjoyed more, and been more spiritually benefitted than the meeting I attended at Mt. Vernon last summer. I shall, if possible, attend the next session.

Aulander, N. C. A. W. EARLY.

The Chautauqua at Mt. Vernon Springs was a season of unusual enjoyment and instruction. I felt and still feel that we all grew in grace.

Thomasville, N. C. J. H. MILLS.

The Chautauqua at Mt. Vernon Springs last year was not only a most inspiring and profitable Sunday School teachers' meeting, but a feast of good things for the soul as well.

I should be delighted to have an opportunity to attend another such meeting.

REV. O. L. STRINGFIELD.

Raleigh, N. C.

I think various ideas suggested by different Sunday School workers from numerous schools in the State were strengthening and very beneficial to Sunday School workers.

Henderson, N. C. W. W. PARKER.

I feel sure that the meeting last year gave a great stimulus to more and better work, especially to superintendents and teachers. I was much benefitted; and besides the greater benefits, the social features will tend to draw us nearer together, with more mutual sympathies.

Roxboro, N. C. T. H. STREET.

The Chautauqua enforces the truth that the Sunday School is a great agency in giving the growing mind right conceptions of goodness and truth. Those who attend may expect not only pleasant social communion and recreation, but also healthful instruction from many able speakers. H. H. HORNE.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

I was more than pleased with the Sunday School Chautauqua, and think it is the place par excellence for any worker or lover of Sunday School work. It is a Sunday School University. All who love Sunday Schools should attend, and Superintendents especially.

Roxobell, N. C. P. C. JENKINS, M. D.

As we think about it, the pertinence of our banker's suggestion becomes clear, since the giving of money is only one mode of charity. One may have all charity but never a cent to show it; it is indeed as much the land, thirty feet deep, 217 feet wide at top, 86 at bottom; and ladened steamers go up and down where men reaped grain a few years ago. How helpless would he be, were God against him!

OUR THIRD SESSION.

The North Carolina Baptist Sunday School Chautauqua held its first meeting at Mt. Vernon Springs, beginning on the 24th day of August, 1893. It was born of the felt necessity for an annual gathering of Sunday School workers, where they might compare methods, suggest plans of improvement, and create more interest in the work and in the way of doing the same.

The success of the first meeting was beyond all expectation in the attendance and the good accomplished; for be it known that the Chautauqua was planned just one month and a half before it met.

The second annual session also met at Mt. Vernon Springs, and from the first day was attended by large crowds, and every day was filled with intense interest. So rapidly had the attendance grown that it was thought best to change the location for the third session, in order to secure the necessary hotel accommodations.

Those of us who gathered at Mt. Vernon Springs will never forget the delightful time spent there, nor the kindness of the people of the community.

Our third session is before us, and there is every prospect that it will be a noted gathering. Some brethren say that we will be met by such a crowd of people as is seldom seen at a religious gathering. The programme embraces many features made prominent at each of the other meetings. The fact is, "Teaching: How to do it, and how not to do it," should always be kept as the prominent work of the Chautauqua.

And the best way to show it, and to learn it, is by taking a lesson, form a class and teach them, as we have done heretofore, and propose to do at the coming session.

One of the best evidences of the success of the past two meetings is the enthusiasm of those who attended, and their zeal in persuading others to join with them in going to Red Springs this year. We have yet to hear of one person attending either of the past sessions that did not feel well paid.

The organization is simple and quite free. It is not a delegated body. Any person interested in Sunday School work is invited to come. It is a Baptist organization, because organized by Baptists who felt its need for their people. But denominational lines are not raised and no one is prevented from enjoying the benefits of the work because he is not a Baptist.

It is not a legislative body, a mission conference, an orphanage association or an educational mass meeting, and yet missions, the orphans and education are advanced by the gathering.

It is a meeting for the development of Sunday School work and workers.

N. B. BROUGHTON.

OUR MUSIC.

We are fortunate in the prospect of having with us at Red Springs as the leader of our music, Prof. J. H. Ruebush, of Hagerstown, Maryland. Those who attended the Chautauqua last year will remember his helpfnlness in all our meetings, but especially his ease and grace as the leader of the song services.

The orchestra of the Baptist Tabernacle of Raleigh will be present to aid in the music, and to this will be added that of Reidsville, recently organized.

Prof. W. Frank Blount, of Hope Mills, who is agent for the celebrated Kimball pianos and organs, has kindly consented to have one of each of these excellent instruments at Red Springs for our use. Mr. Blount, himself a fine musician, will aid in our music.

During the progress of the Chautauqua Prof. Ruebush will give, from time to time, hints on voice culture, teaching of singing to children, etc.

The Song Book to be used on the occasion will be called "Chautauqua Songs," and has been prepared with special reference to our meeting.

THE SISTERS.

The greater proportion of Sunday School teachers are women. Our Chautauqua is intended for their benefit just as much as for anybody, and we earnestly invite the sisters to come. Special accommodation will be afforded the ladies, and none need hesitate about coming.

Don't bother about bringing a great big trunk. The Chautauqua is not a place of dress and show.

PROGRESS.

It is gratifying to see the progress that has been made in the Sunday School work in the last decade. The lesson helps have been greatly improved and greatly extended, so that every person who wishes to study the Bible can have the helps of the best commentaries that exist free, or almost free. The best brains and hearts of the world are devoting their powers to the preparation of these lesson helps For this every parent and every lover of the Gospel should be profoundly grateful.

Men who have given years, yea, their lives, to the spread of the Gospel through the Sunday School have canvassed our broad land from shore to shore, illustrating Sunday School methods and arousing the latent powers of Christians to the importance of teaching the Word to the young.

Much thought and expnse have been bestowed on the equipment of the Sunday School rooms. It has been made attractive to the general populace, and thereby many have been brought under the influence of the Gospel through this means. No preaching from the pulpit is so powerful as the preaching from a devout Christian to ten or twelve in a room alone, especially if that teacher has first been alone with God.

No pains have been spared to improve the music for the Sunday School, both in the way of books and songs, and also in the rendering of such music in song and on musical instruments. We have greatly under-estimated the value of good music in bringing people under the influence of the Gospel, and in sending it to the hearts of the people. Many a hard heart has been softened by the power of music, into which the good seed has fallen in its thus softened condition, and brought forth fruit to the glory of His name. Evil spirits have been driven away from more than Saul by the skillful playing of some modern David.

The rising generation is being trained in giving far in advance of anything in former times. Hence, the increased impetus in missions in all denominations. Methods of study and teaching have engaged the thought of the Sunday School workers of all the world, and this has almost doubled the power of the work.

These are only a few of the lines of progress that we may see by a backward glance through the last ten years. Now what shall mark the next ten? This should engage our serious attention. Many of the old Soldiers of the Cross have gone to the "Grand Camping Ground" to be with their dear Lord, and they have left the responsibilities on us. Where shall we plant the banner of our Captain? What heights shall we scale? What trophies shall we gather? What enemies shall we conquer? On every hill and in every land let us "crown Him Lord of all."

To this end we want to meet every worker at Red Springs camping ground and muster for the fight. We need trained soldiery to vanquish the foe we have to meet. In His name let us conquer.

C. A. R.

"TOO POOR TO GO."

A friend, looking upon an immense cornfield, asked the farmer, "What are you going to do with all this corn?" "Raise hogs," he replied. "What will you do with the hogs?" "Buy land." "What will you do with more land?" "Raise more corn and hogs."

And so it went on; "land, corn, hogs—hogs, land, corn."

Some of our brethren are too poor to attend the Chautauqua because they are busy raising corn for hogs to sell to buy more land; or if not corn, it is tobacco or cotton.

"Too poor and too busy" to take a week off and get fresh strength, fresh ideas, better equipment for doing the Lord's work.

Our work is no larger than our conception of it. The Sunday School Teacher that succeeds must have his mind improved and enlarged to take in the great possibilities of his work, and with this he will seek every opportunity for help.

OTHER BRETHREN.

A good brother of the Methodist Church, a most successful business man living west of Raleigh, told us a few days ago that he had made up his mind to see our Sunday School Chautauqua this year.

In fact, we have had brethren of nearly all the denominations to express a desire and purpose to be with us.

Our invitation is come.

"WE'LL BE THERE."

"I was up at Red Springs last week. All the people are pleased at the idea of meeting at Red Springs. The water is delightful, and hotel accommodations fine; it is the best place in the State to meet. I am so glad to know that we are going to meet at Red Springs that I hardly know how to thank the committee. JAS. A. SMITH, Pastor at Fair Bluff."

Brother B. W. Spillman, of Kinston, the brother who "laughs and grows fat," says: "Unless something goes to pieces I will be on hand."

Prof. M. M. Lemmond, of Asheville, says: "I am very anxious to attend the Chautauqua, and think that I will be there."

Dr. C. J. Watkins, of Winston, who has had many years of experience in the work, writes: "I think I shall take ten minutes of my time in telling how to teach a stranger's class and the remainder of the time in teaching the lesson assigned me."

Mrs. W. B. Hatcher: "Hope to be with you all at Red Springs. May God prepare and fill every heart for the occasion, that His name may be glorified."

Rev. J. Q. ADAMS, who is to preach our Chautauqua sermon, writes: "You may count on me for the post assigned me."

Rev. J. F. Tuttle, of Whiteville, says: "I accept the place assigned me on the program, and desire to express the wish that the meetiug will be a great success."

Rev. L. Johnson, of Lumberton: "Will be pleased to do what little I may be able to make the Chautauqua a success."

Capt. Duncan McNeill, of Riverton, N. C., writes: "I am glad you are going to have the Sunday School Chautauqua at Red Springs this year. The dates fixed upon suit splendidly."

Rev. C. A. G. Thomas, Greensboro: "I will be on hand, if there is no providential hindrance."

THE INFLUENCE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CHAUTAUQUA AS I HAVE SEEN IT.

Influence is hard to trace in its many bearings upon ourselves and upon others. But there are some which are very clearly seen. 1. The influence of song has reached out in many sections of the State. At Ramseur, where I am pastor, I have seen the direct influence of the Chautauqua. In our protracted meeting, which was one of great power, we used the Chautauqua's book, which has helped to build up our school. I have seen the Chautauqua's influence in two other associations in stimulating a deeper interest in the Sunday School work. The impressions upon my own heart have been deep and lasting, because of the spiritual enjoyment which it imparted to my soul. No one can attend the Chautauqua without being greatly helped by the inspiration which it will impart to him spiritually.

S. F. CONRAD.

WINSTON, N. C., May 6, 1895.

WHY PAY BOARD.

Several places in North Carolina have been kind enough to say to our Executive Committee, if you will bring the Chautauqua to us we will entertain the visitors free of charge.

While appreciating this offer the committee have felt it best to stick to the original idea of securing board at a low rate, and let every person attending pay his bill. In this we believe the perpetuity of the movement depends. We have believed that it would become a popular gathering, and that we should soon be like the Southern Baptist Convention, in one respect, at least, too large to be wanted.

The low rate given us for first class hotel accommodations at Red Springs is all that could be desired. We shall not be a burden to the good people of that community, and it is quite possible they will say as they did at Mt. Vernon Springs, "Do come back here next year."

It was my privilege to attend the second annual meeting of the North Carolina Baptist Sunday School Chautauqua at Mt. Vernon Springs. The meeting was an inspiration to me and its spiritual influence followed me for many days after. I know of no meeting which has been more helpful to the Sunday School teacher and worker than this. If this meeting is a prophecy of what the next will be, I would sincerely advise every Sunday School worker to be present. To miss the Chautauqua is to miss one of the best meetings of the year. Let every one who can go and be blessed.

ARE WE WAKING UP?

That the Baptists of North Carolina do not ppreciate the great power of the Sunday chool work is well known. We have been busily engaged with our great Mission work nd with the cause of Education that the Sunay School cause has not been given the attenon necessary to its vigorous prosecution.

Here and there the brethren have become roused and new life and proper equipment ave been afforded the Sunday School and radually the great possibilities are dawning pon the brethren.

Some of us believe that we are on the eve of ch an awakening on the importance of the unday School to all the work of the church s we have never had. That the churches will oon wake up to see that the Sunday School as passed the stage of babyhood; that it is no nger a "nursery to the church," a "plantd," as it has so often been called in the past, ut that it is the great open door of the church rough which all may enter from the youngest the oldest for the purpose of studying God's ord.

That in the Sunday School as in no other ace is offered the opportunity to reach the eople with the Gospel.

That in the Sunday School young Christians ay be trained for intelligent service in the aster's vineyard, and the older people can fe give encouragement to those who are to ke their places and prepare them for so doing.

What a blessing a live, progressive Sunday chool is to the Pastor, and yet we do not beeve very many of them realize it.

But there is growing improvement along this ne, and one of the great aims of the Chauuqua is to arouse our whole people to the eat future spread out before the Baptists of orth Carolina if only they will lay hold of e Sunday School work.

"AUGUST WHISPERINGS."

The earth is full of melody. The trees whisr and nod and bend to the breeze. The flowers unt their pretty faces in the fragrant air; the rds are warbling; the bees are humming, and id it all comes another whisper, the best of —what is it? Why the Chautauqua gatherg at Red Springs! Have you ever been? not, why not? It is a goodly place. Why? cause, first of all, the God of love sits enroned in its sessions. Brotherly love beams every eye, heart answers to heart throb, and nd to hand-shake, and there is a strange, eet feeling that we have as we strike hands th the godly men and women from all parts the Master's vineyard.

Two of the most helpful, spiritual and deghtfully social weeks of my life have been ent at the Chautauquas of 1893-'94. How heart burned within me as we walked and lked of the Master's work. In fact it would very hard to keep one woman, at least, away om Red Springs. We are all dependent one the other, however much we may deny the sertion, and nowhere do we feel that sweet ristian cheer and help by association with e another as we do in this annual gathering Sunday School workers. A special reason y we should attend the Chautauqua is that e may be helpful to others. We ought to be lling to make any sacrifice, that God may able us to guide and comfort others. We are eager for promotion in life, but so few are sacrifice for it. It will cost money, time and her things to go; but if we may gather rength to help others in better methods of aching, should we not feel honored to sacrie for Him who gave even His own life for us? we would be truly and deeply helpful we st be willing to pay for the tuition, however stly. Our own hearts must be taught ere we n teach others; our own hearts break before e can give comfort. If it costs you nothing go to the Chautauqua, it is not worth your ing. It is those who sow in tears that reap joy. Why have I written this: only that I y induce some one who has not been with us fore to come and be with the saints that shall ther at Red Springs August 13th.

MRS. T. M. TUCKER.

☞ WE SPENT the Fourth day of July Red Springs. The hotels, Tabernacle, the neral springs, the shade and the beautiful tle village, with its kind and hospitable peoe are all that have been claimed for them. nd they are all that heart could wish for our autauqua meeting.

WHAT BRO. CADE THINKS.

It was my privilege and my pleasure to attend both sessions of the Sunday School Chautauqua; and I cannot estimate the good I got out of the meetings. I have been in the habit of attending and enjoying such meetings for many years. But I have attended no other meetings, I think, which were so valuable and enjoyable to me as were those at Mt. Vernon Springs.

There was positively no formality in any of the services; there was no discussions that were not brotherly, affectionate, spiritual. The information imparted was extensive, accurate and valuable; the spirit evinced was warm, tender, Christly. I am sure no one attended who did not have his life quickened and his sympathies enlarged.

I trust there will be a large attendance at the next meeting at Red Springs.

BAYLUS CADE.

WHY SHOULD I ATTEND THE CHAUTAUQUA?

1. Because "as iron sharpeneth iron, so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend."

2. Because I need the enthusiasm of such a meeting.

3. Because my school needs help in methods of teaching and good music.

4. Because I need the prayers and sympathies of my fellow-workers.

5. Because the community in which I live needs the inspiration which I might impart.

6. Because the Sunday School work of the State cannot be well done without co-operation, and I must throw in my influence to help on the work.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

—Dr. L. G. Broughton, of Roanoke, Va., has promised to join with us again this year.

—Yes, we want the old men, too. God bless the fathers in Israel! Come and help, and enjoy.

—One of the young ladies who attended the Chautauqua last year has since married. What an encouragement to others!

—Brother B. W. Spillman will make us "Laugh and Grow Fat," and if you don't hear him on Thursday night you'll wish you had.

—A class of boys and girls from our Baptist Orphanage, at Thomasville, will be with us, and on Thursday, the 15th, give some special exercises in songs and recitations.

We want the young, the ambitious, the yearning souls, who long for a more useful life, to be in our meetings from opening to close. They will grow.

—The hotels, the Tabernacle, and the springs are all near together. Plenty of shade, good water in abundance, and the companionship of a band of cheerful, hopeful, spiritual workers.

—The sisters? Why, yes. What good work do they not lay hold on? Their songs, and prepared papers, and prayers—we want them all. Come, sisters, inspire and cheer, and get a blessing.

—It is a remarkable fact that no one attending the Chautauqua has ever been heard to say of one of our meetings "It ought to have been done so and so;" "It was not what I expected, nor what I think it should have been." These sort stay at home and growl.

—One of the most helpful feautures about the Chautauqua program is the daily practical demonstration of "how to teach the lesson." Many are helped just where they have needed help ever so long, as the lesson is taught by experienced and successful teachers. The manner is seen, teaching points are seen, defects come to light, and the "how" is learned as never before; and no doubt many a teacher who, realizing the importance of the work, has longed to be able to do the work better, as he thinks others certainly do. At the Chautauqua meeting he sees the work done by those he has regarded far his superiors in teaching the Word. Now, for the first time, he sees his own strength as a teacher by comparison with the best; he takes fresh hope and courage, and goes back to his school with new zeal and satisfaction.

HOTEL TOWNSEND,

RED SPRINGS, N. C.

S. R. TOWNSEND, Proprietor.

This elegant and commodious Hotel is open for the reception of guests. The location is remarkable for the beauty of its surroundings. Its healthfulness and the medical virtues of the mineral waters are unsurpassed by those of any other health resort in the South, as hundreds can testify who have tested their curative properties, situated within a short distance of the Hotel Townsend, several of them having been discovered by deep artesian borings, and affording twenty-one gallons per minute of health-giving water, consisting of iron, sulphur, magnesia, etc., but no two of them exactly alike, as shown by analysis of State Chemist.

THERE ARE SIX MINERAL SPRINGS

The Red Springs are located immediately on the line of the C. F. & Y. V. Railway, and can be reached from any part of the country.

Ample opportunities are afforded for outdoor amusement. The table is supplied with the best the markets afford, and those who may stop at the Hotel Townsend may rest assured that no pains will be spared to render them comfortable.

S. R. TOWNSEND, Red Sgrings, N. C.

As we think about it, the pertinence of our banker's suggestion becomes clear, since the giving of money is only one mode of charity. One may have all charity but never a cent to show it; it is indeed as much

Now sixty-three miles have been cut through the land, thirty feet deep, 217 feet wide at top, 86 at bottom; and ladened steamers go up and down where men reaped grain a few years ago. How helpless would he be, were God against him!

HOW TO GET THERE.

If you start on the line of the Southern Railroad west of Durham or Greensboro, change cars at Greensboro and take the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Road and go straight through, reaching Red Springs at 5:40 P. M.

If you take the Southern at Durham or east of it, go to Selma and change to Atlantic Coast Line for Fayetteville, where you take the C. F. & Y. V. R. R. to Red Springs without delay. For instance, leaving Raleigh at 1:10 P. M. reach Red Springs at 5:40 P. M.

If you take cars on line of S. A. L., and can get on the "Atlanta Special," close connection can be made at Hamlet, for Maxton and Red Springs. For instance, leaving Raleigh at 5:35 A. M., reach Red Springs at 9:55 A. M. By the regular passenger train of S. A. L., a delay of one night will be necessary at Sanford or Hamlet.

RAILROAD RATES.

We have made every effort possible to secure favorable railroad rates to the Chautauqua; and, although not securing all that we hoped, have obtained the usual reduction over the Southern and Atlantic, and a lower rate than that over the Seaboard Air Line. We have not had definite information from the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley. Their rates we hope will be unusually favorable.

The following letters explain themselves:

SEABOARD AIR LINE,

PORTSMOUTH, VA., May 20, 1895.

Mr. N. B. Broughton, Raleigh, N. C.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your favor of the 17th instant. So far as our line is concerned, we will be glad to authorize rates to Red Springs, N. C., on account of N. C. Baptist Sunday School Chautauqua on the same basis as is made to Morehead City, on account of Teachers' Assembly, and we have so notified the other lines in the State of North Carolina.

We will issue circular to our agents instructing them as to rates, sales of tickets, etc.

Yours truly,
C. J. ANDERSON,
General Passenger Agent.

ASSOCIATED RAILWAYS OF VIRGINIA AND THE CAROLINAS.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE. PIEDMONT AIR LINE.

RICHMOND, VA., June 28, 1895.

N. B. Broughton, Esq., President, Raleigh, N. C.

DEAR SIR: Your letters May 17, 21, 25, and June 7. All lines in the State having agreed thereto, I have issued authority authorizing the sale of round-trip tickets to Red Springs, N. C., on basis of the enclosed distance tariff, from all points in the State.

Tickets on sale August 12, 13 and 14; final limit August 20, inclusive.

Yours truly,
W. H. FITZGERALD,
Commissioner.

CAPE FEAR AND YADKIN VALLEY RAILWAY COMPANY.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., May 21, 1895.

Mr. N. B. Broughton, Raleigh, N. C.

DEAR SIR: I have your esteemed favor in regard to meeting of the N. C. Baptist Sunday School Chautauqua at Red Springs, August 13 to 18. As you understand, the rates for meetings of this kind will have to be agreed to by the several railroads. I will take the matter up with the Commissioner of the Associated Roads, and obtain the very lowest rates possible. We have summer excursion tickets on sale to Red Springs at the usual low rate, which can be utilized where special rate would be higher. I am very glad, indeed, that you have decided to hold your meeting at Red Springs, and do not think you could have selected a more suitable place. The Red Springs community is noted in all the country round for their morality and hospitality, and there is no finer water to be found in the State. They also have a building sufficiently large to accommodate a large crowd.

Very respectfully,
General Passenger Agent.

☞ Apply to the agent at your place a few days before the time to start and find out what the rates are. If you find that he has received no instruction, let me know it by postal card or telegraph, and if I can help you will gladly do so. N. B. BROUGHTON.

ONE HUNDRED SUPERINTENDENTS.

It is not too much to say that there should be not less than one hundred Sunday School Superintendents at Red Springs, each with as many of his teachers as he can persuade to go.

WHAT IS THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CHAUTAUQUA FOR?

Is not this a proper question? They are not held simply to give some person a chance to speak. Good speeches are good things; but only when they have some purpose beyond their simple delivery.

The Chautauqua is not held for the purpose of passing complimentary resolutions. Good resolutions are all right, but in themselves are not of sufficient importance to justify the calling of a convention to secure their adoption.

The Sunday school Chautauqua is for work; to give those present an opportunity to gain a knowledge of "what to do," and "how to do it." The conviction of the tremendous importance of the Sunday school is taking hold of the people with great force, and as well the conviction that the work done in this field can be greatly improved. Now let us know how this can be done.

Besides, the Chautauqua is held to arouse inspiration and awaken determination upon the part of those present to do better work. We not only need to know what and how to do, but we need determination to do. Perhaps here is one of our greatest lacks. Nehemiah succeeded in rebuilding the wall of Jerusalem, not only by telling the people how to do it, but by awakening within them "a mind to work."

TO THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Why not send your Superintendent to the Chautauqua? It is a growing and becoming custom for the church to send its pastor to the State Convention, and many of them pay his expenses also to the Southern Baptist Convention.

Now, let the Sunday School show its appreciation of the Superintendent by sending him to the Chautauqua at Red Springs. You want him to keep up with the best plans and methods of his work. Give him a chance to do so by offering to pay his railroad fare and hotel bill if he will go to the Chautauqua; and if he won't go, pick out some one of your active teachers and send him or her.

THE COST OF THE ROUND TRIP AND BOARD.

Estimating from Raleigh to Red Springs 111 miles, the railroad fare will be about $5 for the round trip. Reaching Red Springs on Tuesday and remaining until the following Monday will require six day's board at $1 per day.

The whole cost of the trip from Raleigh will be $11. If you live nearer than 111 miles, the railroad fare will be less in proportion. If you are farther away from Red Springs than Raleigh, just add two cents for each mile to the railroad fare and you will strike about right for your expenses.

TO OUR BRETHREN AND FRIENDS OF MT. VERNON SPRINGS SECTION.

We earnestly hope many of you will show how you appreciate the Chautauqua, by joining us this year at Red Springs.

We shall never forget the happy hours spent with you in old Mt. Vernon Springs church. Strangers came to you, now you come and go with us to the new location.

Some of these days, when you get the new church house, and the hotel is enlarged, we will go back to Mt. Vernon Springs.

PASTOR'S CONFERENCE.

It is the desire of many to have an annual conference of pastors, say for a day's meeting, at same time and place of our Chautauqua. This could be done without at all interrupting us. For instance, while we are in session in the Tabernacle at Red Springs, the pastors could be in session in the Baptist church during one of the days.

We hope very many of our pastors will be at Red Springs, and that the proposed conference will be organized.

BICYCLE RIDING.

The streets in Red Springs and the roads leading out from it for 20 to 25 miles around are about as perfect for bicycle riding as could be desired.

Bring your bicycles with you as part of your baggage and enjoy the fine exercise afforded at Red Springs.

☞ We ask some teacher in every school to call the teachers together at the close of the school on the 2d Sunday in July, and devise the plan for raising the funds to send the Superintendent to Red Springs.

THROUGH the North Carolina Board of Health our State has recently published some unusually wholesome free literature, namely, "Instructions for Quarantine and Disinfection," "Suggestions on the Prevention of Tuberculosis," and "Drinking Water in its Relation to Malarial Diseases." They are clear, sensible and brief. The first is designed to instruct the people generally how to prevent the spread of all diseases especially dangerous to the public health, and consists of a few simple rules with a list of disinfectants. If some sensible man in every community will get this pamphlet and carry out its instructions whenever it may become needful, spread of contagion in our State will be for the most part impossible. The second pamphlet has a more baffling problem to deal with. Tubercular diseases carry off 7,000,000 people every year, 150,000 of whom die in the United States, 4,000 in our own North Carolina. None of these are 'hereditary,' as has been long believed. The alarming and yet consoling fact is, tuberculosis, whether pulmonary (consumption) or not, is contagious; and we can go about diminishing the number of its victims by preventative measures, cleanliness, quarantine and disinfection, just as for many years we have held cholera and yellow fever in check. The pamphlet goes into the details of these measures. Every family in North Carolina ought to have it and learn to heed it. Consumption is the most dreadful of diseases. The foremost living scientists are devoting their lives to study of it. The source has been discovered, the means by it spreads at its fearful rate are well known; and it only remains for the people to be made aware how the sources may be restricted and the means destroyed A cure for consumption may never be discovered, but tens of thousands can be saved annually from its ravages.

The third pamphlet is of unusual value, particularly to certain sections of our State, —where yellow faces, "chills and fevers" afflict the land. Drinking water is believed by many to be the chief medium of introducing malarial diseases into the system; and as there are usually two sources of a pure water supply, and one resource never failing—boiling the water,—it seems to us that according to the well-authenticated belief of the writer of this monograph, chills and fevers and the innumerable patent medicines advertised to cure them can be escaped by any intelligent person who will bore a deep well, build a cistern underground for storing rain water, or, if these are impracticable, boil his drinking water.

All three pamphlets will be sent to any one who asks for them of Dr. R. H. Lewis, Secretary of the State Board of Health, Raleigh, N. C.

NO ONE would believe it, but the fact is the assessed valuation of property in the United States in 1890 was $8,000,000,000 less than it was in 1880. In 1890 the amount was $17,139,908,495; in 1880 it was $25,478,418. Every tax-payer has to take oath to the trueness of the valuation of his property; and from a limited observation and some intercourse with the collectors we would say there is more perjury in this country in the matter of taxes than in everything else put together. We are sorry to say the foregoing figures go to show that it is on the increase.

IT DOES not seem to have occurred to many people that the poor have duties to do by the rich. We can hear no end of sermons on the duty of the rich by the poor; but it remained for a banker and broker to write us the other day quite a sermon on the duties of the poor, embracing by this term all who are not rich.

As we think about it, the pertinence of our banker's suggestion becomes clear, since the giving of money is only one mode of charity. One may have all charity but never a cent to show it; it is indeed as much the poor man's virtue as the rich man's, as much the poor man's duty to have and exercise as it is the rich man's. A poor man can show a rich man what charity is (and when he can he ought), but he cannot do it by hating him. Real charity is of feeling, and it may find its expression in slowness to prejudice and quickness to good opinions, or it may find it in cheerful giving.

Of late it has often been declared that a man cannot accumulate a certain amount of wealth in a certain time by honest methods. This should not be taken as a sweeping proposition. Men have made great fortunes —Colgate, for instance—by adhering strictly to an honest policy, although there are many who owe everything they have to "sharp practice," as genteel roguery is sometimes called. On the whole, however, we believe wealth is gotten as often by honest methods as by dishonest ones. The pity is, the getting of it draws men away from and makes them hated by their less thrifty fellows.

It is to be regretted that option- and stock- speculators, oppressive monopolists, extortionate money-lenders and indifferent millionaires have come to be generally regarded as the representatives of the wealthy class of citizens. There is not much more reason in this than there is in taking the anarchists and agitators of our cities to represent our great and all sustaining middle-class.

There is no reason in dividing our country. North and South was bad enough; but Labor and Capital would be vastly worse, and Rich and Poor would be worse still. If there must be division, let it be defined by some worthy principle; let us first divide the honest from the dishonest, the patriotic from the selfish. All good men must keep together for their own sakes.

MORE progress has been made in the present century towards mastering the elements and converting them to our uses than was made in all the other centuries of the Christian era; but it is not improbable that in the next few decades as much more will be made in further applying them to our needs. If this comes so, the generation that lives to see it will have to endure a period of harassing transition and adjustment.

Even now great changes are being wrought, but so silently and so broadly that we hardly realize that they are going on until the statistician gets through adding and subtracting and tells us about them in the papers. For instance, it has been recently stated that electric cars have displaced 1,100,000 horses, and this is scarcely a beginning. Carriages run by petroleum gas can be seen on the streets of Paris, and New York is experimenting with a view to using them, too. If the bloomer woman will only let the bicycle have a decent showing, it will do the rest for the horse in the cities, except as a beast of burden.

The statistician opens an interesting field for thought by calculating that 1,100,000 horses consume 500 000 bushels of corn or oats a day, 180,000,000 bushels a year, which means something not only to the producer but to the railroads that carry the grain from country to city.

SO MAGNIFICENT was the pageant of warships at the opening of the Baltic canal, that the world almost forgot the object of their gathering and the meaning of the occasion to commerce, in wonderment at the peaceful array of one hundred and sixteen mighty floating engines of war, representing all the great nations, and speaking eloquently of their determination to hold their share of "sea power" and get what more they can. The spectacle surpassed anything of the kind in the history of the world. Such a fleet of war vessels never gathered before, nor was ever such power amassed at one point on the waters. And yet no one knew what it meant. Not one of the vessels has ever taken part in a naval conflict, neither battleship, nor crusier nor torpedo boat. Their power offensive and defensive has been carefully calculated; but they have yet to stand the test of a real engagement. Modern navies are built on theories. God grant that they may never face conditions.

It is interesting to know that the ships of our country, while not numerous, were fully as good as those of their class from any other country.

As to the canal. It was designed to make a sure, safe and constant outlet for Russian and Scandinavian ports, which have heretofore been cut off in severe winters and always been dangerous to reach because of headlands. According to the Examiner there have been 3,500 total wrecks in this route since 1858, and 1,000 lives have been lost since 1877. Now all this is forever passed, as the perilous straights no longer have to be navigated between Denmark and the North. Thus the saving of life and property will be worth many times the cost of the canal, not to reckon for the increased traffic, opening up of harbors and reducing of freights.

How great is man! In 1888 old Emperor William laid the first stone in this work. Now sixty-three miles have been cut through the land, thirty feet deep, 217 feet wide at top, 86 at bottom; and ladened steamers go up and down where men reaped grain a few years ago. How helpless would he be, were God against him!

The Reign of Christ.

BY REV. I. W. THOMAS.

For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.—1 Cor. 15: 26, 27.

It is strange that God, the holiest, the purest and the best of all beings, should have enemies. He created our beautiful world for the convenience, comfort and happiness of all his creatures. He prepared a beautiful and lovely garden, in which he placed our first parents, but soon an enemy of God's appeared within the sacred precincts of that garden and persuaded our first parents to disbelieve God. Their unbelief led them into disobedience and alienated their affections from God, making them his moral enemies. As a bitter fountain cannot send forth streams of sweet water, so our first parents gave to the world a posterity with estranged affections, with a carnal mind, which is enmity against God, and which is not subject to the law of God, and neither, indeed, can be. Hence by the introduction of sin into the world by the devil, God's greatest and man's worst enemy, the whole human family have become moral enemies to God. David says, "Behold I was shapen in iniquity and in sin did my mother conceive me." Paul says, "We are enemies to God, strangers to the covenants of promise, and foreigners to the commonwealth of Israel." Christ came into the world to win it back to God. So he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. Before he could reign, he must stoop to conquer. He came into the midst of Satan's territory and attacked him. The first conflict was in the wilderness, and was fierce and terrible, lasting forty days and nights. The longest, continuous battle on record, but the Lion of the tribe of Judah prevailed. No tongue can express, and no human mind can conceive, what the Saviour endured during that conflict. Afterwards, on various occasions, the devils acknowledged him publicly to be the Son of the Most High God, and at the word of his power released their subjects. By the introduction of sin into the world, multiplied forms of disease with physical death had cursed the world. Over these Christ manifested his conquering power.

Sin, which is the transgression of the holy law of God, and which, the Bible says, is a reproach to any people, is an enemy to God. He who knew no sin was made sin for us that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. Christ bore our sins in his own body on the tree of the cross, and has become the propitiation for the sins of the whole world.

It is wonderful how Christ could live so long in this world contaminated by sin, and be the world's sin-bearer, without being polluted by sin himself, but he was above sin. As the Hebrew children came out of the fire without so much as the smell of fire on their garments, so Christ, by his holy life and perfect obedience, made a perfect and complete atonement for sin without a scintilla of defilement on his part. He had power on earth to forgive sin, and though now highly exalted in heaven, he still has power to forgive sins, and may be said to have conquered sin as a great enemy.

The greatest victory our Saviour won while here in the world was in his resurrection from the dead. For a short while it seemed the powers of darkness had prevailed. The Devil had stirred up Judas to betray him. Many of the Jews were thirsting for his blood. His own disciples forsook him. He meekly gave himself up to the wicked authorities, offering no word in his own defence. "As a lamb led to the slaughter and as a sheep before her shearer is dumb, so he opened not his mouth." He is condemned and nailed to the cross, and after a few hours of indescribable suffering, he dies, and is taken down and laid away in Joseph's new tomb. The Devil, to make more sure of his apparent victory, got the people to guard his grave lest his disciples come and steal him away by night. This done, all was darkness and gloom to his own immediate followers. More than the body of Jesus was laid in the new tomb of Joseph. The dead hopes of his disciples were laid there, too. But at the appointed time an angel—and no angel ever before came more willingly or on a more important errand—came down and broke the king's seal and rolled away the stone, and the Lord of lords and the King of kings arose from the dead. He had laid down his own life, and he had power to take it again. He is now a mighty conquerer over the Devil, death, hell and the grave; he leads captivity captive, ascends on high, and is exalted to be a prince and a Saviour at the right hand of his Father.

Since his ascension his reign has been a reign of grace. He subdues his enemies, not by the force of arms, but with the power of his gospel, accompanied by the power of his Spirit. The moral enmity being slain in the heart by the regenerating work of the Spirit, he writes his laws in fleshly tablets of the heart, and the enemy becomes a loyal subject of Christ. Every sinner converted is an enemy subdued under the reigning Christ, and is a trophy of his saving grace. The reign of grace has been in progress nearly nineteen hundred years, and despite the multiplied forms of opposition, countless enemies have been subdued both in Christian and heathen lands. Instrumentally he reigns through his people. Some plant while others water, but it is the reigning Christ that gives the increase. Victory has always been, and always will be, proportionate to the zeal and correctness of the efforts of his people. How much we all need a holy ambition to see all his enemies in every land and in all climes subdued by his reign of grace! We need to be filled with his Holy Spirit. Then, and not until then, will our hearts overflow with prayer, work and sacrifice for the salvation of the world.

Some hold that Christ will reign a thousand years on the earth, according to teachings of the twentieth chapter of Revelation; that the living righteous with resurrected martyrs will enjoy that glorious reign; that Satan will be bound during the millennial reign, and that it will be an era of unprecedented spiritual prosperity. If the twentieth chapter of Revelation is to be understood at all literally, then there are good reasons to believe in a millennial reign, but if it is enigmatical or highly figurative, as some think it is, it may only refer to some period of great prosperity in the church during the reign of grace. Christ will reign in judgment. We have no means of knowing how long the judgment will last. It is spoken of as the day of judgment, but possibly day may mean a period, as day in creation. When the heavens and earth have fled away, and the sun and moon are no more, a day will not be recorded as twenty-four hours.

It will be in judgment, when all the world sees Christ in all his glory, that all men will acknowledge him Lord of lords and King of kings. Then every knee will bow before him, but simple acknowledgment of him in judgment will bring no salvation to those who fail to confess, love and serve him during the reign of grace. When Christ shall have transferred himself from the mediatorial throne to the judgment throne, there will be no further offers of pardon and salvation. How important, then, that all seek him while he may be found, and call upon him while he is near as a Saviour! After judgment, Satan is to be cast into the lake of fire and brimstone. Then he will, as the great arch enemy, be put under the feet of the reigning Christ. He is now a conquered enemy, but allowed some liberties, for reasons in the divine mind not revealed to us. Some hold, from Heb. 2: 14, that the Devil will be destroyed, or annihilated. His power is to be entirely taken away. But the last enemy to be destroyed, is death. Death will have no more power over men. It is now our most dreaded enemy, notwithstanding, if we have been cleansed from sin in the blood of Christ, death to us has been robbed of its sting. After all that is evil or sinful has been entirely subdued and eradicated by the matchless wisdom, power, love, mercy and goodness of Christ, then he will deliver up the kingdom to his Father, that the Father may be all and in all, and Christ will be subject to his Father, and will be the elder brother in the family redeemed.

May we all have grace to love and serve faithfully the reigning Christ.

Rays Out of My Reading.

BY REV. J. M. MCMANAWAY.

Rev. J. W. Wilmarth, D. D., a well-known Baptist minister, contributed to the April number of the Bibliotheca Sacra, a Congregational quarterly, a rather notable article on "Restricted Communion;" notable as well for its intrinsic excellence as for the audience it addresses. It invests with the charm of novelty much that is known and accepted among us, and also adds materially to the argument usual on the subject. Conciliatory in spirit, it leaves little to be desired in clearness and candor. It is an apologetic rather than an exhaustive treatment; but for its purpose it is admirable. A summary of it, with quotations of more important passages, will be of interest.

I. PRINCIPLES COMMON TO ALL; accepted by Baptists and evangelical Pedobaptists. Dr. W. finds these common denominational beliefs by examining the authorized standards and the practice of the great mass of ministers and churches loyal to them. They are

1. The communion is an ordinance of Christ. Established by him to be observed in all respects according to his will "till he come."

2. It is a church ordinance; for the church, to be administered by it and in it. This principle is common to all, though differing conceptions of the church, its nature, constitution, and membership may affect their application of it.

3. Qualification for occasional communion are the same as constant communion, i. e., for membership in the local church. Only those are invited to commune who would be received into the inviting church upon letters of dismission from their own churches. This is true of Baptists and also of Pedobaptists who practice intercommunion. They all regard the terms of membership and communion as in essence the same. Correctly; for a church in its invitation should not multiply its own teachings and discriminate against its own members. Differing terms of church membership, therefore, will affect the question of denominational communion.

4. Baptism is a prerequisite to church membership, and so to communion. References to the standards of Episcopal, Methodist and Presbyterian churches are given to establish this. Open-communion Baptists are the only exception. "The belief that baptism is a prerequisite to communion is no more a Baptist peculiarity than the belief in the forgiveness of sins." So, a difference of opinion as to the act of baptism, its subjects, or design—any or all of these—necessarily affects in the gravest manner the question of intercommunion.

5. They agree that an orderly walk in the church is prerequisite. The rule of the Methodist church is quoted as fairly illustrative: "No person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us, who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude any member of our church."

About an orderly walk there are two questions: Does the walk conform to the standard? and, Is the standard right? Is the church itself in New Testament order? They all decide upon this question. Quakers, Universalists, Unitarians, Mormons, are not "evangelical orthodox", and are not invited. So, serious differences about gospel order and an orderly walk affect the question of intercommunion. But there are

II. SOME PRINCIPLES PECULIAR TO BAPTISTS which necessarily control the application of the above stated principles in determining the question of intercommunion with Pedobaptists.

1. The spirituality of the church. This principle Dr. W. regards as "the one thing characteristic and determinative of the Baptist position in all respects." He expounds it with marked force and clearness.

All who believe in a divinely instituted church believe, to a certain extent, in the spiritual character of the church. But not as Baptists believe in it. Baptists believe the Christian to be a regenerate, spiritual man, possessing a new life originated and sustained by the Holy Spirit. "This new life is not the old life developed, reformed, modified, improved, or reconstructed." The New Testament church is a spiritual body, created and energized by the Spirit, existing on earth, to be perfected in glory. It originated with Christ and his Apostles and is not the Hebrew commonwealth, nor anything else previously existing, "developed, reformed, modified, improved, or reconstructed." The Jewish commonwealth was but a type and shadow of the church. There were pious men in it, but there was no church. The church, as spiritual in its membership, ministry, ordinances, worship, polity, work, cannot be evolved from a community of natural men by education or any other means short of regeneration. "The church has nothing to do with the State or with politics; no mission to rule, reform, regenerate the world, in the present evil age. Its one mission is to serve Christ in the Spirit, to train its members for glory, to seek the salvation of sinners. It would pursue spiritual ends by spiritual means." Ordinances and forms applied to unregenerate men are unmeaning, misleading, hurtful. Only the credibly regenerate, therefore, are received into the fellowship of a Baptist church. "We know nothing of a church composed of believers and their children; of having the form and seeking the power of godliness; of coming into the church to find salvation or as probationers; of infants growing up to be church members; of natural men receiving baptism in order to obtain forgiveness." Baptists baptize believers not to originate life, but because it is already begun.

In this connection he does not hesitate to "speak out in meeting" on the subject of infant baptism. What he says is so good I am tempted to quote the whole paragraph. He says: "This explains our attitude towards infant baptism. It is not merely that we find no authority for it in the New Testament. That would indeed be decisive with us against the practice. But it is abhorrent to us because we see in it a fearful violation of the fundamental idea of the church. Infants, incapable of faith and regeneration, are supposed by it to be made church members or quasi church members, or to be acknowledged as such. They are supposed to be regenerated in baptism, or, if not regenerated, to be brought into a covenant with God, which it will be their duty later to ratify. In its older and stronger form it fills the church with unconverted members, effaces the distinction between the church and the world and leads millions blindfold to perdition. It has corrupted the church in every way and is the pillar and ground of popery. In its milder and modern form it dulls the sense of distinction between the natural and spiritual; tends to the reception of 'the baptized children of the church' to 'full membership' more easily than is the case with others; obliterates the meaning of baptism as a symbol of death to the old life and rising to the new; nullifies the command to each new convert to arise and be baptised. And it has an innate tendency to gravitate towards the other and more dangerous type. Therefore we bear unceasing testimony against it. We can give it no recognition of Christian baptism." Intercommunion would nullify this testimony.

2. Baptism is immersion and immersion only. A summary of this argument is unnecessary.

3. Christ is the supreme and sole lawgiver for the church. Not only supreme but sole. The New Testament is his law. We admit the authority of none on any account whatsoever to modify or change. "What was important enough for Christ to command is important enough for us to obey; that, as far as we can ascertain, we must teach and do; that,—nothing more, nothing less, nothing else." "If the church of Christ is purely spiritual, if baptism is immersion, if Christ is the sole lawgiver, then fidelity to the faith once for all delivered to the saints leaves us no option" but to do as we do in the matter of the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1895.

WE ARE not surprised to read in the Independent that it has been discovered that the "harmless" ginger ale and other "temperance drinks" sold in the so called "temperance saloons" contain just ten per cent. more alcohol than beer from regular red-door, green-blinds, dens of iniquity. The pity of it is that there have been good people so shallow-brained as to give countenance to these compromises with the devil, in which the devil makes no concession. The only remedy for the saloon is extermination.

DOUBTLESS Dr. Parkhurst sighs for more worlds to conquer. We see an article in just from his pen, "Denominationalism False to the Genius of Christianity." Very well; let him set the example by turning from infant baptism (which every man of his learning knows is without scriptural example or support), and begin preaching unity without compromise of Truth.

There is nothing like consistency; but inconsistency seems to be decidedly sufficient when nothing more than notoriety is desired. Let no man talk of Christian union who will not take the Bible for a basis.

THERE used to be some discussion whether school vacations ought to be dispensed with or not. Discussion never settled the question, but it is being settled admirably nevertheless.

Chautauquas and summer-schools are to be found on every hand, more and more numerous every year. For the most part they are largely made up of teachers seeking more thorough and up-to-date equipment, but in many may be found regular students. The University of Chicago runs all the year round.

There was a time when the teacher was looked upon by a great many as leading the easiest life, having at least two months in the year to rest in. But now he must either be teaching, be seeking more knowledge in some advanced school, or in the field working up students.

WHEN a man establishes for himself the proper standard he does as much as can be expected of him. Being human, he cannot be expected to live up to it without divine help.

The proper standard is Christ. We know what he did under all conditions. His conduct is the Christian's set example, his life is the Christian's law. Let us stop right here, and remember that it was he who loved them that hated him, it was he who reviled not back. He never made another man's conduct an excuse for doing wrong. Alas, so often do we feel that since an enemy has wronged us, it is our right to hate him.

Yes, it is hard to follow Christ in all things; but that is what every Christian has made a pledge to do, and it is what every Christian should strive to get power from God to do; and every failure to do it should be a cause for greater humility and renewed appeals for divine help.

SHORT-CUTS in religion have done more to retard the progress of Christian evangelization than all the infidels, all the science, all the false gods that ever were. Not many centuries ago the number of New Testament Christians was so small and the number of Roman Catholic Christians so great, that the former were lost sight of and the world had gone almost back to a worse paganism, a worse ritualism than that which existed when Christ came. It was only by the power of God that a few faithful ones survived; but these were so oppressed that it was by other means—the very vileness of Rome herself—that the world was again turned to Christianity as revealed and ordered in God's Word. Romanism fattened on short-cuts, fattened by pleasing men; but her forms had nothing of God's Spirit in them and were vain.

Short-cuts are still doing harm. Pedobaptists say, "Let us baptize the world before it grows up, let us regenerate our children in their infancy, so there will be no trouble when they become grown." And out of this short-cut come thousands of church Christians, but few real Christians.

Baptists themselves, as proud as they are of their history of close adherence to the Scriptures, have many in their denomination who have a weakness for labor-saving spiritual machinery, which is only a milder form of the delusive short-cut. All sorts of societies afflict us, but instead of hastening the coming of the kingdom, for the most part they are delaying it by sapping the energies of the churches.

Let us cling to the old and the tried and true paths; and, though the way seem slow, as sure as the Redeemer liveth, it will prove faster than any other.

LOSS IN CHURCH WORK.

A professor in a celebrated American college made the statement that ninety-seven per cent. of the coal used in a steam engine went to waste. That is, out of one hundred pounds of the fuel, only three pounds did actual work in propelling the engine, while ninety-seven pounds produced no energy. We will not question the truth of this calculation, but we shall use it to illustrate the fearful loss in our church work.

1. The loss resulting from a multiplicity of denominations strikes us most forcibly. We may select an average North Carolina town for an illustration. There are a thousand inhabitants, of whom six hundred are white. Of these six hundred, there are two hundred church members. One church would be ample for the religious needs of the community, yet we find instead, four poor, weak, struggling organizations severally styled Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist. So that from the poverty of the people funds must be raised sufficient to sustain four clergymen, equip four parsonages, build and keep in order four churches. Instead of one minister, who could, if a Baptist, do better work than all the others put together, preaching to a single well filled church, unifying and building up into a holy temple the people of God, we behold the pitiable spectacle of four men preaching to little bands of people whose highest ambition often seems to be to have a festival. Oh, think of the loss of truth, the loss of sermons, the loss of money, and the loss of men!

2. The loss in the individual Baptist church is also very great. The pastor has spent years at college and seminary in arduous study to fit himself for his calling. He prepares a solid, honest sermon to present to his people. He points, as a faithful guide, the way to heaven; he unfolds the character of God; he holds up as the object of faith the crucified Lord. There is not a member of his church who does not need just the instruction he gives. But, most unfortunately, not more than half of the membership hear him. Thus half of his work may be set down as a loss; the influence of the pulpit over the home is impaired; much of the precious seed of the gospel wasted. The injury done to the cause of truth by non-church going members is incalculable, and deserves serious attention at the monthly conference. The churches are staggering under the weight of material that is practically antagonistic to the spirit of Christianity.

The working force of the church is, indeed, wretchedly small. Ten persons out of a hundred would in many cases represent the religious activity of the community, while many of the remaining ninety are indifferent, and not a few engaged in actual opposition. Suppose a general should march against the enemy with troops governed by our loose church methods. Picture the foe united and strong, drawn up in line of battle. Then imagine our general's troops numbering but ten out of a hundred ready for battle, while of the other ninety, some are in hospitals under nurses, others are sleeping under the shade of the distant trees, and yet others are carousing and dancing in a neighboring village. What a farce of the commander to attempt a fight under such circumstances! But, that is just what ten thousand pastors are doing every day. No wonder defeat often faces them; no wonder Christianity drags its slow length along. If the terrible waste in pastoral work could be avoided—if every Christian stood at his post—if every church put forth its full strength, the desert would soon blossom as the rose, and that grand petition, which so many utter and so few wish, would be answered—"Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

THIS is the Sunday-school season proper in this State. There is no reason now why a Sunday-school may not be run in every community of Baptists every Sunday. It does not require a preacher; it does not require anything but zeal for God's glory.

Let some one try to get the children, old and young, out these fair Sundays, and have a gathering in the churches or the groves for worship, if not instruction. If the pastors will select good superintendents or get the deacons to do it, and urge them to awaken their neighborhoods on the subject, we will not fear for the results.

Nothing is easier than to get little children into the habit of attending Sunday-school; and there is no better way of starting them to grow up into a life of activity in Christ.

ARE you asking the Lord for a revival in your community this season? There is no place in the State in which a fuller presence of the Spirit would not be abundantly fruitful. Let God's people everywhere pray for a blessing of this kind. We can sow prayers now, and reap a spiritual harvest this fall.

THE Adventists—we are aware that there are all kinds of them, adjustable to all shapes, sizes, opinions, arguments and conditions of people—were started by William Miller of New York. He began to preach in 1833, and proclaimed that the end of the world would occur in 1843. He was so sure of Christ's speedy coming that he would not organize churches. But now they have a distinct sect and paid missionaries, who distribute the literature of their Battle Creek, Mich., publishing house to a great extent by concealing the fact that it contains Adventist teaching. They never press their doctrines until they have first gotten a hold by other means in a community.

At first the Adventists taught only the immediate coming of Christ. Later they took up the dead cause of the Jewish Sabbath; and now in one form or another they teach the heresies of salvation by works of law, annihilation of the soul from death to resurrection, and also eternal annihilation, frequently denying the existence of the soul except as it exists as a part of the material, animal nature. Next to these things they believe in long faces and in being persecuted.

Every summer we hear of Adventists working among the more ignorant classes of the people. Since last summer we have by special arrangement published two series of articles on the chief doctrines of these impostors, which were designed to keep the people informed as to the emptiness of Adventist claims. We know these papers have been preserved by many, and we are hoping that they may be put in shape for distribution at no late date; but we cannot say for this now, and in the meanwhile, if there is any one in need of a refutation of the Seventh Day doctrine and annihilation doctrine, he can get it by sending twenty-five cents to the Baptist Sunday-school Supply Store, Raleigh, N. C.

....The Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention feel that the work they have to accomplish will warrant their asking the Baptists of the South to give the Board $100,000.—Christian Index.

....Rev. C. F. Hopper is pastor of Mt. Gilead church in Sampson county, which pays $60 a year to the support of Brother Crocker in China. The church house is being remodeled and much improved.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon has been granted a vacation. If any preacher in the world has been harder worked than Bro. Dixon these last two years, we have not heard of him. Hope he will come to North Carolina to rest.

....Bro. J. H. Mills passed through Raleigh last Monday with ten orphan children on his way to Edenton and to points in Chowan Association. He said "I want to be back by the Annual Meeting if I can do so."

....The Pan-American Congress of Religion and Education will meet at Toronto, Canada, 18th–25th inst. Prest. W. R. Harper (Baptist) and Bishop Ireland (Romanist) will take prominent parts. Whew!

....It is estimated that during the year 1894, private citizens of the United States gave not less than $32,000,000, in sums of $5,000 or more, to public objects. It is not so easy to sum up the gifts in sums less than $5,000.—Examiner.

....Bro. Blackburn has prepared a history of the Spring Vale church which he proposes to send to the RECORDER. We will be very glad to get it, and we know our readers will. There is room for more historical matter in our columns.

....We need money now more than at any other time of year. The running expenses of the RECORDER have been heavy lately, and there is no letting up now. Will not our friends help us by paying part or all of their renewals.

....Rev. A. G. Wilcox has developed another mission station into a church. On the fourth Sunday in June he organized a church "Harrison's Shop" with twenty-four members. The State Mission work has been greatly prospered this year.

....In the Evangel of last week there is a fine likeness of Rev. J. L. White with a short sketch of his work as pastor at Raleigh, Elizabeth City, Durham and Asheville, N. C., and Macon, Ga. He is still young and has yet his best work to do.

....Bro. Chas T. Dearing, the publisher, of Louisville, Ky., must accept our thanks for President Whitsitt's able and interesting tract, "The Origin of Infant Baptism." Price ten cents. It is a good document to have handy when a live Methodist is about.

....The church at Sanford is preparing to build, having purchased a lot and hauled some of the lumber. Rev. C. L. Greaves is pastor there. He is young and energetic, and we look for him to push the work to completion.

....It is not often that a man with the education and natural ability that Rev. C. G. Wells has holds himself back in his younger days; and yet it is a good idea. Bro. Wells is teaching now at Warsaw High School and preaching at New Hope and Mary's Chapel.

....Rev. A. M. Simms, D. D., will preach the dedicatory sermon of the Morganton church next Sunday. Bro. Simms is growing on the people of the State. His sermon at the recent Union Meeting at Sharon was very highly spoken of. A large crowd is expected at Morganton.

....Rev. I. T. Newton of Wake Forest takes charge at Brevard this week. He graduated from Wake Forest in 1893, and since then, as well as during his college career, has served several churches most acceptably. He is able and earnest and consecrated, and will prove a strong acquisition to the western part of the State.

....Rev. M. C. Walton preaches at Masonboro, Providence, Jacksonville, and Burgaw. There is a debt of $500 still due on the new church at Jacksonville, which could be easily raised if divided among the churches of the Eastern Association; and we hope the brethren will join in to do it.

....We regret to see that Dr. B. F. Riley is about to be pushed out of the Chair of English in the State University of Mississippi. The board of visitors has reported that his department is not what it should be, alleging that he lacks text-book preparation. He offers to submit to an examination at any time.

...."Napoleon Jones, Ph. D., summa cum laude, Univ. Weissnichtwo," (as he signs in the New York Examiner), writes nearly two columns of satire on "Proposals for a Baptist School of Liberal Theology." Really it would fill a long-felt want. We nominate Prof. Moore of South Carolina for president.

....Dr. Durham preached the sermon at the dedication of the house of worship at Berry's Grove, in Orange county, Mt. Zion Association, last Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., and at 4 o'clock p. m. preached at Red Mountain church, and aided the pastor, Rev. G. T. Watkins in the ordination of four deacons. This is one other mission church in a neat and substantial house of worship dedicated free of debt.

....The authorities at Baltimore who have the matter in charge have agreed that while they recognize the obligation of the organization to admit Baptist negroes to all the privileges of the coming B. Y. P. U. A. Convention, it is not expedient to do so now. That is, in plain English, they will admit negroes when they get back up North, and out of Southern hearing, at some future time when they are not making an especial bid for Southern favor by meeting in a Southern city and crowding its platform with Southern speakers. It is of interest to know that a colored brother is vice-president of the Maryland B. Y. P. U. A.; but he can have no part in the National Convention at Baltimore, until it meets up North again.

....Prest. Taylor has published a "Familiar Talk with Young Men About Wake Forest College." It is not only thoroughly interesting, but will prove of value to any one who reads it. It is for free distribution, and we suggest that the brethren send Dr. Taylor the names of any one they think it would benefit to become better acquainted with the institution.

....At the request of Summerfield church, Rev. J. L. Lane was ordained the 29th ult., during the session of the Piedmont Union at Sunnyside, near Reidsville. Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas preached the sermon, and Pastor Adams delivered the charge. Bro. Lane has been doing good work as missionary of the Piedmont Association, and we are glad to hear of his full entrance into the ministry.

....The committee to arrange for the publication of a first class mission journal for the Southern Baptist Convention has been called to meet in Atlanta, Ga., July 24, 1895. The Home Field and Foreign Mission Journal are to be consolidated, enlarged, and vitalized. This has been a felt need for years. Drs. J. B. Gambrell of Georgia, B. H. Carroll of Texas, and C. Durham constitute the committee to arrange this work.

....The Pilot Mountain Association will meet with Beaver Island church, Thursday, Aug. 1st. This church is located six miles north of Madison, Rockingham county. Pastors, delegates and visiting brethren who come by railway and desire the church to furnish conveyance from Madison, will please write to J. A. Vernon, Mayo, N. C. Delegates and brethren who can conveniently do so, should come by private conveyance.—F. P. Ellington, Pastor.

....We are under great obligation to pastor C. L. Dowell for a copy of the historical sketch of the old Welsh Neck Baptist church, with addresses delivered by distinguished brethren on the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of this church, April 28th, 1888. The book—in paper—should have a place in every Baptist library. It is well written and thoroughly interesting, and the denomination owes Bro. Dowell a debt of gratitude for getting it out.

....We are beginning to feel as if Raleigh has some claim to Bro. Pittman of Henderson, so often does he come down on business. In an interesting talk with him we learned that he has a weakness for collecting literature on the history of Baptists in North Carolina, and has accumulated quite a library on the subject. He spoke very highly of Bro. Henry Sheets' contributions in the RECORDER. We wish more of the brethren took interest in our history.

....Our church at Haw River was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies the fifth Sunday. Dr. Hume, Rev. W. C. Tyree, and Rev. R. VanDeventer preached. The Union Meeting which met at Haw River was a good one. Rev. O. C. Horton writes of it: "I am just back from the Union Meeting at Haw River. Had a very good time, and I would like to repeat the experience sometime in the near future. The hospitality of this church and people appeared to be without limit."

....The meeting at the Baptist church has been going on during this week with services in the morning and evening also an open air meeting at noon in the grove opposite the residence of J. Elwood Cox. Rev. Dr. Battle has been preaching with great power and earnestness and at almost every meeting deep interest was visible among many in the congregation. During the first part of the week about ten had professed faith in Jesus Christ. Wednesday night it seemed as though the interest in the meeting had waned, but on last night there was abundant evidence of an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the community. At the close of an earnest sermon, seven or eight persons stood up for prayer and three of these—young men—were converted before the meeting closed. The meeting will continue. The manufacturers are to be commended for closing their factories for the open air meetings.

....The Scotland Neck Democrat has this to say of Bro. Cullom's first service as supply for Dr. Vann: "Rev. W. R. Cullom, the summer supply for pastor R. T. Vann, preached his first sermon in the Baptist church Sunday. His sermons were clear and practical and logical and forceful. Although Mr. Cullom is a young man he is scholarly and preaches with the ease and grace of a man of years. He is instructor in one of the departments in the Southern Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky. His audiencies were greatly pleased with his sermons.

....We clipped the following from the Rockingham Index (independent) some time ago: "The Index notices that the students of the University are banqueting President Winston in honor of his 'victory.' The opinion of the Index is that they ought to banquet Marion Butler, who did the work. It doesn't look well for the University to be banqueting so bountifully, building $20,000 gymnasiums, etc., while the other schools and colleges of the State are suffering severely from the hard times that prevail throughout the whole State."

....Rev. T. S. Wright and Rev. J. Q. Adams will hold a protracted meeting Hamlet beginning next Sunday. We clip the following about the meeting in which Bro. Adams is now engaged at Wadesboro from the Messenger and Intelligencer: The most extraordinary religious revival that has been known in Wadesboro for years is still in progress. The services, two a day, 10 o'clock in the morning and at usual hour in the evening, are being held in the Baptist church. The congregations, notwithstanding the fact that the meeting has been going on for nearly four weeks, grow larger daily, and there is no such thing as the preachers having to proclaim the Gospel to empty benches. No account has been kept of the conversions and reclamations, but the number has been very large, especially of the latter.

....Speaking of the frequent excuses made by some church members for their absence from prayer meetings and regular worship in summer, Pastor Carter of the First church, Raleigh, recently remarked, "They call it inability, but in many cases I fear it is inwillity. The distinguishing syllables taken by themselves may mean the same thing, but in their present connection I tell you there is a difference!"

....We are glad to know that the report published in the Charlotte Observer that Secretary Stringfield said hard things about Peace Institute, of Raleigh, in his address at Lincolnton, was a mistake. An illustration of Bro. Stringfield's was misunderstood. Peace Institute is as good as the most elect Presbyterians can make it. Discipline, religious instruction and text book work are all thorough and wholesome. If you are not going to send your girl to a Baptist school, you ought to consider Peace.

....At the request of Eureka church, Rev. C. J. Nelson and Rev. W. T. Jones formed a presbytery for the examination and ordination of the Rev. W. A. Ferrall. The ordination sermon was preached by Bro. Jones and the charge made by Bro. Nelson. There being only two ministers present, Bro. W. G. Britt was requested to act as secretary. The services took place in the First church of Goldsboro Wednesday night, July 3d, 1895. Bro. Ferrall has been preaching hopefully at Black Creek and Snow Hill.

....The Independent says: "Whether he shall be called Primus or Primate is an interesting question, and, we suppose, important, though we do not see what need a Protestant Episcopal church has for a Pope or Patriarch under either designation. The name is now under discussion, and we suppose it is settled that the thing is to come." This means the ascendency of the High Church Episcopalians, the churchmen who hated Phillips Brooks; and it means, too, that the American people will have to fight against Episcopalian as well as Roman Catholic establishments.

....The Fayetteville church has called Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas of Greensboro, but he is not yet ready to announce his decision as to the Lord's will in the matter. Meanwhile Rev. James Long of Union county has been called to supply the pulpit. Bro. Long graduated at Wake Forest in 1892, taking medals for distinction as orator and essayist. The last three years he has studied at Rochester Seminary, New York, the great institution of which Dr. A. H. Strong is president. He is a young man of decided native ability and fine education, and we are glad indeed to have him back in the State.

....Since Dr. N. B. Cobb left Raleigh for his trip east, of which he has a delightful account in this paper, we have learned that he has received a call to Oxford, Miss., a prosperous city of unusual refinement, and more than 1 500 population. It is the seat of the State University and other educational interests. Prof. R. M. Leavell, who occupies the Chair of History and Political Economy in the University, is chairman of the pulpit committee of the Baptist church there, and Dr. B. F. Riley, who has been chosen to write a history of Southern Baptists, is also a member of the church, if we are not mistaken. Dr. Cobb is resting by visiting Mt. Olive, Warsaw, Spring Vale, Wells' Chapel and other places, and we have not heard that he will accept the call. He is as well known in North Carolina, and perhaps better than any other Baptist preacher, and while his friends will be glad to hear of his call, they would be sorry to see him leave the State. When Dr. Cobb comes home, he will receive a livelier welcome than ever: it is a new boy.

... A striking episode, though quite a natural one, occurred recently in North Carolina. Dr. James B. Richardson, one of the old North State's best preachers, figured prominently in it. On his field, a Presbyterian doctor of divinity took it on himself to preach on baptism. They occasionally have the temerity to do this, even in North Carolina. On this occasion he invited the Baptist congregation including the preacher, to attend. The sermon was of the old, pedobaptist, stereotyped sort. The Presbyterian brother thought that he had "done it up brown," and at the close invited a reply from the Baptist pastor. Of course the reply was forthcoming, while the result was such a surprise to the Presbyterian brethren that they are not yet convalescent. For at the close of the service the most prominent Presbyterian in the community joined the Baptist church, and afterward he was followed by twenty others. Verily, the truth is mighty!—Florida Baptist Witness. This is good news, even if we did have to go away from home to hear it. Why didn't you tell us, Bro. Richardson?

....I have before me two Greek testaments, one is Tischendorf's, the other is one received from the American Bible Society a few weeks ago. In looking over the pages of the former and comparing it with the latter, I find some changes for which no reason is given, and for which no defense can be made. In Mark 7:4 there are two changes—namely: Baptisontai (they immerse themselves) is changed to Niphthosi (they wash); and baptismous (immersions) is changed to plumata (washings) In Luke 11:38 Ebaptisthe (immerse himself) is changed to Enipthe (wash). I have seen many remarkable statements about the question of baptism, but I never dreamed that men in their eagerness to establish sprinkling or pouring as the act of baptism, would actually change God's word and substitute words of different meaning in the original text. But this has been actually done. Dr. Bitting called attention to this matter at our Convention in Charlotte, and since then put me on the track to get this wonderful New Testament which will settle in Greek the meaning of baptizo.—Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas, in Atlantic Baptist.

....How do you like this? "Rev. H. A. Delano, D. D., of Evanston, Ill., has been presented with a new bicycle of his parishioners."—Watchman. We know at least three prominent North Carolina pastors who ride "wheels" and a college president who used to. Bicycles will find no stronger defender anywhere than in a certain North Carolina town in which a handsome Baptist church was completed last year, whose pastor has developed from a bony dyspeptic into a splendid, healthy, vigorous man in his prime—and all by virtue of the wheel, he thinks.

....Pittsboro Baptist church was increased by six new members on last Sunday morning. Among the number were Bro. John T. Paschal, the Register of Deeds for Chatham county, his wife and two daughters, and Bro. G. W. Moore and wife. Bro. Moore is the oldest son of the late Rev. George P. Moore. The pastor still thinks this is the best church of its size in the State. They do all they promise, and promise more than any other church in the Association. Mrs. Chapin, the vice president of the Woman's Missionary Society for the Association, made arrangements at the last Union Meeting to organize a new missionary society in the Sandy Creek Association.

....Rev. Tresvant Harrison died at his home in Rockingham, N. C., July 6th, after a lingering illness of paralysis, lasting several continuous years. He was born in Sussex county, Va., in 1839; graduated at Columbian College, Washington, D. C., in his twentieth year; taught in Georgia two years; served through the war; was a teacher at Edenton during the pastorate of the late editor of the RECORDER, where a friendship was formed which lasted through their work and untimely retirement from active pursuits here on earth, and which is now happily renewed in heaven. Bro. Harrison was ordained to the ministry at Edenton in 1872, and was subsequently pastor at Hertford, Apex, Carthage, Greensboro and Rockingham, on which latter field the collapse befel him which has just culminated in his death. At one time he was agent for the Foreign Mission Board in this State. Bro. Harrison was a devout, spiritually minded man, full of faith and an humble servant of his Master. In a letter written by him about a year ago there are many evidences of his entire resignation to the unusually heavy cross that was laid upon him, and no doubt he died the triumphant Christian death. His funeral was preached at Rockingham by Rev. Livingston Johnson. We extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

"Make Ready."

You have, perhaps, seen in the RECORDER of July 3d the action of a committee appointed by the last Southern Baptist Convention, and also, an address to the pastors and churches of the Southern Baptist Convention, prepared at the request of the committee by Dr J. B. Gambrell of Georgia. If you have not read said report and the address, please get the paper and read them. The address referred to urges the importance of earnest prayer. Why the Lord makes prayer necessary to the highest efficiency in the work of his people and churches, we may not now fully understand; but that prayer has been made thus necessary, no one need be in doubt. The prosperity of the churches rests upon the spiritually minded, the men and women who pray in faith.

There can be little spiritual vision or spiritual power without the prayer of faith—the mind of God—the touch of Christ—the Spirit-filled soul—oneness with the Divine aim.

"TAKE AIM."

The time for the Associational meetings is near. Every thoughtful pastor will do his best to make his next Association a meeting of real profit and power. A selection of judicious, liberal and progressive delegates by the churches will go far towards the end named. The attendance of other business men, members of the churches, in addition to the delegates, will help the Association. The personal influence of the pastor, in securing the attendance of a large number of brethren who ought to be at the Association, is necessary. Pastors cannot help their Associations in any way more wisely, where help is really needed, than by securing the attendance of their brethren who ought to be present. Whether the reflex influence of an Association for good shall be felt by the churches during the next year will depend largely upon the wisdom, energy and tact of the pastors in securing the proper attendance at the next session of the Association.

"FIRE!"

A gun must be loaded before it can be fired. The load, too, must be of the proper kind and in good condition, the object in sight and in reach, with the gun well aimed, if we expect real execution. But all of this may exist, and without the "fire," nothing will be accomplished. There should be no dull Association in 1895. With the enemy in open field, about a hundred yards away, near Hanover Court House, Va., in 1862, the colonel, with 1,200 men in line, gave deliberately the command, "Make ready! take aim! fire!"—and 1,200 bullets sped away to do execution.

Let pastors and churches by the prayer of faith make ready for the Associations; by thoughtful consideration appoint the best brethren delegates, and secure a large attendance of the most successful business men in the churches; and by the preparation of reports filled with facts, and speeches, a burden, a great load to the soul of the speaker, but a joy and an inspiration to the hearer, fire the mind and heart of all the people with a holy ambition to do more for the Lord's kingdom on the earth. The Baptists of the State are not without many witnesses to the answer of earnest prayer in times of great distress about their work.

ONE ILLUSTRATION.

The brethren returned from the Convention in Elizabeth City, December, 1893, with a debt of $5,000 on the Board. A resolution was passed, in great fear on the part of many, instructing us to secure, if possible, this $5,000 in ninety days from Jan. 1st, 1894. Plans for the work were soon put in shape. The brethren felt the gravity of the situation, and during the ninety days (I tell it now for the first time, and, I trust, to the glory of Christ Jesus, our Master,) hundreds of the best men and women in the State wrote me that they were daily praying for the success of the effort to liquidate the debt. It was done, and, as I believe, in answer to prayer. Help came from the most unexpected sources. Men gave who had never been known to give before. To the joy of all, the debt was paid. This good start gave us success through a year of unusual difficulties.

THE CONVENTIONAL YEAR.

The third quarter in our Baptist State Conventional year will soon close, and only a little over $1,000 of the $15,000 to be secured this year for State Missions have been sent to the Treasurer. We have since the Convention in Charlotte given the right of way to Home and Foreign Missions, and have done all in our power to aid these objects. The churches have done well. Now the time has come when it is necessary to have the attention and active co operation of the pastors and churches in State Missions. This is the Lord's work, and, in trying to do it for him, we shall all need the guidance of the Holy Spirit, love for our God-given work, and the quickened hopefulness that comes from hearty co-operation one with another.

ROANOKE ISLAND.

This historic island in Dare county is about twelve miles long and from one to three miles wide. On it are about 1,500 people, one country town, a large number of small farms, many nice homes, two Methodist churches, and one Baptist church. Much of the island is high, sandy land, well adapted to trucking, the well water is good, the people are hospitable and healthy, and for the most part engaged in fishing.

The Baptist church here was organized in 1808, and now has fifty-two male and sixty-four female members, with Rev. N. P. Stallings, formerly from Wake county, as pastor, who preaches for them once a month. Bro. Stallings lives at Moyock in Currituck county. No man can do the work for our cause on this island which ought to be done living at such a distance and preaching for them only once a month.

The open opportunity urges us to locate a Baptist preacher on the island. With this and Bodies Island, and the Banks from the Virginia line to the last named island, the entire time and energies of one of our wisest and strongest men are needed to do what ought to be done.

Then another preacher should be located at Hatteras, taking the Banks south from Bodies Island to Ocracoke Inlet. On this territory, too, there is no Baptist preacher and no Baptist church, but people enough to engage the entire time and energies of one man. Too long, too long, have these places been neglected by us. I have just returned from this section and know from personal inspection of parts of the same, the great destitution and of the open opportunities.

C. DURHAM.

Eastern Association—Preaching Trip Therein.

RAMBLES OF A RALEIGHITE IN THE STRAWBERRY AND HUCKLEBERRY REGION.

Dear Recorder:—I left Raleigh last Saturday to spend a week or two in preaching in the bounds of the Eastern Association. My first objective point was

MT. OLIVE IN WAYNE COUNTY.

Mt. Olive is the largest town on the Atlantic Coast Line between Goldsboro and Wilmington. It was a mere hamlet twenty-one years ago when I visited the place to organize a Baptist Sunday-school in a schoolhouse; for they had no church then, and the principal business of the place was represented by two turpentine stills, a couple of small stores and a carriage shop run by Bro. Summerlin with whom I spent the night. The turpentine business has disappeared, the neighboring pine forests have been cut down and replaced by beautiful truck and berry farms; a large two story academy and three houses of worship have come in the place of the little school house, and a very attractive town has grown up where the people once wondered what they would do for a living when the pine forests should be exhausted by making turpentine.

We have here a good house of worship and a Baptist congregation of over one hundred members. Both the Methodists and the Presbyterians have good houses of worship in the place. The Baptist church was planted by that sterling Baptist preacher and able and vigorous writer, J. T. Albritton, who resides on a truck farm about five miles from the town, and happens just now to be without a pastoral charge. The church is at this time without a pastor, Bro. A. A. Butler having recently resigned the charge thereof, though he still resides in the place and preaches at other points in the Association. He has recently been afflicted with nervous prostration, and his physician advises him to take absolute rest for awhile. Bro. A. J. Taylor, another Wake Forest boy, is living with him and preaching at Falling Creek, Piny Grove, Island Creek and Corinth.

The Sunday-school at Mt. Olive is superintended by J. F. Olive, the father of the brilliant young pastor of the First Baptist church at Wilmington; and Miss Annie Summerlin, a daughter of the brother who entertained me twenty-one years ago, presides at the organ. I preached for them Sunday morning and night and the next day came to WARSAW IN DUPLIN COUNTY.

This place has been widely known as the seat of Warsaw High School, the Associational School of the Eastern Association. This School has been kept up a great many years and has at different times been in charge of some of our most eminent brethren. Doctors Hufham, Marable, Stallings, and brethren W. B. Jones, C. A. Jenkens, C. H. Spencer, P. W. Johnston, W. M Kennedy, and Fred. L. Merritt have all been principals. The present incumbent is Rev. O. G. Wells. The large school building was lost by fire several years ago, and a smaller structure containing only recitation rooms now occupies the site of the original building.

Bro. O. P. Meeks of Clinton is pastor of the church at this place. He also preaches at Clinton, Magnolia and Rowan.

Brother W. L. Bilbro, a sterling Baptist preacher who came over to us from the Free-will Baptists several years ago, is doing good, solid work in the Eastern Association, and is very highly esteemed by all the brethren who know him. He is too modest to pass for his full worth away from home.

Bro. L. R. Carroll, better known as "Rice Carroll," is looking after the mission work of the Association in Onslow county and trying to hold the small churches together until they can get a missionary pastor to locate among them.

From what the brethren tell me I fear the churches of the Eastern Association have been declining in the matter of State Missions and ministerial support. At one time the Eastern Association did more mission work than any other Association in the State. In 1860 they had more missionaries on the field than the Baptist State Convention. Now many of the younger Associations are outstripping them in State Mission work. Then the old men planned and the young men worked under their direction. The principal work of the Union Meeting then was the report of the Executive Committee and the raising of money for the mission fields. The churches sent up contributions to the Union Meeting, and through their delegates they were kept informed about the needs of the work.

I leave to-morrow for Spring Vale in Sampson county. N. B. C.

Warsaw, June 27, 1895.

P. S.—Since my arrival here, Bro. Carroll has received a telegram announcing the death of his brother, Rev. Dr. Jno. L. Carroll of Chapel Hill. A great man in Israel has fallen. Dr. Carroll was the most vigorous sermonizer we had amongst us. He was a man of great pulpit power. May God comfort the bereaved wife and sons and make his death a blessing to the brothers and sisters left behind. N. B. C.

Bro. Blanchard at Reidsville.

It was the privilege of the writer to be present at a missionary mass meeting held with the Reidsville Baptist church June 19-21.

Several who were to take part in the exercises were not present,—some from sickness, others from reasons not known to the writer. The disappointment was deeply felt by all in the failure of these brethren to make their appearance. The meetings, however, were interesting and instructive, and doubtless much good will result to the Reidsville congregation from the exercises.

In spite of environments that are to be deplored by every lover of Christianity, the Reidsville church is perhaps doing its best work now. Their liberality is worthy of emulation, and the co operation of church and pastor is such as to warrant strength and development even in the midst of great opposition from without.

One evening was set apart for the consideration of Christian education, and the writer was asked to occupy the time in presenting the claims of Wake Forest College. Many sympathizers for the College were found and some financial strength added. There will doubtless come from this section increased patronage to the institution.

THE ROYALL CHAIR.

If all the friends who have promised to make donations to the endowment of this Chair would hasten to put their pledges in business form, it would not be long till we could begin the endowment of another important Chair for the College and perhaps receive encouragement in the effort that would delight the hearts of our people.

C. W. BLANCHARD.

New Book Store.

We have pleasure in publishing an announcement elsewhere of the New Book Store at Raleigh of Messrs. Haywood & Williams, representatives of two of Raleigh's oldest and most respected families.

Their stock is new, but they have had years of honorable experience in the book business. We unhesitatingly recommend them to our readers as competent, reliable, and worthy. It will pay you to send for their catalog.

The Massachusetts Benefit Life Association makes a splendid showing in the annual statement published in another column. Col. Saunders informs us that he is writing $50,000 worth of business a month now, and will easily reach a million by the end of the year. It is interesting to know that the President of the Association and another leading officer have been Baptist pastors, and are now highly esteemed in Massachusetts.

Col. Saunders wants agents, and offers them liberal terms.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 28, 1895.

J. D. BOUSHALL, Manager Ætna
Life Insurance Co., Raleigh, N. C.

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge the prompt settlement of the policy held by Rev. C. T. Bailey with you. You will be gratified to know that your Company is the first of the number to take up its policy.

I have reasons to believe that the Ætna is not surpassed for safety by any company in the land.

With best wishes, yours sincerely.

(Signed) J. W. BAILEY.

School Announcements, Catalogs, &c.

We take pleasure in calling attention to the advertisement of Littleton High School and Business Institute, at which your son will be carefully looked after and well taught. It claims the healthiest location in the state. Write to Bro. Bagley for catalog.

The Intercollegiate School, Ronda, N. C., Rev. J. E Greene, principal, is a representative institution of the preparatory and academic class. We are glad to see from its catalog that seventy-five students were enrolled and that there are good reasons to look forward to a steady growth in size and usefulness.

Chowan Baptist Female Institute is so well known through its personal representatives, as mothers, wives and daughters in North Carolina families, that it is unnecessary to introduce it to our readers. The catalog for this year is out. It ought to be in the hands of every parent who has the responsibility of educating a daughter.

Buie's Creek Academy and the name of Campbell is getting to a household word in a good, large section of our State. The school is not yet eight years old, but last year its enrollment was beyond 200; and it is recommended by some of the most competent judges in the State. See advt. and send for catalog.

W have examined with pleasure the Annual of the Southwest Virginia Institute, of Bristol, in the bracing mountain air of the Virgina-Tennessee mountains. This is one of the best of institutions for women. Well located, well equipped with appurtenances and teachers, and presided over by a Baptist gentleman of valuable experience. The chaplain of this institution is the most venerable Dr. Robert Byland.

The Virginia College for Young Ladies Under the presidency of Dr. W. A. Harris, located in the beautiful city of Roanoke, Virginia, is one of the foremost schools in the South. Its magnificent new buildings with all modern improvements, on a campus of ten acres, amid gorgeous mountain scenery in the Valley of Virginia, famed for health; its ample course of study, European and American teachers, make the Virginia College for Young Ladies one of the most attractive and beautiful college homes in the Union. It is attended by one hundred and ninety-six, representing twenty States. For descriptive catalog address W. A. Harris, D. D., Roanoke, Va.

We have received the catalog of Oak Ridge Institute for the year '93 and '94. It is perhaps the handsomest catalog ever issued by a Southern Fitting School. It is profusely illustrated with full page photo engravings. It is written in a racy style, out of the beaten track of catalog literature. It shows a total enrollment of 350 counted by departments. Fifty-three diplomas were conferred at the closing exercises of '95. The institution is highly and heartily recommended by the colleges, the University and business men all over the State; and the educating public shows its endorsement by the largest patronage given to a school of this class in the South. See ad. in another column.

The 42d year of Roanoke College was very successful, the gain in the enrollment being 28 per cent. The students came from eighteen States and Territories and from Mexico, Nova Scotia, England and Korea. Fifty eight students won distinction in their studies. Forty five are candidates for the ministry representing six denominations. A Choctaw is a member of the next Senior class. Suh Beung Kiu, of Korea, has been at Roanoke two years and Whang Hyen Mo, another Korean, will enter next session. The college offers many advantages at moderate cost. The outlook for next year is very bright. The catalog of 60 pages, an illustrated circular, and the June Collegian may be had free by addressing the Librarian of Roanoke College, Salem, Va.

III. Two suggested alternatives.

1. Relegating all responsibility to the communicant. Teach our views and leave every one to judge for himself as to his qualifications.

But this would nullify all the principles established by the previous discussion. It would make church discipline a farce. By it the church would abdicate its rightful authority as the custodian of the ordinances.

2. Relaxing the terms of occasional communion on account of altered circumstances. People who differ from the Baptists, if mistaken, are honestly so and are not wilfully disobedient, and so ought not to be debarred from the table. This again would undo what has been done in the argument. No stopping place if this holds good; not at baptism, nor church membership, nor at any of the requirements of the Saviour. Instead of ascertaining the law and the testimony, the church would have in each case to sit in judgment on motives and the extent of aberration admissible. Error put on an equal footing with truth is far more dangerous than when accepted by mistake.

IV. There are advantages in restricted communion. Not absolutely but relatively.

1. It is a signal token of loyalty to Christ.

2. It is an unmistakable and effective testimony to the truth, especially to the spirituality of the church, the obligation to be baptized and the sole authority of Christ. It is on this account largely that it is offensive.

3. It preserves the purity, meaning, and order of the church ordinances. The plea for open communion exalts communion at the expense of baptism. It emphasises fellowship one with another at the expense of the primal idea, fellowship with Christ. It ignores the order of the ordinances. Immersion means we in Christ, communion means Christ in us.

4. Restricted communion serves to emphasise the distinction between church fellowship and Christian fellowship. And this distinction is of importance apart from the communion question.

5. It is for the benefit of other Christians. The truth is as important for them as for us. Error has wrought them much evil. The effects of it are modified in part by Baptist teaching. Restricted communion emphasizes these.

6. It is favorable to Christian union. By putting up an insuperable barrier against union by compromise, it points out the true way, by obedience to the truth.

7. It is good for the world. Its testimony deals a heavy blow to all carnal, ritualistic, hereditary and formal religion, so acceptable to natural men, but so fatal to them.

8. It is good for the Baptists. Open communion for them is suicide. He traces the steps and writes the epitaph.

Present Work and Promised Success.

BY REV. N. B. JONES.

Dear Recorder:—I don't know when I have enjoyed your visit more than I did that of the 19th ult. There were some sad things indeed; but the clouds must come as well as the sunshine. Bro. Bailey is gone, though our loss is his gain. His was a life well spent, and I feel glad because I let him know while living that I loved and honored him for what he was. I would be ashamed to say better things about him now than I said while he was with us, struggling for the noblest cause than has ever engaged the heart and brain of man.

It has been inspiring to read the account of the Wake Forest closing exercises. It is one of the hallowed spots on earth to me. The inspiration I received there has ever been as uplifting power in my very soul, and never till my latest breath will I forget her walls and her Christian influences. If the few sentences in the Recorder gave a correct idea of Bro. Wharton's sermon, what a refreshing shower it must have been. I have often thought if sermons upon such occasions had more of Christ and sweet sympathy in them, the world would be made better and heaven brought nearer—indeed, the kingdom of heaven is in us, if we be in Christ.

That grand address of Dr. Taylor's, after reading it, I said in my soul, these words are sweet and wise enough to be written upon every heart in the land, and carried upon those hearts with the record of a well spent life into the presence of Him who shall say to all who follow them, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Young men, if you stepped from the rostrum of Wake Forest College on that the greatest day of all your days, with such advice and presented in such a spirit as it was, to turn away from it and from the God of all grace, surely of all the terrors that shall ever haunt the human soul in time and eternity, yours will be the worst. Such words could only find birth from a heart impregnated by the Holy Spirit. They are more precious than gold, yea than much fine gold. "Fill your minds with the knowledge and your hearts with the loving thoughts of Jesus Christ until he be formed within you, not only as the hope of glory, but as the model of your lives and character."

My heart is on fire with three of the greatest movements that have ever engaged our minds, and I am glad, because God has so intensely interested me in them. The thorough evangelization of North Carolina and literally the "regions beyond," for the world is the field; the increased endowment and equipment of Wake Forest College, an institution that has already done more for us than we can pay for in a thousand years, indeed soul and brain can not be estimated upon the money basis; the Baptist Female University, the dawn of the "reformation." Surely there is no cause that should enter deeper into our hearts and pockets at this time than the education of our young women. The man who writes his name upon this institution will write it as near the line of things immortal and divine as it is possible to do. Our daughters in the years to come will drop a tear of gratitude to our memory that will be more precious in the sight of God than all our gold and silver. I know of no man in all our land who is engaged in so noble an enterprise as my beloved and honored brother, O. L. Stringfield. I loved him at Wake Forest, but he has grown upon my heart all these years, and now I meet him spending and being spent for the education of the young women of our Southland. It was a real inspiration to have him in my home for three days. My prayers follow him. My brethren, receive him with a full heart and help him all you can to give the young women of North Carolina as good a chance as the young men. As an evidence of my interest as a pastor in this institution, I promise that, if every other Baptist church in the State will contribute an average even of half as much as I am sure my people will give, Bro. Stringfield shall be assured of his $200,000. Brethren, we have got the people and we have got the money to put $200,000 in this institution in less time than two years. All we want or need is system and service. Don't tell me that nearly 200,000 white Baptists can't raise $200,000 in two years. We can do it, and if the pastors of the State will let this work into their hearts, it will be done.

Funeral of Dr. J. L. Carroll.

There was a good audience of friends and mourners at the French Broad Avenue Baptist church, Asheville, at 5 o'clock yesterday, to honor the remains of the late Dr. J. L. Carroll, representing not only several sister churches, but all denominations and the many citizens amongst whom he was for a long time held in the highest esteem.

The services were conducted by the Rev. J. T. Betts, the pastor, assisted by Dr. G. W. Gwins of Louisville and Dr. J. S. Felix of the First Asheville Baptist church.

The pastor spoke tenderly of the loss sustained by his church of which Dr. Carroll was the founder and first pastor, and of the denomination throughout the State, and even throughout the Southern States, because the deceased brother was a prominent member of the Southern Baptist Convention. The pastor said: "Brethren, a prince and a great man has fallen in Israel. Truly death loves the shining mark, for some of the brightest and brainiest men of our denomination have been recently called from us. In the last few months, notably Dr. A. J. Gordon of Boston, Dr. J. A. Broadus of Louisville, and Dr. T. G. Jones of Virginia; and now we are called upon to mourn the loss of one of the greatest men of our State." He sought to improve the occasion by urging the church to learn with him the lesson of resignation, which was not stoicism, assuasion of grief by worldly cares, by time or pleasures, but faith in the word and in the purposes of God that submit with unquestioned obedience to his will." Amidst several apt illustrations of resignation he cited the faith of Mrs. Spurgeon, who, whilst the body of the great preacher was laying in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, sent this note that was read to the vast assemblage: "He is not here, he is risen; and I would not have him back, though no tongue can tell how much I love him."

Dr. Gwins said: "The pastor has said truly, a great man has fallen, great both mentally and spiritually, but especially so in that he was born again, having God for his Father, Christ for his Saviour, and the Holy Spirit for his Comforter. What more could be wanted, and you in your bereavement I would have you know this for yourselves."

Dr. Felix dwelt upon the great work in which the preacher of the gospel was engaged—honorable, in that he was anointed by the Lord. Why? The work thus done in Christ's name was more than the fame and money of the most successful of lawyers. In God's sight the sin-sick soul brought to and cured by the Saviour through the Word applied by the Holy Spirit was more than silver and gold, for if we save a soul from death we hide a multitude of sins.

The body was interred in the city cemetery, Riverside. W. Ward.

Women Who Suffer

WITH ANY FORM OF FEMALE COMPLAINT SHOULD READ WHAT DR. HARTMAN SAYS.

It would be impossible to present an exhaustive array of the symptoms caused by these troubles, for their name is legion; but prominent among them are to be mentioned smarting, throbbing, scalding, beating, burning, quivering, aching, trembling, bloating, flashes of heat, tremors of cold, prickly sensations, sinking feelings, faintness, numbness, indescribable puncturing, piercing pains flying from part to part with provoking uncertainty, mocking the victim with momentary relief, to begin its tortures elsewhere. No two cases are exactly alike in number or severity of symptoms, some being only slightly annoyed, others being actually confined to the bed.

In all of these perverted functions of the female organs take a tablespoonful of Peru-na before each meal and between meals, and enough Man-a-lin at bedtime to keep the bowels continually in a natural condition.

The opening paper in The Monthly Illustrator for July is a consideration by George Parsons Lathrop of Japan's influence in American art, taking a series of drawings by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Herter as the text for his remarks, which lead to the conclusion that this influence is perceptible and beneficial, especially in the direction of greater simplicity of treatment. The National Gallery of Norway is rich in paintings by Norwegian masters, who have mainly dealt with the life and scenery of their own land. In The Monthly Illustrator for July a score of these pictures are reproduced, all outdoor subjects, leaving the in-door or genre pictures of Norwegian life and character for future representation. Prof. Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen accompanies these interesting pictures with reminiscences of his own youthful experiences on the farms and among the fiords and forests of his picturesque land.

There will appear in the July Forum a very thoughtful review of the Pastoral Letter of the Bishops of the Episcopal Church, showing, but in a spirit of reverence, how the Church is trying to stem an irresistible tide—with danger to itself.

SUBJECT FOR JULY—FOREIGN BOARD.

"Arise, shine, for thy light has come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." Missionaries, 91; native assistants, 89; churches, 85; membership, 3 493; baptisms, 581; schools, 15; scholars, 707; S. S. scholars, 1,503; receipts of Foreign Board, $129,582 68. Contributions from native churches, $6,458 72

Study Topics.—How can our churches be aroused to a sense of the importance of Foreign Missions? How can the various missionary societies in our churches work most effectually? Individual responsibility of Christians. How much depends upon the proper training of the young?

The Foreign Board.

During the year two missionaries died, six retired; and nine are at present resting in this country.

Only six new missionaries were sent from May, 1894, to May, 1895. This did not even balance the force on the field.

The amount received for the Conventional year was $129,582 68. This leaves a debt of $19,850, but is nevertheless a good showing.

Our African Mission has 7 churches and stations, 7 missionaries, 6 native workers, 239 members, 67 baptized.

Our Brazilian Mission has 14 churches, 38 stations, 14 missionaries, 6 native workers, 610 members, 138 baptisms.

Our China Mission has 16 churches, 50 stations, 41 missionaries, 25 native workers, 1,131 members, 118 baptisms.

Our Italian Mission has 18 churches, 46 stations, 8 missionaries, 28 native workers, 353 members, 28 baptisms.

Our Japan Mission has 1 church, 8 stations, 6 missionaries, 5 native workers, 40 members, 9 baptisms.

Our Mexican Mission has 32 churches, 14 stations, 20 missionaries, 19 native helpers, 1,120 members, 226 baptisms.— Young People's Leader.

Burying the Dead in Mexico.

BY JANIE PRICHARD DUGGAN, FORMERLY MISSIONARY TO MEXICO.

Certain parts of tropical Mexico, especially during the months of the rainy season, present pictures of the most vivid life and color, quite at variance with impressions of death in any form, yet in the midst of just such perfection of wealthy nature, the great Leveller has most undisputed sway.

I stood upon my balcony one hot afternoon of a spring month, in Guadalajara, and wondered at the constant stream of passers by on the street below. Calle del Seminaries is never a deserted way, but on this afternoon, the usual throng of sandalled peons, shawled women, and bare headed children, was increased by numbers of persons of the better class, hurrying with the rest toward some goal beyond. I craned my neck over the railing so as to clear with my eyes the string of other balconies along the block, and saw that the human waves were being arrested at some point in the next block of houses, and that the whole street from sidewalk to sidewalk was filling with people. Though I had lived some years in Mexico, I had not yet learned to accept the extraordinary without my woman's share of curious interest; so, just as dusk was settling over the street below, while the western sky was still glowing, I ran down the stone steps from my corridor in the upper story of the house to the court below, where the porter's family was always gathered at this hour. I found them a little more silent than usual, seated upon the stone bench, just inside of the great doorway which opened directly upon the sidewalk under my balcony.

One of the girls, Micaila, informed me instantly of the sudden death of a well-known canon of the cathedral, whose residence was in the block beyond ours.

I remembered him well, a tall, corpulent figure in voluminous black gown and broad-brimmed hat, whom I had seen pass every day beneath my balcony.

He had eaten a hearty dinner at noon, had had some some hot words with a young nephew, and had suddenly fallen to the floor in an apoplectic fit from which he had never revived. What Micaila really told me was that Senor ——had died of a coraje, or fit of anger, and this ailment is really thought to cause a great many deaths in Mexico. Most bilious attacks also are attributed to the effects of violent anger, and I once knew a physician who had been called in to prescribe for a dear, good man, a foreigner in Mexico, who asked his patient, before all other questions, if he had not been angry with some one lately, to have "stirred up his bile to such a degree"!

Affaires du cœur become really such when the Mexican youth is thwarted in his affections, or is in suspense as to the fair one's sentiments toward himself, for many serious heart troubles of a physical nature are likely to accompany such conditions of mind, and fainting fits and even death sometimes occur as results.

Would not the senorita like to go with all the world to see the dead canon lying in state behind the iron bars of his drawing-room window?

I accepted Micaila's invitation, and together we entered the shadowy street, hastily drawing our black shawls over our heads as we went. The patience and solemnity of the Mexican crowd we entered after a few moments, were phenomenal. On the outskirts there was, indeed, a little hustling and even a repressed giggle now and then, but as we gradually neared the iron grating, about which all interest centered, the silence was disturbed only by the sound of shuffling feet, as the crowd shifted to and fro.

After more or less intent gazings through the window into the drawing room beyond, those who had satisfied their curiosity would slowly move away, letting others take their places, and, by this time, there were two steady streams of persons along the street, one approaching the canon's house, the other leaving it.

When we finally stood with nothing save the iron bars between us and the incense laden interior, we found a policeman standing beside the casement, ready to prevent any climbing upon the window-bars.

The room was long and lofty, and paved with shining red tiles. All the furniture had been removed, and, in the corners, wax candles burned in immense gilded candelabra, standing upon the floor. The solitary figure of a young priest stood motionless in the shadow at one side, black robed and with bared, tonsured head. His arms were folded upon his breast and his eyes gazed steadily upon the great, black bier occupying the center of the apartment. A black velvet pall covered the bloated form stretched upon the bier, but the pale face of the dead priest was exposed to view with his square, black cap resting upon a cushion at his head.

We did not linger long before the window, for a moment's glance took in the whole of the solemn thought embodied in the dismal tableau, and besides, others were pressing upon us from behind, eager for our places. In the bright light of the next morning, Calledel Seminario was again thronged with people, accompanying the funeral procession on its way to the cathedral. The plumed hearse was preceded and followed by a long line of empty carriages, private and hired, then came scores upon scores of young priests from the seminary, hundreds of little children from the parochial schools, and a struggling mass of hetrogeneous followers.

Several hours were then spent in the cathedral, where the stone pavement was literally covered with kneeling men and women. Prelates in their gorgeous robes and choir boys in crisp white gowns performed their parts, while the organ sounded overhead, and in the midst of all lay the quiet form of the dead man under a gilded canopy.

When the functions were at last over, the procession again formed and took its hot and weary way toward the Campo Santo, the walled-in burying ground, a spot perhaps only a shade less dreary than are most Mexican cemeteries.

The typical burial place shows often plastered tombs, crumbling to pieces, unmarked graves gape under the unwary footstep, and the grim crosses and wreaths of black and white beads strung upon wire chill the visitor from under their glass cases.

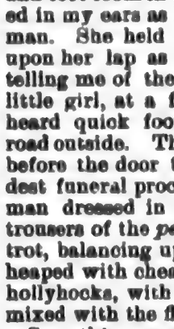
It does not take long to bury the dead. When once the funeral service is over, the perspiring attendants upon the canon's interment were glad to hasten homeward at the end, without rank or file, seeking the shade of high walls and churches on their way.

Another day I sat upon a mat on the floor of a small house just inside the door. There was nothing in the room except one or two mats and a rough bench propped against the wall. As the bench held the spread-out shawl upon which the woman was working, knitting the long fringe with her rapid fingers, I perforce sat upon the mat. The little house was in a part of the city, across the river from the gay gardens and clean paved streets of the center. The door opened directly upon the rough path bordering the dusty road, and the clatter of a clumsy hand-and-foot loom in a neighboring house sounded in my ears as I sat talking with the woman. She held a chubby baby-boy asleep upon her lap as she worked, and she was telling me of the death of her first born, a little girl, at a few weeks of age, when I heard quick footsteps shuffling along the road outside. The next second there passed before the door the strangest and the saddest funeral procession I have ever seen. A man dressed in the loose white shirt and trousers of the peon class went by in a slow trot, balancing upon his head a short board heaped with cheap flowers, gay dahlias and hollyhocks, with sprays of green asparagus mixed with the flowers.

Something small and white was covered by the flowers, but I could not see what it was as it quickly passed by. A single woman, with bare feet, and with her head wrapped in a faded blue cotton shawl, trotted along at the man's heels, both in the middle of the road.

"What is it?" I asked of the woman at my side.

"Somebody's dead baby," she answered briefly touching her own child's smooth brown cheek with tender fingers. "They couldn't buy a coffin, I suppose, poor things, and perhaps some one gave them the flowers to cover up the rags!"



I got to my feet hurriedly and went to look after the man and woman, but they had already turned the corner and were out of sight.

The Campo Santo holds them both, the dead canon who had lain under the velvet pall in the Cathedral, and the dead infant, with its bare limbs hidden by the flowers!

Closing Exercises of the Taylorsville Collegiate Institute.

Dear Recorder:—Having twice attended school at this old institution, under the management of brethren Thos. Deans and W. T. Davis, and Alexander county being my native county, and this old institution having had so many "outs and ins," and now under the successful management of Bro. J. A. White and his excellent force of teachers, I have had for the past two years a desire to attend the closing exercises of this school. So I went, and was so well pleased with the exercises that I feel some sort of a report ought to be furnished the RECORDER.

On Wednesday night there was a public debate by the literary society, participated in by six young men—subject, Resolved, That the United States should prohibit foreign immigration.

Thursday, 11 a. m., the annual sermon was preached by Rev. J. E. Pressly of the Associate Reformed Church, Statesville, N. C. The text was "Wandering Stars." The theme of the preacher was, as wandering stars have no fixed course, so many people go through this life without any fixed purpose. The sermon was good and appropriate.

In the afternoon the exercises consisted of original addresses and essays by the young men and ladies. These were good and well delivered. At night an entertaining concert was given by the children.

Friday, 10:30, the annual address was delivered by Lieut.-Governor R. A. Doughton of Sparta, N. C. His subject was "Education in Relation to Citizenship." The address was a splendid effort, and Mr. Doughton received many congratulations.

In the afternoon the exercises were a continuation of the program of the preceding afternoon.

Bro. White announced that 174 pupils had been enrolled during the year, and that next session would open August 21st. He hopes next session will be more prosperous than any of the preceding ones. The people of Taylorsville and of Alexander county, with a liberal patronage from adjoining counties, are standing nobly by Bro. White. He will be assisted by Prof. Moore of Union, South Carolina, and Miss Mollie Cornelius, Bro. Frank Sharpe retiring from the faculty to take work elsewhere, possibly at Hiddenite, N. C. Bro. White feels that he is located for life. He has the school building repaired and furnished with modern appliances, and has built himself a comfortable house, and has the confidence and love of the people, and feels at home. In connection with his school work he serves two churches, Macedonia and Taylorsville, preaching to the latter twice a month.

Music was furnished for the exercises of the school by the Newton Cornet Band, and added much to the pleasure of the occasion. While here I met brethren J. B. and C. C. Pool, Bumgarner, Shaver and Childess. I had hoped to meet brethren L. P. and J. P. Gwaltney and D. W. Pool, but they were not present.

The people of Taylorsville and community were very kind and obliging to visitors. The crowd was very large and the weather was very warm. I. W.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Oxford Female Seminary.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

Mrs. S. D. Twitty for a half dozen years has been connected with the Seminary as its Lady Principal. Of her ability and qualification, His Excellency, the Governor of North Carolina, writes:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, May 11, 1895.

PROF. F. P. HOBGOOD, Oxford, N. C.:

Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in bearing testimony to the high character and splendid literary attainments of Mrs. S. D. Twitty, who is employed as a teacher in the Oxford Female Seminary. I have known her for many years. She was governess in my family and I know of no one whom I esteem more highly. She is a woman of rare ability and possesses peculiar qualifications which eminently fit her for the education of young ladies. She is in every way capable of filling any position to which she may aspire.

ELIAS CARR.

Of Mrs. M. A. Lacy, whose past connection with this Seminary has been eminently satisfactory to our patrons, Rev. Thomas Hume, D. D., Professor of English in the University of North Carolina, writes:

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA,
CHAPEL HILL, N. C., June 6, 1895.

Mrs. Mary Lacy is one of the most faithful teachers I know. I have been impressed with her varied and genuine accomplishments ever since she was a member of my Faculty in Danville, Va. As a mathematician she is exceptionally gifted, but she has shown marked ability in acquiring and teaching languages. Her strength of character, her high moral purpose, her Christian earnestness, her sincerity, added to her large experience and thorough scholarship, constitute her a most valuable member of my Faculty and society. I commend her heartily to you and your patrons.

RICHMOND, VA., March 25, 1868.

I have sincere respect for the Oxford Female Seminary, N. C. In Prof. F. P. Hobgood it has an admirable presiding officer. To his charming and sterling qualities as a Christian gentleman, he adds a genius for affairs, a rare tact in government, and genuinely broad views on the subject of woman's education. He gathers around him strong and skilled teachers, and does his work under the convictions of a good Christian conscience. He has done excellent service as an educator, and he is still at it, growing with the passing years in experience and influence. WM. E. HATCHER.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.

Miss Marguerite Gaff, the Music Director, is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory, and was for two years a pupil of the Leipsic, one of the best of the German Conservatories. During the past year she conducted the department with marked ability.

Miss Anna T. Sharp, who, next session, will take charge of Vocalization and Elocution and Physical Culture, is a graduate of the South Jersey Institute, both in its Literary and Music Departments, and for several years has been a pupil of the New England Conservatory of Music of Boston. Prof. F. W. Hale, Manager of this Conservatory, writes as follows:

"Miss Anna T. Sharp is qualified to do just what you require to teach: Vocalization and Elocution. She has followed a very creditable course here, and is sure to be an excellent teacher."

"Miss Anna T. Sharpe has studied voice with me for two years. I have found her a brilliant pupil, and as far as I have observed her in teaching she is a skilful instructor. Miss Sharp has a good mezzo soprano voice and sings with a great deal of expression. I am confident Miss Sharpe will give full satisfaction, either as a teacher or concert singer."

SCHOOL OF PHYSICAL CULTURE.

BOSTON, MASS., May 20, 1895.

To Whom it may Concern:—It gives me great pleasure to recommend Miss Anna Sharp as a finished teacher of Swedish Gymnastics. For two years I have watched her progress, and can freely say that in the large classes of the New England Conservatory she is one of the most perfect in Elocution, which eminently fits her for a position as teacher. Miss Sharp possesses also the qualities of good judgment and precision, which are two requisites of a good teacher in Swedish Gymnastics. I only wish her the success she deserves.

ADELINE DEWALT REYNOLDS,
School of Physical Culture of N. E. Cons.

Mr. Samuel R. Kelley, the Professor of Elocution in this Conservatory, writes:

"This is to certify that Miss Anna T. Sharp is thoroughly competent to assume the position of instructor of Elocution in any school of grade, that she is intelligent in all her methods, and painstaking, that she is magnetic in her own public work. It therefore gives me great pleasure to recommend her."

ART DEPARTMENT.

After an absence of one year, Miss Ida Poteat returns to resume charge of the Art Department. This time she has spent both in teaching and in studying Art under the best masters in New York City. She was the most brilliant Art pupil in the President's School, the Raleigh Female Seminary, and for several sessions since that time she studied in the Cooper Union Art School of New York City, and under the best private teachers of that City. Her work with us, while she was in charge of the department, was of the most satisfactory character; and her former pupils will learn with pleasure that she is to return.

A Request for Maysville.

Dear Recorder:—I have sent out about seventy five of my circulars. Enclosed you you will find one. I think Maysville is a very important point. We have succeeded in getting a nice house built there, but we are in debt to the amount of about $75.00 I heard from only a few of the brethren to whom I sent circulars. Please call attention to it in the RECORDER and ask the brethren to please send us something, if only a small amount. It will do us good and we will be very thankful for any amount sent us. Please acknowledge $3 00 sent to us by Rev. J. H. Lamberth from Mt. Airy church.

Very respectfully yours,
A. H. PORTER.

[CIRCULAR]

Dear Brethren and Sisters:—We have a comfortable house of worship built at Maysville, Jones county, N. C., but there is a debt of about $75 00 on it now. The membership is very small and it seems that they have done all they can. We do not want the house sold for the debt; and I ask you to make this known to your church, and ask them to raise as much as $1 00, or any amount for us, that we may be able to get out of debt.

May the Lord inspire you, dear brethren, to give us some amount, and not pass us by unnoticed. Any amount will be gladly and thankfully received. I will acknowledge same in the RECORDER.

Forward your contribution to

SPRING NO. 2.

A Person who Lived for Years on Tea and Crackers Eats Bacon, Cabbage and Turnips.

Case of Mr. James Covington, Halifax County, Va. Statement by himself, endorsed by DR. JOHN C. COLEMAN, a Retired Surgeon of the U. S. Navy, Scottsburg, Va.

"For a number of years I was the victim of a most distressing form of Dyspepsia, unable to eat meat or vegetables, and lived entirely upon tea and crackers, bread and milk, and other similar articles. I was subject to nausea and vomiting after eating, and occasionally discharged from an empty stomach a yellow fluid. With my general health already greatly enfeebled, I was about two years ago attacked with a Calculous Affection of the Bladder. There were frequent severe paroxysms, and I was rarely free from suffering, which necessitated a resort to morphia for relief. This complication of maladies reduced me to such a condition that I had despaired of relief from any source, when six months ago, acting upon the suggestion of a neighbor, I commenced the use of BUFFALO LITHIA WATER which so far alleviated my sufferings that I was able to dispense with the use of morphia, and there was a continued and gradual improvement until, at the expiration of some eight weeks, I had an attack of great severity, from which I was relieved by the passage of a Calculous, followed at short intervals by three other attacks, each resulting in a similar manner, the passage of Calculous, which proved to be the termination of this trouble. Not less remarkable and happy was the action of the water in my painful and long-standing Stomach disorder, which it entirely relieved, restoring perfect digestion. I now eat with impunity Bacon, Cabbage and Turnips, and whatever else I fancy, and am in vigorous general health, attending actively to my business affairs."

Dr. John C. Coleman, Surgeon (retired) U. S. Navy, Scottsburg, Va.

"I am not a Practicing Physician, and was not the attending Physician of Mr. Covington, but as a neighbor I knew of his condition, and suggested the use of BUFFALO LITHIA WATER in his case, with the remarkable results above stated."

This Water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $5.00 f. o. b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent to any address.

A Slave From Boyhood.

(From the Red Wing, Minn., Republican.)

"I am now twenty-four years old," said Edwin Swanson, of White Rock, Goodhue County, Minn., to a Republican representative, "and as you can see I am not very large of stature. When I was eleven years old I became afflicted with a sickness which baffled the skill and knowledge of the physician. I was not taken suddenly ill but on the contrary I can hardly state the exact time when it began. The first symptoms were pains in my back and restless nights. The disease did not trouble me much at first, but it seemed to have settled in my body to stay and my bitter experience during the last thirteen years proved that to be the case. I was of course a child and never dreamed of the suffering in store for me. I complained to my parents and they concluded that in time I would outgrow my trouble, but when they heard me groaning during my sleep they became thoroughly alarmed. Medical advice was sought but to no avail, I grew rapidly worse and was soon unable to move about and finally became confined continually to my bed. The best doctors that could be had were consulted, but did nothing for me. I tried various kinds of extensively advertised patent medicines with but the same result.

"For twelve long years I was thus a sufferer in constant agony without respite, abscesses formed on my body in rapid succession and the world indeed looked very dark to me. About this time when all hope was gone and nothing seemed left but to resign myself to my most bitter fate my attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Like a drowning man grasping at a straw, in sheer desperation I concluded to make one more attempt—not to regain my health (I dared not to hope so much) but if possible to ease my pain.

"I bought a box of the pills and they seemed to do me good. I felt encouraged and continued their use. After taking six boxes I was up and able to walk around the house. I have not felt so well for thirteen years as during the past year. Only one year have I taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I am able now to do chores and attend to light duties.

"Do I hesitate to let you publish what I have said? No. Why should I? It is the truth and I am only too glad to let other sufferers know my experience. It may help those whose cup of misery is as full to day as mine was in the past."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, over work or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in bulk) at 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2 50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

A Tribute of Respect.

In the early part of Rev. C. T. Bailey's ministry, he was pastor of the church at this place, and has ever been loved and highly esteemed by the members thereof. After he became editor of the BIBLICAL RECORDER, we regarded him as an earnest and faithful leader of the denomination.

We, the members of Hertford Baptist church, desire to express our appreciation of the life and labors of our brother and to sympathize with the loved ones in their deep SORROW:—

Resolved, first, That we are deeply grieved at his death, but feel grateful to our kind Heavenly Father for the earnest life and labors of our brother, for we have his life as an example and his labors to help us in the years to come.

Resolved, second, That we ask the RECORDER to publish this, and that a copy be sent to the family as an expression of our deep sympathy in this great affliction.

Done by order of the church.

JOSIAH ELLIOTT, Pastor.
L. W. NORMAN, Clerk.

Hertford, N. C.

Robert Louis Stevenson's last story, "St. Ives," was left at his death practically completed. He rewrote the first half several times, and worked on the story for more than a year. It will be published serially in McClure's Magazine, now put at a reduced price, 10 cents a copy.

Quite a number of obituaries and other communications are crowded out this week. As soon as it is possible, we will give them insertion in our columns.

MARRIED.

MIDDLETON—CRUMP—On June 26th, 1895, at the residence of Mrs. Virginia Boyette, in Warsaw, N. C., by Elder W. L. Bilbro, Mr. Theodore Middleton and Miss Elizabeth Crump, both of Warsaw, N. C.

DIED.

BUNCH—Joseph R. Bunch of Bertie county, N. C., in his forty-second year, died at his home April 24th, after a week of intense suffering of pneumonia. Bro. Bunch had for several years been a faithful member of Republican church. He leaves a wife, mother, and many near relatives and friends to mourn their loss. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

HONEYCUTT—On Friday night, May 31st, 1895, the angels that had for hours been hovering near, bore the spirit of David Brantly, son of Charles B. and Mattie J. Honeycutt, to the arms of our Heavenly Father. Only about three and a half summers had kissed his brow. Little Brantly was greatly afflicted for the last two years of his life. His pale, patient face bore deep lines by suffering traced. Yes, dearly was he loved and tenderly did we minister to his every want; but all our loving care could not loosen the chilly clasp of death. 'Tis hard to realize that, "not in cruelty, not in wrath, the Reaper came that day," yet we know that the one who said "Suffer little children to come unto me," has folded our darling in his bosom, safe from sin and pain. 'God doeth well, and he hath fixed for us the better part."

CARRIE LEE.

NALL—Bro Jesse W. Nall died at his father's home, near Gulf, N. C., on May 29th, 1895, in the twenty-sixth year of his age. He professed faith in Christ when about thirteen years old and joined Bethany Baptist church, and remained a member till his death. He was a pious young man, and bore his sufferings patiently. He told the writer he was glad he could suffer, because it did him good spiritually.

He left an afflicted father a mother, two brothers and three sisters to mourn their loss; and though we all regretted to give him up so soon, let us bow in humble submission to the will of God, knowing he never makes a mistake. May the good Lord console the bereaved.

Goldston, N. C., July 2, 1895.

KENNEDY—Mrs. Agnes Kennedy, after a brief illness, fell on sleep on the night of the 15th inst. She was in the seventy-sixth year of her age, and for sixty-two years had been a follower of the Master, having been baptized in her fourteenth year by Dr. James McDaniel into the fellowship of the Fayetteville Baptist church.

The writer accompanied the remains to Fayetteville and preached her funeral in the old church which she loved so well, and of which she was a consistent member for more than forty years. A good woman full of years and good works has gone to her reward.

"Soldier of Christ well done,
Rest from thy loved employ,
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter the Master's joy."

W. F. WATSON.

Carthage, N. C., June 25, 1895.

CATES—The death angel visited the home of Bro. Henry A. Cates the third Sunday in April and laid his icy fingers upon him and claimed him as his own. He had been a true, active, and faithful member of Bethel church, Mt. Zion Association, for more than thirty years. His death will be felt in many homes for he often responded to the call of the needy. The church will miss one of its most useful members. He was a kind father and husband. He leaves a wife, son, and many relatives to mourn for him. To them we extend our sincere sympathy, and commend them to the loving care of him who doeth all things well, knowing that "precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints," and trusting that his death was one of triumph, they have reasons for rejoicing in the hope of meeting him again, and then live with him who has said, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am there ye may be also."

J. W. WATSON.

JONES—On June 9th, 1895, at his home at Hargrove, N. C., after having been a sufferer for eight years with that fatal disease, consumption, (which he bore with Christian fortitude), Bro. Roger S. Jones calmly, quietly fell asleep in Jesus.

Bro. Jones had been a consistent member of Tally Ho Baptist church for a number of years. For three or four years he was clerk of the church, which office he filled with honor to himself and satisfaction to the church.

The spirit of a good husband, kind father, and an obliging neighbor, has took its departure from this world of sorrow to the city of light, whose builder and maker is God. Weep not dear companion, weep not dear child, but have your lamps trimmed and burning, and ere long you will meet him on the banks of eternal deliverance, where partings shall be no more.

By order of the church Sunday, June 16th, 1895.

Parents and guardians having girls to educate will do well to consider the following facts:—

Only experienced teachers of broad culture and special training for their particular work are employed.

Thorough work is required of pupils, and diplomas are conferred only after critical examinations. The administration believes that education should be practical, and that girls should be trained not to feel above their homes.

The discipline is mild and parental. Pupils are treated as daughters.

The health of the Institute is unsurpassed.

Charges have been reduced to suit the times.

Death.

Two men lay dying,
One, with fierce groans looked up and saw,
The Angel Death, a phantom dark,
Stern featured, hard and cold,
"O! Death!" he cried "depart from me;
Grim Master let me live,
Give me back my life,
I give thee all beside!"
And so he died.

The other, peaceful lay,
And smiled to see Death come,
A radiant being in robes of snow,
A face benign and calm.
"Sweet Death," he sighed,
"O give me my release,
Lead me from life unto my perfect peace,
Across the tide."

The Angel, stooping, kissed his brow,
And spake—"O child of tears,
I come to beak thy fetters hard—
To calm thy fears."

And thus Death comes—
Shall come throughout all years
How wilt thou greet him, friend,
When at thy portal he appears?

A Young Evangelist.—A True Narrative.

BY ELIZABETH GORDON.

The shortest sermon I ever heard was preached by the shortest preacher I ever saw; and it was not on Sunday, nor in a church, but on Monday, in a small steamer plying between Toronto and the Island.

Ever since the boat left Church Street Wharf I had been amused by hearing a clear, high-set voice asking questions, one after another, as fast as the little tongue could go. Nothing could be seen from our point of view but a great hat of fine brown straw, which covered it like a tent, underneath which an edge of white skirt showed, and from it peeped a pair of tiny slippers.

Some of the questions asked by the voice were so original that I thought I would move around and see what was to be seen on the other side of the big hat; so I sat down on the other side of the lady, and looked on one of the loveliest child faces I had ever seen. But, O, such a delicate looking mite! features perfect, eyes of softest hazel, and rings of silky brown hair curling all around the blue veined forehead. I was wondering how long the fragile little body would stand the wear and tear of that voice, when the boat touched at the Wiman Baths, and a big policeman came on board and walked toward a vacant seat beside the child. The little one looked around, then turned to the lady, and put a little hand in hers.

"You need not be afraid of the police man, darling. You are a good boy. It is only the bad boys who are afraid of policemen."

"O!" said the child, with a bright smile. And when the big policeman sat down beside him he turned up the beautiful face to him and asked:

"Are you a policeman?"

"Yes," answered the man, looking down at him kindly.

"Why are you a policeman?" was the next question.

The policeman gave a puzzled laugh, but did not seem to have an answer ready. So the child helped him by asking:

"Is it 'cause you like to be a policeman?"

"Yes," said the man. Then, as if afraid of any more questions, he took out the key of the patrol box and a pair of handcuffs, and began to explain that they were to put on bad boys when he took them away.

"You won't take me away," said the little fellow, bravely, looking him straight in the face; "I am a good boy."

"No, my boy; I won't take you. Whom do you belong to?" asked the big man, still smiling at the mite.

"I belong to Jesus," said the child.

So you see, dear children, that the sermon was only four words. Could any of you preach it?"—Exchange.

And say, "There's no danger for boys you know,
Because they all have their wild oats to sow."
There is no more excuse for my boy to be low
Than your girl. Then please do not tell him so.

For a boy or a girl sin is sin, you know,
And my baby boy's hands are as clean and white,
And his heart is as pure as your girl's to-night.

For Brain Fag
Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. W. R. Lowman, Orangeburgh, S. C., says: "I have used and prescribed it with beneficial results in brain fag and nerve exhaustion."

How many a Christian pilgrim would never have seen anything of the spiritual manna and the spiritual stream from the rock, had God listened to him when, with fear and trembling, he besought him not to lead him into a desert.

The Second Summer
many mothers believe, is the most precarious in a child's life; generally it may be true, but you will find that mothers and physicians familiar with the value of the Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk do not so regard it.

"Stick."

Isaac T. Woodsop, Jr., writes the following to the Western Recorder: "On the first day of last March at the regular monthly missionary meeting held at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Dr. John A. Broadus attended for the last time. Just before the presiding officer, Dr. Whitsitt, closed the services Dr. Broadus arose and addressed the students as follows: "Young gentlemen, most men are prejudiced against rich men, but I know one rich man who is a good Christian, and that man is John D. Rockefeller. Some time ago I was at his residence at dinner, and during the conversation I asked him to give me his receipt for success in business, and he gave me this word as the key of all success—'Stick.' Young men your old president is proud of you and he begs you will stick to your work and be a success in the Master's vineyard and not cause him to change his opinion of you. This was the last time Dr. Broadus ever addressed his students as a whole; and had he known and prepared for the occasion, could he have given a more powerful truth, or left any words more appropriate at his last?"

To prevent pale and delicate children from lapsing into chronic invalids later in life, they should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla together with plenty of wholesome food and out-door exercise. What they need to build up the system is good red blood.

The Human Touch.

A visitor to a glass manufactory saw a man molding clay into the great pots which were to be used in shaping the glass. Noticing that all the molding was done by hand, he said to the workman: "Why do you not use a tool to aid you in shaping the clay?" The workman replied: "There is no tool that can do this work. We have tried different ones, but somehow it needs the human touch."

There is much in the Lord's work that likewise needs the "human touch." The divine hand would have been too glorious, too dazzling, too bright, if it had been reached out of heaven to help and lift up and save, to wipe away tears, to heal heart wounds, to be laid in benediction on the children's heads; and therefore God took a human form, that with a human hand he might touch the sinful and the sorrowing. And now that Christ has gone away into heaven, he does not reach out of the skies that glorified hand, which burns with splendor, to do his work of love in this world; but uses our common hands, yours and mine, sending us to do in his name the gentle things he would have done for his little ones.—Y. P. Leader.

A Good Book.

A striking illustration of the result of getting another to read a good book, and of the influence a bookseller may wield, occurred in London sometime ago. A gentleman entered a bookseller's shop and asked for a book which had already injured many. The bookseller replied that he had it not, and mentioned what he knew about it. Instead, he recommended him to buy and read a Christian book which was lying on the counter. Though at first reluctant to buy it, yet he finally did so. A few weeks after this gentleman came to the bookseller and thanked him for recommending it. He said that he could never be grateful enough to him for having done so. Henceforth he himself would spread such books as far as lay in his power. He ordered several copies to give to his friends. How true the saying that "he who gets another to read a good book may thereby be forming his character for time and fixing his destiny for eternity."—New York Observer.

Over The River.

A minister who had lost his child asked another minister to come and preach for him. He came and he told how he lived on one side of a river and felt very little interest in the people on the other side, until his daughter was married and went over there to live; and then every morning he went to the window and looked over that river, and felt very much concerned about that town and all the people there. "Now," said he, "I think that as this child has crossed another river, heaven will be dearer to him than ever it was before." Shall we not just let our hearts and affections be set on the other side of the river? It is but a step; it is but a veil; we shall soon be in the other world.—D. L. Moody.

Traveler Henry Hudson's Experience.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case, and I conscientiously believe it to be my duty to let people know it. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."—HENRY HUDSON, James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

FROM a circular sent out by the Weather Bureau we learn that this division of the Agricultural Department of our government costs annually $349,529.55.

The Bureau does useful service sometimes, particularly in saving small truckers from frosts. But more frequently it barely manages to tell the people in the cities that cold or hot weather is at hand or how much rain fell yesterday and where the "low area" ought to be. It is a question with us whether practical benefits of such information are realized to a considerable extent by any one anywhere. So far as helping the agricultural classes is concerned, we know the farmers of North Carolina place more confidence in the moon and their own common sense; and they get along about as well as their would be instructors who spend their time "experimenting" and writing pamphlets.

AFTER thirty years North Carolina's title to the highest honor in the war has been made clear and put on official record, to stand for all time and be read by all generations.

We wish we did know if the people of our State are so peculiar. It seems to us that as a commonwealth we lack an element not least conspicuous in the other older States, and very important to progress just at this time; it is self assertion. A kind of modesty or self distrust or self restraint seems to beset us constantly. It may be because we have no great city to make an imposing appearance for us; it may be because the States just above and below us have taken our share of assurance; it may be because our young men do not come in contact with the pushing methods of the cities; we do not know.

In the war we furnished the fighters and supported them better than any other State. We left more men under the sod of sister States, we fought in more battles, and we were at the front more often than any State; but the famous generals came from other quarters, and the monuments have been raised far away. And it has taken thirty years to get deserved credit in the Nation's records.

Look at the National political conventions; you seek vainly for a commanding figure from North Carolina. Look at our religious gatherings; point out a North Carolinian who would be missed. And yet we have men of superior intellect in political, religious and educational pursuits. They do well at home, but lesser lights outshine them away.

Our State is moving forward. She is expecting more of herself than ever, and this is a sign that more will be expected of her. In our opinion the State is the best of them all to grow up in, not for what she is, but for what she will be. If we can only catch the modern spirit of taking a front seat, invited or not, the world will hear of us.

A FORMER school teacher was in our office a few days ago. He made a good record at college, and on graduating took charge of a first-class academy. For a year or more he did well, having a goodly number of pupils. Of late, however, it has been a struggle to get along, although he is a better teacher than ever, and the people think no less highly of him. He said to us, "I have realized that I must seek a livelihood in some other field. I love to teach, but between the upper mill stone of free for all colleges and inducement State institutions, and the nether of home teaching, kindergartens and graded schools, the academy is about to be ground out. By time boys are old enough to do fair work in an academy, they are lured away by a scholarship and promise of early graduation to some institution of 'higher education,' or hurried off to 'a business college.'"

State-aid trying to make a show of reaching a great number of students, is grinding down the academies. Not only this, it is placing the temptations of college life before boys too young to resist, and sending them out into the world half developed, without qualifications and without definite purposes.

If parents could but know the advantages a well prepared boy has at college over his class-mates, we are sure they would rally to the lower schools and stand together by them in spite of all the attractions and inducements of "enterprising" and versatile presidents.

WE have frequently protested against the "goody-goody" kind of Sunday school books, and of late very few of them have come to us "for review" (the review invariably being furnished with the book). Thousands of these books have come from denominational publishing houses and found their way to a final and undisturbed resting place on the shelves of Sunday school libraries, without ever giving to any one so much as a single good impulse. There are good books for Sunday-school children, there are hundreds of them; but the average book printed and sold for Sunday-school purposes only does harm by taking time that would be spent in reading wholesome, vigorous literature, and by wearing out eyes that ought to be spent only for what is good, beautiful and helpful.

The work of a brother in the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle, as mentioned elsewhere in this paper should be a suggestion to librarians throughout the State to purge their shelves and fill up the gaps with works of authors who create characters with strength and manhood in them. There is enough of standard literature, helpful not only in its impressions but greatly also in its composition, to make it unpardonable to do without it, or create a disgust for it and all other by destroying a young reader's taste with rapid imbecility.

Every community, every Sunday school should have a good library. It is easier to get a good one than a poor one. Good books are cheaper, because published in larger editions, than poor ones; and if it really is necessary to get only such as have red bindings with pretty pictures, we believe it can be done without sacrificing the authors who depend on other virtues to circulate their works.

RECENTLY Dr. J. W. Carter of the First Baptist church at Raleigh put a very old question in a very new light—new at least to most of his hearers. He was speaking of the objects and relations of a church, and the question of taxation of church property came up. He holds that the property should not be taxed, because worship of God ought not to be hindered, a price should not be put upon it; not only this question enters, but also, said he, for a State to tax church property is to connect Church and State. This is quite a new way of looking at the matter. Of course this would not embrace church property that is not used for purposes of worship.

In Georgia a man was recently sentenced to one year at hard labor, because he worked on Sunday. In Tennessee, we have been told on good authority, a man was imprisoned for plowing on Sunday, while a gang of hands were laying a railroad track in sight of the jail the same day. The interference of the law in these matters increases the number of sympathizers with the false doctrine that makes them possible, and intensifies the ardor of those who are already in the wrong. It is against physical and scriptural law to work on the Lord's day; but the civil law has nothing to do with it.

THE merit-system of prison management is being extensively experimented with. In the average penitentiary it is a difficult matter to make "both ends meet" without calling on the public treasury for funds; and so as a step towards solving this question of support, the custom of cutting down terms of imprisonment so many hours a week for every week of earnest labor and good behavior is worth considering. In one State the terms are greatly shortened, but the convicts are dismissed on the condition of receiving a very much more severe sentence, if they are caught in any law-breaking within a certain time. One of the merits of this plan is said to be that it gets the felon used to freedom and gets him into the habit of resisting temptation to wrong-doing.

WE have not seen a more valuable contribution on North Carolina history than that from the prolific pen of Judge Clark in this issue. It is perhaps the first complete list of North Carolina Generals and wars, and is, therefore, unusually valuable. Moreover it gives at a glance some idea of North Carolina's part in the military activities of our country, and serves for a good starting point for investigation of our history in other directions.

Rev. J. L. Carroll, D. D.

BY REV. THOS. HUME, D. D.

It was my purpose to write a sketch of our brother immediately after his lamented death. But a serious though brief illness interrupted my plan, and your excellent editorial covered the ground so well that it is not necessary to give many facts.

In his latest sermons he often referred with loving tenderness to the Christian home in Duplin county in which he was born and reared, the son of John D. and Zilpha Carroll. He was baptized by Rev. A. Gray, and united with the Beaver Dam church, Dec. 2d, 1852, and he was licensed to preach the gospel by this church in January, 1858. His ordination did not take place at Chapel Hill, but at Wake Forest, May 11th, 1863, and was conducted by a presbytery consisting of William Royall, William T. Brooks and William T. Walters, all of the College faculty. He was married by Rev. John Mitchell at Hillsboro, Nov. 3d, 1865, to Miss Sarah G. Mitchell of Newbern, and a faithful, helpful, thoughtful partner of his joys and sorrows has she been to the end; a devoted and honored mother of the three boys whom we know, John, Mitchell, Eugene, the first married and resident in Asheville, the second an accomplished scholar and Christian gentleman at the very opening of his promising career, now Professor elect of Greek in Richmond College, with useful service and many honors before him, the last just ending his Freshman year at the University of North Carolina. You have told of Dr. Carroll's work in Oxford, N. C., and at Wake Forest and in the country adjacent. For seven years he was pastor at Warrenton, Va., a highly cultivated community. In the interesting centre of refinement and education, Lexington, Va., he served the Baptist cause, as also in Gordonsville. It was in January, 1885, that he removed to Asheville, N. C., where, after serving the First church for three years, he gave so liberally of his substance and his work to the founding and direction of the French Broad-church. He had graduated at the State University and had been further honored by her with the degree of Doctor of Divinity, and on resigning, with health much impaired his second Asheville pastorate, he turned in September, 1891, with interest to the smaller, but more important field in Chapel Hill.

It was my privilege to meet him in his earlier career and to form a sincere friendship with him, which remained unshaken during the years of close association in this interesting pastorate. His mental vigor abated not till very near the end. His powerful and lofty frame gave signs of the inroads of disease, but his strong will and Christian self control sustained him so well as to induce his faithful wife to believe that he might rally so far as to be able to journey to the mountains, and in his Asheville residence gather his children about him before his death. But after a brief stay at the Seven Springs, where he had the comforting sympathy of his brother, Marshal C. J. Carroll, he could go no farther than Chapel Hill, where he sank rapidly and peacefully into the sleep of the just.

He did not "wear his heart on his sleeve," and we have little to report of his inmost spiritual exercises. He knew whom he believed and was persuaded. So he spent his strength in comforting others with these truths he so ably proclaimed. He was a strong man physically and intellectually. His sermons were correct in interpretation of the word, methodical, perspicuous. His analysis of his subject was remarkable for its clearness and logical coherence. His diction was terse and vigorous. At times he was surprisingly convincing and effective in the sweep of his thought and the strength and compactness of his argument, as he discoursed on the great doctrines of the gospel. He was given to linking Scripture with Scripture and quoting, chapter and verse, with literal accuracy. For him Christian experience was so built on the truths of the Bible and their inspired authority, that he could not refrain from reiterating these precious doctrines with all definiteness of conviction and positiveness of statement. While he read and studied other works, he was in the higher sense, a man of one book. If he had gathered more of the fruits and flavors in the varied field of literature, he might have been a more popular preacher. But to the thoughtful and the mature he had many of the characteristics of a great sermonizer and expositor. I have heard occasional discourses of his that glared with a vivid fancy.

Foreign missions lay on his heart. All the great Christian enterprises filled his thought and claimed his best effort. He advocated resolutely the old, tried methods of organization and work. Yet he was always full of sympathy with progressive Sunday school plans and young people's societies in his own church. He had the courage of his convictions and was often a doughty disputant, but he sought the truth, and was mainly anxious to uphold it. He was practical and prudent in the administration of his private as well as his public affairs, and he and his, with some vicissitudes, have been outwardly blessed.

So good a name, so honorable a character, so useful a life, so devout and consecrated a spirit, so true and kind a father and husband and friend, so wise and high a preacher and servant of God and his fellowmen,—what a heritage this for his family! I take a liberty—pardonable, I trust—when I give a bit of filial confidence to inspire others and to comfort the hearts that mourn. His scholarly son has said to me, "When I was drifting away from traditional beliefs and religious teachings, his letters showed me there was something in Christian experience I had not apprehended, and I had the conversations which turned the trend of my thought, and after the light did break and I began to gain some insight into divine things, his unwavering faith, his constant allegiance to duty, his devoted unselfishness became to me celestial inspirations urging me on to emulate him."

Farewell, friend, brother, pastor; such celestial inspirations will cheer us through the night of time until the day dawn and we see thee again.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

North Carolina Generals and Wars.

BY HON. WALTER CLARK.

The following list of Generals whom North Carolina has furnished, and of the various wars through which she has passed, may merit preservation:

BEFORE THE REVOLUTION.

Before the Revolution, North Carolina, owing to the small number of troops she could furnish, had no Generals except those of the militia. She had a severe Indian war at home in 1711–'13, and some Indian troubles later, of minor importance.

In 1715 she sent her first expedition beyond the State, being horse and foot soldiers under Col. Maurice Moore, to aid South Carolina against the Yemassee Indians. In 1740 she sent four companies of 100 men each in the only expedition soldiers from this country have ever made beyond the Continent, to Carthagena South America. James Innes (afterwards Colonel in the French war), Robert Halton and Coltrane were three of the Captains. In the same year, 1740, she sent troops in the expedition under Oglethorpe against St. Augustine, Florida, then held by the Spanish. In the latter expedition her troops exclusive of the company of Highlanders, probably from near Fayetteville, (then Cross Creeks), under Capt. McIntosh, were combined with the Virginia and South Carolina troops into a regiment commanded by Van Derdussen. The company of Highlanders were especially exposed and were cut off almost to a man at Fort Moosa.

In the French war, she sent in 1755 prior to Braddock's defeat, a regiment to Winchester, Va., under command of Col. James Innes, who took the command outranking at the time Lieut. Col. George Washington, who commanded the Virginia forces. Her troops who fought the battle of Alamance against the Regulators May 16th, 1771, were detachments of militia commanded by their Colonels under Governor Tryon who was in chief command. Gen. Hugh Waddell, who had seen some service against the French and Indians in a lower rank, commanded some 300 militia across the Yadkin, who did not reach the battlefield.

IN THE REVOLUTION—1775–'83.

North Carolina had in the "Continental Line" 1 Major General, Robert Howe; 4 Brigadier Generals: 1. James Moore, died in service February, 1777; 2. Francis Nash, killed at Germantown October, 1777; 3. Jethro Sumner; 4 James Hogun, died a prisoner of war at Charleston, S. C., Jan. 4th, 1781.

Besides these, who were regular or continental officers, the following Generals of militia commanded troops in action:

General Isaac Gregory, at Camden, S. C., August, 1780, where he was wounded, and the conduct of his men highly praised by the British.

General Griffith Rutherford, at Stono, June, 1779, and at Camden, S. C., August, 1780, where he was wounded and captured.

General William Lee Davidson, killed at Cowan's Ford, October, 1780 (He had been a Lieutenant Colonel in the Continental Line).

North Carolina furnished ten regiments of regulars to the Continental Line, one battery of artillery (Kingsbury's), and three companies of cavalry. Besides this her militia were frequently ordered out on "tours of duty." Alone and unaided they won the brilliant victories at Moore's Creek, Ramseur's Mills, and King's Mountain, and helped the regulars lose the battles of Camden and Guilford C. H. They also shared in the battles of Stono, Briar Creek, Cowpens, and the surrender at Charleston. The North Carolina Continentals rendered efficient service at Brandywine, Germantown, Monmouth, Eutaw, at the sieges of Charleston and Savannah, and at other battles, and formed part of the garrison of West Point, where our Gen. Howe succeeded Arnold in command, after the treason and flight of the latter.

IN WAR OF 1812–'15.

Brigadier General Joseph Graham, in command of the brigade of North Carolina and South Carolina troops, was sent in 1814 to aid of General Andrew Jackson in the Creek war. General Graham had attained the rank of Major in the Revolutionary war, and had been badly wounded at the capture of Charlotte, 1780.

IN MEXICAN WAR, 1846–'7.

Colonel Louis D. Wilson, 13th U. S. Infantry, died at Vera Cruz, Aug. 13th, 1847.

North Carolina had no General in that war. She furnished one regiment of volunteers—Paine's—and one company to the 13 U. S. Infantry.

IN THE CIVIL WAR, 1861–'65.

Two Lieutenant Generals: 1. T. H. Holmes; 2. D. H. Hill.

Six Major Generals: 1. Robert Ransom; 2. W. D. Pender, died of wounds received at Gettysburg in July, 1863; 3. W. H. C. Whiting, died of wounds received at Fort Fisher, January 21st, 1865; 4. S. D. Ramseur, killed at Cedar Run, 1864; 5. R. F. Hoke; 6. Bryan Grimes.

Twenty-three Brigadier Generals: 1. Jas. G. Martin; 2. Richard C. Gatling; 3. L. O'B. Branch, killed at Sharpsburg, September 17th, 1862; 4. J. Johnston Pettigrew, died of wounds received at Falling Waters, July 14th, 1863; 5. Thomas L. Clingman; 6. Geo. B. Anderson, died of wounds received at Sharpsburg, Sept. 17th, 1862; 7. Junius Daniel, died of wounds received at Wilderness, May, 1864; 8. James H. Lane; 9. Robert B. Vance, since M. C.; 10. Matthew W. Ransom, since U. S. Senator; 11. Alfred M. Scales, Governor 1885–1889; 12. Lawrence S. Baker; 13. William W. Kirkland; 14. Robert D. Johnston; 15. Collett Leventhrope; 16. James B. Gordon, killed at Yellow Tavern, May 11th, 1864; 17. Rufus Barringer; 18. W. Gaston Lewis; 19. W. R. Cox, since M. C.; 20. A. C. Godwin, killed at Winchester, 1864; 21. William MacRae; 22. W. P. Roberts, since State Auditor; 23. T. F. Toon.

Generals Cook and Iverson commanded North Carolina brigades, but they were not North Carolinians, the first being a Virginian and the latter a Georgian.

Notwithstanding the State furnished 120,000 troops to the Confederacy, it had at the close of the war in service only one Lieutenant General, D. H. Hill, and three Major Generals, Robert Ransom, Robert F. Hoke and Bryan Grimes—Pender, Whiting and Ramseur having been killed in battle. Of her twenty-three Brigadier Generals, six (Branch, Pettigrew, Anderson, Daniel, Gordon and Godwin) were killed, one was on the retired list, one in the State service as Adjutant General, and four prisoners of war—leaving eleven in service or at home wounded, several of our depleted brigades being commanded by Colonels and Majors, and one even by a captain. At the Appomattox surrender (April 9th, 1865,) the parole list shows from North Carolina one Major General, Bryan Grimes, commanding division, and five Brigadier Generals were paroled in command of their respective brigades, W. R. Cox, William MacRae, James H. Lane, Matthew W. Ransom and W. P. Roberts. Another General, Rufus Barringer, had been captured the week before during the retreat.

At Joseph E. Johnston's surrender, April 26th, 1865, North Carolina had one Lieut. General, D. H. Hill, one Major General, Robert F. Hoke, and one Brigadier, Kirkland, though Leventhorpe and Baker, with their commands, were also embraced in the forms.

To this war North Carolina sent 76 regiments and 15 battalions.

[A Representative Chinese Opinion.

Yang Yu, the Chinese minister at Washington, D. C., is said to be the most exclusive of all the diplomats. Frank G. Carpenter recently succeeded in interviewing him for the St. Louis Republic. In reply to the query about our missionaries in China, he said:

"They are intelligent people, and the better class of Chinese know that they labor with sincere and honest intent. The opposition comes from the lower classes, and from these classes the majority of their converts have also come."

"Do you think that the Chinese will ever become a Christian nation?"

"It might be so," said his excellency, with a smile. "But I think the possibility is very remote. The doctrines of Confucius have a strong hold upon the people, and I doubt whether they will ever give them up for those of Christianity."

A Thought for the Season.

"If we are poor because we stand true to life and duty, we are poor only as the sower is poor, because he has to cast his wheat into the furrow, and then wait for the sheaves of harvest. If our life is as God will, yet is bare, it is only as the granary is bare in June,—that very bareness is the prophecy of plenty. Here or there in the full time comes the full blessing; the flower flashing out glory, the fields laughing with plenty."

The resources of God are inexhaustible to those who sheerfully do their best. To the confiding child there is a fathomless depth in the promise, "My grace shall be sufficient for thee."

Three things to follow:—confidence, meekness and humility.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 17, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, ... EDITOR,
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

THE committee appointed by the Baptist State Convention to consider matters pertaining to Baptist periodicals in the bounds of the Convention, and to advise as to the conduct of the BIBLICAL RECORDER after the death of the late editor, met in the Mission Rooms at Raleigh July 9th and 10th. Rev. R. H. Marsh, Rev. H. A. Brown, Rev. C. Durham, Rev. J. B. Boone, and Prof. W. L. Poteat being present. Rev. J. D. Hufham, being unable to attend, stated his views in a letter.

The committee, understanding its function as limited to the interim between the sessions of the Convention, recommended the continuation of the present ownership and management till the next session of the Convention.

In formally taking charge of the RECORDER, we point to the conduct of the paper the last two years as an indication of what is to be. As from the beginning of our relations with the paper, we will do our best, confidently trusting in God's help and the prayerful co-operation of our fellow-workers, to make it the efficient servant of the great denomination of which it has so long been the organ, and to increase its usefulness in the service of our Lord and Master in every way possible.

THERE is a list of the coming Associations on page five of this paper. It is important that the dates and places in this list be correctly stated now; and we hope any one who knows of any errors in it will kindly inform us as soon as possible.

It is not a day too soon to be getting ready for these meetings. A great deal depends upon the active co-operation of the churches to make them interesting and fruitful. We hope the churches will appoint active and business like, as well as pious delegates; and not only this, will strive to be represented as largely as possible.

THOSE of us who have been preaching on and praying for a systematic plan of mission support, will be glad to read the communications of Vice-President Van Deventer and Secretary Durham.

That nine thousand dollars looks encouragingly small when it is divided up, and we feel sure it will be raised. But if it is to be, we must get about it now. Pastor or deacon or some well-informed member in every Baptist church in the State ought to begin now to find out how much his church will give, so that when the Association meets the pledges can be made.

We are sure if a personal canvas of the churches is made our Convention will easily raise her apportionment; and with this in view, we suggest that the pastors appoint some one in their congregations to attend to this.

The prospect is for a vigorous and glorious rounding up of the year's work, and we are looking forward to a series of unusually active associational meetings.

THE most serious charge that can be brought against a church or a church-member, is to charge that it lacks spirituality—if that means it shows no evidence of the Holy Spirit's presence.

This is the dispensation of the Spirit. The late Dr. Gordon says in his book: "The Holy Spirit is here, abiding perpetually in the church." * * * "Here it is the Holy Spirit uniting himself with the church in its imperfect and militant condition." "The Holy Spirit, from that time on (Pentecost), took up his residence on earth. The Christian church throughout all this dispensation is the home of the Spirit as truly as heaven, during this same period, is the home of Jesus Christ." "The first two persons of the Godhead now hold residence in the church through the third; * * * and all spiritual presence and divine communion of the Trinity with men are through him." Gordon explains very clearly that the Spirit dwells also in heaven during this dispensation; but that is not involved in the theme now in mind. The question for churches to consider is, whether the Holy Spirit is in them or not.

IT IS one of the most remarkable facts of our history that the number of the Baptists in Europe, exclusive of Italy and Great Britain, has increased within the last sixty-one years from seven converts baptized by Oncken in the night time to about one hundred thousand. Greatest progress has been made in Germany and least in France and Spain. Our own Italian mission has proved a genuine success.

THE PREACHER'S WIFE

In some departments of church work, the minister's wife is as great a factor as the minister himself. This fact is now so thoroughly recognized that churches seeking pastors inquire very minutely into the character and working capacity of their wives. A prominent deacon, to whom was recommended an excellent brother as pastor, asked with undisguised interest, "Is his wife a good church worker?" adding that a preacher cannot succeed unless the wife is in sympathy with the husband's work.

That the preacher's wife should be an humble Christian and a member of his denomination, goes without saying. Her piety should be unquestioned by the flock. A frivolous, pleasure-loving, gossipping, careless woman may suit some man, but not a minister. Her spirit and life should be beyond reproach, and she shou'd feel as truly called to certain departments of the gospel ministry as her husband.

In matters of dress she should exercise good taste. Her apparel should be so thoroughly that of a dignified, godly woman as not to attract attention or cause remark. The fashions of the giddy social world should be so soberly received by her as both to indicate her real interest in society, and at the same time to rebuke the extremes of silly women. A slovenly woman is a reproach to any pulpit, and a fashion monger, what congregation can bear?

She rules well her children, and her husband, too, when he gets pulpit blues and tantrums. She will free him from 'many a blunder and foolish notion.' She is a sort of balance-wheel, a check-rein, a safety-valve in the parsonage. When her husband becomes nervous and unmanned, she becomes the man. Nor does she forget the children. She seeks to train them for useful positions in life, making their religious interests her chief concern. Not only her own children, but those of many mothers, will rise up to call her blessed.

A preacher's wife should take every precaution to preserve her health. An invalid hampers her husband's best work. To prepare a sermon amid sighs and aches and tears is not an easy task. A corpse does not inspire the preacher with sublime conceptions; a ghost is unfavorable to the practical and difficult task of preparing "notes." A sermon that smells of the apothecary's shop is not likely to be in good odor with the congregation. Yet, a sick wife may not be so great a hindrance to the work as an unsympathetic one. These things being true, it does seem to us that a woman has a right to know before marriage, as far as possible, if the man who asks her hand is to be a clergyman.

The ideal wife should be of a buoyant spirit, not easily cast down or discouraged. She should look on the bright side of things. Her home should be cheerful and cosy. A loving look and a merry word may decide the complexion of the next Sunday's sermon. A minister may scold or comfort according to the voices of his home. Let us remember, however, that many preachers have done most remarkable work, and have met with most signal success in spite of untoward surroundings at home. Among many, we have space to mention but Carey and Wesley.

The wife should be a good financier; for upon her ability in this department often depends her husband's reputation and his pulpit. To know where to put a penny to the best purpose is no mean science. To understand how to make a small salary feed and clothe a large family is not infrequently the key to ministerial success. If any of the children of men are worthy of honor, it is the poor pastor's wife who works a financial miracle by keeping her table served with wholesome food and her children neatly clad; and withal preserves a sunny face and a youthful heart.

BROTHER GREENE'S letter was a great surprise to us. We had no idea he had taken such a view of our attitude or of the attitude of any of the brethren who have expressed themselves in our exchanges. No one has charged him with heresy, and on every occasion we have stood up for him as far as possible.

Reference to our files shows that we referred to Bro. Greene's circular five times. We are sure he will regret saying "the RECORDER waited one week" to hear from him if he will read our note of January 23d, in which, after saying "it is humiliating to believe that Bro. Greene advises a compromise of the meaning of the word baptize in Chinese," we further expressed the hope that he would "write on the matter to thousands of friends who read the RECORDER." After this we said not a word on the subject until his first letter came; and when we did speak we endorsed his letter.

The Western Recorder clipping referred to was to the effect that Bro. Greene favored a translation of the word into a word meaning water ceremony. Bro. Greene denies this, and we take his denial as sufficient.

We have never been in favor of having the word baptize rendered in the Bible as immerse, for the simple and plain reason that baptize is not a neutral term and never has been. Baptize means to dip, but never means to sprinkle, and Pedobaptists are largely giving up the contention that it does. We are not in favor of neutral terms anywhere. If Christ were on earth to-day, does any one suppose he would object to his Bible being called "the Baptist Bible," or his gospel being called "the Baptist Gospel," by those who opposed his teaching on the subject? Was John the Baptist ashamed of his name?

The Chinese word for washing-ceremony, which Bro. Greene wishes to be understood as favoring in this particular union edition of the Bible, is not a neutral term, although, if it is possible to get one that is absolutely secure against misconstruction, we say use it, and let the Bible that it appears in be called "the Baptist Bible;" it does not matter so long as it is the Bible of Truth. Certainly it cannot injure the Baptists. Compromises for expediency's sake cost more than they are worth. The way to do is to begin right, and keep everlastingly at it.

MORE sins have been committed in the name of Morality than of Liberty; and, unfortunately, no few of them are committed by church members and possibly misled Christians. How many young converts have been taught that it will be well enough if they will be "a good girl" or "a good boy," with the understanding that the word good means innocent inactivity—"innocuous desuetude" as the politicians say.

Christianity is a positive religion, Christ's character is a positive character, his promises positive, his penalties positive. There was nothing in him of lip-service and passive submission to evil. It may be hard to follow Christ to the cross, it may require years of growth to approach his calm self-forgetfulness; but any one can follow him just a little way—a kindly deed, a word of comfort, a breath of warning—if he only will.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Keep State Missions in mind. We must climb up that hill. The Lord's work here at home must be done.

....The Home Board has elected Rev. J. M. Carroll superintendent of missions in the trans-Mississippi territory.

....The B. Y. P. U. A. is in session at Baltimore. The representation from North Carolina is very slim, judging from reports.

....We are sorry to hear of the death, July 7th, of Preston V., the infant son of our friend and brother, Rev. L. M. Curtis.

....Rev. W. M. Sorrell had a good congregation at Pine Level, Johnston county, the 7th inst., and received one into the church.

....Crozer Theological Seminary has recently received a gift of $30,000 from Mr. J. L. Crozer, which runs its endowment up to $404,000.

....And now for a vigorous associational campaign. Let us determine that the figures set for our work this year will be reached.

....Rev. Dr. Carter and twenty six other Methodist (Episcopal) preachers of East Tennessee have left that church and joined the United Brethren.

....Prof. George William Smith has been elected president of Colgate University. He has been professor of History in this institution, and is thirty two years of age.

....Brethren Spilman and Oliver are holding a meeting at Kinston, Bro. Newberry at Union Springs, and brethren M. A. Adams and J. B. Harrell at Sunnyside near Reidsville.

....The News & Observer, Raleigh, N. C., published an elaborate and useful school edition last week. It is now planning to get out a private and denominational school edition.

....The annual meeting at the Orphanage occurs next week, 23d and 24th. Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas will preach the sermon, and Hon. Chas. M. Cook will deliver the address.

....Miss Ida L. Watson, daughter of Bro. T. D. Watson of Raleigh, died at the family home on July 10th, aged twenty-three years. She lived a sweet Christian life and died triumphantly.

....Dr. Pritchard, writing to Charity and Children, says the recent protracted meeting at Charlotte was one of the best he has ever seen, and that there will be many addition to our churches.

....Rev. C. J. F. Anderson is another of the well-equipped young preachers of our State who will go the Seminary for further preparation. He has been serving a good field with brilliant success.

....We are glad to note that Washington and Lee University has conferred an unusual honor on Messrs. Prince & Wilson by placing a prize scholarship at the disposal of the Scotland Neck Male Academy.

....Prest. A. H. Strong, the latter day apostle of Monism, has begun a series of articles in the Standard on "The Universality of Shakespeare." We await the returns from South Carolina before proceeding further.

....Rev. E. H. Sawyer, D. D., of St. Louis, has been instructed to examine into the needs of the fourteen Baptist colleges and academies of Missouri with a view to undertaking the endowment of a president's chair in each of them.

....We are probably at the end of the row at last. A society has been formed by Rev. C. J. Adams of Rondout, N. Y., to scientifically investigate the soul-life of animals. They call themselves the Bureau of Animal Psychology or Biophilism.

....Rev. Geo. W. Sanderlin of Washington has taken charge of the Metropolitan Baptist church, Washington, D. C., of which the late Rev. Green Clay Smith was pastor. Bro. Sanderlin will supply the pulpit until a permanent successor is appointed.

....From a very encouraging letter Bro. Bryan of China writes: "Our work is moving forward. Our native members are taking more interest in the work, and we have some very promising inquirers." Brother Bryan and family are in fairly good health.

....We are glad to be able to state that the effort to oust Dr. W. B. Riley from his position in the State University of Georgia, was a failure. In this connection, we take occasion to say that Dr. Riley is not a member of the Baptist church at Oxford, Miss., as we thought.

....Rev. J. B. Richardson, D. D., filled his appointments at the Baptist church last Saturday and Sunday and preached three strong sermons. Congregations were good. The ordinance of baptism was administered Sunday morning to one candidate.—Piedmont Herald.

....The new woman may get her hand on the purse strings, but the quiet, modest, tender, sweet-voiced, old-fashioned girl will get her hand on the heart-strings every time. Fashions endure for a season, but the womanly woman will abide forever.—Richmond Christian Advocate.

....Along with his letter published on another page, which we hope every one will read, Bro. Greene sends a note: "Our work is hopeful; our native laborers are, for the most part, earnest and zealous, and frequent baptisms are reported." Bro. Greene promises to let us hear from him oftener.

....Rev. John E. White and wife of Edenton are in Wake county visiting relatives and friends. Bro. White came in town from the home of his father, Rev. J. M. White, one day last week. He is looking as vigorous as ever, and is evidently in excellent spirits. We do not blame the Edenton saints for treating him so well.

....President Taylor spent last week in the North. He happened to be at Boston during the Christian Endeavor Convention, and no doubt took full advantage of the opportunity to study the inwardness of this movement. It is said that the number of visitors in the city is near 50,000. 7,760 new societies were formed last year, making a total for the world of 41,229.

....Rev. J. A. Campbell writes: "Had a fine S. S. Convention at Cumberland Union. Large crowd, good speeches and several visitors, among whom were brethren C. H. Utley and H. W. Norris of the Raleigh Association, and J. M. Henly, J. H. Henly and C. V. Brooks of the Sandy Creek Association. Good reports from Sunday-schools. Nearly all run twelve months."

....It cannot be shown that the Superintendent of Public Instruction is ex officio a member of the Board of Trustees of the State University, and so Superintendent Scarborough has had his name withdrawn from the list. It appears that the State has been imposed on in this matter, as it is clear that the authorities at the University must have been acquainted with the laws in regard to the institution.

....Prof. Charles H. Winston of Richmond College has been chosen president of the Foreign Mission Board, to succeed Dr. H. H. Harris. Rev. E. Y. Mullins of Baltimore has been elected assistant to Secretary Willingham, who has been greatly overworked. Professor Winston is a man of good judgment and is thoroughly in touch with the affairs of the Board. Bro. Mullins is an able speaker and an active mission worker.

....Rev. B. H. Matthews of Plymouth writes from Morganton: "Our Seaside Chautauqua at Smyrna was a glorious success, and we are planning for a better time next year. I am now on my vacation spending a few days at Morganton with my brother, W. J. Matthews, and will spend a few weeks at Asheville in attendance on the Southern Biblical Assembly, and will resume my work at Plymouth the first Sunday in August."

....Our sympathy goes out to Rev. W. F. Watson of Norfolk who lost his wife by death the 7th inst., at Carthage, to which place they had gone for the summer, pastor Anderson for the time filling the Spurgeon Memorial pulpit at Norfolk. Bro. Anderson preached Sister Watson's funeral. May the Lord comfort our brother in this sore bereavement with the assurance that his dear one is happy serving the Master on the other shore.

....We have received the catalog of the State Normal and Industrial School. We note that of the 405 students there last year, 105 boarded with private families, and only 27 were graduates of other institutions for women. Number educated in public schools 226. What a step from the public school, the city graded school, to an institution designed to equip teachers! We have seen it stated that the average age of the Normal and Industrial students is 19½ years.

....Rev. R. T. Bryan sends us the following significant clipping from a paper published in China: "Reports come direct from a certain eunuch that the Emperor is reading quite diligently the New Testament purchased some months ago. He also has a certain form of worship on Sundays, at which the Bible is read and musical instruments played. How much of this is true, it is not easy to determine."

....Rev. H. A. Tupper, Jr., D. D., has resigned the pastorate of Baltimore Seventh Street Church. Within the last several months Drs. Ellis, Rowland, Barron, Tupper and brethren Warren and LaBarrer have resigned their pastorates in that city. Bro. Mullins is about to resign. Now let some one trace all this to the B. Y. P. U. A. meeting at Baltimore this week! Dr. Tupper will visit the mission stations of the Old World.

....Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas has resigned the care of our church at Greensboro and accepted the Fayetteville pastorate. He is an active, zealous worker, and noted for the energy with which he has pushed his work in the several pastorates he has occupied. There is no more aggressive preacher in the State. That he will do good at Fayetteville as he has done at Greensboro, goes without saying. Our best wishes and prayers for his success follow him.

....We were glad to see Prof. John F. Lanneau in Raleigh last week. He informed us that the Law School at Wake Forest has sixteen students and a prospect for others. This is a decided step upward from last year, and is very gratifying indeed. Prof. Lanneau is taking advantage of his opportunity to rest. Last year he had some of President Taylor's classes in addition to his own, and also superintended the improvements that were put in the college, and he is somewhat overworked.

....A memorial service in honor of Rev. J. L. Carroll, D. D., was held by the Chapel Hill church last Sunday night. Dr. Thos. Hume conducted the devotional exercises and preached from 1 Cor. 15: 52, concluding with a sketch of Dr. Carroll as a man and a preacher. Mr. Herman Horne spoke on his relation to the Sunday-school and the young people. Deacon McDade described him as pastor and friend, and Deacon Robertson made appropriate allusion to his relations with several families. It was a feeling and touching tribute which a bereaved church thus paid to a noble pastor.

....The Beulah Association will convene with Ephesus church in Person county, N. C., on Tuesday before the second Sunday in August. All who expect to attend, going on the railroad, will write to Mr. R. B. Bass, Cunningham, N. C. Conveyances will meet the trains at Cunningham on that morning and take visitors to the church, a distance of two miles, in time for the opening sermon by Bro. H. T. Williams of Roxboro, N. C. The church positively forbids the sale of anything on her grounds, and any one attempting to do so will be regarded as intruding.—J. H. Lamberth, Mt. Airy, N. C.

....It is significant that at last New York City has two men at the head of her affairs who are determined to enforce the laws—Mayor Strong and Commissioner Roosevelt. Their recent action in stringently applying the saloon laws has raised a great howl from saloon men and the secular press of that city; but they are standing to their duty. How refreshing it is to hear a public officer say, "I had to either break my oath of office or close the saloons on Sunday, and I closed the saloons." Really, a little more of this and we will be persuaded that there is hope of getting honest and worthy men to conduct our affairs.

....The Seaside Chautauqua was duly held at Smyrna the first week in this month. Visitors from a distance were not numerous, but there was an attendance of from five hundred to a thousand of neighborhood people. The week was well and pleasantly spent. Rev. Blakely H. Matthews of Plymouth preached the introductory sermon. Bro. W. J. Wyatt of Durham presided. Rev. R. D. Carroll also preached. The meeting was permanently organized with the name of Seaside Bible School, and a committee, Rev. J. E. White, Rev. B. W. Spilman, Rev. B. H. Matthews, were appointed to arrange for next meeting.

....We were glad to have a pleasant visit from Pastor Hight C. Moore of Monroe on Monday as he passed through Raleigh on his way to Goldsboro and other points in the East, to spend a short vacation. Bro. Bruce Benton, a promising Wake Forest boy, has been preaching acceptably at Monroe lately. Bro. Moore informed us that his brother, Rev. J. D. Moore, the popular Beaufort pastor, will go to the Louisville Seminary next fall. He also told us that Rev. James Long, who preached at Fayetteville recently, has returned to Rochester, N. Y. Brother Moore has just completed his first year's work at Monroe and begins his second greatly encouraged by the responses his first year's efforts have met.

....The University of Chicago has four "quarterly convocations." As the institution runs all the year these occasions are looked upon as taking the place of the usual closing exercises, and the July convocation is made especially imposing. At the latest convocation the degree of Doctor of Philosophy was conferred on eight candidates, two being women. Three graduates took the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, five received the certificate of the English Theological Seminary, six that of the Swedish Seminary, thirty-seven received the Bachelor's degree in arts, science or philosophy. The total income of the University for the year was $520,000, not including contributions for buildings. The teaching staff numbers 164. The number of students registered during the four quarters of the year is 1,587, of whom 189 come from the South. We hope Professor Carlyle will find time to tell our readers all about this institution while he is there.

....Rev. C. Durham filed the pulpit of the Raleigh Tabernacle Sunday morning and Bro. John Pullen spoke at night; pastor Simms was at Morganton, where he preached the dedicatory sermon of our new church.

....The clipping from the Florida Baptist Witness in regard to Dr. J. B. Richardson and certain Presbyterian brethren was erroneous in several respects, and we will gladly publish a correction next week. So we do not always get the news when we go away from home for it.

....We were glad to shake the hand of Bro. I. T. Newton as he passed through Raleigh last week on his way to Brevard. He has been serving a large field in this section and with gratifying success. The churches whose pulpits were made vacant by Bro. Newton's departure are Apex, New Hope, Mt. Gilead in Cumberland county, and Flat Rock in Franklin county.

....Since the letter from Pastor Weaver was put in type, the meeting at High Point has developed into one of surpassing power. A great number of young men have become converted, many members reconsecrated themselves and the entire community has experienced a lasting uplift. The Enterprise, from which we quoted last week, speaks of the meeting as the most remarkable in the history of the town. Bro. Weaver is rejoicing. He will begin a meeting now at a near by mission point. Dr. Battle has returned home with the love and admiration of the High Point people.

....We clip the following in regard to a promising Wake Forest man from the Monroe Enquirer: "Rev. Jas. Long, who has recently graduated from the Rochester, N. Y., Theological Seminary, preached in the Baptist church here on morning and evening of a recent Sunday. His sermons were clear, forcible and concise and were highly appreciated by the congregation. Mr. Long is a son of W. G. Long, Esq., of Unionville, and is a young man with a bright future. He has had charge of a flourishing church at Phelps, N. Y., for some time. We are always glad to hear of the success of a Union county boy." Bro. Long is one of the best equipped young ministers of the State. We hear he is considering several calls beyond our borders.

....The papers are having no little to say of the objections publicly expressed by Baptists and Methodists to allowing Episcopalians to use the court house of Mitchell county to preach their doctrines in, which objections the county commissioners have sustained. Any sect will be justified in objecting to the use of public property by another sect. The News and Observer seems to find occasion for nearly a column of "funny" remarks about Baptists and Methodists, Trusts and Bishop Cheshire; but it does not touch the question. If there is anything humorous in the situation, it is the spectacle of the "Historic Episcopate" establishing an "altar" in a court room. Wonder if the Bishop would permit a Baptist to preach the gospel in this new kind of an Episcopal church!

....There are 143 distinct denominations in the United States, besides independent churches and miscellaneous congregations. The total number of communicants of all denominations is 20,012,806, who belong to 165,177 organizations or congregations. These congregations have 142 521 edifices, which have sittings for 43,564 863 persons. The value of all church property used exclusively for worship is $679 630,139 There are 111,036 regular ministers, not including lay preachers. There are five bodies which have more than 1 000,000 communicants, and ten with more than 500,000 The leading denominations have communicants in round numbers as follows: Catholic, 6 250,000; Methodist, 4,600,000; Baptist, 3,725,000; Presbyterian, 1 280,332; Lutheran, 1,280,000; Protestant Episcopal, 640,000.

....Bro. John D. Robertson was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry at Forks of Elkhorn church, Franklin county, Ky. Rev. A. T. Robertson, W. C. Taylor and F. W. Eberhardt composed the council that assisted the church. Bro. Robertson has been pastor of this church several months, and he has served it acceptably. We clip from the Western Recorder: "No man in our State has ever been called to succeed a nobler line of pastors than has he. Broadus, Manly, Kerfoot, Riggan, Sampey, Tyree and Whittinghill in recent years, beside many of the pioneers of the early days have fed this flock of God, whose history covers a period of 107 years. We are persuaded that the brother of our illustrious Greek professor will prove worthy to stand in the place of those honored preachers and teachers of the gospel." Bro. Robertson is from Iredell county, this State; a graduate of Wake Forest, and now at the Seminary. May the Lord use him as fully as he is using his distinguished brother.

....There will be a union of Tar River Unions at Littleton July 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st. Rev. J. K. Howell will preach the sermon Thursday. Friday the Holy Spirit, his nature, work, our need of his aid and how we may secure it, will be discussed by brethren N. L. Shaw, J. A. Mundy, W. V. Savage, E. J. Edwards, J. W. Millard. Education will be the topic in the afternoon, and Prest. Taylor, Dr. John Mitchell and Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards will speak. At night the subject will be Personal Work, and brethren J. T. Pullen and T. J. Taylor will speak. Saturday, essential differences between Baptists and other denominations, our Orphanage, temperance, consecration and missions will be discussed, and Rev. G. W. Harmon, Rev. W. B. Morton, Bro. J. H. Mills, Rev. Jasper Howell, Rev. G. M. Duke, Bro. R. D. Fleming, Bro. E. E. Hilliard, Rev. W. R. Cullom, Rev. C. M. Billings, Rev. J. K. Fant, Rev. R. J. Willingham, Rev. C. Durham are expected. We cannot recall when we have seen a more interesting program, and we hope there will be a large attendance.

Associations, Attention!

Dear Brethren:—Within a month four Associations will meet. I want to ask that the subject of Foreign Missions be prominently brought forward. At the last meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention, our State was asked to raise this year $9,000. The Vice-President for North Carolina, feeling an interest in this report, has written to every Moderator of the Associations in the State Convention, asking him to name the most suitable brother to represent Foreign Missions in his Association. Many have not been heard from. The Vice-President will be very much obliged if the brother who received such a request and has not replied to it, would do so at once.

Unless I have made a mistake in figures, the Central Association which meets the last of July, has contributed through the RECORDER to Foreign Missions, $170.39 since January, 1895. The Pilot Mountain will meet Aug. 1. I find, as reported, that the churches in that Association have given to Foreign Missions $91 23. The Beulah has given very little. The Flat River will meet Aug. 13. Since March the churches have given $326.59.

I have called attention to these contributions to ask that the work be remembered before the meetings of the Associations, and that, at the meeting of the Associations, each one will undertake to raise some part of this $9,000. Sincerely,

R. VAN DEVENTER.

Foreign Missions—$9,000—Associations.

At the meeting of the Board of Missions and Sunday-schools June 17th, 1895, the following action was taken, and I was instructed to publish the same:

WHEREAS, The last Southern Baptist Convention determined to secure, if possible, during this Conventional year, $150,000 for Foreign Missions; and whereas, the Baptist churches of North Carolina were asked to give $9,000 of said amount; therefore

Resolved, That we will try to raise in this State the amount asked for by the Convention; and to facilitate this work we request the Associations to raise of this $9,000 the following amounts, viz:

West Chowan, $1,000; Central, $800; Mt. Zion, $800; Chowan, $700; Robeson, $600; Tar River, $500; Raleigh, $450; Flat River, $400; King's Mountain, $400; Pilot Mountain, $300; Eastern, $300; Pee Dee, $300; Atlantic, $300; Mecklenburg and Cabarrus, $300; Green River, $300; Sandy Creek, $200; South Yadkin, $200; Piedmont, $200; South Fork, $150; Liberty, $150; Sandy Run, $150; Union, $150; Beulah, $150; Yadkin, $100; Cape Fear, $100; Columbus, $100; Brier Creek, $50; Catawba, $50; Brushy Mountain, $50; French Broad, $50; Three Forks, $50; Mitchell, $50; Yancey, $50; Alexander, $50; Ashe and Alleghany, $50; South River, $50; Montgomery, $50; Cedar Creek, $50; Caldwell, $50; Brunswick, $50; Stanly, $50; Elkin, $50; Little River, $50; Bladen, $50; Stony Fork, $25

If each Association at the next annual meeting shall agree to secure, if possible, the amount named, it would, in the opinion of the Board, be wise for the Association to subdivide the amount among the churches, asking each church to try to secure some definite amount.

The attention of the pastors and thoughtful delegates in attendance at the next Associations is called to the above proposition. It is believed that by a little consultation and judicious business tact these amounts could be divided among the churches and secured without burdening any beyond their ability and willingness to aid Foreign Missions. Let us try to work this plan this year for this object.

The pastors in the Chowan Association—that having already been held—could consult by correspondence and otherwise, and agree on some proper division of their amount among the churches in that Association.

The High Point Meetings.

Dear Recorder:—High Point is probably remembered by the readers of the RECORDER as being the location of High Point Female College, conducted by Dr. J. N. Stallings. In 1893 the institution ceased to exist; and since then letters from this place have appeared but infrequently.

In the last five years High Point has become an energetic, manufacturing town, ranking next to Atlanta in the production of all kinds of furniture. The population is now 8,500, and of these over 750 are employed in the different factories. The town is growing rapidly. An era of unusual prosperity has begun. The manufacturers are crowded with orders and all are making extra time.

Under the present pastorate, which covers a period of nearly two years, the Baptist church has grown in number and enlarged its contributions.

On June 24th, Dr. Henry W. Battle of Petersburg, Va., came at the earnest solicitation of the church to conduct a series of meetings. The spiritual condition of the church was low, and that of the community very low. Meetings held in other churches recently have been void of results; and many did not hesitate to express their incredulity regarding our success. At the beginning of the services, cottage prayer-meetings were held every morning in different parts of the town. The afternoon and evening services were under the charge of Dr. Battle. Sickness and the apathy of part of the membership rendered the attendance small, and the results of the first week's work were discouraging. At 10 a. m. the following Sunday Dr. Battle preached to the Sunday school, and four professed their loyalty to Christ. From this time the interest grew and the congregations increased.

At the suggestion of one of the leading manufacturers, open-air services were conducted by Dr. Battle at noon in the factory district. The owners of the factories cheerfully extended the dinner hour, deducting nothing from the time of their laborers. Great interest was shown at these meetings. At the present writing there have been eighteen professions, not including backsliders reclaimed, and the work is going on. The converts are nearly all young men. Dr. Battle does not leave until next week. All classes are attracted to his preaching, and among them all none are more appreciative than the laboring men who come in hundreds to hear him at the noon day service.

Dr. Battle is a successful revivalist. He is an eloquent orator and always rises equal to the occasion however great. I have heard him speak without an hour's preparation and he carried the audience by storm. Although better known as a commencement and pulpit orator, Dr. Battle is greater in the protracted meeting and the inquiry room. His fervid imagination is restrained, his flights of oratory do not draw away the mind from the thought to the illustration and the speaker, but with impassioned tenderness, with thrilling earnestness and convincing logic, he preaches the gospel. There is no egotism, no appeal to the emotions, no manipulation of audiences. There is deep feeling without excitement. Trusting all to the Spirit of God, he places the responsibility of decision upon the hearer and awaits his action. Yours in Christ,

RUFUS WEAVER.

Our Reidsville Letter.

Dear Recorder:—I have been very busy of late, or I should have written a word before now.

Our mission meeting was very helpful to the work. It came at a very opportune time. Of course we were greatly disappointed in not having brethren Dixon and Willingham with us, though that by no means cast a shadow over the work. Bro. Matheny made a good speech on the need for the world. Bro. Blanchard made an excellent talk on the reciprocal duties of pastor and church, and a most excellent speech on Wake Forest College—the best I have heard to date. When I tell it was one hour and fifteen minutes long and a very hot night, and still all were interested to the last, I think you will agree with me that it was "most excellent."

Bro. F. H. Jones spoke on how to cultivate the mission spirit. If Bro. Jones' suggestions were put into practice, all our churches would be live mission bodies.

Bro. Caddell was on hand ready to take subscriptions to the RECORDER He is always ready for that.

This was a very helpful meeting to me. I do not know when I have been more encouraged by any meeting.

Our Union Meeting was well attended. The sermons and discussions were good. We met in our new house at Sunny Side. Bro. J. J. Lane was ordained to the work of the ministry at the meeting. He is full of good works and is thoroughly orthodox. He was married the 28th of June and ordained the 29th—two of the greatest events of his life coming close together.

They have called Bro. Thomas to Fayetteville. We do not want him to leave. We are in hearty co operation all around, and he is a most noble helper in the work. We submit all to the Lord.

Well of late we have had a good many trials, though I think the church has so far stood them nobly.

The Adventists have gained a few followers from our ranks. They first make a great "to do" about the Sabbath, and when they have got the ear on that, then follows annihilation of the wicked, materialism, social equality, &c. They are very seclusive in their methods, very adroit in the presentation of error, absolutely blind to all reason, and hold to their position with a fanatical tenacity. In every instance the church has been prompt to exclude those who hold to their doctrines. So far we have excluded five on this line.

Then we have had to contend a second time with the music question. I do not know all the "ins and outs" of this matter. I know it has been on hand for a long time, and that in the present instance the church has done all that she could consistently do for the good of the work. There has been a good deal of correspondence in the Review about the matter, but I am glad to say that not a single word was written by a member of our church. The articles were mainly by an excluded member of the Baptist church and an excluded member of the Methodist church. Of course their motive is very apparent to all. My congregations have not diminished and the Lord gives a conversion at almost every service. Our Sunday school is still at high water mark, and then the work moves on. We are hoping to hold some meetings now, not in "the regions beyond," but in the regions around. We have four such places around Reidsville where I shall hold meetings, and then I want to go to Lucama, near Wilson, and hold a meeting sometime this fall. We are doing this work every Sunday. Recently we had two burials—one of a child, the other of an old lady. God gathers them. More anon.

Rev. Dr. Pritchard has been granted a vacation, during which he will fill a New York City pulpit.

The Haw River Dedication.

Dear Recorder:—That was a noble success of Bro. J. C. Hocutt at Haw River. The young church has now a commodious and tasteful building, and the last Sunday morning in June it was dedicated in the presence of a crowded assembly who listened devoutly to a sermon from Prof. Thos. Hume of the University. The music, indeed all the arrangements, showed that an interested and thoughtful people were back of the consecrated pastor. A few brethren are responsible for the debt that remains and they are assuming it with confidence in the many earnest Baptists who sympathize with faithful work for the Master. Could you not, dear reader, give something to help these excellent believers who are self denyingly helping themselves? Brother Hocutt, their leader, merits all we can do.

Bro. J. C. Caddell was practical and inspiring in an afternoon address, delivered from the layman's point of view, on the relation of the pastor to the people, and Rev. R. Van Deventer, now doing such good work at Burlington, was instructive and eloquent on the duty of the people to the pastor. Bro. Hocutt and Bro. Hume made supplementary remarks.

The congregation failed not to appear once more in the new sanctuary and were rewarded by the night sermon from Rev. W. C. Tyree, a strong and stirring discussion that led the brethren to desire to meet the Scriptural requirements for a church of Christ. These good people are ready to do God's work and give signs for an outpouring of his Spirit.

I beg here to urge anew that we send our material help to Bro. Hocutt. T. H.

Church Constituted.

At "McMillan's School House" in Cumberland county, N. C., on Thursday, June 27th, 1895, a presbytery of Baptist Elders, composed of W. M. Page, John Prevatt, and W. B. Harrell, met, according to invitation, and recognized, by the hand of welcome and fellowship, ten brethren and sisters, with their letters of dismission from other Baptist churches of "like faith and order," as a regular Baptist church, writing under a covenant and articles of faith, such as is held by all our churches, and set forth in "Hiscock's Baptist Church Directory."

Elder John Prevatte was unanimously called by the church as pastor for the ensuing year. The brethren will build a house, near the place at an early day, as a good lot has already been offered them, by a friend of our faith, who is not a Baptist.

The sermon was preached by the writer, from 1 Tim. 3: 15—"The church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth," and in setting forth the nature of the church—its material—its officers, and its ordinances, right in the midst of my discourse, the house being well filled with Presbyterians and other Pedobaptists, a man in the congregation, an old gray headed disturber, "spoke out in meeting," (as I was proving, from the scriptures, that only converted persons were of the church of Christ) and said, "I beg leave to differ with you, sir. What did Christ mean when he said 'Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of heaven'?" I stopped, while I looked him in the face, as he was speaking; and, when he was done, made this reply, holding up the Bible towards him, "If you can find one solitary word in this book, authorizing the reception of any being on earth, except those who believe and are baptized on a profession of their faith, then I too will receive such. Or any where else, can show me, in this book, a single passage of Scripture, in which baptism is called sprinkling, or sprinkling ever called baptism, then I, too, will begin at once to sprinkle babies, wherever I can find them." Christ did not mean that the "kingdom of heaven" was made up of babies, or of 'little children' of any size."

On inquiring, after the congregation was dismissed who the man was we were informed, that he was a noted dancing Presbyterian. How sad! A man whose head is blossoming for the grave, a leading man in the dance, and yet professing Christianity!

It is, no doubt, a wise move, to plant a a Baptist church, holding to the "One Lord, one faith, and one baptism" in that Pedobaptist community. W. B. HARRELL.

BIBLICAL RECORDER, Raleigh, N. C.

Dear Sir:—Doubtless you will be surprised at the nature of this letter, but I wish to state that at any time you are soliciting ads., you are at liberty to refer to us. The ad. we are now running in your paper have brought us more inquiries than any other paper we have used lately. In fact, we get three times more inquiries from your paper than we do from some other papers that claim three times the circulation you claim. As you know, this letter is written without any solicitation whatever.

Yours very truly,

J. F. DRAUGHON, President.

Progress at Plymouth.

Soon the passer-by will not know the old Baptist church. This church we think is the oldest public building here, and was the only church not destroyed by the great fire during the war. Its founder and builder Rev. Jeremiah Mastin was a native of Virginia, and at first a minister of the Methodist church, but joined the Baptist and organized the congregation and built the first Baptist church in Washington in 1822. The church did not at first stand where it does now but about the spot where the present Episcopal church is now erected. Since that time and up until the war, its history is one of prosperity to day and disappointment to morrow, but its membership have been of that heroic mold, that not without a struggle kept themselves together until the war. After the war the church was again organized by the Rev. C. J. Nelson, and has been in operation with varied success, until about two years ago, the Rev. Duncan McLeod was called to its pastorate and the church took on new life and energy and today is enjoying a greater prosperity than in years. The congregation are trying to remodel and modernize the building and have issued a circular letter asking for help. We do hope the appeal will meet with a ready response from our people, they need it and should have it.—The Messenger, Washington, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—While many of our ministers and friends of the RECORDER are expressing their sympathy in regard to the death of dear Bro. Bailey, I feel that I want to be one among that number.

I shall not attempt to write concerning his life, for I am sure it has been well written by those who were better acquainted with him than I am. I only had the privilege of seeing him but once and hearing him preach, and that was when I was quite a youth. He was at Rockyhock church in the old Chowan Association. I must say I think it was while he was preaching that day that the first idea came to me that I should be one to carry the good news and glad tidings of salvation to the perishing sons and daughters of men.

In the death of Bro. Bailey the Baptists sustain a great loss; but his true worth will not be known until our ignorance is enlightened and the sea gives up its dead. May this little token find a place in the RECORDER as a tribute sacred to his memory. Thy will be done. Amen. GEO. W. WHITE.

RESOLUTIONS OF EASTERN SECTION, RALEIGH ASSOCIATION.

We, your committee appointed by the Union of the Eastern Section of the Raleigh Association, beg leave to submit the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, We esteem the BIBLICAL RECORDER as the organ of our churches and helper in the Lord's work; therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of its late editor, Dr. C. T. Bailey, we have lost a tried and true friend, wise in council, discreet in rebuke, sympathetic in every trial; and that while we shall miss his labors, we bow in humble submission to an all-wise Father, and hereby pledge our continued support to the paper he so much loved.

Be it Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family in token of our sympathy for them, and that they also be placed upon our minutes in respect to his sacred memory.

Respectfully submitted,

J. J. ADAMS,
A. C. CREE,
J. M. BEATY,

That Circular Once More.

BY REV. G. W. GREENE.

I thought I had written quite enough on the subject, but a note in your issue of April 17th makes it clear that the RECORDER does not at all understand my position, and I must make one more attempt to set myself right before my brethren in North Carolina.

In the circular and the discussion which has ensued, by letter and in the papers, I have made these points:—

1. Whenever Baptists make translations, they must use words for baptism similar to those in our Chinese version, which mean dipping ceremony. I have never intimated that Baptists or any one else ought to translate otherwise. In China we must call baptism the dipping ceremony to the end.

2. But I have opposed a Baptist edition of a union version. All denominations are uniting in a union version; some propose that Baptists publish an edition of this union version with our term for baptism. The special object of the circular was to oppose this Baptist edition of a union version. If we cannot unite with other denominations and use the Bible which they use, I am not in favor of any union. Whatever Baptist versions we need, Baptists ought to make them, and not borrow them from union versions.

3. I am in favor of keeping on friendly terms with this union version, and all the versions used by Pedobaptists, and with the term which they use for baptism. They call baptism the washing ceremony. This looks more like immersion than like sprinkling or pouring. The connection in which it occurs will put it beyond dispute what the washing ceremony was in New Testament times. While this term is kept as a neutral term, we can use these versions in the Baptist argument just as we have used the English Bible for generations. But if we refuse to use the union version except in a Baptist edition, we declare war upon this version and its term, and I fear that soon the meaning of the term will change usage and have a leaning away from the Baptists. Thus we must fight all the Bibles circulated by Pedobaptists and appeal only to the Baptist Bible in our argument.

Already there are signs of a tendency in this direction, and some missionaries are afraid to read the version which calls baptism the washing ceremony. I do not think it is too late to arrest this tendency, and our Baptist Chinese agree with me. But some already have unpleasant associations connected with this term; and so I asked those competent to express an opinion as to this matter.

My main adviser and helper in the issue of the circular, who has been in China more than twenty years, felt these unpleasant associations strongly, the term seeming to him, on account of use, to be no longer neutral, but to lean towards the Pedobaptist side. He prefers water ceremony as the neutral term to describe all that is called baptism, and desired that Baptists should ask the use of this in the union version. Hence, I mentioned this in the circular, and quite a number of the missionaries have expressed their willingness to accept the union version with this term.

For Baptists to ask others to take a new term, because it would be less objectionable to the Baptists, seemed to me a new thing, and I spoke of it as involving "concessions" on our part. But I soon saw that any such change was out of the question, and besides I had never been in favor of asking any change, but of using what they offer us; so in my article in the Examiner, I withdrew this remark about "concessions," but I have never "retracted" a single one of my positions, nor do I see any reason so to do.

The circular was brief; several points were considered; I attempted to make it express substantially the views of three brethren, who had consulted, and who differed as to some of the details; hence the meaning was not as clear as it ought to have been. It was written for missionaries who were familiar with the facts about the union version, and contained a few Chinese characters. Hence I sent no copies to the newspapers, because I knew they would not understand it without explanation. But it turns out that many of the missionaries even did not understand it. They discuss the duty of the translator to be faithful, and the duty of Baptists to stand by the pure word of God, all of which I believe as heartily as they do; but they never say anything about the union version and the proper position of Baptists towards it. Some of the first replies were a great surprise to me, as I thought they were discussing the subject of the circular, and I replied to them before I found they were on a different subject. Hence I suspect that two or three of these earliest letters seem to oppose that which I endorse, because I was discussing one subject and thought the brethren were discussing the same.

I intended all the while to write up the matter for the RECORDER, as a matter of current history, and the article I wrote some months ago was so intended, and not as a defence of myself, for I had hoped that I would not need to defend myself with the readers of the RECORDER.

When I found that the Northern papers were charging me with departing from Baptist principles, I felt sure that Southern brethren would ask that judgment be suspended till their missionary could be heard from. Even the enemies of Jesus had nothing to say against the principle that a man ought to be heard before he was condemned. Only the Christian Index and Secretary Willingham recommended this course.

I sent a brief statement to the Examiner, which was published at once, and seemed to need no farther editorial comment. I sent articles to other Northern papers that had attacked me, but I do not know whether they were published or not. I sent a statement to the Texas Baptist and Herald, and brother wrote me that it would be published March 28th, adding, "Your position seems to be entirely correct." I sent a statement to the Baptist Courier, which was published, and the editor in a column editorial acquitted me of any departure from the Baptist faith.

The Western Recorder was especially called upon to set me right in the matter; so I wrote at once a very full statement to that paper, and in private letters asked several brethren to read my defence in the Western Recorder. I thought that paper would wait to hear both sides before deciding against me; but it at once declared me guilty of heresy, and continues to attack me, and so far as I know has never published a word of explanation from me. The Seminary Magazine was surprised that I should take such a position, without stopping to be certain that I had taken it; and since has found no room for a correction.

And the BIBLICAL RECORDER, the organ of my brethren, who have known me all my life, among whom I have lived and labored so many years, waited one week to hear from me, and then pronounced my course "humiliating;" and now when all the papers that are willing to publish both sides are satisfied that my position is not heresy, though they may not be certain of its expediency, the BIBLICAL RECORDER copies from the Western Recorder another attack on me, and is not able to make any defence. And I am so far away that it takes two or three months to get a hearing. This is a harder experience than I expected in modern missionary life.

There is much more that I want to say, but I forbear. I have done what I thought was for the best interests of Baptist principles, which I believe to be God's truth. I took the best advice available at the time, and had the cordial co-operation of a brother who has long been on the field. I assumed the responsibility for what I published, and have borne the abuse. Many Baptists will remember me only as the man who was unbaptistic about Bible translation, and will never see or never remember a word of explanation. But if my brethren in North Carolina understand my position and acquit me of heresy, I shall try to be content. And I hope they will never be so situated as to find out what I have suffered under the misunderstanding and even abuse of my brethren.

Virginia Notes.

RICHMOND COLLEGE—THE MEETING FOR CONFERENCE ON THE HOLY SPIRIT—BAPTISTS BUILDING IN VIRGINIA'S CAPITAL—WAKE FOREST D D'S—WORK AT ROANOKE—VACATION.

Richmond College closed on June 20th an eventful year. It was my pleasure to be present. The exercises were of a higher character in many respects than usual;—so said many. North Carolina has a right to be proud of her honor in the selection of two of her brightest sons—Drs. Carroll and Hunter. I confess I felt proud and walked with a high head when I heard this thing whispered. Hunter was an old school-mate at Wake Forest. We studied chemistry together. He was a bright boy. But whoever thought that "Rufe" Hunter would be Professor of Chemistry at Richmond College! Somehow that chemistry class of ours has been rather a remarkable one. Brewer is the much honored Professor of Chemistry at Wake Forest, Hunter at Richmond, and your correspondent was for one year Laboratory Assistant to the Chair of Chemistry in Kentucky School of Medicine at Louisville, one of the largest medical schools at the South.

I was glad to see that President Boatwright was not a "misfit." He starts out with many very encouraging signs. The Trustees have been severely criticised for some of their recent actions, but they are determined to have harmony in their ranks, and how could they otherwise succeed? Richmond College will go forward.

One of the most helpful meetings I have ever attended was the "Holy Spirit Convention" in Richmond. Many were afraid it would be a gathering of cranks, but it was conservative from the start. It was opened by an address from Dr. Gwillym of Brooklyn, N. Y., on the "Personality of the Spirit." Dr. Gwillym is a Baptist. Not long ago he came to us from the Episcopalians. He is a power. Our own A. C. Dixon was the charm of the body. His two addresses will live forever with those who were there. He was never more powerful. Personally, the meeting was greatly enjoyed by me. I only wish we had more such gatherings. The Holy Spirit for service is the burning question of the church.

The Richmond Baptists know no end to church building. While there I preached in a large tent to 800 or a 1,000 people on Church Hill, where they are going to build a new church. The material will largely go from Wright's flock at Leigh Street, the mother of so many churches. They will have a good beginning, and, with such training as Wright has given them, great things are expected from the new church.

I was rejoiced at the success of Wake Forest last year. I was talking with Brother Wright about Rev. H. A. Brown—had just said, "Wright, I tell you Wake Forest ought to make Brown a D. D." "Yes," said he, "he deserves it." Just at that time I picked up the RECORDER and saw that great minds had run in the same channel, and that Brown was so honored by Wake Forest. I am glad. H. A. Brown, D. D., fits just like it was made for him. There is no better man on earth than H. A. Brown. No one will ever know how closely we were drawn together while we were touching elbows in work. Of course I need not say anything of the others who received the distinguished title. It is enough to take the action of the Trustees. Bro. Gwaltney has been a D. D. for a long time, so some of us have felt. To me ever since that meeting out in a schoolhouse in Wake county, he has been one of the most distinguished Doctors of Divinity in the world.

Our work in Roanoke is in good shape. Our congregations are large all the time. Even in the hot summer we use extra chairs at night. I get a vacation of a month, and will spend the time in the North, after attending the great Baltimore Convention of young people. It will be a treat to get out for a rest. Regular work, college closing exercises, addresses and special sermons have pulled me down until I am not so fleshy as I once was. By the way, I had quite a surprise at the Virginia A. & M. College. I preached the sermon to the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday. I found about four hundred boys—seventeen from North Carolina. One of the graduates was Mr. W. E. Dodd of Clayton, N. C. What is the matter with North Carolina! I thought she had an A. & M. College. [Yes, we have; and it is one of the best in the land. A young man who goes to Virginia from North Carolina for an agricultural or mechanical education is getting in his own light.—EDITOR] There is one thing, Virginia has one, and it is in many respects the best equipped institution I ever saw. From President down it is a powerful force.

Burying the Dead in Mexico.

BY JANIE PRICHARD DUGGAN, FORMERLY MISSIONARY TO MEXICO.

[Concluded from last week.]

I once knew a sweet Mexican girl named Refugio, called Cuca for love's sake, who had scarcely become a mother before she lay still in death. In her girlhood, she had been a student at the Madero Institute (Protestant) for girls in Saltillo, although she was a Roman Catholic.

When she died, the school was invited to take part in the burial services. The notices of her death were printed and sent around to a large circle of acquaintances. This notice consisted of large sheets of paper cut and folded into the shape of an envelope, not sealed at its edges. The outside of the sheet was black, and upon the back were these words in white letters (translated from the Spanish), "Pray to God for her soul." The inside of the sheet was white with wide black margins, and it was inscribed thus: "Yesterday at 8 p. m. died in this city Mrs. Refugio —— de ——, eighteen years and eleven months of age. Intensest grief and bitterest trouble afflict her inconsolable husband, her unhappy brothers and sisters and her innocent son. In participating in this unhappy event, they beg you to raise to the All Powerful the entreaties that your heart may dictate for the eternal rest of the soul of the departed, and that you assist at the funeral services, to take place to day at 3 p. m. in the church de Santiago. Saltillo, May 29, 18—."

While the funeral mass was being performed in the Cathedral, the scholars of the Institute were collected in the hall of the school, and provided each with a bouquet of flowers. The market place had been stripped of every flower early in the day for this purpose, and by the time the long procession paused at the Institute on its way to the Campo Santo, each child held her nosegay in her hand, and was ready to step into her place in the carriages. It was an unheard of thing for funeral carriages to be occupied by attendants, as the custom is for them to be closely shut and empty, while the followers go afoot. The Institute being under American control, however, the usual forms were waived in this case, and soon each coach was filled with four or five children with a teacher here and there along the line. The bright faces and the gay flowers at the coach windows were a sight not soon to be forgotten by the on-lookers, as the procession again took up its march from the Institute doors. The coffin was lifted from the hearse at the cemetery entrance, and the children left the carriages to march two and two directly behind the coffin. Little boys stood in the gateway offering candles to those who entered. These were to be lighted from one to the other, and borne in the procession to the grave, but none of the little girls accepted them, carrying instead their hands full of flowers. After the coffin had been lowered into the cemented cavity prepared for it, the smallest pair of girls who had headed the ranks stepped forward and lightly dropped their flowers into the grave. The others in turn did the same, each couple immediately afterward turning away and following the preceding couple out of the cemetery to the waiting carriages. All being done quietly and decorously, many persons pronounced poor Cuca's funeral the "prettiest" they had ever seen.

The decorum usually employed in bearing the dead to burial I once saw violated in an almost grotesque way. I was going up a steep, paved street in Guadalajara, lined by orange trees on each side, when I met six brawny, brown-limbed fellows carrying a coffin upon their shoulders. That this contained the body of a man or woman I knew from its length and evident weight. The men came staggering down the street toward me, laughing and shouting at one another, and I did not need the information of a passer-by to convince me that all six were drunk! Once or twice they stopped and set the coffin down upon the road; then, reeling in their steps, they would manage to get it hoisted again to its uncertain position upon their shoulders. Once I thought that they were going to engage in a fist fight across the lid of the coffin as it rested upon the ground between them, and I closed my eyes with horror until the party had passed out of my sight.

The custom of exposing the bodies of the deceased to public view before burial, is very common in some parts of Mexico, especially among the lower classes, distasteful and irreverent even, as such a custom seems to us.

I was much startled the first time I saw it done. Having recently arrived in the country, I was one morning walking carelessly along the sidewalks of Saltillo, when happening to glance in at a certain open window, I saw the body of a beautiful young girl extended upon a couch just in front of the window. She was dressed in white with blue ribbons, and there were flowers and lighted candles around, yet the ghastliness of the scene could not be concealed, especially as a coffin, painted a bright blue color, awaited its occupant, resting upon two chairs in a corner of the room.

A blue hearse passed my window one day, bearing a blue coffin (blue is used for the youthful dead, though I have often seen bright red caskets also), and on each side walked two little girls, holding the long ends of broad, blue ribbons which were fastened by their other ends to the coffin inside.

Perhaps this use of color has its origin in the desire to banish some of the gloom and sorrow associated with death. Blue is also the Virgin's color. Little dead babies are invariably called angelitos (little angels). A little school girl once remarked to me, in a most artless way, that she had passed a beautiful "little angel," on her way to school that morning. There is a Mexican law forbidding any act of religious worship outside the walls of a house, so that even in the burial of our Protestant dead, all religious exercise must be completed before entering the cemetery.

A missionary was once superintending the burial of a young man from the United States, who had died of fever at a hotel in a Mexican city. When the grave was only partly filled, the men were interrupted by the approach of an old woman carrying a small pasteboard box under her arm. She opened her box and showed to the missionary the tiny dead body of a new-born infant lying inside. He was profoundly shocked at the sight, yet could not find it in his heart to refuse the poor creature's request to be allowed to lay the baby in the half-filled grave. The woman declared that otherwise she would not be able to bury the angelito at all, as there was no money at home,—and, after all, what harm could the "little innocent" do the other?

With such pictures in the mind, sad as pictures of death must always be, one is reminded of the great philosopher and gentle wit, Dr. Addison, who, while walking among the tombs of Westminster Abbey, was accustomed to reflect "with sorrow and astonishment on the little competitions, factions and debates of mankind."

Responsibility for Our Girls.

BY MRS. C. A. S. JACKSON, NASHVILLE, TENN. READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE W. M. U. IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

The breath of weighty responsibility comes to us from every direction concerning our girls. We are all accountable in a great measure for what they are now, and for what they are to be. "None of us liveth to himself and none dieth to himself."

THE IMPORTANCE OF INTERESTING OUR GIRLS.

One of the most essential things in life is to start right. Solomon tells us to "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." If we do not win them for the Lord, they will be won to other ways. Satan is ever diligent in seeking ways to ensnare and to lead them into misery and ruin. Again, we should interest them because they become such valuable workers. They soon interest their associates in whatever they themselves are interested. Their influence over young men is very great, and if wisely used is fruitful of much good. Then again, they are to fill our places in whatever we may be doing for good, if our places are ever to be filled. We desire our Woman's Missionary Union to grow in interest as well as numbers; if we do not train them, our Master's cause must suffer loss.

The important reason, however, is because our Saviour has said, "Feed my lambs," and this applies to us as it did to Peter in the long ago.

SOME WAYS TO INTEREST OUR GIRLS.

One way of double value is through their mothers' training from their infancy. This develops the mothers of the present and prepares the motherhood of the future. Many of our good mothers are failing in this great privilege of training their children for the Lord. Their failure has given rise to this question in our meeting.

Another valuable means to this end is through the efforts of the Sabbath-school teacher. No one can successfully teach these lessons without calling attention to the missionary spirit that abounds in almost every lesson. We can often refer to our missionaries and their work, and draw illustrations from their fields of labor. Impress upon them that it is a work for them. Many are inclined to think it a work for older persons or those already fitted for it. There was a time when I had just such impressions; I was willing for our leaders to bear the whole burden until they made me feel part of the responsibility. To them, we who are younger, owe much for the interest we have now. I have learned that whether possessing peculiar talents or not, that where there is a willingness to try, we will soon discover our sphere of usefulness.

Whenever opportunity occurs, be able, in a seemingly unconscious manner, to give some interesting fact or attractive idea pertaining to missionaries, their work or their fields. It is important to keep well informed in regard to statistics. We can often do great good by being able to correct some erroneous idea or statement that becomes current through prejudice or lack of information.

If we have interested any one in mission works even but a little, she can easily be led to deeper interest and greater usefulness by providing her with literature. When I began studying this subject, the first way that presented itself to me was to circulate literature. Then a discouraging remembrance occurred to me also, that I had often distributed such excellent literature with the request that it be passed on to others, but as often had I gathered up that same literature where it had been left in the class room or church pew. So it is my experience that the girls must be interested or they will not even read.

Another way to attract their attention to mission work is to make requests for prayer for missionaries. Tell them something about the persons, their trials and sacrifices that will arouse their sympathy. When they once pray for these persons, they will afterwards read with more interest anything concerning them. We have girls' prayer-service in our church that affords this opportunity. By this method we soon become personally acquainted with those whom we have learned to love and call our substitutes on some foreign field. The girls then become more desirous to attend the missionary meetings in order to learn more of their new acquaintances.

Another way which has been mentioned often, but is nevertheless a good way, is to give specific duties, which in their performance will render it necessary for the girls to be at your meeting and will also make them feel that they have a part therein.

After they are won so far, acting, reading, praying and giving come spontaneously. I have known meetings and individuals to become chilled by requests for money when they did not appreciate the privilege of giving.

Let us seek the mothers and teachers who are blind to their opportunities and try to impress upon them a sense of their weighty responsibility for our girls. Let us seize every opportunity within our reach for the spread of the gospel.

"O blest for me if on that day—
None other day so good—
My Lord may smile on me and say
'She hath done what she could.'"

Are we leading our girls to Christ, or are we permitting them to be led away into forbidden paths? We are stones on which they must build, so, "Let us be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might." "In the morning sow thy seed and in the evening withhold not thy hand."

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Degenerated Days.

Some one, of a sarcastic turn of mind, no doubt, says in times gone by the saints occupied hardwood seats in their plain sanctuaries and sang: "My God, the Spring of all my joys." Then all the people sang. Now the worshipers sit on soft cushions in elegant edifices, while the choir sings for them or to them, "Art thou weary, art thou languid?"—New York Observer.

Oliver Wendell Holmes in reply to a question, once remarked: "If a fellow attacked my opinions in print, would I reply? Not I. Do you think I don't understand what my friend the professor, long ago called the 'hydrostatic paradox of controversy?' You know that if you had a bent tube, one arm of which was of the size of a pipe stem and the other big enough to hold the ocean, water would stand at the same height in one as in the other. Controversy equalizes fools and wise men, and fools know it."

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

Mayor Fishblate of Wilmington has brought suit for libel against the editors of the Dispatch of that city.——Ex-Judge Spier Whitaker has brought suit for libel against Mrs. P. D. B. Arrington and Barnes Bros. of Raleigh.——By decree of the Superior Court the Water-works Company at Raleigh must break their water-power dam, because the pond is unwholesome.——A new cotton mill will be built at Weldon, another at Mayodan, another at Hillsboro, and additions to mills are reported from Gibsonville and Scotland Neck.——The suit on the ground of negligent management, against the directors of the defunct First National Bank of Wilmington is being tried.——Fire destroyed $6,000 of property at Boone the 6th inst., being a store of W. L. Bryan and the residence of Mr. Yarborough.——Minister Ransom is at Blowing Rock still in uncertain state of health.——Col. J. E. Brown, Ex-member New Zealand parliament and United States ex-consul to New South Wales, died at Asheville July 9th.——Senators Butler and Pritchard, and W. A. Guthrie, Esq., were among the speakers at a "silver rally" at Hickory last week. 1,000 people attended.——S. P. Satterfield and J. M. Brown, principal clerk and enrolling clerk of the Legislature (House) were indicted in the Wake Superior Court last week for failure to do right in the matter of the notable assignment bill. Trial next term.——The United States government has stepped opportunely in and taken charge of the quarantine at Southport which a Democrat and a Populist made claim too. Dr. J. M. Eager (medical and non political, we hope) of New Orleans now has charge.——A large tobacco ware house will be put up at Rocky Mount.——A third daughter has been born to the President.——Baxter Shemwell has been acquitted on the indictment of the murder of Dr. Payne at Lexington.

In General.

Several deaths and $250,000 damage to property is reported of recent New England storms, certainly at Hartford, Conn.——Violent demonstrations against missionaries are reported from Chintu, China. The Roman Catholics seem to have been the chief sufferers.——The insurgents in Cuba have lost ground during the week. Yellow fever is spreading on the island.——The great exposition at Atlanta will be a great success, second only to the Columbian. It will open this fall.——Persecutions of the Armenians in Eastern Turkey do not abate. There is great suffering. England can stop this if she only will. In this connection it is pertinent to say that the Stundists of Russia continue to suffer persecution for their religion's sake.——Rev. Dr. McAnally, distinguished editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, is dead.

A Temperance Lecturer.

AND NOW A KEELEY PATIENT—HIS TESTIMONY.

No doubt many of my friends will be surprised to learn that I am here attending the "Keely Institute" for the liquor habit. I only ask space for a few words, hoping to influence some poor unfortunate man who is struggling with an insatiable appetite, to come here and be cured.

I am now thirty-eight years of age. From 1878 to March 1892 I drank periodically, all the while growing worse. I had fine educational and social advantages; was at Trinity College, this state, for three years—from '73 to '76. I married a beautiful Florida lady Nov. '76, and under the most favorable circumstances we began life's work.

The appetite for strong drink seemed to be "inbred." My father was a pious temperate Christian gentleman. The intervals between my debauches grew shorter and shorter. I knew it was wrong to drink, and with a bleeding heart and tearful eyes I ofttimes promised my confiding wife that I would do so no more. I meant it, but the old appetite with its resistless and powerful cravings would return, and I would yield.

On the 7th of March, 1892, I was carried to my home in Bennettsville, S. C., by a friend, beastly drunk. I awoke about two o'clock a. m., discovered my wife on her knees by my bedside; I knew that she was praying for me. I resolved that I would assert my "manhood" and abandon the drink habit. I was urged to go to Keeley at the time; I said no, that a man could stop drinking if he tried.

In fact I had no faith in Keeley. I did quit at that time and for three years lived a sober life. Was reinstated in the Methodist church, joined the Good Templars of South Carolina, and for a long while canvassed my native State in behalf of prohibition—speaking in nearly every town in the State, but there was always present that indescribable dread—yes, unsatisfied appetite. Last Christmas day I took my first drink and would have prolonged it into a fearful "spree," but a young friend of mine, a Methodist minister, and my Pythian brethren took charge of me, carried me to the country to my sister's, and I sobered up. I said then if I ever drank again I would go to Keeley.

On the 18th of June last, I again yielded, and I drank until the 26th. I told my wife and children good bye, full of whiskey, I boarded the train for Greensboro.

I have been here two weeks. I was very sick for several days, but for the first time in twenty years I can truthfully say that I am a free man. I have no desire for liquor. I will remain here two weeks longer to complete my course of treatment.

I write this simply with the hope of inducing some one to lay aside prejudice, assert his manhood and come here and be cured. The management here is excellent, eminent physicians and kind and trained attendants. I will return home to my family and friends a sober man. God bless the Keeley Institute! Respectfully, J. P. GIBSON.

Maid for easy Housework —Pearline. Made to save work and wear in all kinds of washing and cleaning. Made into a powder for your convenience. Made as cheap as pure soap for economy. Made harmless for all purposes for which soap is used.

What a friend—a friend who did half your washing and cleaning and made the other half so easy that you did not get too tired to enjoy the time saved; besides made things last longer and look better. That's just what Pearline will do for you if you'll let it. On the back of each package you'll find how it will best befriend you. Every grocer keeps Pearline, and many of your friends use it—ask them about it. You'll use it sooner or later—the sooner the better for both of us.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 180 JAMES PYLE, New York.

Cedar Rock Academy & Business Institute.

CEDAR ROCK, N. C.,
W. A. SMITH, B. A., Principal.

This school is situated in a fine farming section in Franklin county, 11 miles east of Louisburg. The surrounding community is densely settled by a cultured, hospitable and progressive people. The moral and religious influences are excellent. The good water and wholesome air makes it a healthful locality, almost entirely free from malaria.

We prepare for college or for practical business life, and make a specialty of preparing young men and young ladies for teachers in the academies and public schools. The Commercial and Music Departments also offer superior advantages. The music department is well supplied with the very best instruments, and is in charge of an experienced and thoroughly competent teacher. Young ladies wishing to make a specialty of music are offered excellent advantages, since we have a sufficient supply of instruments to give all the practice desired.

For the School of Art a special teacher has already been employed whose whole attention will be given to that department.

Board, including furnished rooms, within a short distance from the academy, can be had at $7.00 per month. Girls, unless otherwise requested, are required to board with the Principal. Young men and young ladies are not allowed to board at same boarding house under any circumstances. We take a special oversight of the girls committed to our charge. Mrs. Smith (wife of the Principal) endeavors in every way possible to see after their interest.

Tuition rates are very low, ranging from $1 to $2.50 per month. The session of 1895-'6 opens Aug. 19th. For further information write the Principal for catalog. W. A. SMITH.

The Electropoise

The Electropoise has worked wonders in my household. I introduced it to Mrs. Cuthbert as a remedy for rheumatism, and since then she has laid aside sticks and crutches and is able to attend to all her household duties. Another member of my family by using it is better than she has ever been, and I myself find it an admirable tonic when tired out after three sermons on the Sabbath. Several persons have invested in this instrument because of our experience and expression of opinion.

Very gratefully, REV. LUCIUS CUTHBERT.

EXPERIENCE OF ONE OF OSWEGO'S PROMINENT LADIES.

LIVING IN AN AGONY OF FEAR FOR MONTHS—EVERY DAY A FRESH CHAPTER OF HORROR AND SUFFERING.

(From the Oswego, N. Y., Palladium.)

The following is the story of Miss Elizabeth Williams, of 110 West Third street, Oswego, N. Y., a lady prominent in society circles, told a reporter of the Oswego Daily Palladium who called upon her at her home in that city yesterday. Miss Williams is the daughter of the late Capt. Wm. Williams, who was for many years master of some of the finest passenger steamers on the great lakes and an inspector and rater of hulls for the Lloyd's marine records on the lakes. The story of her illness given in her own way, follows:

"I was always regarded as healthy and robust by my family and friends; in fact, I hardly knew what sickness was until the winter of 1893-4. I was then taken down with an attack of la grippe from the attending effects of which I did not recover for months. There seemed to be a general break down in my health and constitution winding up in the early summer with nervous prostration and sciatic rheumatism. I can't describe my symptoms. My appetite was gone and for weeks I was unable to eat or relish food but sparingly. I lost flesh rapidly and was as thin as a shadow. Local physicians attended me constantly. After months of treatment I dismissed them both and took my brother's advice and tried Pink Pills. He had found them efficacious for kidney trouble. Before I had finished taking the first box I noticed an improvement in my physical condition. I began to relish my food and my rheumatism troubled me less. Gradually the general tone of my health improved and my rheumatic pains left me entirely. I regained strength and took on flesh, until to-day I regard myself as thoroughly free from all ailment and in perfect health. My friends noted my improvement and I have never hesitated to tell them what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for one sufferer. It is that others may be benefited that I make this statement and relate my experiences."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are considered an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

DIED.

GREEN—Mrs. Priscilla A. Green, wife of Jas. R. Green, departed this life May 2d, in the fifty-sixth year of her age. Sister Green was an humble Christian, a kind and faithful wife, and a devoted mother. She was kind to all who came within compass of her influence. Sister Green had for many years been a faithful and worthy member of Bethlehem Baptist church, Hertford county. She leaves a husband, six children, and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Her funeral was preached by her pastor, Rev. L. M. Curtis, on the third Sunday in June, 1895.

"Thou art gone, gentle mother,
Gone where pleasures never die,
Gone from us and grief forever,
Gone to live beyond the sky."

DAUGHTER.

TURNER—Bro. Matthew Turner departed this life March, 1895, aged eighteen years. Bro. Turner was a member of Whiteville Grove church. Though young and full of life, yet his love for Jesus and interest in his church made him prompt in his work for the Saviour. The church misses him. His pastor often spoke of his smiles and attention at each service. He promised to be a great help in God's kingdom, but God doeth all things well. He leaves a dear father and mother, and other relatives, to mourn their loss. Mother and father you miss him, we all miss him; but look up, and remember "all things work together for good to those who love God." We may not see through these things here, but hereafter we will understand and see face to face, and we will be able to realize and appreciate more fully our Father's dealings with us. God bless the loved ones, and give a dear mother comfort in this loss.

PASTOR.

DOWD—The Baptists of Charlotte, and indeed the whole community, are bereaved by the death of Mrs. H. M., the beloved wife of Capt. James C. Dowd. Mrs. Dowd was a native of Chatham county, and her maiden name was Rives. She was one of the noblest women I have ever known; for more than thirty-six years she had discharged the duties which arise from the difficult and sacred relations of wife and mother in such a way as to command the reverent regard and promote the highest happiness of husband and children. It has fallen to the lot of but few wives to be cherished as she was by a devoted husband, and to still fewer mothers to enjoy the happiness of seeing all her children—four daughters and six sons—professing faith in Christ, and conducting themselves with such propriety as to secure the esteem of all who know them.

Nearly two years ago her health began to fail, and at times she was a great sufferer. She knew that there was no cure for her disease, but with an unselfish regard for the feelings of loved ones around her that was almost divine, she maintained a cheerful spirit and bore her pain with a fortitude that was heroic. Her summons came at last, on the morning of the 20th of June, and with her mother, her husband, every child and grandchild around her bed, her saintly spirit was released from suffering and passed into paradise. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, God in his divine goodness and mercy has taken from our midst the sweet, beautiful and trusting spirit of our dear Sunday-school scholar and beloved sister, Ada A. Ward; therefore, be it Resolved 1. That we submit to his omnipotent will, and trust in his comforting presence.

2. That her sweet daily walk and pure conversation but sanction and verified her religious professions one year ago.

3. That in the absence of her bright face and cheery presence the Sunday-school feels deeply their loss, and tenders to her parents and friends loving sympathy.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication, one to be spread on the minutes of the Sunday-school, and one sent to the bereaved family.

Mission Work in the Yadkin Association.

The Union Meeting of the Yadkin Baptist Association was held with Oak Grove Baptist church, Surry county, June 28, 29 and 30, 1895. Rev. J. P. Griffith preached the introductory sermon from Rom. 1: 14—"I am debtor." After which the body was organized by electing Rev. J. H. Lewellyn, Chairman, and W. B. Castevens, Secretary.

The program of the meeting was taken up. Three very important queries were ably discussed by the brethren.

The missionaries reported that their work had been very successful. The Executive Committee have employed four missionaries which preach at five points, and still there are many other points destitute of Baptist preaching. The committee intend to raise $150 for next year's work. May the good brethren respond liberally to this cause that the Lord's work may continue to enlarge, for "the Lord loveth a cheerful giver."

The next meeting is to be held with Union Grove church, Yadkin county, Sept. 27, 28 and 29, 1895.

Parents and guardians having girls to educate will do well to consider the following facts:—

Only experienced teachers of broad culture and special training for their particular work are employed.

Thorough work is required of pupils, and diplomas are conferred only after critical examinations. The administration believes that education should be practical, and that girls should be trained not to feel above their homes.

The discipline is mild and parental. Pupils are treated as daughters.

The health of the Institute is unsurpassed.

Charges have been reduced to suit the times.

Wanted—A Boy.

Wanted—a boy. How often we
These common words may see!
Wanted—a boy to errands run,
Wanted for everything under the sun
All that the men to-day can do,
To-morrow the boy will be doing, too,
For the time is ever coming when
The boys must stand in the place of men

Wanted—the world wants boys to-day,
And she offers them all she has for pay—
Honor, wealth, position, fame,
A useful life and a deathless name;
Boys to shape the paths for men,
Boys to guide the plough and the pen,
Boys to forward the task begun,
For the world's great work is never done.

The world is anxious to employ,
Not just one, but every boy
Whose heart and brain will ever be true
To work his hands shall find to do;
Honest, faithful, earnest, kind;
To good awake, to evil blind;
Heart of gold without alloy
Wanted—the world wants such a boy.

The Secret of a Happy Life.

"Dear grandma, I am so discouraged," said little sixteen-year-old Nettie Harris. "This morning my Bible text for this day was: 'Fear thou not, for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God; and as I read it my heart filled with gladness.' I meant to remember the verse all day and live very close to the Savior. But there seemed no end to my difficulties. The kitchen fire would not burn; I built it again and again before I mastered it. When father came down to breakfast his coffee tasted of smoke and his steak was not done. I was about to offer an apology, but he looked such strong disapproval that the words died upon my lips and an angry feeling filled my heart. 'What about Christ's presence in you now?' whispered conscience; but I was too much troubled to heed the words. By-and-bye breakfast was out of the way and the children ready for school, all but Willie, who could not find his books. 'You must have put them somewhere, Nettie,' he said, not remembering his own careless habits. 'I wish you would leave my things where I put them,' bursting into tears. I was tried before, grandma, but this seemed the last straw. I took Willie by the shoulder and shook him. He was very angry; started to school at once without his books; and there they are lying on the table now, just where he left them. And O, grandma, such a wretched day as I have spent. It almost seems that the precious Bible promises are not for me: I so easily go astray."

"My dear child, you must learn to live above the cares of this world; that is the secret of a happy life."

"Alas! how can I do it?"

"I once asked myself the same question; for I also possessed a hasty temper, and was easily overcome by trifles. But with God all things are possible. He can take our weak, erring hearts and make them fit temples for his presence."

"I wonder why my Christian life is so full of mistakes, grandma?"

"Dear Nettie, I think you place too much confidence in your own strength to resist. Then, when things do not work well, and we are tempted to give in to weakness, let us remember the enduring patience of Christ. Why could you not have said: 'I am so sorry, father, that your breakfast is not right; I could not help it!' And, as for Willie, you really owe the dear child an apology, Nettie; even the little ones have rights to be respected."

Tears coursed down Nettie's cheeks. "I am so easily overcome by evil," she said.

"It need not be so. Take the dear Lord at his word, and accept him fully. And while you may sometimes be overcome by weakness, yet remember his strength is promised, and can make perfect that which you deplore. There is a secret in happy living, Nettie, and those only truly find it whose lives are hid in Christ. When evil and bitter thoughts strive to gain entrance into your heart, by and bye they will trouble you no more. When Christ is foremost, and our chief aim is do his will, we are happy wherever our lot is cast."—Sallie V. Du Bois.

"What is the reason for publishing denominational news? It is evident that too many persons write simply to please those whom they write about. Ought not the inspiration for writing religious news to come from the fact that such publication will be helpful to others rather than for the sake of those already informed upon the matter in hand? If such motive were to animate the minds of most of our correspondents, how great a change would come over the columns of the religious press. It would from much verbosity free us and foolish notions."—Standard.

In writing upon the subject, "Rumsellers as Rioters and Rulers," Joseph Cook said recently in The Advance: "It has been proven that although we receive $100,000,000 a year from the liquor traffic, nevertheless $15 a head is added to our burdens and $6 is removed. So that the loss to the nation is fifteen or twenty times the income."

The Way To Conquer.

"I'll master it," said the ax; and his blows fell heavily on the iron, but every blow made his edge more blunt, till he ceased to strike.

"Leave it to me said the saw; and with his relentless teeth he worked backward and forward on its surface, till they were all worn down or broken; then he fell aside.

"Ha! ha!" laughed the hammer; "I knew you wouldn't do it; but I'll show you the way." But at his first stroke off flew his head, and the iron remained as before.

"Shall I try?" said the soft small flame. They all despised the flame, but he curved gently around the iron, and embraced it, and never left it until it melted under his irresistible influence.

There are hearts hard enough to resist the force of wrath, the malice of persecution, and the fury of pride, so as to make their acts recoil on their adversaries; but there is a power stronger than any of these, and hard, indeed, is that heart which can resist love.—Selected.

The Good Work of A Hymn.

A little boy came to a city missionary, and, holding out a dirty and well-worn bit of paper, said: "Please, sir, father sent me to get a clean paper like that."

Taking it from his hand, the missionary unfolded it, and found it was a page containing that beautiful hymn of which the first stanza is as follows:

"Just as I am, without one plea,
But that Thy blood was shed for me,
And that Thou bidd'st me come to Thee,
O lamb of God, I come! I come!"

The missionary looked down with interest into the face earnestly upturned to him, and asked the little boy where he got it, and why he wanted a clean one.

"We found it, sir," said he, "in sister's pocket after she died; and she used to sing it all the time when she was sick, and loved it so much that father wanted to get a clean one to put in a frame and hang up. Won't you give us a clean one, sir?"

The Disappearance of Game in America.

It is really appalling to compare the enormous amount of game on this continent at the beginning of the century with the wretched remnant of to day. At that time the American buffalo roamed the prairies in countless thousands, and probably the most numerous large animal in the world, and now—but all Americans know the shameful story of its extermination.

Little more than a hundred years ago great herds of elk swarmed in the Kentucky and Illinois hunting grounds, and even as late as 1820 a few could be found in the district north of the Ohio River. To day their fast-diminishing bands are confined to the mountains of the Northwest. The same sad story of fast approaching extinction is true of the other game animals, the antelope, bighorn, mountain goat, and the various kinds of deer; in fact, it is true of all our larger mammals. Many persons living to-day will see their final disappearance in a wild state—From an article on "The Vanishing Moose," in the Century.

The Heavenly Home.

A little five-year-old boy bounded into the house one day, and exclaimed as he hung his hat in the entry:

"This is my home! This is my home!'

A lady said, "Willie, the house next door is just the same as this one. Suppose you should hang your hat up in that entry, wouldn't that be home as much as this?"

"No, ma'am," said Willie, "it would not."

"Why not?" asked the lady. "What makes this house your home more than that one?"

"Because my mother lives here," said Willie.

A little Sunday-school boy lay dying.

"I'm going home to heaven," he said to his teacher.

"Why do you call heaven your home?" asked the teacher.

"Because Jesus is there."

"But suppose that Jesus should go out of heaven?"

"Then I would go out with him," said the dying child.

AYER'S PILLS

ARE EASY TO TAKE.

They Keep the System In Perfect Order

"For years," writes CARRIE E. STOCKWELL, of Chesterfield, N. H., "I was afflicted with an extremely severe pain in the lower part of the chest. The feeling was as if a ton weight was laid on a spot the size of my hand. During the attacks, the perspiration would stand in drops on my face, and it was agony for me to make sufficient effort even to whisper. They came suddenly, at any hour of the day or night, lasting from thirty minutes to ten or twelve hours, leaving as suddenly; but, for several days after, I was quite prostrated and sore. Sometimes the attacks were almost daily, then less frequent. After about four years of this suffering, I was taken down with bilious typhoid fever, and when I began to recover, I had the worst attack of my old trouble I ever experienced. At the first of the fever, my mother gave me Ayer's Pills, my doctor recommending them as being better than anything he could prepare. I continued taking these Pills, and so great was the benefit derived that during nearly thirty years I have had but one attack of my former trouble which yielded readily to the same remedy."

WE HAVE been gratified by the large number of orders for literature our recent editorials have brought on the State Board of Health. In no department of our government is more good and wholesome work being done than in that which is concerned with the maintenance of the public health. Specialists are studying all serious diseases, and they are such an order of men that they gladly make results of their work public property. We have been persuaded that a more intelligent conception of the sources and causes of diseases will aid to a great extent in diminishing the death rate and promoting human happiness. We have a naturally healthful climate, and with a little more care, we believe disease can be made a stranger in our borders.

The summer is well on; the dog days are at hand. It is typhoid fever's season, that dread disease whose favorite victims are young men and women at the threshold of usefulness.

It is a well known fact that cleanliness, pure water and neat premises will help keep off this infection. If it makes its appearance, it is liable to spread (this is a fact of science) if preventative measures are not taken. The State has published an eight-page essay with a view to giving information in regard to these measures, and it can be had on application to Dr. R. H. Lewis, Raleigh, N. C.

AS AN evidence of what our country has come to since it became the rule to put men in office, not for honesty or fitness, but for the sake of the pull they may have in a doubtful district, we can cite the open fact that legislative lobbying has become a profession and is almost an art; and great contests are waged, not by intellectual giants in the arena of debate, but by gigantic purses and pulls under cover of secrecy.

It is the hardest task in politics to pass a law unfavorable to liquor interests, not because a majority of voters are drinking slaves, but because the liquor men are men of money, and therefore, powerful. The United States Brewers' Association met not long ago in Milwaukee, and more millions of dollars were represented in the meetings than there were members present. This is one of the very few associations whose membership is mostly of millionaires. We were not surprised to read in the papers that it maintains a representative at Washington to look after its interests.

If the people would only refuse to vote for any but men of clean record, and make a test of fitness for office of business integrity and success! The country would lose nothing if every man who comes out and works for a nomination were turned down for some man who has to make a sacrifice to become the people's servant.

ENGLAND has had her nominations, campaign and election of her House of Commons, all in the space of a month. A political year in our country is generally considered an "off year" from beginning to end: it is not expected that trade will be as brisk in some industries, and that it will be more lively in others, the tendency on the whole being to depression. In England there are not so many office hunters; members of the House of Commons work for honor instead of pay, and only able men can afford to run.

The election in England resulted in a victory for the Conservatives. So the Queen will die pleased, and grand old Gladstone will go down in disappointment. Further than this we cannot make sure that the English people will be seriously affected by the change. Ireland has never really known what she wanted; the time was not ripe for disestablishment of religion in Wales. On the whole England is more like herself in the hands of the Conservative, aristocratic class.

One is tempted to say that they were identical impulses that have within a few years overthrown and reinstated in America and England the parties that had long held sway, parties, too, that stood in their respective countries for ideas not greatly at variance.

When the Liberal party returns again to power—and it will as surely as England lasts—it will be on a platform of opposition to the existence of the House of Lords on its present basis, the success of which will be a great step toward disestablishment of religion.

ACCORDING to the latest report the total railroad mileage in the United States is 178,708 miles, an increase over the previous year of 2,347 miles. North Carolina is one of several States that show a decrease of mileage, although the year previous she showed a larger proportional increase than any other State. There are 745 independent railroad companies in this country, but 44 roads operate more than half of the mileage and control a good deal more; and ninety roads actually operate 72 per cent of the mileage.

There are 35 492 locomotives in the service, and 1,278,078 cars, 33,018 of these being in the passenger service. The total number of employees is 779 608, which is less than in any year since 1890. If we estimate that four people are dependent on each railway employee, we find that within one year one-third of a million people have been forced out of their regular channel of support by curtailment of railroad force.

The total amount of reported railroad capital is $10 796 473 813; the amount of funded debt is $5,856,588 019; the amount of stock paying no dividend, $3,066,150,094; the amount of capital stock being only $4,834,-075.659.

The number of passengers carried in the year ending June 30th, 1894, to which all these figures refer, is 619,688,199, each travelling an average distance of 23 miles. The number of tons of freight carried was 638,186,553, a decrease of 106,933,929 tons. The gross earnings for the year were $1,073,-361,797, a decrease of $147,390,077, the passenger revenue decreasing $16,142 358, freight $129,562,948. Expenses, $731,414,-823; a decrease of $96 506 977.

During the year 1,833 railroad employees were killed, and 23,422 were injured, as compared with 2,727 killed and 31 729 injured in 1893. The number of passengers killed was 324, an increase of 25, and the number injured was 3,304, a decrease of 195.

At the end of the year 192 roads, operating 42,000 miles of line and representing one fourth of the total railway capitalization, were in the hands of receivers.

IN A public bulletin sent us there is considerable reference to the North Carolina method of working roads with county convict labor. We are not aware of any general improvement in our roads in late years, but in some parts of the State, particularly in and near Charlotte, a great benefit has been conferred on the locality by road improvement, though we do not think it was all done by convicts. The Wake county roads have been worked on enough, but not in the proper way, we fear. Macadam can be seen in almost any direction, but it is either very rough and wearing or so soft that running is not at all easy.

It seems to us that road-making will do more good than any other work the convicts—county or State—can be made to do; and we believe the convict question will be pretty nearly solved when we get them to working for the counties on the public roads at public expense, apportioned among the counties according to work done.

While we have the subject of roads in mind it is pertinent to note that the agitation for road improvement has gone so far in some States that it is made compulsory to have wagon tires of certain width, and in some others those whose wagon tires come up to a certain width are given partial immunity from road tax. If the present earnest efforts for road improvement and preservation are persisted in, there is no doubt but that great good will be done for the entire country in this respect within the next several years.

AT the meeting of the State Press Association at Greensboro last week, a paper was read by Maj. E. J. Hale of Fayetteville, which established bold positions concerning a matter that has long given newspaper people trouble.

Speaking of newspapers as recorders of current history, he not only called to mind how the great dailies have lost that track in efforts to strike the popular fancy with literary stuff of questionable worth and volumes of matter that is useful only for filling purposes, but also called the local papers to account for the injury they do themselves, the English language and the future historian, by magnifying the virtues of village characters, and extravagantly and indiscriminately praising occasions, speeches, etc., etc., which are scarcely worth a moment's notice. The effort to please distorts the truth, makes hypocrites and multiplies the number of Vanity's victims.

We heartily second Maj Hale's remarks and commend the subject to general consideration for our own sake and for the public's.

Hints About Our Associations.

BY REV. H. A. BROWN, D. D.

The time for the meeting of the Associations is near. Let no church think that this is not a time about which unusual interest should gather. Our district Associations should be the gathering up and putting forth of all the co-operative energies of the churches. We need to lay great stress on co-operation. There is need of co operation on the part of churches in the general work as much as there is need of co operation on the part of individuals in the work of each church. Some of the best men in the churches should be selected as messengers to the Association.

A spirit of seriousness should characterize the deliberations; for we meet to do the Lord's work. If that is not so, we had better not meet at all. Every messenger should be present during the sessions and take an active interest; for he is there not for himself alone but for his church. For a messenger to stand outside during the sessions of the body, "to pull up" and start for home on the second day, is to treat the Association with marked disrespect, dishonor the church that sent him, and show a general indifference to the cause which is lamentable, to say the least of it.

The brethren who prepare the various reports should hold themselves ready to say something on the subjects; because they were appointed to gather and scatter information of the Association. Of course, the visiting brother will be on hand, and he will be charged "up to the muzzle" with a speech or speeches, and some of the brethren will think after he gets through that enough has been said. Let the visiting brethren speak by all means; but do not allow them to monopolize. The messengers were sent by the churches to hear and be heard on all the questions pertaining to the welfare of the Associations. I plead for more spirituality in our Associational gatherings. It may be said "These are meetings for business," yet if business is done without regard to God, we may not expect his presence and blessing on it.

Annual Calls.

Rev. B. G. Manard writing to the Central Baptist says:—

"For the certain death of churches no better prescription can be made than to have annual calls and once a month preaching. If they do not die to day, they will to morrow. They are doomed."

In the main, I believe this statement is true. If under this prescription churches do not actually die—cease to exist—they will become as the church at Sardis: "Thou hast a name that thou livest and art dead." Dead to active spiritual life, dead to true Christian progress.

Annual calls and once a month meetings have not a shadow of support in New Testament precept or example. In reading the New Testament account of the churches who ever got even a hint that the churches called pastors for a year at a time, or met only once a month for worship?

Once-a-month preaching became common in the early settlement of the country, when preachers were few and churches were springing up on every side. Then a preacher had to supply four, often more than four churches, in order for all to be supplied.

But I wish to call special attention to annual calls. These calls must have originated in the mind of the founder of Methodism. Among other things that John Wesley devised for his system of Methodism was annual pastorates. At first no preacher could stay longer than one year with a church or churches. Soon this was found to be unwise and the time was lengthened to two years. Now a Methodist preacher can stay four years on the same field. No doubt the time will continue to be extended. Experience is teaching them the wisdom of longer pastorates.

Baptists must have gotten their idea of annual calls from the Methodists. They did not get it from the New Testament, or, as being proved best by experience; for a large proportion of our churches having tried the annual call have given it up for the indefinite call, which has proved to be better, both for church and pastor.

Annual calls keep both church and pastor in an unsettled condition. No pastor can feel encouraged to form broad, permanent plans for future work, unless he has some hope of remaining with the church to carry them out. If a preaches does his duty faithfully there will always be church members and outsiders that will dislike him. If he preaches against covetousness, the stingy members (and they are in all churches) will cry out, "Away with such a preacher; he is always preaching about money. We want a man to feed us on the pure gospel, and not worry us about money." These will vote against him. If he opposes dancing as injurious to piety and Christian influence, the dancing members will vote against him. If he turns on the light on grog shop brethren, and lets people see their glaring inconsistency, they will vote him out if they can. Dishonest members dislike a pastor who holds up their sin to public view. If the pastor constantly urges all Christians to work and give for the salvation of sinners, and the spread of the gospel, the lazy and the stingy will not be pleased. And so at the end of the year these will work and vote against a pastor who has faithfully tried to do his duty.

A man who is fit to be a pastor is a Christian, a gentleman, having self-respect and tender feelings. It is hard for such a man to be set up once a year to be abused and shot at as a target by unworthy church members.

The annual call is like digging up a fruit tree every fall and setting it out again, or sending it somewhere else to be set out. The annual call binds a church to keep a pastor the whole year and pay him the full amount promised, no matter how unworthy he may prove.

But the indefinite call largely avoids all the troubles above mentioned. Under this call, if a church gets a pastor that disappoints and dissatisfies them, they can at any time during the year dissolve their connection with him. They notify him privately through the deacons that his resignation is desired; and of course he will resign. The church gives him two or three months notice, so he can have time to get other work. If the pastor has reasons for resigning, he gives the church two or three months notice, to give them time to get another pastor. On this plan the church would pay the pastor in proportion to the time he served.

The indefinite call inspires a feeling of permanency which makes church and pastor feel more like entering heartily into all good work for the present and future. A man going to a place to stay indefinitely would feel much more like doing good work and taking care of things, than if he expected to stay only one year.

The indefinite call, managed as above mentioned, avoids the unrest and excitement of the annual call. It also saves the pastor from the deep mortification, and often injury, of being voted out by a majority, or being worried and driven out by an unyielding minority. ANTI-ANNUAL

Mrs. Jennie Crawford Howell Gwin.

Tidings of the death of this noble woman have carried sorrow to many a heart and many a home in our Southland. On June 13th, at her home in Atlanta, Ga., while breathing a tender prayer to the gracious Saviour whom she had so long trusted and served, her gentle spirit took its flight.

"Then fell upon the house a sudden gloom,
A shadow on those features fair and thin;
And softly from that hushed and darkened room,
Two angels issued, where but one went in."

There could scarcely have been a higher testimonial to her worth, and to the esteem in which she was held by the community in which she lived, than was given by the citizens of Atlanta in their spontaneous, sympathetic and sacred ovation to her memory on the day her mortal remains were laid to rest in their beautiful cemetery. People of all classes came to drop their tears and lay their floral tributes on her new made grave.

Mrs. Gwin, as is well known, was the daughter of Rev. Dr. R. B. C. Howell, who for many years, by reason of his noble character and his splendid abilities, held prominent place in our Baptist brotherhood.

Besides having a marked physical resemblance to her distinguished father, Mrs. Gwin inherited many of his mental characteristics. She was known by a large circle of admiring friends as a woman of splendid intellect, and of large and liberal culture. An eminent Georgian declares that she was the most brilliant woman in Georgia. In any social circle whose atmosphere was congenial to her, her varied and thorough intelligence, her refined and ready wit, and her superior conversational powers rendered her peculiarly fascinating and delightful. In her home, her faithfulness to duty, her uniform cheerfulness and her unselfish consecration to the happiness of her husband and children made her the queen of their hearts. Her piety, while modest and unostentatious, was yet of a sturdy type manifesting itself in ardent love of truth, steadfast devotion to duty and self sacrificing endeavors to do others good. With no thought of personal merit she lovingly rested on the Divine mercy. Her last prayer was characteristic: "Lord Jesus, save me by thy mercy."

In 1864 she was married to our honored brother, Dr. D. W. Gwin, and through all the varied experiences of the changeful years that have passed since she gave him her youthful troth, she has been his loving companion, his true "help meet" Her demise brings measureless loss to those who loved her. But they still live among them, not in their hearts and memories only, but in the undying influence of her life. In the embalmed remembrance of the graces of her character and the purity and piety of her actions she still lives to guide, and stimulate, and cheer them in their heavenward march.

"A little while" and we shall join her.

"And he who is himself the giver and the gift,
The future glory and the present smile,
With the bright promise of the glad forever
Will light the shadows of the little while."

A. B. WOODFIN.

Hampton, Va.

Walk prayerfully—oft wilt thou fall
If thou forget on thy Saviour to call;
Safe shalt thou walk through each trial and care
If thou art clad in the armor of prayer.
Christian! walk joyfully—trouble and pain
Cease when the haven of rest thou dost gain.
This thy bright glory, and this thy reward,
"Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Sketch of the Late Rev. Trezavant Harrison.

BY REV. L. JOHNSON.

Rev. Trezavant Harrison, so long identified with all our interests in North Carolina and so well and favorably known all over the State, departed this life July 5th, 1895, at his home in Rockingham.

Trezavant Harrison was born in Sussex county, Va., Dec. 19th, 1840. He graduated at Columbian College with the degree of A. B. when he was nineteen years of age. After leaving college, he further prosecuted his studies, so that he became entitled to and received from his alma mater the degree of A. M. After leaving the University he taught in Columbus, Ga., for a while.

Twenty five years ago he cast in his lot with the Baptists of North Carolina, and during this quarter of a century he has in deed and in truth been one of us.

He first came to Edenton, N. C., where he had charge of a high school. He had expected to make teaching his life work; but felt strongly impressed that it was his duty to preach the gospel. No longer able to resist these impressions that were forced upon him by the Holy Spirit, he entered the ministry and was ordained at Edenton, and where he remained three years. From there he went to Hertford, where he was pastor five years. From Hertford he went to Apex, where he remained two years teaching and preaching at Apex and surrounding churches. From Apex he was called to the pastorate of the Greensboro church. After serving the Greensboro church one year, he resigned to becofne agent for Foreign Missions in North Carolina. He was called to the pastorate of the church in Rockingham while acting as agent for Foreign Missions, and although devoted to the mission work, he could not resist the opportunity of again entering the pastorate, a work that he loved above all others. In 1880 he went to Rockingham, where he remained until he received the call to "come up higher,"

He did a fine work in Rockingham. When he went there the church building had just been finished, and there was considerable debt hanging over it. Under his wise management the church paid off the debt, and began slowly but surely to advance and develop amid great difficulties.

In 1886 he was stricken with paralysis, from which he suffered through nine long, weary years.

Bro. Harrison possessed some very striking traits of character. He was a gentleman in the true sense of the term. There was an innate culture and refinement about him with which all who knew him must have been impressed. He was an unselfish man, always bearing the burdens of others, and lending a helping hand wherever and whenever he found an opportunity. He had the happy faculty of bestowing his favors in such a delicate and unostentatious manner, that the recipient of his kindness was not embarrassed by it.

As a citizen, he took a lively interest in whatever was for the good of his community, and was a universal favorite. The aged loved him because he "bowed down before the hoary head and honored the face of the old man." The young people loved him, because he had a young heart and they always found in him a congenial companion and a sympathizing friend. Christian people loved him, because they saw in him the image of their Master. The unconverted, even the so called "hard cases," loved him, because he always had for them a kind word and bright smile wherever he met them. All classes of mankind loved him, because he loved all mankind and sought to do them good.

Although it was not my privilege to have known him well as a preacher, from what I know of the man, and have heard from those who sat under his ministry, he was faithful and earnest. He was not afraid boldly to declare the whole counsel of God, and yet tenderly and lovingly he pleaded with men.

Before his sad affliction he was always a happy, cheerful Christian, full of bright assurance of his acceptance with Christ. Although his affliction was so long and so severe, his faith in God never for a moment wavered, nor for one moment did he question God's goodness in dealing with him as he did. He waited lovingly but patiently for the time when the warfare would be over and he should enter into rest. Like Paul he had a "desire to depart and be with with Christ which is far better."

In his case how exceedingly appropriate is the expression of the Apostle, "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him."

In December, 1865, he married Miss Mollie Land of Sussex, Va., who, with three children, still survives. May God comfort them and the surviving brothers and sisters who linger on the shores of time.

"Soldier of Christ, well done,
Praise be thy new employ;
And, while eternal ages run,
Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

The strong life is the life which gathers up all its forces to live in the present. The burdens of the past and the future weaken by taking away from the concentration essential to full activity. Leave the past with the sovereign grace which looses us from its disheartening weight. The future belongs to God, not to us. To day only is ours.—Zion's Herald.

We feed upon what we read, but digest only what we meditate upon.—Bengel.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 24, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

THIS week, beginning July 21st, was designated by the Convention's committee as a week for especial prayer for missions.

MAKE a study of Secretary Durham's Sunday school statistics. They will prove useful in many respects, and especially since the interest in Sunday school work has been awakened.

WE HOPE to receive short accounts of all the meetings held in our churches. They not only make interesting reading, but are helpful and encouraging. We take it that it is the RECORDER'S chief function to chronicle the acts of latter day apostles in North Carolina; and we will go to any pains to be as thorough in this as possible.

WE HAD it strikingly pointed out the other day by one who was emphasizing the strong idea of Christian growth, that while God's plants have to do the best they can under the conditions about them, his little children can usually make their own atmosphere and climate by accepting only such associations as are wholesome. Pastors can do good work helping young Christians make their own climate.

THE travelling brethren have learned something new lately. We have heard several of them say that they are meeting with more success by putting the objects they represent before our country churches, one at a time, than they usually meet with in the towns and cities. Bro. Edwards went out with Bro. T. B. Hill to one of the latter's Granville churches recently and got subscriptions to the Female University to the amount of two hundred and ten dollars.

We are glad that efforts will be made to give our country churches more opportunities to give directly to the enterprises of our denomination; and we are sure the towns and cities will not grow impatient if they are called on a little less frequently.

A BROTHER was describing a particularly persistent speaker (not a newspaper man) recently, and to give force to his remarks he exclaimed, "I'll tell you he wore every one out to a frazzle and then wore out the frazzles!"

That was almost too much of a good thing, but we think it is timely to suggest that meetings had better be carried this far than to have to report "many anxiously inquiring at close of meeting," as is frequently done.

It is a fact of experience that inquirers, however anxious they are at the close of a meeting, generally fall back into the old ways; and when they get back, it is harder than ever for them to be made "anxious" again.

THE churches of our Convention are expected to raise $15,000 for State Missions, about $4 000 for Ministerial Education, about $1,500 for Ministerial Relief, about $12,000 (in cash and in kind) for the Orphanage, in the year ending with our meeting at Greensboro in December. In addition to this they are looked to for $9,000 for Foreign and $6,000 for Home Missions in the year ending with the meeting at Chattanooga in May, not to mention the large amounts that will be raised for Wake Forest College and the Female University in the next several months, and the money that will be sent direct to mission fields.

The total amount is large; but divided among 160,000 Baptists it is small. If each will only do what he or she is impressed to do, we will have no fear.

WE NEED more Baptist schools. Say what you please, we like the Methodist way of buying up a school property, putting it in approved Methodist hands and naming it Trinity High School. Four times in five, the institution for the higher education of boys and girls are selected when they are in academies, and this gives the latter great weight in the matter.

Wake Forest College and our higher institutions of learning for young women can stand the drastic competition of the State a great deal better, if they have efficient and trustworthy feeders to rely on.

But this is only the means to a great end. If the benefits went no further, they would not be worth while. Such a plan would contribute much strength to our denominational life, would save much that is now lost, and then it would play no small part in the work of the Kingdom.

RECENT DEMONSTRATIONS OF THE Y. P. MOVEMENT.

We have been told more than once that the young people will sweep this country with organization, and that he is a fool who throws himself in their way. It does look like it just at this writing. Only a few days ago the Methodist young people gathered in a great throng at Chattanooga; now reports come that between 50,000 and 70,000 people gathered at the Christian Endeavor meetings at Boston week before last, and last week the Baptist young people from all sections of this country gathered at Baltimore to the number of 10 000 (estimated).

We have been told that many of those who composed the Boston throng came from the Chattanooga meeting, and many went on to Baltimore. The secular press sees these things, and rejoices over them—the going in and out of Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists and all sorts, now standing solid in the faith of their fathers, and in a week shouting in a throng so diverse in make-up that no one dares assert the Truth as he sees it. It is a thing to catch the popular eye, but the man who soberly considers the effect on young minds of making the Truth second to what is called Expediency, shudders to think of it. More than once have we known men to barter away the mighty power of their eloquence for a shower of harmless sparks that were attractive at first, but lacked the staying qualities of solid truth; getting the applause of a great miscellaneous gathering, but making no lasting impression.

Modern liberalism, this disgusting indifference to personal conviction so prevalent in the great societies that have taken a good part of the land, is worse than the straightest bigotry. A man who is broader than the Truth as he sees it, is untrue to himself. Not that one should not be open to conviction, but that he should also be ready to convict. The key to Christian unity is not indifference, not liberalism, but it is desire for the establishment of Truth.

Thus, the secular papers that believe that the organized young people's goal is Christian unity will some day see that they are a stumbling block in the way to Truth, without which there can be no basis of union.

But what of the friends in the churches of these organizations? Only last week a successful North Carolinian pastor of a New England church wrote us a letter glowing with enthusiasm that had been awakened in him at Boston. He was so sorry we could not be there and see for ourself. Poor fellow, he saw only the bright, sincere faces of thousands of misled but ardent young Christians. Down here in North Carolina we saw one of the organs of the movement—The Kingdom, it is called. The most prominent article in its columns was a powerful blow at the martyr-honored Baptist principle of absolute separation of Church and State. In the West and Northwest there is a genuine campaign in the name of the Christian State. They would make Christianity a test of office, they would make it a part of the State, requiring the State institutions to teach it. It is a fine idea, especially for State aided institutions to impose on the public with. The secular press and the young Christian endeavors will become wild with enthusiasm over it without ever a sober thought on the evils, not to say the sin, of any kind of religious establishment.

Just here is brought to light the ground for the chief fear of these movements outside the churches: There is no telling what principles will be forced into them; there is no one to say "so far and no further." As an instance, suppose there were a strong Christian Endeavor organization in North Carolina. It could not be responsible to any church or Convention. It would be itself supreme. What an opening for enemies of any of our causes!

A powerful writer or speaker could present to it the beautiful but treacherous idea of the Christian State, stir them up to an imaginary duty to work for such a glorious victory for our religion, and all the denominational power that could be mustered could not win them back to right.

As we have said time and again, the young people and all people ought to be brought together in their churches as often as possible for worship and study and organization in church work; but the more we see of these great inter-church meetings the more clearly we recognize the danger of allowing the authority of the churches in any matter of religion to be slighted, whether it is a small or large matter.

THE Adventists say we misunderstand them. We rather think we understand them too well for their comfort. It seems that whether their doctrines are attacked all together or one at a time, they will come up and say that they preach nothing of the kind. Of all the hypocrites we ever saw, they are chief.

CO EDUCATION has frequently been represented as one of the coming ideas that will run over any old fogy who doesn't know better than to get in the way.

Down in Georgia the Christian Index recently sent out postal cards to one hundred representative Baptists, seeking their views on the subject of co education at Mercer University; and nearly all replies so far received are in the negative. This is more significant than usual, as Prest. Gambrell (of Mercer) is an advocate of co education, and no little has been ably said by him and others on the subject.

THE Wilmington Messenger falls into the thoughtless error of speaking of the establishment of a large new distillery and brewery in the town as an evidence of progressiveness, and predicts that it will be "an important addition to our city." Just here the following from the Watchman is pertinent:—

"'Progress' is a word that needs definition. One of our contemporaries tells of an old colored woman who stood watching the police while they loaded a drunken man into a patrol wagon. At last she turned to her companion and said: 'Well, things have improved since the days when I used to wrastle with the police. Then I had to walk to the station.' Another tells of a little boy who, wanting to get up into a man's estate, did wish that he 'had a vest and a bald head.'"

SHORT articles and warm weather go well together. In fact, short articles suit all sorts of weather.

This week Bro. Brown comes out with some timely hints on attending associations. We endorse them every one. Bro. Brown does not speak often, but when he does, we get something solid.——"Anti-Annual" offers a thoughtful treatment of a vexing matter; and his points are generally well taken.——Dr. Durham's Sunday school figures are very elaborate. The table is an excellent subject for study.——Dr. Cobb writes instructively and with lively style of his travels in the Southeastern countries ——There is interesting information about the Chautauqua ——We are called on again to pay deserved tributes to two of God's well used servants who have lately been called up higher.

NEWS NOTES

....Annual meeting at Orphanage this week.

....Rev. James Liddell Phillips, Baptist missionary, died recently at Calcutta.

....Rev. G. P. Bostick, missionary to China, is on his way home, and is expected to arrive August 10th.

....Address letters until further notice to Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards of Raleigh, N. C., care Bro. N. B. Broughton.

....Rev. M. A. Adams is aiding Pastor Harrell of the Southside Baptist church of Wilmington in a series of meetings.

....We note with pleasure that Bro. Walter L. Cohoon has become connected with the Elizabeth City Economist Falcon.

....We regret to hear that Dr. L. P. Sorrell of Flint, Wake county, is very ill. He is one of the substantial members of Leesville church.

....Dr. Durham goes to Atlanta this week to meet with the special committee which has in charge the matter of consolidation of mission journals.

....Rev. J. H. Lamberth of Mt. Airy is aiding Pastor Wray of the Winston Broad Street church in a series of meetings that are promising well.

....We are glad to know that Dr. Royall of Wake Forest is rapidly growing stronger at Waynesville, where he and his wife are spending their vacation.

....Prof. A. P. Harris of the Troy High School has accepted a position in the Tarboro Male Academy. He is a good man and a thorough, conscientious teacher.

....Dr. W. H. Edwards of Wake Forest called to see us on Saturday of last week. He will go to Baltimore for a few weeks to take a special course in dentistry.

....Let the more active brethren make a point of trying to get a larger attendance of their fellow members at the coming Associations. It will be helpful to all concerned.

....Bro. C. F. Tippers informs us that the brethren and sisters at Tipper's Cross Roads are trying to build a house of worship. They will appreciate any help that may be given them.

....Judge Timberlake's unusually fine work in the Wake Superior Court week before last and last week has been generally commended, and is particularly pleasing to his many friends.

....The Wake Forest Student for June contains a picture of Dr. Pritchard with a sketch of his life, and some other articles. The magazine is a good one, and ought to be better supported than it is.

....Rev. Henry Sheets of Lexington was made happy recently by receiving a heavy pounding of nice things to wear and good things to eat. Nearly every member brought something to show their appreciation of the pastor and his work.

....The Southern Biblical Assembly is in session at Asheville. An attractive program has been advertised, but the attendance is small.

....Bro. Caddell's letter containing account of his Western trip, during which he attended the Morganton dedicatory exercises, was unavoidably crowded out this week.

....The Baptist Young People's Union was held at Baltimore last week according to the program. The attendance was not as large as expected. The meeting will be held at Milwaukee next year.

....His many friends will be gratified to hear that Dr. N. B. Cobb has declined the call to Oxford, Miss. He will remain in North Carolina, where he has served the Lord so faithfully all his life.

....Bro. H. B. Folk, father of editor Edgar A. Folk, has resigned his position as business manager of the Baptist and Reflector in order to resume his law practice at Brownsville, Tenn.

....David M. Prince (Wake Forest '93) and Miss Minnie Hollowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hollowell, will be married at Goldsboro July 24th. We wish them all the blessings of a useful life spent in true service.

....Rev. G. W. Coppedge of Wakefield made a short visit to our office recently. He is evidently in good trim to begin his usual summer protracted meetings with his churches—Clyde's Chapel, Corinth, White Oak and others.

....Cary Baptist church had interesting reunion services last Saturday. Pastor Blanchard, Rev. John E. White and Rev. R. H. Carter made addresses. The church is one of the most active in the Raleigh Association.

....Our beloved missionaries to China, Bro. and Sister Britton, are at Littleton, where we have good reason to expect the latter's health will be quickly restored. Bro. Britton's heart is set on China, but he can not yet say when he will return.

....Pastor Simms of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle is suffering from over work, and is now recuperating at Table Rock. We hope to see him well again soon. Bro. Stringfield made a talk on the Education of Women before Dr. Simm's congregation last Sunday.

....There were forty-three professions of conversion in the High Point meeting and a number of renewals of activity. As Pastor Weaver says, Dr. Battle has shown that he is as gifted in revival work as he has long been known to be in other departments of his calling.

....As usual at this season of the year, the pressure upon our obituary columns is distressingly heavy. We will take it as a favor if our friends will condense their obituary notices as much as possible. Our usual rule of inserting them in the order received will be followed.

....A brother writes from Elizabeth City: "Bro. J. H. Mills and ten of his orphans were with us yesterday (July 15th) and secured quite a good collection. They made a good and lasting impression on our people and enlisted much sympathy for the work they represent."

....Pastor Jos. G. Blalock is well pleased with the prospect of his work on the Rockingham field, we hear, and the church is delighted with him. A brother from Rockingham told us at Greensboro last week that Baptist affairs there are again moving on as vigorously as before Brother Johnson resigned.

....The "Old reliable" North Carolina Farmer, the stand by of so many practical farmers years ago, has been revived by the Jas. H. Enniss Pub. Co., with Messrs. W. T. Hampton and W. A. Jones as editors. It is now a sixteen page weekly, of handy size and very readable. We hope it will be successful.

....You could not get a better list of schools than that in our advertising columns, if you would go on a year's journey for it. And, by the way, by some means the opportunities of school life ought to be opened to every boy and girl in the State, and, more particularly, to the children of every reader of the RECORDER.

....Bro. Isham Royall, who has taught school with fine success at Autryville several years, will take charge of the Academy at Walnut Cove, Stokes county. We commend Bro. Royall to our Western brethren as a conscientious Christian and an efficient teacher. His departure is a loss to the Robeson Association.

....The editor of the Gospel Advocate accepts our proposition to distribute a circular containing simply passages of Scripture without any comments in the churches where he and his friends may hold meetings, the circular to be prepared by ourself, on condition that we will agree to distribute a similar circular to be prepared by himself. All right, we will accept the condition.—Baptist and Reflector.

....The Fifth Annual Sunday School and Orphanage picnic will be held at the Orphanage Tabernacle, Mocksville, N. C., July 26th. The orator of the day is Bro. A. H. Eller, who is one of the foremost of the younger public speakers in this State. Rev. C. S. Cashwell, an earnest and consecrated pastor at Hickory will also make an address, and there will be others.

....Says Miss Willard of the W. C. T. U., that if it should become necessary for her very advanced organization to give up Temperance or Woman's suffrage, the former would have to go. We congratulate Bro. London of the Chatham Record for his admirable stroke by which Bro. McDiarmid of the Robesonian and our other brethren of the editorial fraternity were committed no further to this organization than "prayerful consideration" of its pious petitions.

....Brethren Stringfield and Blanchard were in Raleigh last Thursday, and both of them seemed undaunted by the natural dryness of the times and the hot weather. Although ready cash is hard to get, the friends of education are as active and sympathetic as ever, and we have good reason to hope for large returns from the work now being done.

....The Legislature of Pennsylvania has passed and the Governor has signed the Religious Garb bill, which prohibits the wearing of any sectarian dress in public schools by any of the teachers, and imposes a fine upon any Board of Education permitting the teachers to wear such a garb. This law is based upon sound principles; a dress may be as thoroughly sectarian as a book.—Watchman.

....We were made sad by the news of the death of that most estimable woman and efficient Baptist Sister N. E. Browning, wife of our venerable friend, B. R. Browning, of Littleton. She and her husband are well known to the denomination, and the sympathy of many goes out to him now left desolate. We will publish an extended notice next week.

....Bro. Broughton says the prospect for a large attendance at the Sunday school Chautauqua is very encouraging. All who went last year were favorably impressed, and most of them will come again and bring their friends. The program and the place are certainly attractive. Read in another column what Bro Broughton and Bro. Kesler say about the Chautauqua.

....We were glad to see Rev. Thomas J. Hudson of Person county last week. He graduated in the English course at our Seminary in June, where he spent two years, having also attended Wake Forest two years. Bro. Hudson's purpose is to become a missionary to China this fall if possible, and a Kentucky church has offered to support him. At present he is holding meetings at Pantego.

....On July 2nd, Dr. Durham received from the Moderator of his Association the following postal card: "The next session of the Central Association will meet with Mt. Vernon church, July 30th. You are chairman of the committee on State Missions. Please be there with the report and a strong speech." If every Moderator in the State would look after the business of his Association in this way, the reports and speeches would be made when called for by the body, and much time saved.

....We have received the following from the hard working Haw River pastor, Bro. J. C. Hocutt: "Last Thursday night we closed a meeting at Haw River. Bro. O. C. Horton of East Durham was with us a part of the time and did efficient service. The interest was deep. Last Sunday afternoon I baptized four into the fellowship of the church; and at our next meeting I expect to baptize several others. The outlook for this church is exceedingly bright. Allow me here to thank the brethren, sisters and friends for their contributions to our building fund. The first two payments of $525 each have been made. The last $525 will have to be paid on or before the first of next January. Those who could not help on the first and second payments may be able to help pay the last. Brethren, we need your help."

....The following corrections should be made to the note we clipped from the Florida Baptist Witness: The Presbyterian referred to is not a D. D., but an M. D.; his sermon on the mode of baptism was preached to a large audience at a country school house, at the close of which an opportunity was given to Baptist ministers to reply. They did not accept, but promised to at another time. Dr. Richardson, who did not hear the sermon, was called upon to answer it, as the Baptist ministers who did hear it were not able to grapple with the Presbyterians Greek. He replied, not in the school house, but in a Baptist church. No one joined the church then, but when the sermon was repeated at another place, a prominent Presbyterian did join the Baptist church. All this happened last autumn, and since then there have been a dozen additions to the Baptist church from other denominations in that locality.

....A few hours at the annual meeting of the State Press Association at Greensboro last Thursday and Friday were well and pleasantly spent. The makers of North Carolina history are a genial lot of brethren. The religious papers were represented by brethren Grissom, Blair and Groome of the N. C. Christian Advocate our neighborly contemporary, and brethren Boone and Jenkins of the W. N. C. Baptist. An afternoon was used in seeing the town; and if all the editors are as favorably impressed as we, not only with the appearance of the buildings and property in general, but also with the people, Greensboro will not soon lack for editorial friends. Dr. McIver guided the company in the sight seeing, and made thorough work of it. Not only was the State Normal and Industrial School for women opened to us and explained (greatly to the edification of an eastern editor who gave the chemical laboratory credit for being the place where the girls learned to cook), but also guided us to the Greensboro Female School, the colored A. & M. College—a handsome institution—and the Cone mills. We actually found a skeleton in the State Normal and Industrial's closet, but our guide assured us that it was the only physical one there at least, saying nothing as to politics. The institution will not accept more than 450 students next year. It has recently purchased 113 acres of land for $12,000 on good time. There were eighty Baptist young women in the school last year. In the matter of buildings the institution is not nearly so well fixed as we thought, and the mechanical equipment is rather meagre. We wish to say, however, that we are glad that we are better acquainted with the school, and also to acknowledge Prest. McIver's courtesies.

....Rev. G. M. Webb of Shelby says all the preachers in his Association are looking forward to holding protracted meetings this summer and fall. He himself will begin the fourth Sunday at Mt. Zion, and then go to Shady Grove the first Sunday in August, thence to Carpenter's School house, a mission station, and the third Sunday to Bethlehem. On the first Sunday in September a meeting will be begun at Cherryville, where we are building a house of worship, which it is hoped will be ready for use by that time. Bro. Webb also reports having held a good meeting at a near by mission station in which there were five penitents, one of whom had passed three score and ten.

.....In order that we may take some more very needy orphan children, a brother wishes to be one of 100 who will give $5 00 each within the next thirty days. Where are the ninety-nine? What will the great Baptist denomination of North Carolina say to those children who ought to be at the Orphanage? Shall we say we have no room? The Lord can injure the present crops of North Carolina more within the next six weeks by drought, than the Baptists of the State have given for charity in all these years. "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof." We will never be satisfied until every orphan child in North Carolina shall have a home and christian friends to love, instruct and train them for the responsibilities and duties of life. 'In as much as you did it to one of the least of these, ye did it to me."—S. W. H. P. S "Since the above was in type, another friend proposes to be one of five to give $100 within the next 30 days. We feel encouraged."

....The following is the clipping about the work of Prof. E. P. Moses on the library of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle, to which reference was made last week: it is from Our Record: "For ten years Prof. Moses has been Superintendent of the Public Schools of Raleigh, and in this position has taken rank among the foremost educators of this country. We heard the distinguished Dr. Curry say in a public address on one occasion, that he regarded E. P. Moses as the leading man in his profession in the South. During his residence in Raleigh, he has been connected with our Sunday school. For a long time he was teacher of our advanced class, and for a short while as teacher in our Primary Department. But his crowning work with us has been in connection with our Library. In his own modest way he asked to be appointed Assistant Librarian, and with all the enthusiasm of his nature entered upon its duties. He found the Library with about one hundred indifferent books in it and a few readers. After two and a half years' work, our Library to day has over three hundred volumes, embracing a broad range of the purest and best secular and religious literature, and every Sunday morning its shelves are literally stripped, so anxious are our young and old people to read the books. The work of the Library now requires four or five persons to receive and give out the books each Sunday morning."

....It was a pleasure to attend the union of the Tar River Unions with Bro. Fant's active little church at Littleton last week. Although the attendance was not as large as it might have been, and some of the speakers could not be present, those who attended felt that they were more than repaid. Brethren Taylor of Warrenton, Edwards of Raleigh, Harmon of Weldon, Durham of Raleigh, Millard of Henderson, Brewer of Murfreesboro, Pierce of Bethel Hill, Britton of China, and several others, made excellent talks on the various subjects, as announced in last issue. Bro Harmon's address on the difference between Baptists and other denominations was particularly clean cut, instructive, and yet not in the least unbrotherly. Bro. Millard was called on several times. This being his first work of this kind since coming into the North Carolina pastorate, he was regarded with unusual expectation, to which he in no wise failed to come up. It was our first opportunity to hear Bro. Edwards in the capacity of representative of the Female University, and we were very favorably impressed with his effort, and his other hearers were, too, judging from many remarks we heard. Bro. Noah Biggs, always looking out for an opportunity to put in a solid stroke for the denomination, called the attention of the meeting to the need of a church at Roanoke Rapids, the lately developed water power point, where there is the promise of quite a growth. Dr. Durham spent Sunday there with Bro. Biggs, and we expect to announce the dedication of a church there before the leaves fall. We enjoyed the meeting. Brethren Fant and Taylor, who had it in charge, kept the interest up admirably. We are under especial obligations to Dr. Johnson of Scotland Neck, Prof. Bagley and Bro. Allen of Littleton, and to our friends Mr. and Mrs. Land, at whose delightful home we were most pleasantly entertained. Until we had seen Littleton we had no idea there was such a pleasant health resort in this section of the State.

Bro. Isham Royall.

The following resolutions have been adopted in favor of Bro. Isham Royall, the retiring Chairman of the Executive Board of the South River Association:

In view of the fact that our Bro. Isham Royall, who has been so long the worthy chairman of our body, is about to remove to a distant part of the State and out of the Association, we desire to commend him to all people among whom he may reside, as a brother beloved, and one whose sojourn with them will be an honor in any community wheresoever the Lord may direct his steps.

Our Ministerial Relief Work.

Dear Recorder:—Please allow me to say to the brethren that I hope the needs and claims of the Ministers' Relief Board will be considered and discussed at all of our Associations. So far we have received only about $190 since the last Convention, and this is utterly insufficient to provide for the thirteen beneficiaries whose necessities we are trying to supply. I am sure we would receive enough to care for these aged servants of God who have spent their lives preaching the gospel and worn themselves out serving the churches, if this object was discussed at every Association, and all the churches would take one public collection during the year, and thus give the people an opportunity to contribute to this cause, which appeals to the generous sympathy both of Christians and those who are not. I fear this Board has never been discussed at many of our Associations and comparatively few churches have taken its claims under serious consideration and arranged to contribute to it regularly as they do to the other Boards of the Convention.

Brethren, we appeal to you in the name of these aged, faithful and needy brethren and their families, to help us take care of them during the few years they shall need our sympathy and assistance. It will not be long before they go home, and they may tell the Saviour about the assistance and relief we give them, and Jesus may say of us, "Inasmuch as they did it unto you they did it unto me."

We hope a report on this work will be read and discussed at every Association this year, and that all the churches will send us a contribution. In some Associations we have a brother who has consented to act as the representative of the Board. We trust each one of these representatives will do all he can to bring this object before his Association; and where we have no such representative we would be glad and grateful if some one would take it upon himself to have the object brought up and discussed at the Association, and do what he can to secure a contribution from all the churches. May we not hope that some good brother in every Association, who wants to be useful, will take charge of this Board in his Association. It seems to us it would be a pleasure for some noble spirited servant of God to put his whole heart into the effort to promote the interest of such a worthy and noble cause.

Any information needed for a report can be obtained from Bro. J. F. McDuffie, Cor. Sec., East Durham, N. C.

Parting Notes.

When I write again, my home will be in Fayetteville. For three years I have stood to my post in Greensboro, and during that period the people have stood by the pastor. During that time our house of worship has not been closed a single time. At every service the people have come and paid earnest attention to the preaching of the gospel. Greensboro is a pleasant place to live in, the people are kind, and there is no more liberal church in the State than the Baptist church here. The field is hard to work, due to the facts that in a railroad center like this there is constant change of residence, and Greensboro is a stronghold of the Pedobaptist and Quaker influences. The Baptist church here is what the word calls weak financially and numerically, but the spiritual influence of the church is behind none. No better men and women exist in any church or community than some in the church here. The people are united, they will give their best support to the pastor, but they will be conservative in their plans and efforts. The congregations are large, especially at night. Last Sunday night there were about 500 people present. They listen well and appreciate the gospel truth.

I know of no better deacons in any church in the State. They are men of character and piety. They will give a hearty support to a pastor.

The business interests of the city are brightening, and the outlook for growth is hopeful.

With a leader of energy the work will go forward. The work of Piedmont Association will also demand some time and promises large results. This work will go on. Franklinville church will ask for a letter at the next meeting of their Association to join Piedmont; other churches will come, and the Association will probably double its strength this year. With Bro. M. A. Adams as the leading pastor in the Association and a corps of strong laymen in the churches, the outlook is bright.

With a sad heart I turn from my brethren here to greet the brethren whom God has called me to labor with in Fayetteville. That I shall have from them a hearty co operation in work I doubt not. I believe God is directing me. With this faith I enter upon the work, and shall look to God for his blessings. My correspondents can address me in the future at Fayetteville, N. C.

May God's blessings richly fall upon the work of our Convention.

IMPORTANT SUNDAY-SCHOOL STATISTICS.

The improvement in Sunday-school statistical information published in the minutes of our Baptist Associations has been very great during the past five years. This improvement will doubtless be continued till, in a few years, these tables will be as complete and as reliable as the tables giving the membership of our churches. It has taken five years in time, and much hard work with patience, to get the church clerks to furnish the information needed in the church letters to the Associations, and to get the clerks of the Associations to appreciate, tabulate and print in the minutes this much sought and much needed information.

For the present, however, study the table given below. It will show in what Associations the defects are greatest. I know of no way to remedy these except through the clerks of the churches in making up their annual church letters to the Associations, and through the clerks of the Associations in publishing their minutes.

Let every one interested in Sunday school work do what he can to have all the facts about his own school put into his church letter to the next Association.

In order to secure before the Associations this year the best report possible on Sunday-schools, and the most helpful discussion of this work, and to make sure of the publication in the next Associational minutes of the fullest possible Sunday school statistical information, we ask the brethren—one in each Association named below—to specially aid us in this work, viz:

From information gathered in various ways, through the past five years, and a careful study of the Associational minutes, I am of the opinion that there are in the Convention in our churches and connected with them as branch schools, and connected with our State Mission work in school houses, in store houses, in tobacco barns, in private dwellings and under bush arbors, more Sunday schools than churches. The following are perhaps about the facts in our Sunday-school statistics in our Convention: Schools, 1,400; members of the schools, 100,000; contributions, $35 000

There is no department of our work where greater developments are being realized, or greater progress being made. Correct statistical reports would abundantly establish these facts.

C. DURHAM.

The Sunday-school Chautauqua.

Bro. C. A. G. Thomas goes to Fayetteville Aug. 1st to take charge of the church there. He will be near by and will bring a good delegation with him. Bro. Thomas has an object lesson talk called "Lead Pencils," that we hope to add to our feast during the meeting.

Brethren L. L. Leary and M. L. Webb of Morehead write that they expect to be present, and that others of their school may join with them.

Bro. W. C. Newton, who recently took charge of the Goldsboro church, says: "I shall attend with a good representation from this place."

Bro. A. J. Cobb of Windsor will "kill two birds with one stone" by attending the State Farmers' Alliance meeting at Cary on the 13th, and on the 14th go to the Sunday-school Chautauqua. Other brethren of the State Alliance might do likewise.

Bro. L. Johnson, the pastor at Lumberton, writes that the Chautauqua is the chief topic of talk with the brethren in that section.

PASTORS' CONFERENCE

It has been suggested that a Pastors' Conference on "Methods of Work" would be an appropriate thing during their stay at Red Springs. The Conference might be held in the Baptist church there during one of the Chautauqua days—say Thursday.

SUPERINTENDENTS.

We do earnestly hope that the Superintendents of our schools will make it a point to attend the Chautauqua. We feel safe in saying that it is the most important meeting to them occurring in the State. Pastors should encourage them to go.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Bro. C. C. Brown, pastor at Sumter, writes us asking if "South Carolina renegades and poor preachers would be allowed to attend the Chautauqua." Says: "I am strongly tempted to venture over into North Carolina to share in the feast your brethren are to spread."

We wrote him to come and bring all the "renegades and poor preachers" that he could gather up. A good delegation is expected from our neighbor State.

N. B. BROUGHTON.

We hope to see this the greatest gathering of Sunday school workers ever assembled in North Carolina. We think we can invite you to one of the very best places for such a meeting in the State. It has been a great place for gatherings for a number of years. Tradition has it that the Indians loved to gather here before the white man disturbed his forest home. Old citizens tell how before there were any hotels here, people used to steal away from the cares of life and spend a week under rude tents and regale themselves with the water from "the Red Spring." Since then the grounds have been cleared up, a number of springs opened, the very best hotel accommodations provided. The water is nearly the same from all the pipes, which are driven deep into the earth and are artesian wells on a small scale. These springs will compare favorably with any of the Chalybeate waters of the world. Red Springs is a quiet village where you may rest without the annoying conventionalities of a giddy resort.

The shady distances offer room for those who wish to wander apart, and the smooth, level roads for miles are such as thrill the heart of any devotee of the bicycle.

There are many business men, farmers, pastors and workers of all kinds who ought to take a week off for change and recreation. This is the time and place to recuperate physically and spiritually, for there is no better opportunity for soul uplifting than when earnest workers put their heads together in devising better means for doing the Master's work.

I would advise those who wish to remain through the meeting to come on Monday, Aug. 12th, or better, on Saturday before. This will give you time to get well settled before the crowds come in, and will secure you a good place. The first on the ground in anything always have the advantage. However, come when you may, be sure of finding a place.

Now, while this meeting is open to all and all are invited, those interested in Sunday-school work are especially urged to come. Many schools ought to send one of the teachers, some one who ought to be stirred up on music, or the superintendent.

Come and enjoy it, and be benefited, and carry away a blessing to somebody else.

M. L. KESLER.
Red Springs, July 19, 1895.

$100,000 The Mark; Our Share, $6000.

Since the close of the last Conventional year the receipts of the Home Mission Board have been very small, while the necessary demands, and urgent appeals for help have increased.

The growth of the country and rapid increase of population brings constantly increasing responsibilities to be met by the denomination. Brethren, how will we meet these obligations without your prompt support?

To maintain the various lines of important work, as carried on by the Board in the past, prompt and regular contributions are essential. But urgent demands for enlargement and extension of the work have constrained the Board to ask for larger contributions. In view of these increased demands the Board has resolved to ask the denomination for $100,000 during the current Conventional year.

In the apportionment of this amount between the states North Carolina is asked to continue $6000. I. T. TICHENOR.

Notes of Travel.

A delightful evening with Dr. Gwaltney and Prof. Poteat at Wake Forest marked the beginning of my work for our Baptist Female University.

A brief business visit thence to Norfolk revealed the fact that there are a number of warm hearted North Carolinians over the border. Among other promises of help to our Female University, I received a liberal subscription from Bro. J. C. Meekins, Jr., a prominent young wholesale grocer of Norfolk. I was the guest of Dr. J. J. Hall and also Mrs. Dodamead of his church, and greatly enjoyed their cordial Christian hospitality. The walls of the new building for Park Avenue church are going up, and it will be a thing of beauty when completed.

Sunday and Monday were spent with Bro. T. J. Taylor and his people at Warrenton. It was a delight to be there with tried friends.

With an auspicious beginning of his work at Warrenton, the traveling brother arrived at Jackson, the county seat of Northampton, and was soon made welcome in the cultured home of Bro. S. N. Buxton, who did everything that a warm hearted brother could do for his success. Everybody helped; everybody said, "God bless you in your work," and Jackson is forever enshrined in memory as one of the bright places of the earth.

Bro. Buxton drove me in his buggy through a pretty country of growing crops, over to Seaboard where that genial Christian brother, Prof. Parker, took me to his home and helped me do some good work.

Weldon was our next stopping place. Rev. G. W. Harmon was at the depot to meet me, and from that time till I left, the following day, did all that brotherly kindness could suggest to smooth the way to a gratifying success. I was impressed with the solid character of the work which Bro. Harmon is doing in Weldon.

Speeding away to Henderson I catch a glimpse of Rev. J. K. Fant and promise him to be back to the mass meeting. Rev. J. W. Millard, whom I helped to ordain several years ago and whom we rejoice to see back in the dear old State, meets us at the depot and we are soon ensconced with him, receiving the same hearty Baptist welcome in the home of Bro. W. B. Shaw, where he is boarding. It is indeed pleasant to see how the brethren and sisters here are rallying to their gifted young pastor. His hearty enthusiasm in behalf of this and other great enterprises is indeed refreshing. I am now right in the midst of the work here with signal tokens of encouragement.

Of several things we have now become convinced by actual experience:

1. The establishment of our Female University lies very near the hearts of North Carolina Baptists.

2. The consecrated Baptist women of the State are going to have a large part in the accomplishment of our cherished hopes. May God bless them.

The Blue Ridge Inn.

MOUNT AIRY, N. C.

This elegant hotel is now open for the accommodation of summer visitors. Large, airy, well ventilated and comfortable rooms, all recently overhauled and newly furnished, spacious parlors and verandas, electric bells in all rooms, hot and cold water on every floor, and the purest mountain water. One of the finest mountain views to be seen anywhere is presented from the windows of the hotel. The cuisine is first class and guests are guaranteed polite and careful attention. Get out of the overheated city for a few weeks and come and let our pure mountain breezes woo back the bloom to the faded cheek and give the lustre to eyes from time sparkle. Our service is first-class and our rates are reasonable.

A Good Union Meeting and Other Things.

By the courtesy of Bro. Luther Rice Carroll of Warsaw, who kindly arranged for Pastor Bilbro to take me in his buggy to Spring Vale in Sampson county, I was privileged to attend the northern Union of the Eastern Association. The Union was a success from the beginning. A good audience was present on Friday, the house was full on Saturday, and overflowing on Sunday. With all the extra seats provided by bringing in chairs from the wagons, many could not get into the house, and there were people enough outside for an overflow meeting, if some one had been appointed to preach for them.

The members present were: R. C. Sandling, pastor of the church, J. L. Stewart and O. P. Meeks of Clinton, C. F. Hopper of Mt. Gilead church, W. L. Bilbro of Kenansville and Johnson's, F. N. Parker, Claud Peterson, and L. R. Carroll, the preaching layman of Warsaw.

From the name of the church, I naturally expected to find a new house of worship in a beautiful valley, with a gurgling spring near by. Instead of this, I found a neat newly-painted church on a pretty sand hill surrounded by a black jack grove, with here and there a long-leaf pine, and a well of good, pure sand-hill water in the yard in front of the church. The weather was extremely hot and the glare from the white sand made it hotter, but this did not prevent the people from coming on foot and in all sort of vehicles. The church is four miles from Ingold, eight and one-half miles from Garland Depot, twelve miles from Clinton, and about eighteen miles from Warsaw. It is erected on the borders of a strong Universalist congregation and far enough from Lisbon, Mt. Gilead, Ebenezer and Boykin's Chapel to have a distinct congregation and Sunday-school of its own. It was erected through the labors of Bro. R. C. Sandling, under whose pastorate new and neat houses of worship have been erected at Harrell's Store and Teachey's. His brethren ought to give him the title of C. B. (Church Builder).

CHURCH BUILDING AMONG THE BAPTISTS.

Great improvement has been made in church-building among the Baptists all over the State both in town and in country, and some of the most attractive and convenient houses of worship the Baptists have in North Carolina have been erected by the labors of our State and Associational missionaries. Our poorest houses of worship in the country now are, as a rule, those that are occupied by our oldest congregations. It is gratifying to note, however, that many of these are being remodeled and improved, or torn down to give place to more attractive and convenient church homes. This is emphatically the era of church house building with the Baptists and Methodists in North Carolina. Formerly these two denominations were outstripped by the Episcopalians and the Presbyterians along this line; but they strove to reach the masses of the people rather than the classes. They found the people in the country. Now that the masses are moving to the towns and villages, the Baptists and the Methodists are following them up and surpassing the other denominations both in the matter of building houses and in filling them with hearers of the Word.

TOWN AND COUNTRY.

The town churches should support missions in the country because the town churches are built up by members who move in from the country; and the country churches should support missions in the towns, because they are thereby providing the gospel for their own sons and daughters who move from the country to the towns. There should be no feelings of jealousy between town and country people, for each is dependent upon the other.

SPIRIT OF THE UNION MEETING.

The spirit of the Union Meeting was good from the very beginning. I did not hear the introductory sermon which was preached by our young Brother Parker, in the absence of the appointee, for we did not reach the ground till they were singing the last hymn: but I heard all the other exercises. Brethren Bilbro, Carroll and Geo. Herring discussed the temperance question. Several brethren spoke on Sunday-schools.

There being no "query" relating to religious literature, your correspondent had to introduce the BIBLICAL RECORDER as an Associational missionary who never missed his appointments, and always went home with the brethren when invited, furnishing his own transportation, and imparting information at the fireside about our preachers, our missions, our protracted meetings, and all other subjects upon which inquiring Baptists wanted reliable information. Two brethren invited the RECORDER to visit their families. One was a subscriber to the Christian Advocate and wanted "to read on both sides," and the other was a newly married man, who asked the RECORDER to come to see him and his and tell them the news every week for a whole year.

Bro. "Rice" Carroll, as everybody calls him, delivered a very tender sermon on Saturday, and made a speech on missions which brought tears to many eyes. The sermon on Sunday was preached by a visiting brother on the finished work of Christ and was followed by a liberal collection for Associational missions. The S. S. mass meeting was addressed by brethren Meeks, Carroll and Parker. The love of Christ seemed to pervade all the meetings, and the only regret I heard expressed was that the people were not given an opportunity to make a contribution on Saturday as well as Sunday for missions. Some of the people really wanted to give. Mt. Gilead church in this Union gives sixty dollars a year to the support of Bro. Crocker in China, and is remodeling its house of worship.

We missed the faces of brethren J. T. Albritton, A. J. Taylor and A. A. Butler. The last two were kept away by sickness, and Bro. Albritton did not like to risk himself on foot for so long a journey, and he was still more opposed to risking himself behind a too spirited horse without a driver upon whom he could rely. As the driver could not go with him, he staid at home.

There was general regret that Bro. Bilbro, one of the best informed and most prudent pastors of the Union, should feel it his duty to return home on Friday night. The writer highly enjoyed the privilege of his company from Warsaw to the Union Meeting.

Good News from Brazil.

Dear Recorder:—It is only lately that you made your pleasant appearance, and it is therefore only now that I am able to express to you my hearty thanks as well as my appreciation. Thanks, a thousand thanks, for the pleaure you give by your constant visits, and my only desire is that you and your many readers may be as satisfied with your humble correspondent so far away in Brazil as I am with you.

As you can see by the heading, I am going to give you "good news," and will try my best to give you no other. Though many unpleasant things turn up on the mission field and in the daily life of a missionary, yet, I can assure you, that they are nothing to be compared to the many joys and pleasures experienced on the field of labor. Besides, I believe that most of the trials and difficulties are results of one's own carelessness or too much carefulness. These need no recapitulation. There is nothing gained by it, and there is not much honor attached to it.

But to proclaim the doings of the Lord Jesus—of the souls saved, of the progress made, of the work spreading, of the doors opening, behold my object and my desire.

To begin with, let me tell you of the blessings we have received since January last. Praised be the Lord, the progress has been constant. The year began rather sad, both morally and politically. The dark revolutionary cloud had not as yet disappeared from the political horizon. The war in the Southern States continued as heretofore, and money was (and unhappily still is) falling in value. Then appeared a darker and more terrible evil—the Asiatic cholera—and this, too, began to spread panic abroad; and finally, as if the foregoing evils were not enough, some of the great Brazilian rivers overflowed and inundated cities, destroying lives, property and plantations. These things, however, though it made us feel sad, did not make us lose faith in Him who does all things well. We were sure that He was preparing these people for spiritual blessings.

Thank God, so it proved to be!

The difficulties are vanishing like vapor before the sun, but the Sun of Righteousness remains and is blessing us abundantly. Our God is a great God! Who can tell of His power and grace?

The greatest blessing I believe that our work in Brazil has received has been the conversion of the canon, Dr. Honorio B. Ottoni. His joining the Baptist host has put honor upon our humble force. The Methodists asked how he came to join us. But his answer to all is very simple: "I want to be so far away from Rome that not even its steeples shall be seen by me."

He is a real convert and all that look at him know it, and after talking to him, one cannot doubt it. His change is a miracle. He is the same he was only a few months ago—the great Catholic honored priest—but a humble, though eloquent follower of Jesus. If as a priest no one had any charge against him—if, imagine only, as a priest no woman can point her finger against him—just think what his life is like now—now that he follows the pure and holy One.

What shall I tell you about him? He has all the predicates of recommendation. He is a power that will bring down upon the spiritual deserts of Brazil showers upon showers of blessings. Though young in faith, yet he preaches sermons that fill one's heart with joy and satisfaction. He is awfully eloquent and reminds one very much of the great Joseph Parker of London. Will his influence be the same? That remains to be seen. At any rate he has made a good start. Pray that all who hear him preach may come to a saving knowledge of Jesus. Pray for the ex priest and his great future.

Besides this great blessing, we have received many more. All the missionaries and native pastors have been busy baptizing believers approved for that outward act of an inward fact. Bro. Entsminger in Pernambuco has his hands full. He is a hard worker and his "better half" tries her best to justify her title by working more than her "worst-half." Let me tell you a secret (don't you go and spread it abroad), these two are teaching English to gain money so as to be able to build a chapel in the great city of Pernambuco with its 250,000 souls. Of course, it keeps them from doing other things that they might have done for Jesus; but what is to be done as long as the brethren at home keep the F. M. Board locked up in the six per cent. box? As long as they are paying the six per cent., they cannot give the money to build a chapel and so enable us to do more work and save paying large rents for preaching halls.

In Bahia, Bro. Z. C. Taylor, though alone, is yet doing a great work and many have been added to the different churches.

In Rio de Janeiro also the work has been spreading and the baptismal waters are being troubled very often.

Here in Campos the work has been blessed abundantly. Since January last we have had thirty-six additions, and many more are preparing themselves for their public profession. Daily we witness the power of Jesus to save.

I will finish here this time. Pray for Brazil and your missionary.

The Congregationalist quotes: "The Methodists, they pick them out of the gutter; and the Baptists, they washes them; and the Congregationalists, they starches them;" and adds, "Brethren of the Pilgrim polity, can we ever be content with being considered a religious starch factory?" The Interior adds: "And what do the Presbyterians do? Mostly take the starch out of them."

SUBJECT FOR JULY—FOREIGN BOARD.

"Arise, shine, for thy light has come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." Missionaries, 91; native assistants, 89; churches, 85; membership, 3 493; baptisms, 581; schools, 15; scholars, 707; S. S. scholars, 1,503; receipts of Foreign Board, $129,-582 68. Contributions from native churches, $6 458 72.

Study Topics.—How can our churches be aroused to a sense of the importance of Foreign Missions? How can the various missionary societies in our churches work most effectually? Individual responsibility of Christians. How much depends upon the proper training of the young?

Do Foreign Missions Pay?

ALICE WARNER JEROME.

When our Protestant missions began, China was hermetically sealed. It was death to preach the gospel in Japan. India was closed against all missionaries. South America was controlled by the Church of Rome. The most adventurous were deterred from entering Africa. Asia Minor was inaccessible.

Not fifty years ago Dr. Morrison, hiding in a cellar, was translating the Bible into Chinese, and in locked rooms was preaching the gospel to the few who could listen. Now the Bible is read in the various Chinese dialects and there are over 100,000 Christian adherents. In Fiji fifty years ago the natives were cannibals. To day of the 120,000 inhabitants, 102,000 have accepted the Christian faith, and there are 800 good churches.

The Bible was not translated into any heathen language other than the Gothic until the nineteenth century. Now it is read in more than 300 languages, and in more than twenty-five times as many tongues as were heard on the day of Pentecost. In Burmah seventy years ago there was not a Christian; now there are 100,000 converts.

The Friendly Islands had not a native Christian fifty years ago; now there are more than 3,000 church members, who give annually from their scanty store more than $15,000 for religious objects. Micronesia saw her first Christian convert but a little more than twenty-five years ago. Now there are forty seven self-supporting churches and 5,000 church members. Says a missionary to New Guinea: "I shall never forget the first night I landed in New Guinea, and I should like to compare it with the last night before I left. I could see the fires through the cocoanut trees; I could hear the drums beating and I heard the shrieks of the women. I knew there was heathenism and cannibalism all around. Seven years afterward I sat on the veranda of my little house and saw a fire in the cocoanut grove, just as on that first terrible night I landed. But the sound that came floating up the hill was not shrieks of women. It was a Moody and Sankey hymn. They were engaged in their evening worship, and after the prayer and the talking of the teacher, came about two hours of the singing of Moody and Sankey hymns.

We should never forget that the Christian civilization of Europe and America is directly due to Foreign missions. We should be heathen to day if men had not left their homes and crossed seas, and braved perils to bring the gospel to those who had it not. Well is it for us, who perhaps have little or no interest in Foreign Missions, that Paul crossed from Troas to Macedonia; that missionaries penetrated the forests of Germany; that Augustine landed on the coast of Britain, and that the cross was planted on the shores of the new world. Our present Christian comforts, conveniences and civilization can be traced directly back to those first foreign missionaries who went forth from the gates of Antioch. Every Christian should be a missionary; if not, why not?

Even if Foreign Missions did not pay, there is Christ's command, and we all profess to love and obey him. The great commission has never been revoked. "Go ye." Christianity was to be a missionary religion. "Into all the world." The field is not one part of the world, but the world itself. There are no limits inside the globe. Down through these eighteen centuries sounds louder and clearer the voice of the Master: "All power is given to me in heaven and on earth. Go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you, and lo, I am with you even unto the end of the days." "Here," says Dr. Johnson, "are the field, the action, the work, the need, the time, the power, the promise, the victory. Belief in every item of this great commission is the tremendous lever we must get under our life. The field is 'the world;' the action 'go;' the work 'making disciples;' the need 'nations perishing;' the time 'now;' the power 'all power in heaven and earth;' the promise 'lo! I am with you all the days;' the victory 'the victory of universal reign and complete triumph of Christ's kingdom upon the earth.'"

Dear Miss Heck:—I have been here almost six months and they have been very happy months to me, and none the less happy because very busy ones. Of course, most of the time has been given to the study of the language, but we have each undertaken the care of a school—just day schools for children. I only have seven pupils, but I am very proud of them, for the school has been opened in a part of the city where there has never been a Christian school for girls, and I am hoping great things from it. It has always been more difficult to get a school for girls than for boys, from the fact that the unconverted Chinese do not think that women need to be educated. It seems to me that this accounts largely for the ignorance and superstition of the men. What can we expect of a nation, the mothers of which have been held in the bondage of ignorance as the mothers and daughters of China have always been. Feeling as I do that so much depends upon the winning of the women and children, and especially of the girls, to Jesus, and lifting them out of their degradation, you will understand that my little school is a real joy to me.

We have native teachers for our schools, and we visit them, sing with them, and hear them recite. Of course, these children will learn many things that will be useful to them, but the most important is that they are being taught of Jesus. They are very fond of singing, and in this strange language we have many of the beautiful gospel hymns that we have sung for years at home. And as I stand with them and hear them sing over and over again, "Happy day, when Jesus washed my sins away," "Yes, Jesus loves me," and "Take the name of Jesus with you," I feel that they will take it with them, not so much as they are before me, but after they have gone away into the cheerless, comfortless homes in which most of them live; and I hear them prattling away to their mothers, as children will, telling what they have learned, and singing out the beautiful hymns, that will not be silent after they have once found their way into the heart. As I hear the name of Jesus often repeated, I just know by faith that out from these young lives will come the power to pierce the gloom and darkness of many homes and let the true Light in. I know it will be so, for has He not said, "And a little child shall lead them"?

Some of God's dear children do not approve of supporting schools for Chinese children. I have not been on the field long enough to express an opinion about the education of young men and women, but I cannot understand how any one could disapprove of educating the little ones. It is noticeable that after the parents are converted, they are anxious that their daughters as well as their sons should go to school.

Yours in earnest Christian fellowship,
LOTTIE W. PRICE
Shanghai, China, May 28, 1895.

From Liberty, N. C.

As you have asked for the news from different mission workers, I will send you a few items from Liberty.

We have only been organized since March 24th, and we have but few Baptists here, especially ladies, hence our Woman's Mission Society is very small in number, but we trust it may grow in interest and Christian zeal, and accomplish great and lasting good.

Our Children's Band, which we divided and called "Lamplighters" and "Rosebuds," but at the request of "Uncle George" was changed to "Sunbeams," is doing finely.

On June 24th we gave an entertainment, consisting of songs, recitations, dialogues, tableaux, &c. The exercises were strictly religious and very impressive, the result of three weeks' hard work. Quite a crowd was present and they seemed to enjoy the program very much; but when the collection was taken up, it was very small indeed. We can account for that only in this way: Before this year, it seems that personal, practical mission work has been to this people a subject only to be read of and talked about. It does seem to be almost an impossibility to get the majority of professing Christians to understand why they should at any time forget themselves to remember other people even when in need.

Some of the Sunbeams are using the "mite boxes," and we hope they may have an abundant harvest at the "box opening" in October. Some of them sell flowers, eggs, vegetables, fruits, &c. Just now several of the most earnest workers are off for a few weeks' pleasure and recreation. We would like to have the name of some missionary to whom we could send a box in the early autumn. Also, we wish to know the address of our Sunbeam missionary. We sent a small contribution to him the other day through "Uncle George."

We have succeeded in putting the Foreign Mission Journal into every Baptist family in our town, and we do trust that its valuable pages may be carefully studied, and that the interest awakened thereby may grow into every heart the flower of unselfish love, whose sweet fragrance shall be wafted on every breeze both in home and foreign fields. Pray for our societies.

MRS. B. W. HATCHER, President.
Liberty, N. C.

Mysterious!

How mysterious are the orderings of our God! "His ways are passed finding out." To us, poor short sighted mortals, "he clothes himself in thick darkness." "Who, by searching, can find out God?" His "counsels are a great deep," and they "shall stand." "He worketh all things after the counsel of his own will," and "giveth not account of any of his matters." And yet how it would, apparently, gratify us and tend to our comfort could we but see his purposes in the dispensation of his providences. How gratified, for instance, we think, at least, we would be could we but know why it has been his will to take from earth our late dear Bro. C. T. Bailey, in the midst of his years and of his usefulness: that faithful servant, whose work and influence were so potent for the advancement of his cause in the world, and for the good of man. That trenchant pen which he used only in the advocacy of truth and the defence of right has been laid down for ever. That clear mind, that warm and cheerful Christian heart, which, guided by generous impulses only can enlighten and cheer and comfort the sad and loving sons of earth.

But amid all the mystery and darkness which surround the death of our dearly remembered brother, rays of light penetrate the darkness to cheer and reassure our sad hearts. We can and do rejoice in the good he has done. These deeds live, and while he speaks to us no more his influence lives on and on for ever, and eternity only can reveal their full measure of good done. In all this we can rejoice and thank God that he gave to us C. T. Bailey.

Besides, while we cannot understand this mystery, we can know that it is the decree of infinite wisdom and mercy, and in some way, beyond our comprehension, will promote the glory of the Master. He has assured us that "not a sparrow falleth to the ground without your Heavenly Father," and that his children "are of more value than many sparrows." He has simply said to his faithful servant, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of the Lord," and he "rests from his labors." O, glorious thought to the loved ones he has left behind.

Since the death of our dear brother, I have been thinking of the fact that I have been personally acquainted with editors of the RECORDER from its origin—even remembering its first form and name as the Baptist Interpreter—Meredith, Tobey, James and Bailey,—all now in glory, the battle fought and victory won. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." I regard myself as highly honored by such acquaintance.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

A five story brick factory at Winston was destroyed by fire the 20th inst., loss $10,000. ——Stewart Bros., the public printers, have been accused by the Secretary of State of adding to the enactments of the late General Assembly, inserting clauses and adding names not in the original copy.——At the State Press Association's Annual Convention at Greensboro the following officers were elected: Prest., C. L. Stevens; Vice-Presidents, W. F. Marshall, W. W. McDiarmid, W. K. Jacobson; Secretary and Treasurer, J. B Sherrill; Orator, W. C. Dowd; Poet, Hal. W. Ayer; Historian, J. D. Kinsaddle. Delegates to National Editorial Association, J P. Caldwell, W. C. Ewin, J. B. Kerr. J W. Bailey. The Association received 25 new members.——New cotton mills are announced for Salisbury and Lumberton.——There is room for three more soldiers at the Home in Raleigh.——Rev. W. M. Kerr, aged 75 years, of the Methodist Conference, died at Asheville.——The Methodist Episcopal church ("Northern"), whose conference includes 61 travelling and 75 local preachers and a membership of 10,000, are taking steps to establish a college in this State. Mr. B F. Stearns of Ohio will give $10,000. Columbus, Polk Co., is making efforts to be chosen for the location.——The new Lutheran church of Winston Salem, dedicated July 15th, cost $8 700.——In addition to firefiends, the neighborhood of Kinston is now troubled by train wreckers. There was a third attempt to wreck trains near there recently; none of them successful.——Hon. S. B. Alexander was elected president of the N. C. Railroad at the recent Greensboro meeting. The private stockholders still refuse to attend, determined not to pay taxes.——S. P. Satterfield, clerk of the late House of Representatives, has entered suit against the Raleigh News and Observer for $20,000 libel damages.——The Fayetteville Observer says $3,000 worth of truck is shipped from that market every week.

In General.

Designs have been selected for two new battleships.——The Massey suit against the Norfolk Pilot will end this week.——Current market quotations at the beginning of the week are as follows: Cotton 6½ to 7⅛; corn 43; wheat 65; oats 23½.——Financial editor Horr of the N Y. Tribune and Harvey, editor of Coin, have been holding a protracted debate of the financial question at Chicago.——It is said that the Unionist majority in England is too great to last.——The first bale of 1895 cotton was shipped to New York from Duval county, Texas, and sold July 16th.——Texas ministers have instituted a crusade against the proposed pugilistic contests that the inquitous "social" clubs are trying to bring into that State.——The situation in Cuba continues unsettled. Yellow fever, however, is doing more damage than the rebellion; 25 deaths were reported of it in Havana for the week ending July 11th.——It is said that a coal combine has been perfected whereby the price of coal will be run up systematically.

Recalled Stormy Times.

"Well, that looks natural," said the old soldier, looking at a can of condensed milk that failed on account of the storm. "It's the Gail Borden Eagle Brand we used during the war."

A Request from Mrs. John A. Broadus.

Friends of Dr. John A. Broadus are requested to send to Mrs. Broadus any letters in their possession that would be of use in a memoir of him to be written; also any incidents of personal experience connected with him which might be valuable material, particularly bearing upon his earlier years.

All such documents will be greatly appreciated, and will be returned to the sender if desired. Please address

This school is situated in a fine farming section in Franklin county 11 miles east of Louisburg The surrounding community is densely settled by a cultured, hospitable and progressive people. The moral and religious influences are excellent The good water and wholesome air makes it a healthful locality, almost entirely free from malaria.

We prepare for college or for practical business life, and make a specialty of preparing young men and young ladies for teachers in the academies and public schools. The Commercial and Music Departments also offer superior advantages. The music department is well supplied with the very best instruments, and is in charge of an experienced and thoroughly competent teacher. Young ladies wishing to make a specialty of music are offered excellent advantages, since we have a sufficient supply of instruments to give all the practice desired.

For the School of Art a special teacher has already been employed whose whole attention will be given to that department

Board, including furnished rooms, within a short distance from the academy can be had at $7.00 per month. Girls, unless otherwise requested, are required to board with the Principal. Young men and young ladies are not allowed to board at same boarding house under any circumstances We take a special oversight of the girls committed to our charge. Mrs. Smith (wife of the Principal) endeavors in every way possible to see after their interest.

Tuition rates are very low, ranging from $1 to $ .50 per month The session of 1895-'6 opens Aug. 19th. For further information write the Principal for catalog. W. A. SMITH.

Following is from one of two testimonials:

The Electropoise has worked wonders in my household. I introduced it to Mrs. Cuthbert as a remedy for rheumatism, and since then she has laid aside sticks and crutches and is able to attend to all her household duties. Another member of my family by using it is better than she has ever been, and I myself find it an admirable tonic when tired out after three sermons on the Sabbath. Feeding The Nerves.

From the Courier-Herald, Saginaw, Mich.

Do you see those two men walking up the street? One has a vigorous, firm, elastic step; his head well up, his eyes bright, a picture of a sound and perfect man. The other is bent, his knees weak and unsteady, a listless air about his whole make up. He has the appearance of one who is broken in health, and who has to whip himself to every task. The difference between these two men is a difference of nerve power. With nerve power comes energy, enterprise, force, vigor,—all things which make existence enjoyable. Without it the muscles cannot act, the brain cannot think. Bear in mind that life is nerve power, and if you wish to keep it you must feed the nerves. Do not simply stimulate them, but coax them, feed them. Give them the food which will renew their life, and make them sound and healthy that they may ward of disease.

Probably paralysis is the nearest disease to nerve death we know, and we therefore cite a case of it below to show what a certain famous nerve building preparation can do to feed and absolutely restore, almost hopelessly wasted nerves.

There are but few in the Saginaw Valley but who have known personally or made the acquaintance indirectly of W. H. Dawson, 618 Union Avenue, Saginaw, Mich., West Side.

Until the fall of '92 Mr. Dawson was as full of vigor as any young man. As a result of the grip he became paralyzed. For this he was treated by the best medical talent, and also spent ten months at the Indiana State Institute at Indianapolis. Here he contracted scarlet fever, and when he left the institute he was in a worse condition than when he entered. On his return to Saginaw he gave up entirely. He was such a care to his friends. He was completely paralyzed from his waist down, and his limbs were simply skin and bones, with no life nor feeling in them. After a while a friend prevailed on him to try Pink Pills. In a few days he could move his toes a little. He was greatly encouraged and kept on with them. The following, he told our reporter:

"In two months time I could move my limbs about on the bed and by the time another month had seen me swallow this medicine to which I owe my life, I was able to get out of bed alone. It has been just about one year since I learned of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and during that time I have made such marked improvement that I gladly proclaim what they have done for me to all the world and ask you fellow sufferers to try them and receive new life. My life, my all, I owe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"I am now comparatively fleshy with good color and high spirits, and every day brings new strength and more happy life through the continued use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." W. H. DAWSON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 27th day of May 1895. J. P. EVANS
Notary in and for Saginaw Co., Mich.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N Y.

In the Queen City.

THE WHARTON-BARRON MEETING.

This meeting deserves more than a passing notice, but it is the best I can do now. Dr. Pritchard is in New York City taking his vacation, and according to common consent I am pastor of both churches for a month. So I am very busy.

The services of this remarkable meeting began in the Tryon Street Baptist church and closed in the spacious auditorium where from two to three thousand came daily to hear the "old, old story."

Dr. Barron came a few days in advance of Dr. Wharton, and had the meeting well in hand when he arrived. Bro. Barron received marked attention from the first service. There was something about his manner and voice, which made him interesting and attractive as a preacher. One good sister said to me: "I can't hear Bro. Barron preach and look into his humble face without a desire to be better." He captivated all. The people pressed to hear him. So well delighted were they, that he was requested to preach the same sermon, "Enoch's walk with God" on two occasions during the meeting. Of course everybody wanted to hear Wharton. His fame as an evangelist and preacher came far ahead of him, for this was not his first visit to Charlotte. Many bright faces greeted him and many warm hands and hearts welcomed him. As usual, he preached like Wharton in a plain, pathetic, winning way. He is a man uniquely fitted for the evangelistic work. He is master of the situation. Sometimes in the same audience and at the same time you see some weeping and some laughing.

Mr. Bush, who was the leader of the choir, made himself very useful indeed. He does not preach the gospel but sings it. I have discovered that in my own church the music is much better since the meeting, which I attribute to the faithful work of Bro. Bush.

As to results they have not been determined. Quite a number have joined the churches, and more will follow. The baptismal waters were troubled in both churches last Sunday night at the same hour, a thing that has not occurred in the history of Charlotte.

There seems to be new life in our prayer-meetings and Sunday schools, and I think along many lines the meeting has been a success.

We hope the good work will go on. The Baptist cause here is growing more and more hopeful. It is not only so in the city, but it is spreading in Mecklenburg county. We have four missions in the county now. Long Creek, where a new house was recently finished, and dedicated by Dr. C. Durham, is the most prosperous. Rev. J. J. Payseur is the earnest, wise, faithful pastor of this young and healthy flock.

Bro. Payseur is also preaching once a month at Lodi, ten miles south of Charlotte on the Southern Railroad.

Then Bishop D W. Thomasson is preaching once a month each at Derita and Huntersville, growing villages on the Statesville Railroad.

Bro. Thomasson and I have planned to hold meetings at these points soon. In this way we join Bro. Jones' list.

Our Board at Raleigh has made appropriations for three of these places. Let the brethren of Charlotte and the State remember this when they give to State Missions.

Elder J L Stewart and Bro. D. R Carroll have been holding a meeting at White Oak, Sampson county; Pastor Weaver is holding a meeting at a mission station near High Point; brethren Cashwell and Jones are holding a meeting at China Grove, and brethren J. T. Jenkins and Pastor Burgess at the Newbern Baptist Tabernacle.

MARRIED.

TINER—BRIDGERS—On July 17th, 1895, in Winston, N. C., by Rev. H. A. Brown, Mr. J. H. Tiner and Miss Fannie H. Bridgers.

DIED.

BYRUM—James Byrum died of paralysis June 22d, 1895, at his daughter's home in Bertie county. He was seventy-six years old. He joined the church in his early boyhood. He quietly passed away, believing that these light afflictions, which are but for a moment, would work for him a far more and exceeding weight of glory in a home not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. The funeral was conducted by the writer.

J. C. MIZELL.

TATUM—Departed this life May 31st, 1895, E. W. Tatum, in his seventy-eighth year. His Christian life was exemplary. He was a kind, affectionate, and devoted father. In his death the RECORDER has lost a warm friend and a life-long subscriber, the community a good citizen, Jerusalem church an earnest and useful member—his seat was seldom vacant; Jerusalem Sunday-school a faithful, prompt and efficient superintendent. For twenty-six years, in summer's heat or winter's cold, Sunday morning found him with his Sunday-school, unless providentially hindered. We mourn not as those who have no hope.

EATON—Sarah Eaton, wife of Philip Eaton, deceased, fell on sleep June 22d, 1895. Sister Eaton did not make a public display of her religion, but she lived it in her every-day life, and brought up her household in the fear of the Lord. She leaves five daughters to mourn her departure; but they mourn not because her spirit has gone to God who gave it, but because her body is in the grave, and because of the loss of her motherly counsel and advice. Her children are bereft of an affectionate and loving mother, neighbors of a constant friend and pleasant companion, Eaton's church of an efficient member. Truly a mother in Israel has fallen.

May the Lord bind up the broken hearts and heal all the wounds.

MALLOY—Dear old sister Eunice Malloy, aged nearly sixty-five, and wife of Bro. Jas. D. Malloy of Cumberland county, N. C., at the home of her son-in-law, Bro. Albert Anderson, in the town of Fayetteville, June 26th, 1895, surrounded by all her loved ones, except the youngest boy, who was in a distant State.

For nearly forty years she had followed her Saviour, having in her early wedded life committed the keeping of her soul to him, "against that day," in a great revival held at the old "Taylor's Swamp Log Church" by Elders Reuben Fisher and Cummings West.

Our sister is gone, and to-day no doubt is happy in that "rest prepared for the people of God." If there ever was a woman on earth who might truly be called "a good woman," Sister Malloy was one. If any being ever heard her speak a word against any person, anywhere or at any time, in all her long Christian life, that being has not yet been seen.

She loved all who loved the Lord. Her home was the preachers' quiet resting place; and this writer knows the comfort and blessedness of a night's lodging under the hospitable roof of brother and sister Malloy, near Graham's Bridge, in Cumberland county.

Her funeral was preached by the writer at Antioch Baptist church on June 26th, 1895, in the presence of many sorrowing friends, and her remains now repose near the new church building in Cumberland county, awaiting, in hope of the great day's resurrection of the just, a glorious awaking in Christ Jesus, "on whom the second death hath no power." W. B. HARRELL.

Tributes of Respect.

God in his inscrutable wisdom has seen fit to remove from earth to heaven our much beloved brother L. B. Stephenson. He was born March 5th, 1817, and died May 9th, 1895, aged seventy-eight years, two months and four days. He connected himself with Smith's church, (now Mt. Carmel), in February, 1838. He was made a deacon in 1860, in which capacity he served until the summons came to come up higher.

While to us the death of such a friend and co-worker is an unsolved problem, yet knowing and believing that our Heavenly Father doeth all things well, we bow submissively to his divine will; therefore Resolved 1. That in the death of Bro. Stephenson our church loses an old and faithful member, and an active worker in every department of the Lord's vineyard.

2. That Mt. Carmel church extend to his bereaved family their heartfelt sympathy at the death of a loving and affectionate father.

3. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our church to his memory.

4. That the Secretary of this meeting transmit a copy of these resolutions to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

Parents and guardians having girls to educate will do well to consider the following facts:—
Only experienced teachers of broad culture and special training for their particular work are employed.
Thorough work is required of pupils, and diplomas are conferred only after critical examinations. The administration believes that education should be practical, and that girls should be trained not to feel above their homes.
The discipline is mild and parental. Pupils are treated as daughters.
The health of the Institute is unsurpassed.
Charges have been reduced to suit the times.
The forty-eighth annual session begins on Wednesday, September 4th

The Fields of Stubble.

Over the field of stubble
The grasshopper flits and sings,
And butterflies float like thistle-down
On gossamer golden wings,
Yet up from the glint of the gleaming waste
Are stocks of thistle and tare,
And after the harvest is reaped and gone,
The weeds grow sturdily on and on;
Their blight in each furrow is easily traced,
Though only the straw is there.

Over life's field of stubble
I wonder how it will be,
We hide the weed in the plumy grain,
While the summer winds are free,
But when the harvester by and by
Gathers his golden sheaves,
The sinful and selfish will all be found,
And into the self-same sheaf be bound,
Where the best of our efforts lie;
While sin its scarring leaves.

Over life's field of stubble
When the busy reaper has gone,
Will the secret sins we have nourished
Grow steadily on and on?
Then let us be busy and watchful alway;
For the summer of life will wane.
To pluck the evils that love to hide
Under the cover of good, abide,
For the field of stubble, we leave some day,
For the yield of the wealth of grain.
—Chautauquan.

A Father's Wise Counsel.

We do not know of a better compendium of rules for the government of a young man's conduct in the practical affairs of life than is found in a letter written by Robert E. Lee to his son who had left home to attend college. It is a sublime sermon against moral cowardice by one in whom "frankness" was "the child of bravery and courage."

We give the letter in full as a code, worthy of adoption by all young men:

"You must study to be frank with the the world; frankness is the child of bravery and courage. Say what you mean to do on every occasion. If a friend asks a favor, you should grant it, if it be reasonable; if not, tell him plainly why you can not. You will wrong him and wrong yourself by equivocation of any kind. Never do a wrong thing to make a friend or to keep one; the man who requires you to do so is dearly purchased at a sacrifice. Deal kindly, but firmly with your classmates; you will find it the policy which wears best. Above all, do not appear to others what you are not.

"If you have any fault to find with anyone, tell him, not others, of what you complain. There is no more dangerous experiment than that of undertaking to be one thing before a man's face and another behind his back. We should live, act and say nothing to the injury of anyone. It is not only best as a matter of principle, but it is the path to peace and honor.

"In regard to duty, let me, in conclusion of this hasty letter, inform you that nearly a hundred years ago there was a day of remarkable gloom and darkness, still known as 'the dark day,' a day when the light of the sun was slowly extinguished, as if by an eclipse. The Legislature of Connecticut was in session, and its members saw the unaccountable darkness coming on: they shared in the general awe and terror. It was supposed by many that the last day—the Day of Judgment had come.

"Some one, in the consternation of the hour, moved an adjournment. Then there arose an old Puritan legislator, Davenport of Stamford, and he said that, if the last had come, he desired to be found at his place doing his duty, and, therefore, he moved that candles be brought in, so that the House could proceed.

"There was quietness in that man's mind, the quietness of heavenly wisdom and inflexible willingness to obey present duty. Duty, then, is the sublimest word in our language. Do your duty in all things like the old Puritan; you cannot do more; you should never wish to do less.

"Never let me or your mother wear one gray hair for any lack of duty on your part."

Trifles.

One day a visitor to the school found Sydney Smith during play hours absorbed in the study of Virgil, gave the lad a shilling and with it a few kinds words of sympathy and praise. "Clever boy, clever boy," exclaimed the stranger, "that is the way to conquer the world." Such unlooked-for encouragement broke like a gleam of sunshine across the dreary and troubled life of the neglected boy, and roused within a capable heart the laudable ambition for distinction. Sydney Smith never forgot that man, and to the end of his life praised his deed. The stranger went his way little dreaming of the good his pleasant words had accomplished, while the lad he had cheered soon afterward rose to the proud position of prefect of the school.

The little ills of life, says Thackeray, "are the hardest to bear. What would the possession of a hundred thousand a year, or fame or applause, avail to a gentleman who was allowed to enjoy them only with the condition of wearing a shoe with a couple of nails inside it? All happiness would disappear and plunge into that shoe. All life would rankle around those nails."—Congregationalist.

Good Advice.

A young man just starting upon his work in the ministry was one day talking to an aged minister in London, who had spent a life-time in the service. The young man said:

"You have had a great deal of experience; you know many things that I ought to learn. Can't you give me some advice to carry with me in my new duties?"

"Yes, I can," was the response. "I will give you a piece of advice. You know that in every town in England, no matter how small, in every village or hamlet, though it be hidden in the folds of the mountains or wrapped round by the far-off sea, in every clump of farm houses you can find a road which, if you follow it, will take you to London. Just so every text which you shall choose to preach from in the Bible will have a road that leads to Jesus. Be sure you find that road and follow it; be careful not to miss it once. This is my advice to you."

The old minister's advice should be followed by every one who in any capacity presumes to be a teacher of Divine truth.—Exchange.

Pay Your Minister.

Think, Christians, that these ministers of God have surrendered all things for Christ. They receive less than those laborers who are now striking for higher wages, and are creating such disturbances in our land. The average salary of a minister of the gospel is less than that of the man who shovels coal in the mines, who opens the throttle-valve of the engine, and scarcely more than that of the switch opener and the fireman on the locomotive. These latter strike if their wages be reduced; but the minister cannot strike; for him there is no redress, for he works for God. Think, Christian. Think how much you spend on self, in selfish enjoyment, in luxuries, and remember you must one day give account. How will you fare, think you, in the day of reckoning, when it shall be found that your retrenchments struck first at the obligations you owe to God, to whom you owe all things?

Pay your minister. He receives now far too little, and much less than the most of you. It is a shame upon you; a stigma which cannot be removed in this world nor in the next, I think, if you abate one jot or tittle from the already inadequate amount you give to God.—Church Record.

"People often wonder why a hen does not fall off her perch when she goes to sleep," says the Practical Poultryman. "The fact is she cannot. As long as a hen is standing up or walking about the tendons of her toes are relaxed, but by a very curious arrangement, a natural mechanical grip, the moment she sits down on her perch the act of bending the knee joint tightens the toe sinews and they are drawn taut, thus clasping the foot around the perch with a vise-like clutch. She can only loosen it by rising, and that is the reason why a hen or bird that has been frozen to death is found firmly fixed on the perch. Hens or birds that die in convulsions stand up or try to fly, but a bird that has been frozen slowly to death remains on the perch."

When do we lift each other up? Must we gain a height first, or can we reach up our feebleness together to the Hands that do offer us a mighty help from on high?—Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

This remarkable statement, to which we direct special attention, is from a Tennessee farmer: My age is 63. I suffered intensely from Catarrh 10 years. Had intense headache, took cold easily, had continual roaring and singing in my ears. My hearing began to fail, and for three years I was almost entirely deaf, and I continually grew worse. Everything I had tried, failed. In despair I commenced to use the Aerial Medication in 1888, and the effect of the first application was simply wonderful. In less than five minutes my hearing was fully restored, and has been perfect ever since, and in a few months was entirely cured of Catarrh. ELI BROWN, Jackson, Tenn.

A Cry in the Night

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

The following is but one of many testimonials, showing the great value of this emergency medicine: "One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously awaited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."—C. J. WOOLDRIDGE, Wortham, Tex.

THERE are evidently two sides to the affair of the Secretary of State and the Public Printer, which has taken somewhat of a personal turn and given rise to insinuations of more or less scandalous import. It is evident that the Public Printer added the enacting clause to the revenue act lately published; but it is also evident that the Secretary of State gave the act a certificate of approval, which he ought not to have done if it had not been properly ratified. The Public Printer not only broke one of the standing rules of every good printing office when he went further than his copy, but also took upon himself undue authority. The Secretary of State either set a successful trap for the Public Printer or was negligent, with the evidence pointing to the latter.

We have here a striking contrast: One public officer going too far, the other not going far enough. Why either should be anxious to publish the matter so widely is more than we can understand.

THE men who have made money and maintained their financial advantage are those who have known when to quit. Of course there are brilliant exceptions, so brilliant indeed that the many whose experience bears out the rule are almost totally eclipsed. A well-to do farmer was telling us the other day how he made money on cotton at a fair rate several years, but finally saw the product becoming less and less remunerative, and with shrewd foresight planted his land in ground peas; and thus in a year when cotton sold low, his products met good prices in a market not at all glutted. "But I didn't stick to ground peas," said he, "for I knew the market would be flushed with them as soon as the report of my success could have its effect." He knew when to quit. So, also, the men who made so much money truck-farming in our eastern counties will never find so live a market for their truck again. Competition bordering on overproduction has come to stay.

It is a law established by experience that so long as trade is free no man can make large profits for a long time; and this is the law that trusts and monopolies would annul, by making trade abnormal by obstructing its channels. The Cone Company, controlling the out put of forty seven cotton mills, furnishes a fine instance of this idea shrewdly worked. Cotton as a product may fall two cents in the pound and the price of labor be reduced ten per cent., but if the company can hold its goods until the demand increases sufficiently, it can sell the same cotton worked into fabrics by the same labor, at an increased price; and, moreover, it can close down its mills and starve laborers into lower wages. That is monopoly, pure and undefiled. If some one should ask why monopolies do not exert their power more drastically than they do, we would be compelled to say, because they are afraid to goad the people too cruelly yet awhile; for there is a point of desperation that the most powerful fear to press their victims to.

IN THE year 1880 cotton mills in the South contained 667,000 spindles ten years later 1,700,000 spindles; in 1894 there were 3,000,000 spindles, and factories building that would increase the number by 5,000,000. That is wonderful growth; and in spite of the depreciatory utterances of New England mill men, whereby they would restore the value of their inactive stocks, it is clear that the South will soon be extensively devoted to cotton manufacturing; and the enormous water power, good and improving transportation facilities, and the large number of factories already successfully operating within the boundaries of our State, are encouraging evidence that she will receive more than her share of the benefits and responsibilities of this far reaching change of the geographical relations of an immense amount of capital and a great body of labor, by which the home market for sellers and buyers, of raw material, food products and manufactured goods will be tremendously increased.

It is well to stop here and think over these adjectives. A $100,000 cotton mill was sold in our State not many days ago for $35 000! There are others whose stock does well to keep at par, although the most of them are paying dividends and their stock is much sought after. May it not be a boom? Is it not possible that we are going too fast? We are of the opinion that the failures of cotton mills up to date in North Carolina have been caused either by unwise management or by unfortunate location; but we are not disposed to indifferently see the State go clean daft on cotton mills, because of the success of first experiments. It is well to reflect upon the results of the rush into cotton growing and later into trucking. New grounds are always productive, but their wearing qualities make them valuable.

We take the multiplication of manufacturing interests as a great advantage to North Carolina; we shall do what we can to encourage the building of factories, for our State has long held back for lack of diverse industries; but we are fearful of going too fast, because of the need for stable underpinning in crises or revulsions, which are almost inevitable. No doubt, however, we have much room yet for growth in manufacturing, and will have more if the New England mills can be undersold, which is possible if we properly locate and equip our factories.

THERE is a movement on foot—and a worthy one it is—to establish uniform State legislation. An eminent authority says it is "the most important juristic work undertaken in the United States since the adoption of the Federal Constitution."

The States ought to agree in their laws for Economy's sake and for Justice's. No one but a lawyer can have an idea of the inconvenience, delay, expense and the wrong that is caused by the wide and unnecessary difference of the laws in many States in regard to corporations, marriage and divorce, bills, notes and days of grace, weights and measures, etc., etc.

We are glad to say that the movement is a sound one and is well-supported. It has taken the form of a National Conference of Commissioners from each State, through which no doubt the desired end will be accomplished before many years.

THE persistent determination manifested by the private stockholders of the North Carolina railroad not to attend the regular stockholders' meetings, in order to keep from surrendering the tax exemption provision of their charter, does not receive the approval of men of manly instincts. All the other railroads are now taxed, the State for its part in this matter is ready to come to terms, and there is nothing to prevent except the absence of the private stockholders, without whom there cannot be a quorum. It is unmanly, to say the least, to escape taxation by such methods. It would be different if a contest of law or right and wrong were being waged, but it does not become honorable men to slip out of anything or to use their power arbitrarily. The humiliation that respected men will undergo in order to save a few dollars in taxes, men, too, of wealth and influence, is distressing to think about.

IT IS interesting to see that the 11,000 Cuban insurgents are holding out against their "mother country," Spain, which is represented by 54,000 men. It is said that the Spanish General Campos only hopes to hold the rebellion in check until October, and that, too, at a cost of $4,500,000 a month, when determined efforts will be made to overcome them for good and all. How it will be this time we cannot say, but that Cuba will some day shake off Spain and Rome there can be no doubt; and we hope it will be soon.

TO THE general railroad statistics given last week, we may now add the following assessments for taxation, etc., only a few days ago give out as coming from the State Railroad Commission:

Atlantic Coast Line system, $6,658,460; Southern, $7,031,264; Seaboard Air Line, $5,122 918; miscellaneous lines, $5,689,295; total, $24,501,895, or $453,379 more than last year. The assessment of Pullman cars is $81,043 against $67,909 last year; steamboats, $293,503, against $240,158; telegraph companies, $212 432, against $199,195. The grand total is $523,268 more than last year. The rate on several lines is increased as follows: Norfolk & Carolina, $8,000 to $8,500 per mile; Tarboro Branch, $6,000 to $8 500; High Point & Randleman, $3,000 to $3,500; Raleigh & Augusta and Georgia, Carolina & Northern, $6 000 to $9,000. Main lines are assessed at $10,000 per mile. The lowest assessment—$2,000 per mile—is of the University, Pittsboro, Murfreesboro and Louisburg branches. Lumber roads are $1,000. Assessment of the branch of the Seaboard Air Line from Hamlet to Gibson was reduced from $6,000 to $3,000 a mile, and that of the Aberdeen & West End railroad was increased from $2,000 to $2,500 a mile. There are seventy roads and the increase is forty-two miles during the year.

The Dynamics of Christianity.

BY CALVIN S. BLACKWELL.

The primitive day saw the triumph of Christianity. The latter days are witnessing the triumphs of "Churchianity." The gospel was God's power in the former; church mechanism is man's motor in the latter. The church of to day is more dynamic; the church of yesterday more divine. The primitive apostle pleaded for a spiritualized membership; the ambition of the modern pastor is to secure a mechanicalized church organization. The form of godliness we must have, even at the expense of the power thereof. The idea is abroad that in certain organic mechanism lies the secret of a congregation's success, or failure. We have had successful machine politics, and why should the children of the world be wiser than the children of light? "Let us have machine religion" seems to be the watchword. And the growing impression is, the more complex this machine, the more wonderful will be its results. And the pastor who has the mechanical ability to perfect and run the most mysteriously complicated church machinery, is reputed a "great organizer," or "a preacher abreast of the times." His methods are pointed to as examples to be imitated. "See, Dr. So-and-So has in his church an 'Apollos Club' for young men; a young ladies' 'Venus Guild;' a 'Married Ladies' Social Dissecting Circle,' a 'Benedict Consolation Society,' an 'Officers' Resolution Meeting,' a 'Children's Want to be an Angel Band,' and many others, and we must have them also."

In all seriousness we ask, for what good? Are we told that this is organization and nothing can succeed in this age without organization? But a thing may be organized to death. In organization to a certain extent there is unquestionably added efficiency. But in a complexity of church machinery there is concealed a great danger. The church possessing the most consecrated and consolidated membership, and not the most methodically subdivided, is the church best fitted for successful and durable work. To subvert the primary object of the church, which is to save men from sin and sanctify them by the truth and spirit of Christ, even by things in themselves innocent, is to assume a fearful and dangerous responsibility. The effects of this "dynamical Christianity" are beginning to show themselves.

1. In the obliteration of the sharp distinctions between the church and the world.

2 In a distressing confusion produced upon the minds of all, the young especially, as to the prime object of Christ's church in the world.

3 In a secularized, instead of a spiritualized membership—a membership that expects to find God's power in the thunder, the earthquake, and the flame, instead of in the still small voice.

Those who were first to adopt and loudly praise, a few years ago, these elaborate methods, are now complaining of an unprecedented worldliness in the church, and a general spiritual unreliability. These very complaints fell from the lips of an eminent divine in the Pastors' Alliance at a recent meeting in one of our large cities. In his church everything is organization, and was supposed to be, by the outside, the most prosperous in the city. There was a sad hopelessness in the expressions of these pastors in whose hands these mechanical methods had failed. You cannot cure a deep-seated, chronic disease by sticking little fly-plasters all over your body.

These remarks are not intended to oppose the young people's meetings, but as a wholesome caution along lines where there is danger.

Young Men from Theological Seminaries.

Young men from the Theological Seminaries are now entering upon their work in some field of the Lord's appointing. The prayer of churches, that the Lord would send forth laborers into the harvest field will be answered and hundreds of vigorous, hopeful and enthusiastic toilers will come with singing into the midst of active work—some with five talents, some with two, and some with one. Let each one know that he is accountable to the Master for just what has been given him of natural ability and acquired attainments. The one great essential qualification for the ministry is personal piety and a full surrender to God of all one possesses. Three quarters of a century ago, Samuel H. Stearns was about to graduate from a theological school, and wrote down, just before receiving his diploma, these rules, and we commend them to our young ministers who have graduated recently from the seminaries:

"I wholly renounce ambition and self indulgence as motives of action.

"I must be entirely devoted to God in heart and life; and live, not unto myself but unto Him who loved me and died for me.

"I must glorify God in the improvement of my own character and in doing good to mankind.

"I will never intrude myself on the public, of take a conspicuous part without good and important reasons; nor will I shrink from exposure when duty calls, but generously go forward and endeavor to acquit myself with Christian propriety.

"My intercourse with the world shall be perfectly frank, honorable, Christian, kind and magnanimous.

"I will never be diverted from my purpose by the remarks, conduct and opinions of those who do not know my character or understand my motives; but will maintain that self-possession, freedom, independence and liberality of feeling which constitute true dignity.

"I will be myself and make the best of it. God grant that I may grow better."

Old as well as young men in the ministry may be profited by studying and adopting these rules.—Baptist Banner.

The Vanity of Titles.

In America we have no titled nobility and we fancy that we do not like the weakness for titles shown by our European cousins. It is another case of condemning the foibles of others while cherishing our own peculiar fads.

It may be doubted if any people on the globe show a greater fondness for titles than Americans, and no Americans show this amiable weakness in a more marked degree than the Southern people. Where else can one find so many colonels, majors, captains, generals, judges, esquires, doctors of all sorts? They are indigenous to the soil. Every fairly well dressed man who alights from the train is to the whole chorus of hackmen a titled gentleman in some honorable degree. Military titles predominate, and that too, without the least reference to military occupation, record or connection. In some sections all lawyers are ex officio colonels. Nothing under that degree is reputable. But the teaching title is scarcely less commonized. All the school teachers of both high and low degree are professors. The awkwardness of applying the title to women has, up to this time, saved us a mighty array of professoresses. I am expecting American genius to triumph over this difficulty before long and add the women teachers to the titled classes. There is practically no limit to the achievements of the American spirit in the field of pure nonsense when it spreads itself.

In the realm of religion the innate love of titles, which shows itself everywhere, has a wide field. We run from "parson" to right reverend, A. M, D. D., LL D. Frequently there is considerable more to the name. Reverend D D. is now so common that practically, in many quarters, every preacher is doctor. The people spontaneously take up the well begun work of the colleges, and, by common consent, doctor every reputable preacher. Personally I have always been opposed at heart to the D. D. It has never appeared to me to be of a piece with the spirit and general complexion of the New Testament. So far as it has any distinctive force, it differentiates certain ministers from others. Whereas it seems to me desirable, in every way possible, to emphasize the equality of the ministry. It looks that way to me, and I have always wished we had never begun the D D. business. My wife, who is a very sensible woman, says to comfort me, that it amounts to nothing more than the curl in a pig's tail—a trifle ornamental without being afflictive. To take up some of our papers one can hardly help thinking of a whole drove of pigs with their tails curled as the double D s fairly blaze on the page. It is no use to fret about it nor write, as many used to do, heavy articles against the custom. It is in a fair way to cure itself. It will run its course like mumps or measles.

Titles are useful if properly used. The Swedes have a custom I like exceedingly. They call their pastors by that title. "Good morning, pastor," sounds well, and it is the recognition on the street and everywhere of a position and a relation. It is worth while to follow this example. The truth is, I am writing this article on the vanity of titles as we use them, mainly to induce a few people to adopt this Swedish custom. It is seemly and there is a good reason for it. In our religious papers we might do well to use titles meaningly, and so carry along with our writing side lines of information and influence. For instance I can say that I was very glad to meet in Washington Editor Cranfill of The Standard; but was sorry that President Burleson of Baylor University was not present. Pastor Carroll and myself had a delightful time in Philadelphia where Secretary Rowland, of the American Baptist Publication Society, showed us many courtesies.

Too much red and yellow, and too many frills and ruffles spoil a dress. Peter and Paul, and Bunyan and Spurgeon strikes me about right. But who am I to run a muck with a title loving world? I feel almost foolish to write this mild protest. But bear with me. I never would have done it if it had not been made plain to me that even down to this good hour some people believe there is a good deal of substance in a title, and this when we have no end of all sorts of titled people in the penitentiary, even a Baptist D. D. Oh, for plain men and women whose weight is in their worth and not in titles. I do know men to day, mighty preachers, who know not the vanity of the D. D. And I know some D Ds. who would weigh up distressingly short with the two Ds thrown in for good weight.

This is no tirade against titles, but only a suggestion as to their vanity and gentle plea for some common sense in their use. If we could be sensible, I would like it; but if we cannot, I will bow to the inevitable and try to practice that grace that "beareth all things."—President J. B. Gambrell, D. D., LL. D., in Baptist (Texas) Standard.

Discharged from the Law.

BY REV. C. H. WETHERBE.

In Rom. 7: 6, Revised Version, we have this significant expression: "But now we have been discharged from the law, having died to that wherein we were holden." The Roman Christians had been held by the Mosaic law, the law of observances and works, but having died to that law by the acceptance of Christ they were discharged from such law. The old law was the law of death to them. It was the law of condemnation. The Jews had not wholly and perfectly kept it. They were guilty of violations. That law held them accountable. They were its slaves and its prisoners. But, having accepted Christ, they were then discharged from the law. It could hold them no longer. Christ had met the claims of the law, in their behalf; he had canceled all of their personal obligations as sinners to that law, and they were at once and forever discharged from it. But would his death alone have discharged them? No. They were required by the law of Christ to properly accept him as their substitute and Saviour. They must repent of their sins and believe on him in order to avail themselves of the benefits derivable from what Christ had done. They were, and still are, conditions of such discharge. If there were no conditions to be personally submitted to, then every sinner in the universe is already discharged from the condemning law of God. But this is not true. Only they are discharged who submit to Christ's conditions.

Facts for Workers.

It is earnestly desired that at least one brother in each Association of the Southern Baptist Convention will go to his Associational meeting prepared to speak about our work. If you have not the information, write to the Corresponding Secretary and ask him to send you tracts and also to answer any questions which will give you information about the work. The facts given below are to give a general outline and to awaken a spirit of inquiry for further investigation.

The Southern Baptist Convention was organized in Augusta, Ga., 1845. At that meeting the Foreign Mission Board was appointed. During the fifty years of its existence, 310 missionaries have been sent out and $1,814 800 given for the work. Missions are now sustained in China, Africa, Italy, Brazil, Mexico and Japan. The report to the Convention which met in Washington, May 10th-14th, 1895 showed the following statistics: Canton, China, Mission (begun in 1845) 18 missionaries, 23 native helpers, 6 churches, 366 members, 33 baptisms, 14 schools, $1 633 65 contributions. Shanghai Mission (1847) 9 missionaries, 2 native helpers, 3 churches, 110 members, 2 baptisms, 3 schools, $74 contributions. Chinkiang Mission (1860), 7 missionaries, 2 churches, 17 members, 1 school, $206 16 contributions.

North China Mission (1860), 12 missionaries, 3 churches, 138 members, 34 baptisms, 3 schools, $358.54 contributions.

African Missions, Lagos and interior (1850), 7 missionaries, 6 native helpers, 4 churches, 289 members, 67 baptisms, $214 45 contributions.

Italian Missions, Rome, Florence and other towns (1870), three missionaries from United States, 28 native preachers and colporters, 18 churches, 353 members, 28 baptisms, $357 25 contributions.

Brazil Mission. Bahia and vicinity (1882), 4 missionaries, 3 native helpers, 5 churches, 297 members, 36 baptisms; Rio and vicinity (1883), 6 missionaries, 2 native helpers, 5 churches, 119 members, 14 baptisms, $1 518 50 contributions.

Japan (1889), 6 missionaries, 5 native helpers, 1 church, 40 members, 9 baptisms, $20 74 contributions.

New fields are opening and many stand ready to go. We or others will tabulate later the work of this year, but we are working out the figures now, day by day. We need more men and women in our churches who will give time and effort to the work. Not only is money needed, but effort to get the church, the body of Christ, alive to this great work which he has left us. Shame and fear hinder some. May the love of Christ so abound as to make us zealous in this great work of saving immortal souls.—Foreign Mission Journal.

God cares for his people, and directs them to cast their cares on Him. He does not take the believer's burden away, but helps him to bear it.

The influence of a majority is very great, but we must not forget that one with God is a majority.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 31, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

WHO plants a Sunday-school clears the ground for a church. Sunday schools begun in destitute sections this season will be of great effect in larger work next season. And any one with the love of Christ in his heart who will, can start a Sunday school.

THE cost of education has been reduced to a minimum. Fathers and mothers should be glad to make great sacrifice to place its advantages within reach of their children. If it is possible to spare the means, there is no other question—send your girl or boy to school.

IN THIS season of especial efforts to bring sinners to God, all who believe in the power of prayer should show it by repeatedly seeking a larger presence of the Holy Spirit and a fuller demonstration of his power. There is every reason to expect great results of the work now being done, and if they do not come, we may know it is because of the poverty of our faith.

ONE month before Wake Forest opens. Talk up the College. It is worthy our best efforts. We appeal especially to the old students to see that the institution is well represented in their vicinity, but others can do good work if they will try. Pastors are in better position than any other class to guide our young men in this matter.

THE central representatives of the several objects of our Conventions will cheerfully send information to any one who would likely use it at an Association or in more local work. Those who will make reports on these objects or who purpose speaking on their adoption would do well to begin to prepare now.

RIGHT here at the beginning we petition our Associations to do all they can to avoid meeting next year at the same time with another Association. If it is necessary to meet in the same week, one should take the first half, the other the second.

If a more convenient schedule than we now have can be arranged, the travelling brethren will be able to reach many more points, and the newspaper brethren will rejoice with great joy.

THE sister who wrote the article on fifth page on city Women's Missionary Societies seems to have a poor opinion of her fellow sisters; it is evident that she thinks they have to be artificially (so to speak) attracted or induced by amusements, novel exhibitions, etc., to attend their meetings. All we have to say is, if a Christian must be induced by such means to take interest in missionary work, she had better stay at home where, no doubt, there is all the sewing and amusement and diversion that she can attend to.

JUDGING by his article which we have placed at the head of this week's RECORDER, one would say that Pastor Blackwell, the efficient transportation leader for North Carolina of the B. Y. P. U. A., knows or at least has known somewhat more of the ills of organization than his actions indicate. The ground he takes this week is the only solid one, and we endorse it entirely. Let it be said in Bro. Blackwell's behalf that the article was written some time ago, and his willingness to have it published now indicates his frank, manly nature.

WE have lately read half a dozen reckless, not to say uncalled for and untruthful, statements in daily papers from "a prominent Baptist." The fellow's tongue wags on the slightest provocation, and it is almost impossible to rub him the right way.

Possibly our prominent brother is the unfortunate creature of newspaper reporters' convenient brains; else he has grown into prominence with a shamefully meagre knowledge of his denomination's affairs. At any rate he is harmless, whether as a disgruntled editor's home-made tool or a real live grumbler of the incurable variety.

THE brethren who were requested to look after the Sunday-school interests in their sections, and those whom Bro. Van Deventer calls on this week to represent the cause of foreign missions, should feel heavily their responsibility. They make a chain of workers, and any failure will have its effect at the final accounting. If every one will set to work now and by word and deed do what he may to arouse our churches by the Holy Spirit's unfailing power to a moving realization of the sin of indifference to matters so vital to the kingdom, if they will prayerfully strive to do this, by the word of God we promise a great victory.

CHRISTIAN FRATERNITY.

There is talk enough and writing enough of Christian unity, but we hear scarcely a word in behalf of far more essential, far more becoming Christian Fraternity. It is another instance of shooting over the heads of the people: Crying for unity with other denominations, when they hardly know the joys and advantages of fraternity in their own.

It is a sad thing to behold rivals in God's churches; it recalls the vain wrangling of the disciples which so grieved the Master before he had revealed to them the nature of the Kingdom which he had promised. We still pray for that Kingdom. Do we seek it sincerely? unselfishly? Is there not here and there manifested occasionally the hateful question of old, Who shall be first here on earth?

God speaks to his people to-day through his Holy Spirit dwelling in his churches. How often do brethren, one holding to one course, the other to another, draw apart and say hard things when the churches decide a matter against one or the other. Would it not be more Christian, would it not show more respect for the church, a greater desire for peace and a deeper regard for the Holy Spirit, if the disappointed brother would acquiesce? He is a brave man, it has been well-said, who will shout his battle cry at the mouth of the cannon; but he is braver who bows without a murmur, hoping to some day see God's will where only disappointment at first can be seen. To forget self in enthusiasm may be well, but it is far nobler to calmly put self out of sight for a good cause.

It is a plain proposition, if two men are seeking the good of God's kingdom in a Christ like way, they will get together. Christ would not hate one who strove with good motives, whether his ideas were bad or not; he would give him gentle counsel. And so, when brethren seem so ardently bent upon doing some Christian work after different manners that they get to hating each other or saying unpleasant things, we put it down that Satan has been sowing seeds of ambition on one side or the other. How sad, if true, it is for human beings to make Christ's name an agency of personal ambition!

"Love thyself last," the fallen Cardinal entreated the rising Cromwell. "Love thyself last," we beseech every Christian. The test at all times of every man and of every work is not "will it help me?" but "does it serve God?"

Brethren, the forces of evil in human form are so many, and to all effects and purposes so united, we must stand more solidly together if we would do our part for the Kingdom. It is well to differ in opinions, in likes and dislikes, for God gave us diverse minds; but it is necessary that we, every one of us, put these things aside and join in to do our part when a matter is once determined.

Denominational loyalty is the expression of the highest love of Christ and indifference to self. In such a time as this it is shameful to see factions in the churches, and malcontents and strife makers—in the churches, the body of Christ and the dwelling place of the Holy Spirit. How can one pretend to be dutiful and be a party to sins so humiliating and so grievous?

How beautiful it is to see brethren working together in harmony in the spirit of the Master! What a testimony to God is a body of workers whose desire to serve the Master is so great that they take no thought, save for his will!

ANNUAL MEETING AT THE THOMASVILLE ORPHANAGE

The attendance at the annual meeting this year was about as large as usual, and the exercises were fully up to the standard.

Hon. C. M. Cooke, the orator of the occasion this year, is one of the leading Baptist laymen in our Convention and one of the foremost public speakers in our State. His subject, "True Charity as opposed to Ecclesiasticism," was handled with great credit to the speaker and no little to the edification of his hearers.

Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas preached an effective sermon in the presence of a large audience. He is at once one of the most interesting, original and aggressive of our pastors, and on this occasion he made a fine impression.

Of the eighteen trustees, thirteen were present, as follows: Dr. John Mitchell (President of Board), Rev. C. Durham, Hon. J. C. Scarborough, Bro. E. Frost, Bro. Noah Biggs, Dr. R. D. Fleming, Rev. Thos. Carlick, Rev. W. R. Gwaltney, Maj. H. F. Schenck, Dr. A. J. Montague, Prof. F. P. Hobgood, Prof. J. R. Brewer, Bro. J. L. Markham.

For some time there has been opposition to the Board to Supt. J. H. Mills, and at his meeting Rev. J. B. Boone of Windsor was elected in his stead, to succeed him September 1st, and Mrs. J. B. Boone was made lady principal.

Bro. Ivey Allen of Littleton was chosen to succeed Rev. S. W. Hall as Treasurer, and a committee was appointed to consider the matter of editing Charity and Children. Bro. W. E. Daniel of Weldon was elected a trustee in place of Hon. W. T. Faircloth. The terms of office in the institution were changed as to end September 1st each year. The salary of the Superintendent and wife is $900 with $300 extra for board.

These actions were taken after due deliberation and conference, by letter and personally, with representative men of the denomination. They were taken for the good of the Orphanage, and for the denomination which supports it.

Bro. Mills has been of great service as Superintendent, keeping the Orphanage before the people and providing for his charges. Under him the institution has grown into large usefulness, and has become established in the hearts of the Baptists of North Carolina. Many will be sorry to hear of his retirement.

The Superintendent-elect is well known throughout the State, a conscientious, deliberate, earnest and sweet spirited Christian, experienced as a manager and teacher. Further than this, the Board was fortunate in choosing Bro. Boone not only for his own qualifications, but also for those of his wife.

Treasurer Hall has been a conscientious officer, and turns over his books with a good record. He will enter Wake Forest College next month, if nothing prevents. Brother Hall's report for this year shows that total receipts of cash from all sources were $8,386 61, in kind (estimated) $989 14. The general contributions amounted to $6 073 68 and entertainments by the children brought in $1 034 28. Disbursements amounted to $8 370 01. There are 133 children at the Orphanage.

We have the pleasure of a short acquaintance with the new Treasurer, Bro. Allen. He is young, energetic, a good Christian worker, adapted to the position to which he has been called, and is unusually well-thought of by the brethren who know him.

So much for men. The present duty is to rally to the support of the seven score little ones whom God has placed in our care. The little children cannot afford to lose any friends, and we are sure they will not. Knowing the new administration as we do, and sure as we are of the deep hold the cause of the Orphanage has on our people, we have no fear for the institution's future. The Father of the fatherless will bless it and increase its friends and its usefulness.

We urge every pastor in the Convention to make a rule of having the claims of the Orphanage presented to his people at least once a year.

BEGIN THIS WEEK.

The annual meetings of the Associations begin this week. The Central, July 30 to August 1, is the first to be held, and the Raleigh, November 28th to 30th, will be the last to be held this year.

Before those who have to attend the Associations there are four months of continual travel, speaking and preaching. May the Lord guide and make these meetings a great blessing.

Many good brethren and sisters wish to know, each year, at the beginning of the Associations, how the contributions for missions stand as compared with the preceding year. We rejoice to be able to lay before them a most encouraging showing this year.

From December 1st, 1893, to August 1st, 1894, contributions were:

State Missions	$5 960.94
Home Missions	1,241.43
Foreign Missions	3,728 46

From December 1st, 1894, to August 1st, 1895, contributions were:

State Missions	$3,544 70
Foreign Missions	3,234 84

It will be remembered that in 1894 $5,000 of the amount for State Missions was secured in a special effort to pay off a debt of the preceding year. There had been up to August 1st, 1894, therefore only $960.94 given on the work of that year. But this year, as we had no debt from last year, the total amount given for State Missions is on this years work. We begin the Associations this year, therefore, $2,584.01 better off on State Missions than we were August 1st, 1894. $1,070 21 better off in contributions for Home Missions, and $506.38 better off in contributions for Foreign Missions.

These facts are most encouraging, and they ought to beget a spirit of gratitude and hopefulness in all the Associations.

THE first Baptist Woman's Missionary Society in the South was organized by Rev. John Stout, who died last year, at Newberry, S. C., Oct. 23, 1871. The central Board was organized in 1836 at Baltimore.

NEWS NOTES.

....Prof. John Hart, a beloved and able Baptist of Virginia, is dead.

....Rev. G. H. Carter has resigned the Gainesville, Ga., pastorate. He will take a tour to Palestine.

....Pastor Hartwell Hawthorne, of Hebron church, near Afton, Va., recently baptised fifty converts.

....Bro. B. W. Ray has retired from the editorship of the Piedmont Herald, and Mr. M. B. Moore succeeds him.

....Rev. Jasper Howell will hold a meeting with Flat Rock church, Franklin county, beginning third Sunday in August.

....The question of being the Southern organ of the B. Y. P. U. A. seems to lie between the Evangel, the Atlantic Baptist, and the Religious Herald.

....In a recent meeting at Berea church, near Statesville, in which Rev. W. J. Wyatt assisted Rev. G. F. Church there were six professions of religion.

....Rev. Rufus Ford, late pastor at Newbern, will supply the Leigh Street Baptist church pulpit at Richmond, Va., during August, pastor W. L. Wright taking vacation.

....Rev. C. M. Murchison, who has done good and faithful work at Penelope as preacher and teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the High School at Morganton.

....It is said that more Americans are going to Europe this year than in any year since 1890. There are several Holy Land tours organizing, and many Baptists will join them.

....It is just to say that the negro delegates were allowed to have seats in the B. Y. P. U. A. Convention at Baltimore in spite of the semi-official announcement several days ago to the contrary.

....Bro. R. D. Carroll is aiding Bro. W. A. Ferrell in a meeting at Eureka, in the East; Rev. J. B. Harrell and S. D. Swain are at Lisbon in a meeting, whence Bro. Swain will go to Barlow's Chapel.

...Pastor Stallings began a series of meetings at Jerusalem, Davie county, last Sunday. On Monday, in the same church, Rev. S. J. Becker, a promising Wake Forest student, was ordained to the full work.

....Rev. T. P. Lide resigns the Williston (S. C.) and Rosemary (S. C.) pastorate and accepts the Barnwell C. H. and Long Branch (S. C.) field.

....Rev. J. E. Dowd has been engaged to take charge of Germanton High School. He writes that the prospect for a large attendance is good.

....Dr. R. J. Willingham, Corresponding Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, expects to be at the Flat River Association at its next session.

....We were permitted to see last week as handsome a Bible for church use as is in the State—the gift of Hon. S. McD. Tate to the Morganton church.

....Prof. John Brewer expects to have a large number of students at Murfreesboro this fall, as he told us last week, and we hope he will, for the Institute deserves it.

....Bro. Noah Biggs, as full of charity as ever, came in to see us on his return from Thomasville. He is one of the orphans' best friends, and takes thought for them all the time.

....There was never a better man than Rev. J. B. Boone, and he has admirable qualifications for the position of Superintendent of the Thomasville Orphanage.—Charlotte Observer.

....Rev. W. O. Petty and Rev. G. T. Gresham have been elected principals of the Yorkville (S. C.) High School, succeed-Rev. J. N. Booth who resigned to become President of Mars Hill college.

....The Samuel Colgate collection of Baptist History and Doctrines at Colgate University, New York, is now the most valuable library of the kind in the world. It contains about 30,000 volumes and pamphlets.

....Rev. D. B. Nelson reports in the W. N. C. Baptist a good meeting at a school house near Asheville. Elder G. W. Mace was assisted by Rev. Chas. H. Durham. There were 16 additions to the church (Bethel).

....There will be a large gathering at the Sunday school Chautauqua at Red Springs Aug. 13-16. The attractive program which our readers received two weeks ago will be fully carried out, and if anything, new features will be added.

....The ladies of the First Baptist church at Goldsboro gave their new pastor, Rev. W. C. Newton, a reception at the parsonage on the evening of July 25, which was also a pleasant social season for the membership and congregation.

....The mission boards of the Presbyterian church are in debt $600 000, and the limit of credit has been reached. No doubt a grand rally will be made and the money raised. Advanced scholarship and sensational heresy trials come high.

....Rev. J. D. Moore has formally resigned at Beaufort with the purpose of going to the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

....Rev. C. J. F. Anderson of Carthage will return from Norfolk after the first Sunday in August, and begin a meeting with Bethlehem church the second Monday. He will be aided by Rev. John R. Moore who graduated from Wake Forest in June.

....It is gratifying to see that the Protestant missionaries in China have presented Consul General Jernigan with a testimonial of their appreciation of his efficient aid and in protecting them during the war, his unfailing courtesy at all times and his unswerving faithfulness.

....Rev. B. H. Matthews, of Plymouth, passed through Raleigh Saturday on his return from Asheville—his father's home—where he attended the Southern Biblical Assembly. He spent Sunday with Pastor Spilman at Kinston. He enjoyed his vacation.

....Rev. G. P. Hamrick preached an interesting sermon to a large and appreciative congregation at Mill No. 2 at 4 p. m. Sunday, the first sermon at the new town. Mr. Hamrick will preach regularly at that place every third Sunday.—Henrietta Cor. of the Rutherfordton Democrat.

... The Cape Fear and Brunswick Associations at their last sessions agreed to consolidate. Both of these Associations will, therefore, meet with the Shallotte church in Brunswick county, Oct. 24-26. The proper correction in the list of Associations will be made next week.—C. Durham.

....We were glad to meet W. G. Jones of the Second Baptist church of Goldsboro in Raleigh last week. He has been doing a great deal of good work in a quiet way. Bro. Newton has won the hearts of the First church saints, and they will regret to part with him when he goes to the Seminary.

....The meeting at Pisgah church, Johnston county, in which Rev. Jasper Howell assisted Pastor Pulliam last week, is still going on. When Bro. Howell came through on his way to fill his pulpit at Franklinton, he reported that many were interested and had asked for prayer, and that there was a prospect of good results.

....Pastor Van Deventer and his people at Burlington have been compelled by lack of room to accommodate the congregations to begin work on a new house of worship. At the present rate of growth and Baptist progress Burlington will soon be regarded as one of our strongest towns. The new church will be a handsome one.

....Bro. Julian E. Yates has decided not to attend the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary this year, and will continue in charge of Mt. Moriah Academy, at the earnest solicitation of the Board of Trustees. His school will open August 19th. Brother Yates is a full graduate of Wake Forest, and met gratifying success last year as a teacher.

....We were glad to have a visit from Bro. Claude Wilson of this county, who, with Bro. D. M. Prince, has so ably conducted the Scotland Neck Male Academy. He informed us that the institution has scholarships in Wake Forest College and Washington and Lee University, and that the outlook for the coming year is encouraging.

....Dr. H. A. Royster, son of Dr. W. I. Royster, of Raleigh, has returned to Raleigh after extended study North, to practice medicine with his father. He is one of the best educated young doctors in the land, has always stood at the top in his classes, and has had a year or more of valuable experience in a leading hospital.

....Pending the conclusions as to just what the character of the Sunday school Board's literature for young people shall be, the publication of study courses has been postponed until fall. At this time probably, will be taken up a years course in New Testament History, by A. T. Robertson, D. D. Something adequate will no doubt be ready at that time.—Christian Index.

....Rev. J. H. Lamberth has closed the series of meetings with pastor Wray's church in Winston. There was a goodly number of professions, and the church was strengthened. The Sentinel gave out lines of the sermons daily, and it showed that they were strong and convincing. We will publish a letter from Pastor Wray next week.

....One of the most valuable contributions to Baptist history in North Carolina is the "History of the Sandy Creek Association," by the late Rev. G. W. Purefoy. The book is out of print and only a few copies can be had. We have made arrangements with Bro. E. H. Wilson, of Chapel Hill, who has a number of copies, whereby a few brethren can get the book for one dollar.

....Rev. H. C. Moore has closed his first years work as pastor of the Baptist church here. Mr. Moore has, by his consistent Christian efforts, made many friends among the citizens of Monroe. As a minister he is faithful and under his charge the Baptist church has had a most prosperous year. About forty have joined the church during the year.—Monroe Enquirer.

....The "martyrs" who have been imprisoned in Tennessee for working on Sunday do not deserve any sympathy, as it is clear that they went out of their way to bring this trouble on themselves in order to get advertised. We do not approve of government interfering with worship or religion, but it has our support in punishing frauds, religious or irreligious.

....Dr. J. A. Mundy and wife left Wilson last Monday night for a six weeks vacation which they will spend at the old home, Mount Vinco, Buckingham county, Virginia. Wilson in general and the Baptist church in particular will be the loser, while we hope the beloved pastor and his wife will be benefitted by the rest and recreation in the healthful atmosphere of the Virginia mountains.—Mirror.

....Rev. E. Y. Mullins has accepted the position of Associate Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, and will enter upon his work Sept. 1. Sec't'y. Willingham was in great need of an assistant and we are glad he has one. Too often good men are worked to death because they are earnest and energetic. Bro. Mullins is a well equipped mission-worker, a consecrated servant, a good speaker and a ready writer. He is about thirty five years old.

....The next session of Liberty Assoc'ation will convene with Pleasant Grove church, Randleman, N. C., on Tuesday evening, Aug. 20 h. Those going by rail will get to High Point on either of the morning trains. In the afternoon we leave for Randleman, arriving about three o'clock, when the body will proceed at once to organize. The introductory sermon will be preached at night. Representatives of different denominational interests are cordially invited to meet with us.—Henry Sheets, Clerk of Liberty Association.

....Pastor I. W. Thomas and Rev. G H. Church are holding a protracted meeting at Powellton; Rev. J. B Richardson is holding one at Pratt's school house; Rev. J. L Bennett is holding a similar meeting at Horne's school near Wadesboro; Rev. D. J. Harris and Rev. W. H Wilson at Kerr's chapel; Rev. G. T. Watkins and Rev. W. C. Tyree at Brassfields in Granville Co; Rev. E. F. Jones and Pastor Morris at Hickory Grove, Gaston Co; Rev. Geo. W. Duke, Geo. Coppedge and G. W. May at Sulphur Springs, Warren Co; Rev. L. Johnson at Ashpole; Rev. C. S. Cashwell and N. S. Jones at China Grove.

....The Flat River Association adjourned to meet with Concord church, Granville county, on Tuesday, Aug. 13:h; but on account of convenience, Concord church has decided to have the sessions held at Creedmore, an "arm" of herself. A morning freight train comes from Henderson, and an evening train from Durham. We also have a mail train at twelve from Durham, and an evening train at three from Henderson. All delegates and visitors coming by railroad Aug. 12th or early freight the 13 h, will be met at the depot if they will address the writer or Dr. J. F. Sandeford, Creedmore, N. C.—M. P. Davis, Pastor.

....Rev. C. W. Matthews writes from Chincoteague Island, Va.: "I have just closed a meeting of fourteen days' duration at my (the Beulah) church here on Chincoteague Island, Va. Rev. Dr. T. T. Speight of North Carolina helped me. Bro. Speight has lost none of his preaching powers. He certainly preached to us with striking effect. He helped me in many ways, and most of all when I entered the ministry. I love him. There were five professions during the meeting. I baptized two last Sunday night; will baptize again next Sunday night. Two will come to us by letter. My work is progressing slowly but surely."

....The Southern Biblical Assembly, which is a part of the American Society of Religious Education, has been in session at Asheville in the First Baptist church The session holds four weeks, having begun the 19:h inst. Prof. H. A. White, Washington and Lee University, lead the first week, and was followed by Prof. Alexander of Vanderbilt the second week, Dr. Noah K. Davis of the University of Virginia on the Life of Christ the third week, and Dr. H. H. Harris of our Seminary on a topic not stated the fourth week. There are also daily conferences and discussions. Last week Dr. Shearer and some of the speakers took opposite views as to the Bible in State Universities. Dr. Hume is also taking part in the assembly.

....We thank Rev. O. C Horton for the following interesting notes from East Durham: "Five were received into the fellowship of East Durham Baptist church on Sunday night, July 21st, two by baptism and three by letter.——The church has corrected the mistakes in her baptistery, at a cost of thirty-five or forty dollars. It now has a good foundation and gives a better view of the administration of the ordinance.——Our Sunday school is talking about running an excursion to the Baptist Sunday school Chautauqua at Red Springs, Robeson county, N. C, Aug. 13th-16 h. If such a thing can be brought to pass, more than one will be delighted with the opportunity, and the pleasure and profit also.——Factory and other improvements going on around us."

....The committee on consolidation of the Home Field and Foreign Mission Journal met in Atlanta 24th inst., Drs. J. B. Gambrell and C. Durham being present; Dr. B. H. Carroll being absent. The Boards of the Convention were represented by Secretary Willingham, Secretary Bell, and Bro. M. M. Welch who acted for Secretary Tichenor, who is sick. It was ordered that the publications be consolidated in October; that the new publication be the size of the Foreign Mission Journal, put twenty pages; that the price be fifty cents a year; that it be known as The Mission Journal of the Southern Baptist Convention; that it be equally devoted to Home and Foreign Missions, the Secretaries to provide the matter for publication; that the profits be equally divided between these two Boards; that the unexpired subscriptions to either publication be filled by the consolidated Mission Journal; and that it be printed until May 1st, 1896, at Richmond, and mailed from Richmond and Atlanta. At the expiration of this time, a contract for publishing the new Journal will be awarded to some Richmond or Atlanta publisher.

....In a meeting in which Rev. Junius W. Millard preached for pastor Harmon at Gardner's, Warren county, last week ten persons came forward to unite with the church.

....The attacks on the Board of Trustees of the Orphanage in the Raleigh News and Observer are so obviously productions of ignorance and prejudice that it is unnecessary to notice them seriously; and we have no fear that intelligent people will.

....Eighteen persons have joined our High Point church since the meeting. Last week there were many professions at the mission station. Pastor Weaver has been granted a well earned vacation, which he will spend as supply for pastor Battle of the First Baptist church, Petersburg, Va.

....Rev. N. B. Cobb, D. D., has been preaching for two weeks at Wells' Chapel and Siloam churches and is now at Bethel church in the same neighborhood in a meeting with Bro. Hopper. Bro. Wooten, the pastor, baptized fifteen at Wells' Chapel last Friday. Since then Bro. R. E. Peele and Dr. Cobb have been preaching at Siloam, one of Bro. Hildreths' churches. Up to Friday morning eight had been received for baptism.

....Rev. A. B. Vincent, in the July Home Mission Monthly, says the Negro Baptists in North Carolina have not less than 800 churches, 680 ordained ministers, 400 settled pastors, 600 Sunday-schools, and 30,000 children in their Sunday schools. Their increase in church membership last year is put at 4 000, and the valuation of their church property is more than $165 000 The author of these statements is one of the best known men of the Negro race in the State, the general missionary among them; and we know of no better authority on these subjects. The colored Baptists of this State are making rapid progress. The work of Shaw University is being felt among them in almost every part of the State. In evidence of their activity the following comparison speaks strongly: The three largest Baptist Sunday schools, perhaps, in the State are in Raleigh. The cost of their Sunday school literature for the third quarter in this year has been as follows: Sunday-school of First church (colored) $55 07; Sunday-school of Tabernacle church (white) $26 77; Sunday school of First church (white) $26 23 It is thus seen that the Sunday school of the First Baptist church (colored) in this city takes more literature for its children than the two largest white Baptist Sunday-schools in the State combined take for their children. Is there not a lesson here?

NEW CHURCHES.

The readers of the RECORDER must have noticed the unusual number of new churches built and dedicated during the last Associational year.

We had some notes on the church recently completed at Haw River, but the account of this which appeared in the RECORDER of last week makes further mention unnecessary. We had, however, devoted more space in our notes to the excellent sermon by Dr. Thos. Hume than this correspondent had in his account. Certainly we all anticipated a sermon of the high order characteristic of Dr. Hume's preaching, but hardly any one expected that, in addition to the usual excellent features of his sermon, it would contain such an abundance of practical, plain and useful suggestions.

Last Sunday I attended the dedication of the new church in

MORGANTON.

Twenty-one years ago there was only one Baptist in this town; and for years we had no church and no representation among the religious denominations of the town. For some years, however, we had a church here such as it was, and in the remarks of Bro. R. L Patton he stated that the only reason the Lord could have had for impressing the brethren to take the location they did on which to build was, that the house might in time be burned down which happened last year.

I was in Morganton just a year ago. Bro. Patton and the brethren said, "We are going to build." I thought they would build, but it never occurred to me that within the next twelve months I should be present at the dedication of a handsome brick church on one of the most desirable lots in the town, seating five hundred people and complete in every particular. Bro. Zimmerman, the architect, has studied in the very best Industrial and Mechanical Schools and knows thoroughly his business. We, too, felt some of the joy and enthusiasm which was so plainly seen upon the face of every Baptist in the town. You say, "Yes, that is all nice, but how about the paying for it?" Other churches have built fine houses of worship and had elaborate dedication services, all passing off well except the debt which was left like a mill-stone around the neck of the church to worry and hinder its work for a decade to come. It is not so with the church in Morganton. It stands to day with not a single cent of debt upon it. The cost of the church ($7,000) has every cent been paid in cash, or provided for in notes by individuals, negotiable at the bank: no other subscriptions were asked for. Sunday morning there remained a balance of $645. Brother Patton, the pastor, said, "Unless this is provided for, we will not dedicate the church;" and when he asked who will take $100 of the debt, Col. Tate, late State Treasurer, was the first to respond: he also gave the church a handsome Bible. In less than thirty minutes after Bro. Patton ceased speaking, in which address he had given a brief account of the history of our cause in the town, and the struggle the church had passed through, seven hundred dollars in cash and subscriptions had been given to the final settling of the entire debt.

Then followed the sermon of Dr. Simms of Raleigh, who was present to preach the dedicatory sermon. The sermon was strong, helpful and practical, and formed a most fitting compliment to the heroic sacrifices and struggles which this church has passed through within the last year. Here it is a great temptation to mention the names of some of the largest givers to this work, but I shall content myself by following the example of one of the largest contributors who never mentions anything he has done, but said, "We have one poor woman in this church who has divided her living that she might help in this work."

Brother Patton will remain here with the church. He has been instrumental in a great work, and we hope to see him push it to completion.

NOTES.

Morganton is growing rapidly. The D. & D Institute has been a great accession to the town. Brother Goodwin has the highest esteem of the citizens of Morganton and is a most valuable help in the church.

Bro. J. F. Spainhour will move to Morganton in the early fall. He is the solicitor of this judicial district, and the good citizens of Morganton will give him a warm welcome.

HICKORY.

At Hickory I spent a night pleasantly with Bro. Wiggs. He greatly enjoys hearing from his friends in Raleigh where for years he was in business. His health has much improved since I last saw him.

Dr. Whiteside was very kind as he always is—carried me over the town in his buggy, which enabled me to get a goodly number of new subscribers.

Bro. Cashwell is greatly loved by his people. He is at work now in the "regions beyond." He is never so happy as when in the midst of hard work.

Bro. Thomas Hufham is building up a good law practice. He is thoroughly interested in the growth and prosperity of the town, and is one of Bro. Cashwell's best workers in the church. His patience after the manner of Job was tried as I passed.

The church at Newton is completed. It is a neat, comfortable house, and they hope to pay off the debt during the present year. Dr. Whiteside fears they will not be able to keep Bro. Cashwell. This is one of the important points in this part of the State, and we hope the Board will see to it that it is not neglected. With Bro. Cashwell as the pastor, the church will soon be able to stand alone.

ASHEVILLE.

In Asheville we learned that Dr. Felix was in Virginia taking his summer outing. Dr Millard says he is a preacher of a very high order, and that the church is greatly pleased with him.

Asheville is in a more prosperous condition than for several years. Building contracts for half million dollars are now out and the houses are going up.

Speaking with Bro. Locke Craig, a prosperous young lawyer, I told him we hoped to make some decided improvement in the RECORDER in the near future, in reply he said, "It is already the best paper in the State."

Prof. Royall has been spending some time here and at other points in the mountains, and his friends will learn with pleasure that his health has greatly improved.

Several brethren of the French Broad church told me that the condition of the church had greatly improved since Brother Betts had become their pastor. He is a zealous worker and was getting ready for the Biblical Assembly. The brethren had begun coming, and the meeting promised to be interesting. J. C. C.

Contributions for Ronda Church.

Please allow me space in the RECORDER to publish the names of those who have already given for the purpose of building a Baptist church at Ronda, Sandy Run Association:

Sandy Run Baptist church, $3 00; Rev. A. P. Hollifield, 50 cents; B. B. Harris, $1 00; Mrs. M. G. Martin, 25 cents; Rev. Z D Harrill, $2 00; Miss Gazza Bridges and Ann Durham, 25 cts.; Rutherfordton—J. H. Callahan, T. C. Smith, J. M. Jones, each 50 cts.; Mrs. H. J. Callahan, Mrs. C. W. Watkins, Mrs E. G. Wallace, each 25 cents; Mrs. J. A. Grayson, A. L Grayson, each $1 00; Forest City Baptist church, $2 10; G. H. Harrill, 25 cents; Boiling Springs Baptist church, $1 75; Lattimore Baptist church, $3 50; R. E. McKinney, Washington Harrill, each 25 cents; A. W. Hamrick, 50 cents; New Hope, Iredell county—A. H. Reece, 50 cents; A. R. Reece, J. B. Reece, Miss Nannie Reece, Miss Vertie Reece, W. Frank Reece, Friend, A. S. Shore, each 25 cents; W. C. Summers, 50 cents; Mrs. A. R. Reece, 10 cents.

This church is very weak—has only twenty eight members. We have no house of our own, but are going to make a great struggle to have one in which we can worship by the time our school opens, which will open Sept. 31.

Brethren and friends, this can be made a very important point for the Baptists, if we can only get a house in a short time. Who will help us? J. E. GREENE.

Concerning Our Part.

ASSOCIATIONAL APPORTIONMENT FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS AND LOCAL REPRESENTATIVES.

In the report on the Financial Policy of the Foreign Board, we have—

"1. That through the co operation of Vice-Presidents, the Board seeks to appoint in each district Association in our territory a suitable representative from whom facts may be gathered and to whom information about our Board may be distributed.

"2. That the different States tributary to this body be requested to raise for our work the sums affixed"—$9.000 being the sum asked of North Carolina.

The Board of Missions and Sunday schools on June 17th, 1895, made an apportionment among the Associations, and asked the churches to try to raise the amounts.

I have written to a brother in each Association asking him to consent to be the representative of the Board in his territory, and to plan to raise the amount asked of his Association. Their willingness to serve in the work is encouraging, and we may expect a forward movement in the blessed work.

Alexander—W. J. Bumgarner, Swanner, $50

Ashe and Alleghany—James Eller, Berlin, $50.

Notes of Travel.

Leaving Henderson with Bro. T. B. Hill behind his swift traveler, we were soon in the neighborhood of New Bethel church, which we reached after driving with our hospitable brother W. B. Daniel. I talked to the church about the claims of the Baptist Female University. The response was prompt and generous, amounting to $135,00 in cash and pledges. This was done by a country church of a few more than one hundred members, and in face of the fact they have in contemplation the building of a new church this fall. It was a blessed privilege for me to tell the old, old story of Jesus and His love to an overflowing house.

Sunday morning. Returning to Henderson I had a gratifying addition to the contributions already given there.

By Tuesday midday our energetic and noble hearted young brother, Rev. T. B. Hill, again had me behind his fast trotter, and we made a round of one and a half days via Kittrell, Peace Chapel neighborhood, where we were delightfully entertained in the old home of the Williams family, and up to the home of Bro. A. C. Parham, where I spent the night. Bro. Frank Parham was at home with his commencement honors fresh upon him.

I found it a great pleasure to talk with brother and Sister Parham, so profoundly interested in the higher education of girls as well as boys. I found them liberal helpers to the cause. The two country trips, taking only three days, resulted in contributions to the Female University amounting to $290 besides less definite promises that will considerably swell the amount. I was soon in Littleton attending the Mass Meeting of the Unions, and most hospitably entertained by Bro. M. V. Perry. The meetings were deeply spiritual and must result in great good. I hope soon to make a gratifying report of my visit to Littleton.

Here I am in Scotland Neck, the wide-awake, the beautiful—a very paradise for Baptists. A brother, weary from his travels, could not be otherwise than happy here. But these notes are already long enough and I must close.

N. B.—In response to several inquiries I would call attention to the fact that Bro. F. H. Briggs of Raleigh is the Treasurer of the Baptist Female University.

J. HARTWELL EDWARDS.

Progress at Washington.

Dear Recorder:—In last week's issue of the RECORDER I saw an article headed "Progress at Plymouth," which doubtless should have been "Progress at Washington," as that which follows is true of Washington and not of Plymouth.

I am very glad indeed to be able to report progress on this, one of the hardest mission fields in the State. Recently we have received five persons by letter, and last Sunday it was my privilege to baptize a most worthy young man, and we have a young lady awaiting baptism.

Last year, as you and some of your readers doubtless know, we commenced to remodel our building, a thing that was very much needed. The work progressed very well until the spring, when our money gave out and the work stopped. We were able, however, to finish the interior of the north wing, which is our Sunday school room, where we have been worshiping since the first Sunday in February. Since we entered our new quarters, our congregations have nearly doubled, and we believe if we could finish our main auditorium, our attendance would be still better.

The work so far has cost about $500, and we estimate that it will take not more than $800 to complete it. We will re commence work on the building to morrow, and our purpose is, God willing, to complete it by the fifth Sunday in December and have it dedicated on that day. But to do this we will need help from the Baptists throughout the State, and we trust that every one who reads this will send us a contribution.

Recently I made a short tour in the interest of our work, and received the following amounts, viz: Ballard's Bridge church, Chowan county, $17 35; Gatesville, $7 55; Winton, Second church, $11 25; Aulander, $10 25.

On this trip I met with a great deal of kindness, especially from Bro. C. J. Woodson and his excellent wife, at whose hospitable home I spent several days. I expect to start on another trip Aug. 1st, and in fact will keep going until the work is completed.

May the Lord's blessings attend you in your work on the RECORDER.

Washington, N. C., July 28, 1895.

Death of Sister H. E. Browning.

On the morning of July 6, 1895, Mrs. N. E. Browning (nee Bobbitt), consort of B. R. Browning of Littleton, N. C., died. The deceased was born Feb. 26, 1826, being at the time of her death, sixty nine years, four months and nine days old. She professed faith in Christ about the year 1843, and soon thereafter was baptized into the fellowship of Enon Baptist church in Warren county by Elder O'Bryan. On the 31 of October, 1849, she was united in marriage to B. R. Browning of Halifax county, N. C., who, with five children, survives her. Brother and Sister Browning moved to Warrenton, N. C, in 1853, and were members of the Warrenton Baptist church until about the year 1878 In 1870 they came to Littleton to live, and when the Littleton church was built, they became members of that church, where she held her membership to the day of her death.

Sister Browning loved her Saviour and her church. The past twenty years of her life she was a great sufferer from bodily afflictions: rarely has any one been known who suffered so much and so long. For the last six years she was unable to visit her church, which was a source of much grief to her. During her long connection with the church, she was ever faithful in endeavoring to serve her Redeemer; and many a time has it been the privilege of the writer to know her to break out in exclamations of joy and praise to him. She loved to entertain her pastor and preachers whenever it was her good fortune to have them with her. Sister Browning loved her husband, who was a faithful and loving companion of hers: they truly shared each other's sorrows and joys. If her husband was afflicted, she shared afflictions with him; if he rejoiced, she rejoiced with him, and truly was it so with him as to her.

As a mother, she was devoted, and could truthfully say, as regards her children, what she had was theirs. She wished no pleasure but what they could enjoy, and had no means but what they could share.

Sister Browning was laid to rest on Sunday, the 7th inst., by the side of two of her grand-daughters, who preceded her to the glory land years ago. She sleeps asleep serene. Now that she is gone to her long home, her troubles are over: no enemy shall ever come near her; no more fear of death; no more anxious thought as to the future. Truly can it be said of her that she has "come up out of great tribulations." She rests with her blessed Redeemer, who will keep her safely until the resurrection morning, when he shall make his second appearing, to call forth them that have been sleeping in him these long, long years, when we shall meet her, where we shall never part; but with kindred spirits a hallelujah of praise shall be ascribed unto Him world without end. Thank God for such a faith.

J. D. BOUSHALL, Manager Atlas Life Insurance Co., Raleigh, N. C.

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge the prompt settlement of the policy held by Rev. C. T. Bailey with you. You will be gratified to know that your Company is the first of the number to take up its policy.

I have reasons to believe that the Atlas is not surpassed for safety by any company in the land.

With best wishes, yours sincerely,

(Signed) J. W. BAILEY.

Rev. C. T. Bailey—Tributes of Respect.

At a meeting of Hiram Lodge, No. 40, F. A. M., held on the 15th of July, 1895, the committee on obituaries presented the following, which was unanimously adopted.

A good man's death is a public calamity; and such a calamity this Lodge has sustained in the death of Past Master Rev. C. T. Bailey, who departed this life on the 5th of June, 1895 He had scarcely passed the meridian of life when he was stricken with an affliction that was the precurser of certain death. Bro. Bailey was a man wise in knowledge, fruitful in experience, generous of heart, of beautiful simplicity and of a manly religious character. His wise and friendly words will be heard no more in our Lodge meetings. The veil impenetrable to mortal eyes has been lifted to usher him upon scenes of mysteries profounder far than those of earth. It is impossible to do justice to his character in this brief notice, but we embrace the present opportunity to pay this feeble tribute to so good a man.

In expressing its sense of so great a bereavement, we recommend that this League adopt the following resolutions:

Resolved. That the death of our late brother, Rev. C. T. Bailey, so long known to the members of this Lodge as a man, a Mason and a Christian minister, is an event deplored by us as a bereavement of no ordinary character. As an editor he was a forcible and accomplished writer; he was wise in counsel, courteous in association, charitable in judgment, benevolent in action and an honest man. In his death we have lost an illustrious member of our order.

Resolved. That we commend his beautiful, consistent, religious and moral character, as a mason; his energy, honesty and perseverance as a citizen; his piety, charity and benevolence as a christian, to all brothers as characteristics worthy of their emulation.

Resolved That these resolutions be spread in the minutes of this Lodge, and that a copy be furnished the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

Respectfully Submitted,
W. W. BRIGGS,
THOS. W. BLAKE,
JOHN NICHOLS,

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY THE RALEIGH TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

Your committee, to whom was assigned the duty of preparing a tribute to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. C. T. Bailey, beg leave to submit the following:

In 1875 Dr. Bailey succeeded Rev. A. F. Redd in the editorial management of the BIBLICAL RECORDER newspaper, organ of the North Carolina Baptists, he having purchased Mr. Redd's interest in the printing house of Edwards, Broughton & Co. During the time of Dr. Bailey's connection with this firm (more than twelve years) it did—as it had previously done—a very successful business. In July, 1888, the firm was dissolved and Dr. Bailey became the sole publisher, as well as editor and owner of the RECORDER, and so continued up to the time of his death, June 5th, 1895 He filled the editorial chair with distinguished ability, and in the conduct of his paper displayed those qualities of wisdom, tact and judgment for which he, as a man, was so remarkable.

During all this time, nearly twenty years, he has been an employer of members of this Union. No disagreement ever took place between him and his workmen on account of the regulations of this body. He dealt fairly, paid promptly, and was kind and generous towards all of his employees. Now, therefore,

Resolved by the Raleigh Typographical Union No 54. That we sincerely deplore the death of Dr. Bailey, and will ever cherish his memory for the fair and honorable part he acted as an employer.

Resolved 2 That the Secretary be directed to transcribe this tribute on a separate page of our record book, and furnish a copy of the same to the family of our deceased friend.

Resolutions of Respect.

The Yeopim Union met with the church at Ballard's Bridge June 28th, 29th, 30th. Introductory sermon by Rev. A. W. Burfoot, from 2 Peter 1: 10.

Two of the most prominent Baptist lay brethren of the Union meeting have been called to their reward on high since the last session—Bro. W. H Manning and Bro Jos. T. Waff. Bro. Manning served the Union as its honored and faithful moderator a quarter of a century. Bro. Waff was its efficient clerk for more than thirty years. These brethren were esteemed very highly by the Yeopim Union. As an evidence of appreciationof their godly lives and services a very interesting memorial meeting was held at the close of the Union on Sunday afternoon, in which the following resolutions were adopted:—

Never before in its history has the Yeopim Union Meeting been called on to mourn the death of two so distinguished and useful members as recently departed this life—brethren W. H. Manning at Sunsbury, and Joseph T. Waff at Reynoldson on 9th inst. Both of these brethren enjoyed to the fullest degree, the confidence and esteem of all the brethren. Bro. Manning was for over a quarter of a century moderator of this Union, and of the Chowan Association six years.

Bro. Waff for over thirty years was the ever faithful, true and accurate clerk of this Union. His presence was always the delight of his brethren, and his life wherever he went was an inspiring influence.

This Union meeting desires to express its most feeling sense of loss and bereavement, therefore be it

Resolved 1. That these brethren ever be held in affectionate remembrance as living epistles of Christ, devoted Baptists, and useful servants of the cause.

2 That we commend to the young the faith and virtues which characterized them as worthy of all emulation.

3 That we tender to their families and relatives the sympathies and prayers of the Yeopim Union and that we dedicate this hour to an affectionate memorial of their virtues.

4 That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Union, and a copy be sent to the RECORDER for publication.

Wilson's Mills Church.

When I reached my appointment here in July, the house of worship had taken on a new dress. It had been done since the appointment in June, and studiously kept from the pastor "until he came again," that a pleasant surprise might be given him.

Brother B. R. Jones, a member of Bethesda church, of Johnston county, gave the paint for the house at Wilson's Mills, and the members had it put on in a few days after receiving it. Several of the members questioned the writer, "Did you know anything about this work before you got off the train and saw it?" "No," was the outcome of my ignorance on this subject, and then came their expressions of pleasure, "We did not want you to know a word about it, until you saw it." There we stood, all pleased, over the fact that something had been done for the cause of Christ. These same brethren and sisters tried to have their house plastered and painted inside, about one year ago, on the same sly method, but the news floated away on the breeze, and got to the pastor's ears before the brethren wished it to. Now we have a neat house of worship, furnished inside and out, save some carpet for the stand and aisle. It has already been said, "We must have a carpet for our house before long," and I expect this will come to pass after a while. If so, whether surprised or not, I will rejoice with the happy ones as commanded. This little band, thirty in number, seem to have the inspiration of Luke 12: 32, and because of their faith have become fearless about the obstacles in their way. They believe it is our Father's good pleasure to give them the Kingdom, that is, to enable them to overcome all that is wrong, and reign in righteousness, but because their trust is in God. Their faith is of the kind that takes in effort, and discards the old time raven faith that expects prosperity without the use of opportunities and means to an end. Surely, God feeds the ravens, but not without the use of their wings, feet, beaks and wonderful instinct, in gathering, housing and eating the food. God prepares food for the ravens, but He does not bring it to, and cram lazy ravens or any other fowl. "Wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?" James, 2: 20. O. C. HORTON.

East Durham, July 16, 1895.

A United States Senator of great wealth and ability was once the guest of the late Hamilton Fish The senator indulged in rather coarse stories interlarded with many irreverent references to Christianity. Mr. Fish listened for a time, his face wearing an expression of astonishment and disapproval which would have checked a more sensitive nature. In this case it seemed rather to incite to further efforts, as though he would compel a laugh from his host. The result was otherwise. Said Mr. Fish: "Senator——, pardon me, but I must request you to desist. I firmly believe in Jesus Christ as the Saviour of the world; of his Church I am a member, in my house I have tried to honor him, and in his faith I expect to die; and it is painful to me to hear you speak this way." There were no more vulgar jokes nor anecdotes derogatory to religion.—Y. P. Leader.

Four women, all told

The first told how much easier it was to wash with Pearline. She saved half her labor, and the work was better done.

The second told how much longer the clothes lasted, since she'd used Pearline. The rubbing that wore them out wasn't necessary.

The next told how many things she did with it; she washed the kitchen floor, or the finest china—the most delicate lace, or the coarsest fabric. Whatever she did with it, she saved money by it.

The fourth told of the harmlessness of Pearline. She had used it for ten years, and she knew nothing that was washable could be hurt by it.

These are only four out of millions who use Pearline, but the others say the same things and more. Try it yourself; then you can tell about it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 181 JAMES PYLE, New York.

SUBJECT FOR JULY—FOREIGN BOARD.

"Arise, shine, for thy light has come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." Missionaries, 91; native assistants, 89; churches, 85; membership, 3 493; baptisms, 581; schools, 15; scholars, 707; S. S. scholars, 1,503; receipts of Foreign Board, $129,-582 68. Contributions from native churches, $6 458 72.

Study Topics.—How can our churches be aroused to a sense of the importance of Foreign Missions? How can the various missionary societies in our churches work most effectually? Individual responsibility of Christians. How much depends upon the proper training of the young?

Christ and his religion is true, let everything else under heaven beside prove false. Therefore the great central mission of the life of Christ and his religion will never depend for its truth upon "disinterested" testimony. Yet such testimony cannot fail to be of special interest when it comes from one whose high position gives so extended a view as that of the Minister of the United States to China.

In Minister Denby's latest dispatch to the Department of State at Washington, he gives the following brief account of benefits derived by China from the work of the missionaries. As is natural in such a review, Mr. Denby speaks rather of the visible fruit-yield of Christianity in China, than of the invisible root growth. Let those who can doubt that such a yield as this comes from far-reaching, fast-spreading roots, deep down in the very life soil of this greatest of mission fields. He who can doubt it must needs have the painful genius of doubt.

"No one can controvert the fact that the Chinese are enormously benefited by the labors of the missionaries. Foreign hospitals are a great boon to the sick. China, before the advent of the foreigner, did not know what surgery was; now there are more than twenty charity hospitals, presided over by men of as great ability as can be found elsewhere in the world; Dr. Kerr's, at Canton, is one of the great institutions of the kind in the world. The Viceroy Li Hung Chang has for years maintained at Tien Tsin, at his own expense, a foreign hospital. In education, the movement is immense. There are schools and colleges all over China taught by the missionaries. I have been present often at the exhibitions given by these schools. They showed progress in a great degree. The educated Chinaman who speaks English becomes a new man. A long time before the present war the Emperor was studying English, and, it is said, was fast acquiring the language. Nowhere is education more sought than in China. The Government is to some extent founded on it. There is a Chinese imperial college at Peking, the Tung Zoen, presided over by our distinguished fellow citizen, Dr. W. A. P. Martin; also a university conducted by the Methodist Mission. There also many foreign orphan asylums in various cities, which take care of thousands of waifs.

"The missionaries translate into Chinese many scientific and philosophical works. A former missionary, Dr. Adkins, translated a whole series of school readers. Reflect that all these benefactions came to the Chinese without much, if any, cost to them. Where charges are made, they are exceedingly small, made only when they are necessary to prevent a rush, which in this vast population would overwhelm any institution. There are various anti-opium hospitals, where the victims of this vice are cured. There are industrial schools and workshops.

"This is a very brief and incomplete summary of what missionaries are doing for the Chinese. * * * There are supposed to be 40 000 Protestants now in China, and at least 500,000 Catholic converts. There are many native Christian churches. The converts seem to be as devout as people of any other race.

"As far as my knowledge extends, I can and do say that the missionaries are self-sacrificing; that their lives are pure; that they are devoted to their work; that their influence is beneficial to the natives; that the arts and sciences and civilization are greatly spread by their efforts; that many useful Western books are translated by them into Chinese; that they are the leaders in all charitable work, giving largely themselves and personally disbursing the funds with which they are intrusted; that they do make converts, and such converts are mentally benefited by conversion.

Going still further away for testimony to the benefits and interest in Christianity in China, we learn that the Chinese emperor, who for sometime before the late war had been diligently studying English, is now having the Bible read to him by some of his officials, varying the reading with Chinese music.

Let us pray that this strange "service" begun in curiosity may end in conversion.

In view of this, what Dr. Henry Blodgett, a returned missionary, says in the Missionary Review of the anti-foreign sentiment in the royal city of Peking and of the attitude of both the Emperor and his chief counsellor, Li Hung Chang, is worth noting:

"The anti foreign sentiment in Peking is very much exaggerated; the Chinese are restrained by the Emperor's proclamation, which is tacked up in all missionary churches, and has completely quieted all manifestations against foreigners. Li Hung Chang is in favor of Western world civilization, and favors educating Chinese in arts and sciences abroad. He believes in everything Western except religion. He attributes Chinese defeat to a supercilious disregard of the advance of the world in warfare. He sends his children to the school of Rev. Charles Harney, an American missionary, for English branches. Li Hung Chang's liberalization is only his belief in the fact that in the arts and sciences the rest of the world long ago passed China."

Suggestions for Work in City Societies.

BY MRS. B. P. JOHNSTON, MISSOURI.

[Read at the Annual Meeting in Washington]

In suggesting plans for work I know that no inflexible model can be invented—that adaptation is the key of success. What will succeed in one place will fail in another; no plan ought to be retained that fails to awaken interest and to maintain it. Interest created and profit gained ought to be the standard of worth and the measure of life of any method.

One plan that has proved successful in many places is to have a hostess for each meeting, whether they be held in the church or at home. Let the burden of providing all things necessary rest upon her; she is to secure the participants, arrange for papers, songs, &c. The program may be followed by a few moments of free discussion.

Many of our ladies object to spending an afternoon with idle hands even though they are learning much. In that case the more acceptable plan would be to have sewing on hand: while some of the members sew, others who had been appointed on the program could read papers and make talks and give interesting bits of information. Several meetings could be devoted to a single country, lives of missionaries could be taken up and other phases of the subject studied to give variety. The garments made, with others that might be donated, could be sent to the frontier missionaries to gladden their lives; at the same time the members of the Society would be gaining information along missionary lines, and materially contributing to the support of the work with but little expense to themselves.

During the year, each member of the Society might entertain it at her home, aside from the regular meeting. And here her ingenuity as a hostess could have full sway. There could be a set of ten or fifteen questions asking the names of the principal stations in any chosen mission field, the names of the missionaries, the work to be done, the obstacles to progress and the prospects of the work. We have these simple amusements at our social gatherings, why not make missions the subject of some of them? I am sure this would awaken interest in many who are now utterly indifferent.

A plan that might work in some places is to have the ladies sew, while some one reads in the afternoon; close the meeting with a social hour, during which the young people bring in and pass around a light lunch. In the evening hold a general meeting with a prepared program, in which the young people are to assist. This plan will succeed in enlisting them in the work of missions and at the same time keep all the forces of the church in touch and sympathy.

A literary program might be found very interesting and profitable in some places. Study a country for each meeting; arrange a set of questions, one for each member of the Society. Let these be answered in a talk of two or three minutes. As each lady finishes, let the others ask questions on that particular phase of the subject. At the close of all the papers, let a general discussion be held concerning the whole country as a field for work.

I know of a Society that gained much help and inspiration by each member chosing a missionary, and at Christmas sending a letter with a card, or some little token. The answers to these letters coming in at different times during the year would add new interest and life to the meetings.

In my plans of work I do not mean to overlook the fact that in our meetings we want to instruct and interest our ladies and to educate them in benevolence as well; but if we get as many interested as possible, we will find our receipts largely increased, whether we have a regular monthly fee or a voluntary contribution. Our interest cannot be very deep in the heart without reaching the pocket-book.

[Next week an article entitled "Concerning Country Societies," by Mrs. P. S. Woodson, which was read at the Washington meeting, will appear.—Editor.]

"Do You Suppose."

"Do you suppose," said Johnny, as his little cousin laid away her largest, rosiest apple for a sick girl, "that God cares about such little things as we do? He is too busy taking care of the big folks to notice us much." Winnie shook her head and pointed to mamma, who had just lifted baby from his crib.

"Do you think," said Winnie, "mamma is so busy with the big folks that she forgets the little ones? She thinks of baby first, 'cause he's the littlest. Surely, God knows how to love as well as mother."

And God's Word tells that even though a mother may forget her child (and some mothers have been known to forget), yet will he not forget us. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord loveth them that fear him."—Exchange.

Old Buffalo Lithia.

A REMARKABLE CASE—THE PROMISE OF THE SEASON.

We publiah in another column this morning an interesting letter from Buffalo Lithia Springs, written by Rev. Dr. J. S. Wharton, the gallant ex Confederate surgeon and distinguished divine and who is one of that talented trio of brothers so well and favorably known throughout this country and Mexico, and especially in Richmond, Norfolk and Baltimore, where they have done such great work in the cause of Christianity. Dr. Wharton mentions among other things a remarkable cure wrought by the Buffalo Lithia waters under his own observation. The cure seems almost miraculous, but it is not an exceptional case, by any means. Buffalo has been doing equally astonishing things for years for suffering, and it may be said, despairing humanity. The season at Buffalo this year promises to be exceptionally successful.

Extract from letter of Dr. Wharton:

A REMARKABLE CASE.

"During the short time I have been here several persons who came for the benefit of their health have been restored and returned to their homes, and for the benefit of those who may be similarly afflicted I merely mention one remarkable case, that of Mr. John R. Garland, of Mecklenburg county, a gentleman 74 years of age, who came to this place on the 21st of June, presenting every appearance of a man in an advanced stage of Bright's disease; his feet and ankles so much swollen that he could not wear his shoes; his eyes suffused and their lids inflamed and swollen; his heart so much involved that he had not been able to sleep lying down for more than two weeks on account of a feeling of suffocation, his only sleep being procured sitting upright in his chair. He showed unmistakable evidences of uraemic poisoning. He began to improve within twenty four hours after his arrival at this place as he informed me, and in ten days was entirely relieved, and, to use his own words, "was a well man, as well as he ever was in his life," being able to eat heartily of anything that he desired. He slept in bed soundly all night, wore his shoes as usual, and read the papers, a pleasure that he had not enjoyed for many months."

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Blessed is the true believer! His powers and affections work in happy harmony, and the old jarring discords between a stubborn will and a condemning conscience are hushed. He is no longer afraid of God, or afraid of himself, or afraid of dying, or afraid of the judgment day, or of hell; for he is sheltered under the love that casts out all fear. The only fear a healthy Christian ought to have is lest he should not find out his whole duty and do it at whatever cost. This is a wholesome fear; but as to all those wretched doubts and dreads and worries and conflicts that distressed him, the loving Saviour kisses them away as a mother kisses away the tears of her frightened child, and he says, in cheery tones, "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me; my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth do I give it unto you."
—Theodore Cuyler, D. D., in Independent.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE PRIZE BABY OF KANSAS CITY MO.

Cured of Disfiguring ECZEMA By the CUTICURA REMEDIES

Our baby when three weeks old was badly afflicted with Eczema. Her head, arms, neck, limbs, and nearly every joint in her body was raw and bleeding when we concluded to try Cuticura Remedies. We began with Cuticura (ointment) and Cuticura Soap, and after the first application we could see a change. After we had used them one week some of the sores had healed entirely, and ceased to spread. In less than a month, she was free from scales and blemishes, and to-day has as lovely skin and hair as any child. She was shown at the Grange Fair, and took a premium as the prettiest baby, over sixteen others. Mr. & Mrs. Park, 1609 Belleview Ave., Kan. City. Sold everywhere. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston.

In General.

The result of the elections in England is taken by "bimetallists" to be especially favorable to them.——Gov. Culberson of Texas has issued a proclamation forbidding the proposed prize fighting at Dallas.——The Indians are making trouble in Wyoming and Idaho, and troops have been ordered out to protect the people.——During the fiscal year ending June 30, our government coined of gold $48 983.495; of silver $9,069,480, together with $712 594 in minor coin. The Treasury balance July 15, was $190,741,889, of which $107,024.418 belonged to the gold reserve.——Market quotations range as follows: Cotton 7 to 7½; wheat 69 to 71; corn 43; oats 23½; pork $10.65. The grain market is strong and price of wheat shows upward tendencies.——A political point of considerable significance is the purchase of the Birmingham Age-Herald, a leading paper, by a Republican.——Supt. of Public Instruction J. E. Massey of Virginia was awarded $1,600 in his suit against the Norfolk Pilot for damages.——A number of horrible murders have been traced to a fiend named Holmes who has made a practice of insuring people and murdering them for the money.——The chief of police of Richmond, Va., has given notice that he will strictly enforce the Sunday laws of that city, prohibiting the sale of anything——The seed department of the government has been abolished. It was greatly abused by representatives.

School Notes.

One of the most intelligent of intermediate schoolmen in the State is Prof. John Graham of Ridgeway. He does thorough and practical work.

Col. T. J. Drewry has arranged to open a select school for boys and young men at Fayetteville. Col. Drewry is a well-known educator, cultured and experienced. Parents will do well to examine his prospectus.

Brethren Griffith and Cornwell, two young Wake Forest men, have taken charge of Spring Hope Academy. We know them both and commend them as faithful, earnest and well-equipped young men.

Parents and guardians having girls to educate will do well to consider the following facts:—
Only experienced teachers of broad culture and special training for their particular work are employed.
Thorough work is required of pupils, and diplomas are conferred only after critical examinations. The administration believes that education should be practical, and that girls should be trained not to feel above their homes.
The discipline is mild and parental. Pupils are treated as daughters.
The health of the Institute is unsurpassed.
Charges have been reduced to suit the times.

Once Wrecked.

Broken in Health.

NOW HE CAN RUN AND JUMP "EQUAL TO A SIXTEEN-YEAR OLD B Y"—THE EFFECT OF SIX BOXES OF PINK PILLS.

From the Messenger, Wilmington, N. C.

The following letter from George Russell, a citizen of Laurinburg, N. C., will prove of interest to many of our readers who may be suffering from that dreaded disease—rheumatism.

LAURINBURG, N C., April, 3, 1895.

Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—During the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of ty phoid fever which left my constitution in a wrecked and br oken down condition. Ever afterwards I had to be very careful not to get the least damp for if I did an attack of rheumatism would be the result. I was able, however, to attend to business the most of my time though I could never say that I was well. I continued this way until the summer of 1894 when I was taken with a more severe attack of rheumatism which commenced first in the back of my head and neck, then my shoulders became involved. I suffered untold agonies, could not rest day or night, could get in no position that would give me rest even for a few moments, could not sleep more than 15 minutes at one time, had no appetite, my flesh was reduced till I weighed only 121 lbs. The disease moved down or rather spread to the small of the back and into both hips then to the left knee joint. I could not walk up the door steps and had to crawl out and into the house. About this time I was taken with a shortness of breath which one doctor pronounced heart dropsy, another an excess of water in the chest. I gave up all hopes of ever getting any better or even living for more than a few months I wrote many of my relations that I did not expect to live but a very short time. Of course I had been under the care of men who called themselves good doctors all this time, I had six of them to attend me during my sickness. I tried everything that I could get that was said to benefit people who had rheumatism but instead of getting relief I continued to grow worse. One day a friend came came to visit me and like all other friends had a remedy for my ills. Her remedy was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She showed me a paper which praised them very highly. I told her I had no faith in them as for the advertisement in the paper, it was nothing but more bosh. But like a drowning man that will catch at a straw I concluded to try the pills. I commenced to get better from the first day. I took six boxes and am well, my appetite is good. I sleep well, have gained in flesh from 121 to 160 lbs. I have been in the rain till I was literally drenched without experiencing any annoyance afterwards. I can run, jump, hop and skip equal to a sixteen-year old boy.

Any one doubting this statement can be satisfied by writing me.

Yours truly,

GEORGE RUSSELL.

Mr. George Russell has, this day appeared in person before me a Justice of the Peace for Richmond County, N. C., and made oath that the statement contained in this manuscript is true in every particular. Sworn to before me this 13 h day of April, 1895. M. K JONES, J P.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves, two fruitful causes of almost every ill that flesh is heir to. These pills are also a specific for the troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, all forms of weakness, chronic constipation, bearing down pains, etc., and in the case of men will give speedy relief and effect a permanent cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or ex cesses of what ever nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold by druggists only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50.

MARRIED.

CHAMBLEE—JENKINS—On June 25th, 1895, at the residence of the bride's mother in Bertie county, by Rev. T. T. Speight, Mr. William E. Chamblee and Miss Mary E. Jenkins.

PRINCE—HOLLOWELL—On July 24th, 1895, at the residence of Mr. Wm. R. Hollowell, the bride's father, Goldsboro, N. C., by Rev. John T. Albritton, Mr. David M. Prince, Principal of Scotland Neck Academy, and Miss Minnie E. Hollowell.

DIED.

LIVINGSTONE—July 20th, 1895, Bro. D. W. Livingstone, after months of suffering, passed away in the sixty-seventh year of his age. For years he has been a deacon in Spring Hill church, Richmond county. He was an unobtrusive Christian, yet his influence, like the drawing of the magnet, was powerfully felt. May the Lord comfort and guide the most excellent family left behind.

M. L. KESLER.

BELL—July 10th, in Camden county, N. C., Miss Helen Bell. She had just entered her twenty-third year. Helen was a model girl, the pride of her parents, and a favorite with her friends. Best of all, she was an earnest Christian, and met death as only a Christian can. Many besides her parents mourn her death, but not as those who have no hope. R. R. OVERBY.

DOWD—Died at her home in Carthage, N. C., May 29th, 1895, in the seventy-first year of her age, sister Mary Ann Dowd. She had been a great sufferer for several years, but bore her sufferings patiently. It was the pleasure of the writer to visit her frequently during her affliction, and he always found her cheerful, rejoicing in the hope she had in Christ. She did not "murmur nor complain," but often said to me, "The Lord's will be done."

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, and the body was laid to rest by the side of her husband in the family burial ground near Carthage. She leaves one daughter and several brothers and sisters to mourn their loss. May the Lord comfort them in their affliction. C. J. F. ANDERSON.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, On June 12th, 1895, God in his infinite and omniscient providence saw fit to take from us our dear member and brother in Christ, Dr. George W. Moseley, who for twenty years had been one of the leading spirits in all that pertained to the Master's work in Mt. Gilead church, Sampson county, N. C.; therefore be it Resolved 1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of him who doeth all things well.

2. That by his death this church has lost a most dear and valuable member, and the cause of Christ a noble and faithful worker.

3. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved widow.

4. That we present her a copy of these resolutions.

5. That these resolutions be spread on our church record.

6. That we request the BIBLICAL RECORDER and the N. C. Baptist to publish these resolutions.

B. MATTHEWS, C. C.

The following resolutions of respect to the memory of Bro. James T. Wood were unanimously adopted by Shiloh Baptist Sunday-school May 26th, 1895:—

WHEREAS, It was the pleasure of God, the Great Architect of the universe, the giver of all good gifts and graces, on May 1st, 1895, to call our much-beloved Bro. Jas. T. Wood from a transitory existence to a more perfect rest, as we fondly hope; be it therefore Resolved 1. That in the death of Bro. Wood this church loses a devoted member and a true friend to the Sunday-school, and an efficient teacher, which position he held one year previous to his death.

2. That as he ever made it his practice in life to do what was right and his duty, he was highly esteemed by all who knew him, and his example is worthy of imitation.

3. That while we deeply feel and mourn our loss, we bow in humble submission to his will who doeth all things well.

4 That our sincere sympathies are extended to the bereaved family, relatives and friends of the deceased, and we commend to those who would be comforted him who will wipe away all tears.

5. That a copy of the resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Sunday-school, and a copy sent to the widow of the deceased; also to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

The Electropoise
TRADE MARK

Following is from one of two testimonials:

The Electropoise has worked wonders in my household. I introduced it to Mrs. Cuthbert as a remedy for rheumatism, and since then she has laid aside sticks and crutches and is able to attend to all her household duties. Another member of my family by using it is better than she has ever been, and I myself find it an admirable tonic when tired out after three sermons on the Sabbath. Several persons have invested in this instrument because of our experience and expression of opinion

Very gratefully, REV. LUCIUS CUTHBERT.

The Home Circle.

"Joseph."

Beyond the farthest bourne of Dan,
O'er lands where Heaven has laid its ban,
Like a spent snake the caravan
Toward Egypt creeps
And oft the wistful Jewish slave
Looks westward, where the cedars lave
With murmurous shade his mother's grave,
Where Rachel sleeps.
Till bathing his bright eyes the mist
Hides the black chain upon his wrist.

From out the loftiest lintelled pile,
That mingled in the mirrored Nile
The lotus on its peristyle
With that mid-stream,
He looks again, through orbs that swim
In tears, where Jacob, old and dim
Of sight, comes chanting Israel's hymn
Of God supreme,
And sobs the purple cannot check
Heave the bright chain about his neck

Whoe'er for Him hath iron worn,
The King's own gold shall yet adorn.

Feeding Land Like Stock.

The farmer that feeds his land well reaps the profits therefrom like another who feeds his stock to make them pay. The man who feeds the best receives the most for the food given. You will sometimes hear a farmer say he has learned a lesson that will be very valuable to him—"he has learned how to keep his stock on a very small amount of food" To the reflective mind that is the very lesson he ought not to learn. The fact is, he should learn to give his animal the greatest amount of food that it can consume to advantage, for the profit clearly comes from the excess of food over that required for support. If he feeds only what sustains life, he gets nothing but life, but if he wishes for growth, that growth must come from the excess of food over what is required to support life, so that the utmost amount of food he can get his stock to assimilate, returns the heaviest profit.

And just so it is in the management of the soil; the more liberal you are in supplying it with suitable food to keep it alive and growing continually, the richer and more profitable will be the crops. He who pursues the opposite course will be guilty of a folly equal to the man who had a fine cow which gave five gallons of milk each day, and as that was more milk than he needed, he said she gave enough milk without any feeding, and so he continued to milk till she ceased to give any at all and died of starvation. Such farmers save their salt and lose their bacon. Feed the soil—at least pay back to it what you take out of it in productive quality and life each year. Don't be in debt to your soil. Pay up.—N. C. Farmer.

Two Boys.

One, the son of a rich merchant in a town, was petted and spoiled. He did not have to work; would go to school but little; soon learned to spend money that he did not earn; spent it freely because he did not know its value; did not go to Sunday school or prayer meeting, and only occasionally heard a sermon. His companions were much like himself. He spent much time in games, drinking, and gambling, and grew up to be a wicked and vicious young man. He married a beautiful Christian woman, and took her from a good home of thrift and plenty. But soon the buoyant spirit was crushed with poverty and the suffering of herself and her children, and she died. A fortune had been spent by idleness, wine, tobacco, and a vicious life.

The other boy was brought up on a farm. In childhood he learned to work, and his merry voice was often heard in songs and hymns as he drove the cows to and from the pasture. He loved to see the sun rise, to hear the cheerful songs of birds, and to watch the romp of the lambs in the meadows in springtime. He was glad to attend school, applied himself diligently, grew up to be an intelligent young man, and became a Christian. He loved good books and good people, had no use for wines or cigars, and spent no time in games or gambling. He has a wife and happy, glad children in his home. Thrift and plenty are found on every side. He has been sought for by business men, and has filled many responsible positions. He is a prosperous business man. His voice is heard in the sanctuary, singing praise on the Sabbath When away from home, he finds the prayer meeting and the Sunday school. He is honored and loved by thousands of people because he is clean and honest. He is a man—a manly man—among men. He now represents a large wholesale business, and no man in the employ of that great firm is more trusted, honored, and loved than this man, who spent his childhood and early manhood on a farm.

The best place to raise a boy is on the farm. Farmers' boys, be true. You are needed, and will be called for soon.—Kind Words.

False Economy

Is practiced by people who buy inferior articles of food. The Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk is the best infant food. Infant Health is the title of a valuable pamphlet for mothers. Sent free by New York Condensed Milk Co., N. C.

Thou, who hast given me eyes to see
And love this sight so fair,
Give me a heart to find out thee.
And read thee everywhere.—Keble.

Remember—only such medicines were admitted for exhibition at the World's Fair as are accepted for use, by physicians, in the practice of medicine, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and Ayer's Pills being included in the list. They are standard medicines.

A Temperance Lecture.

A good instance of proving a point in a fair argument has been put in print as follows, says the Christian Statesman:

A noted temperance lecturer once visited the shop of a hatter and asked him to give something to "the cause." The shopman coldly replied that he had no interest in it, and then it was the temperance man began to instruct him after the Socratic method of question and answer.

"I am sorry to hear that," he said; "for it shows me that you are not acquainted with your own business."

"If you are more familiar with my business than I am," said the man, with some spirit, "I should be happy to take lessons of you"

"Well," said the lecturer, "you deal in hats, and intend to make a little money on every hat you sell?"

"Yes."

"Whatever sends customers to your shop and increases their ability to buy promotes your interest, doesn't it?"

"Certainly."

"Yes"

"Well, sir if you and I were to walk out along the wharves and through the streets and lanes of this city, we should see scores of men wearing on their heads old, miserable, slouch hats, which ought years ago to have been thrown into the fire. Now, why don't those men come at once and buy of you?"

"That is not a difficult question to answer," said the shopman. "They are too poor to buy hats."

"What has more influence than liquor in emptying their pockets; and not only that, but injuring their self respect to such an extent that they are willing to wear old clothes?"

"Nothing," said the man, hastily. "Here is some money for your cause. I am beaten!"

Good Men Wanted.

Woman's tears are precious, as they are poured out on the paths of human suffering. Woman's hands are soft and gentle, as they minister in the sick room, in the hospital, in the home of poverty. Woman's words are mighty as they come welling up from the bottom of loving hearts, in pleading with lost ones. Woman's works are beautiful as they are wrought over all the world in the name of Jesus. Woman's power is well nigh omnipotent when anointed by the Holy Ghost Woman's influence is most blessed in home and school and church Yet, blessed and beautiful and mighty as is the service which the women are rendering to their Lord, the cause of Christ needs men as well.

Men of courage are wanted to stand in the front ranks of truth, to resist and hurl back the assaults of the enemy. Men with keen intellect are wanted to meet sophistries of error and the subtle attacks of infidelity and skepticism. Men with fine business abilities are wanted to carry on the secular affairs of God's house. Men with wealth are wanted to lay money gifts upon the altar to forward the interest of Christ's kingdom. Holy men are wanted to witness for Christ in the face of His enemies. Men with eloquent tongues and burning hearts are wanted to go into all the dark places of the cities, into the purlieus of vice, into the homes of sin to tell the story of the love of God and of the cross of the Redeemer. Men of tender heart and loving sympathy and gentle touch are wanted to give comfort to the world's sorrow, to help other tempted men in their battles, to rescue the perishing out of their bondage.—The Young People's Leader.

James Buchanan was sixty six years old when he was elected President of the United States. He was an able and efficient officer, and yet churches hesitate to elect a man of that age as their pastor. Is there an explanation for this? Cannot a preacher be as able and efficient at three score years of age as the politician and statesman?—Exchange.

Ayer's Hair Vigor
RESTORES
Color, Fullness and Texture TO HAIR
Which has become Wiry, Thin, or Gray.

"Some five years ago, I was not a little alarmed to discover that my hair was falling out, threatening speedy baldness. AYER'S Hair Vigor being recommended, I procured a bottle and at once applied it to my hair and scalp, continuing to do so for several weeks, and was happily surprised that my hair stopped falling and new hair came out full of life and vigor. AYER'S Hair Vigor does not only restore new hair, but gives new life and vigor to its growth, and is a blessing to all who use it." Rev. D. J. How far may a secular paper concern itself with the affairs of a denomination is, at any rate, a question on which there is no little need of light hereabouts. For our own part, if some one should ask how far may a religious paper concern itself with secular affairs, we would say, first let it go no further than its knowledge of these affairs, which is a good rule for any paper; secondly, let it not meddle with parties, that is, let it tell the truth about political events, but let it studiously avoid reprimanding parties or giving them advice. But this does not settle the first question.

A church man is usually a citizen, but a citizen may not be a church man; and for this reason, a secular paper may not go as far into church matters as a church paper may go into public matters, though either may go too far.

A newspaper's function is above all things to print the news pure and unadulterated, whether it "hurts the feelings" of the editor, the editor's wife's mother, his bosom companion or his chief enemy. Nothing should stop the news. If he gives color to it, he tells half a lie; if he conceals part of it he tells another. If he crowds his columns with murders and covers up good deeds he does his people an injustice. What we want is the news as it is. Further than this the people are not exacting, if the editor of the paper is sensible and discreet.

But there's the rub. All editors are not sensible and discreet, none are always and some never are. Especially true does this appear when an editor who has always been wrapped up in office hunting and political schemes, low and high, attempts to form an opinion on the actions of representatives of a denomination. He takes it that they are all after office or preferment like politicians, he sees schemes such as he himself has often made, he forgets that men yet live who act from motives pure and worthy. How much better for him to keep his suspicions to himself and say "we do not know," which is the truth. Not only such men as these do not know, but any editor who attends to his work cannot know enough about a denomination to set himself up for a general censor and high counsellor. In fact the denominational editors themselves usually have their hands full without attempting this much.

Certainly a fool ought to know better than to try to make a denomination do thus or so. The spectacle of an editor setting himself up to drive a denomination into doing any thing, or to make a fight for any cause, is laughable in the extreme. Such work always hurts its own cause.

Now, of course, when a denomination receives aid or favors from the State, it is a different matter, but our idea of a denomination is one that supports its own objects and is in this respect a private affair. It is not for us to be making rules for secular editors; if they are sensible they will have as few as possible and make them to suit themselves. We are sure, however, the need for serious thinking along this line has been so brilliantly made manifest that our remarks will not be taken as impertinent.

THE frequency of rumors about the intentions of prominent public men in regard to the Presidency shows nothing if not the scarcity of news. Any body knows that Harrison will run if he can, just as Cleveland did, and any body knows that, however ambitious he may be (without saying that he is), there is not the remotest danger of the President running for a third term.

The honest truth is newspaper news is at a low ebb, and will be until Congress meets. So small a thing as the Cuban rebellion is subject for innumerable contradictory reports.

In our State papers the news has taken more of an industrial aspect of late, politics having quietly subsided; and this gives a wholesome and hopeful tone to affairs in general. It will do any one good to read of the new enterprises and enlargements that are going on in North Carolina, and especially when he reflects that it is in a time of depression, contracted currency, etc., etc.

We believe North Carolina will be the best State on earth to grow up in, if she only will protect herself by providing schools for her children, and giving Christian people a fair chance to provide schools for her young men and women.

THE State Treasury is $250,000 poorer than it was this time last year. There is no ground for alarm in this, nor is there any political thunder. The money can be accounted for in that certain expenses were necessarily incurred this year and also certain payments came due.

The discouraging forecasts as to tax assessments decreasing twenty five per cent. are proving untrue. The railroad assessments were increased, and there will be no great change, if any, in real estate and corporations. The indications are that the State is, and has been for five years, faring better than any of her sisters in the South or West.

IT is estimated that the corn crop in this country this year will the largest in history, amounting to 2 400,000,000 bushels; a crop of 9,000,000 bales of cotton has been reckoned, which is more than the demand.

At the rate North Carolina is growing into diversification of earth products and of industries she will soon be established above the rising or falling, or under production or over-production of any one thing.

THE Pan American Congress, of which no little note was once taken, has been in session at Toronto. Nearly one thousand delegates were present.

The Congress has to deal with many matters, and leading sincere reformers take part in it. Speaking on municipal reform the other day one of the members stated that Cambridge, Mass., in 1886 had 70,000 population and 133 saloons, and to-day has 85,000 population and not one saloon. Yet there are people who prate of "material prosperity," which should have no weight even if it were dependent on liquor selling.

In this connection it is pertinent to cite another instance of experience disproving the arguments of saloon-men. In New York the saloons have been successfully closed on Sunday several Sundays in succession, and yet it has been often said that a law can not be enforced if public sentiment is against it, which is of course the attitude of public sentiment in New York in this matter.

A FINE example of the blind leading the blind and a warning to organized labor is the boycott on National Bank Notes ordered by Grand Master Sovereign of the Knights of Labor. In the first place he cannot succeed, for the simple reason that there are too many people too anxious to get money to inquire whether it is a silver certificate or a bank note, and, secondly, if he did succeed, he would make it all the worse for the people, because by retiring the $211,000,000 of them our currency would be contracted just that much.

WE have been requested to investigate and state our opinion of a woman who is representing to the people about Fort Barnwell, N. C., that she has a new revelation and is inspired. She is one of the faith curists, Christian scientist impostors who hold that there is no such thing as human affliction and that these pains people complain of are errors of their imaginations.

Mere statement of such doctrine is sufficient to repel intelligent people; but there are others, superstitious, ignorant, or emotional, on whom these impositions are practiced. Right here before us we read that a good old sister (about 70 years of age), an invalid nearly all her life, "never failed a day in five years to take some kind of medicine," has been restored by these pious frauds and has not taken a dose of medicine since. Probably any practical person could have told her that too much medicine is worse than none at all. If the woman had died the faith curists would have said it was because she was incredulous. As she got well, no doubt by reason of letting up on "doses," the faith curist took credit to herself for it.

The best argument we know of to meet these blessed, painless people with is a good sharp pin.

RUSSIA and Japan are seriously at odds. The greater nation is jealous of Japan's conquests, and refuses to acquiesce in her efforts to take the lands ceded by China. Japan has been told that she must evacuate the Liao Tong peninsula at once, according to her agreement. It is to be hoped that peace will be reached, but the state of affairs is not very promising.

The Sunday-school Idea.

BY N. B. BROUGHTON.

Is the Sunday-school idea growing? We believe so. There are grave reasons for it too, for there was a time, we are told, when the Bible was taught in the home. A time when the mother gathered the children about her and read to them out of "God's Book," and when they were told the beautiful stories of Isaac, Joseph, Samuel, David, the Hebrew children, and of the young child Jesus.

They tell us too that they used to weave the stories of the Bible into song, and these constituted for most part the songs of the Sunday school.

We have largely gone beyond these old-fashioned ways. The Sunday-school of to-day is not that of twenty five years ago. The present ought to be much better than the past, although some of our older people will not be persuaded that it is so.

But if in too many of our homes the Biblical instruction of the children has been turned over to the Sunday school—as we heard a speaker say a few days ago that it had—if this is so, then there is every reason why there should be an enlargement of the Sunday school idea.

Our pastors need to give more attention to this department of our church work. More care should be exercised in putting the right man at the head of the school. Simply that he is a good man, or sings, or that he loves children, or all of these combined is not enough. The superintendent, of course, must be a man of positive Christian character; he must have energy, tact, executive ability. He need not be an autocrat, governing by his own will, but he should have sufficient force of character to be able to plan and guide the work.

No man can put life and interest in a work in which he shows none. The Sunday-school, therefore, will not go beyond its head in its spirit and life.

Then, again, too little attention is given to the equipment of the school. The church in its conference makes no enquiry as to the needs of the school; the pastor does not look after it, and so it happens that very few schools have a sufficient supply of quarterlies, lesson leaves, Bibles, song books, books for the library, etc. These, without which the work can not be properly conducted.

Not only these requisites in name, but the proper kind. There is a great deal of trash under the head of Sunday school supplies.

Our Associations are now meeting. "The Sunday school" will be among the topics for discussion. We suggest as opening up the subject that each pastor be requested to report the number of Sunday schools under his charge, their condition, their equipment, etc., and what the church does for maintaining these schools.

While we believe the Sunday-school idea is on the up-grade, we also believe that there are a great many pastors and churches that do not appreciate and grasp the immense possibilities of the Sunday school. They do not see that the opportunity for development in every department of the church is in the proper training of the Sunday-school.

In this connection I would urge all pastors who feel the need of a quickening interest in the Sunday school work for themselves, and all who desire to help the superintendents under their charge to attend the Sunday-school Chautauqua at Red Springs, August 13th-18th.

Every superintendent should be there if possible for him to get away from home and business.

To Wake Forest Alumni.

At a called meeting of the Alumni Association on Thursday of the last closing exercises, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"1. The principles upon which the Students' Aid Fund is dispensed are, we believe, the proper ones; for, while furnishing substantial aid to the needy student, they do not take from him that independent spirit which a direct gift would smother.

"2. It is the duty of every alumnus of Wake Forest College to promote, in a practical manner, the objects aimed at by the Fund, viz., the upbuilding of our College and the encouragement of our young men. For these two reasons,

"Resolved 1. That we, the members of the Alumni Association of Wake Forest College, do pledge ourselves, each individual of us, to pay to the Students' Aid Fund on or before the first day of October of each year for the next ten years, the sum of $5 00.

"2. That nothing be taken as a valid excuse or reason for failure to pay $5 00 in any year except a certificate from a new student that he was influenced to come to Wake Forest College by the alumnus failing to pay.

"3. That a copy of these resolutions be mailed to each alumnus with a blank attached for his endorsement."

There is no need, I am sure, of any explanation as to the meaning or purpose of these resolutions. I am writing this letter merely to emphasize, if I can, the importance of carefully considering them and complying with their stipulations unless there is some very great obstacle in the way. I know that money isn't any more plentiful among Wake Forest alumni than among other people, and I know also that calls for contributions for various charities come in rather too rapid succession for them always to be received with the best possible grace. But this call is not an ordinary one, and, as it appeals most imperatively to the alumni of Wake Forest College, it is directed to them alone.

In giving of your means to the Students' Aid Fund, you are not making a clean gift to any individual student. If this were the case, for one, I should not be at all inclined to endorse the resolutions. For I should feel that the manliness and self-respect of the student, receiving the use of my money, would be more or less compromised. It is not a gift to the student, let it be repeated. He repays every cent with interest, nor does he get the loan without giving good security. Your gift is not a deed of charity, either, to Wake Forest College. On the contrary, that institution takes under its charge a given student, who has the use of your money, and creates in him the ability to pay the debt he has incurred, and, at the same time, seeks to instil in his mind a sense of duty such as will require the honorable discharge of all obligations resting upon him.

It will be observed that two alternatives are offered. Either may be chosen. About the second it is only necessary to say that you cannot do a young man a greater service than to convince him that the capabilities within him are worthy of development, and, this done, to direct him to some institution of learning at which he can obtain the needed training.

It is no light thing to put one's name to these resolutions. For a man doesn't know what reverses of fortune may come upon him. But I believe that the alumni of Wake Forest will undertake great things for it and that they are going to seize this opportunity of extending its usefulness.

According to resolution three, a printed copy of the resolutions, with blank for endorsement, will be mailed to each of the alumni, except those whose addresses I may not be able to obtain at once. With each copy of the resolutions there will be sent a pamphlet, giving the history of the establishment of the 'Students' Aid Association," its charter, and rules for loans and investments. I urge all who receive this pamphlet to read it—every line—and, in particular, the two or three pages taken up in the discussion of "A Grave Question." Attention is called also to rules one and five on page nine, that all donations shall belong to and be a part of The Permanent Fund of the Association unless otherwise ordered by the donor.

R. W. HAYWOOD,
Sec and Treas Alumni Association.

Chicago and Its University.

In accordance with the suggestion in a recent issue of the RECORDER, I have decided to give your readers some of my impressions of Chicago in general and its University in particular. Of course, a few weeks' sojourn is not sufficient to give one much definite knowledge about a city so vast in size or a University so complex in its work; but a careful observer may draw a few general conclusions.

In the first place, the city does not seem to be as wicked as I expected to find it. It has more than eight thousand saloons, but these supply a population of more than sixteen hundred thousand. One may spend a whole day on its crowded streets and not see any signs of drink or disorder. On the 4th of July, which is observed here very much like Christmas in North Carolina, being a general holiday, I attended a picnic of laboring men in a park, in which there were probably forty thousand persons. It was easy to see that they were of the rougher elements of the population. Yet in all that mighty throng I saw no disorder and only one man under the influence of liquor.

But without doubt there is much wickedness here. The people do not go to church. On my first Sunday in the city, I attended a prices in a wealthy and fashionable church. The ceremonies were imposing, the music grand, the preacher, a man of national reputation, eloquent (when he could forget his manuscript long enough), but the audience was exceedingly small. It was composed of old men and ladies. There were not a half dozen men under thirty years of age. Once in a while when the preacher would pause to adjust his robes or find a new paragraph in his manuscript, the shouts from a base-ball game a few hundred yards away could be distinctly heard.

At night I attended the First Baptist church and heard Dr. Henson. The great audience room and galleries were crowded. His theme was the "Need for a New Declaration of Independence." We must declare ourselves free from foreign rule and domestic tyranny, foreign politics, foreign religion and foreign irreligion. In discussing the interference of the Pope in our affairs, he called loud applause from the audience. In speaking of foreign religion, he was especially severe on those persons who are afraid to express an opinion until German theologians have spoken. He believes in the old-fashioned gospel and has no patience with the new theology and higher criticism. I have been in the habit of thinking my own esteemed pastor one of the staunchest defenders of the old paths in religion, but I am almost inclined to put Dr. Henson ahead of him in this respect. In sermon every that I have heard him preach, he has in some way criticised or ridiculed the modern tendency in religion. By the way, I heard the pastor of another Baptist church here, a young man of marked ability, say while discussing the best way to bring Chicago to Christ, that he favored the organization of societies in their place, but that the church claimed our first service, and that the simple power of the gospel was sufficient to save the world. This young preacher must have heard the pastor of Wake Forest church somewhere, otherwise he could hardly have quoted him so perfectly.

From what I have been able to see, I should certainly consider the Baptists as strong here as any other denomination in numbers, wealth and influence. Dr. Henson's congregations are equaled only by those of Dr. Gunsaulus, Congregationalist, an orator of matchless magnetism and power. I heard him preach a sermon on the doctrine of evolution, taking as his subject Romans 8: 22—"For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now." I would like to give a synopsis of his wonderful discourse, but have not time.

I remember that I started to say something about the University and have wandered on in an aimless way till my letter is long enough; but I will add a few words.

The design of the University is grand and unique. Some idea of this may be obtained from the fact that the buildings already completed, thirteen in number, have cost $1,825,000. And these are but the beginning. In all the world there will be nothing to compare with it in splendor and magnitude when the buildings contemplated in its general plan have been completed. It was opened for students in 1892. For the year ending July 1, it enrolled over 1,500 students. And the indications now are, that for the current session this number will be almost doubled. There are men and women here from nearly every State in the Union. The South is well represented. There are six members of the Faculty of Mercer University here. There are five North Carolinians—Prof. Simmons of William Jewell, Miss Simmons of Eufaula, Ala., Miss Johnson of Elon College, Prof. Mossley of Mercer University, and myself. Nearly every civilized nation on the globe is represented among the Faculty and students. The great German scholar and author, Von Holst, is Professor of History. On the day of my arrival I sat down to dinner with natives of Germany, Sweden, and Japan. Before the close of the Term, I will write more at length of the work of the University.

Letters from some of the Wake Forest boys inform me that they are hard at work for new students. Let every old student try to bring one man at least. Let every alumnus do his part in carrying out the resolution introduced by Mr. J. W. Denmark at the meeting in June.

I send special greeting to members of my Sunday-school class with the gentle reminder that our next meeting will be on the first day of September, when I trust we shall all be able to make a good report of the summer's work.

"Prepare to Meet Thy God"—Amos 4: 12

These words, spoken to the inhabitants of Syria, &c., it seems to me, are applicable to the generations of the present day, who are still "in the gall of bitterness and in the bonds of iniquity." "Stop, poor sinner, stop and think, before you further go!" "When the great day of his wrath has come, who shall be able to stand!" The appointed time makes haste, when you shall be at the great roll call to give an account of your stewardship. The poet has pictured it in a grand and solemn strain; we will quote a few verses:

"The chariot! the chariot! the wheels roll on fire,
As the Lord cometh down in the pomp of his ire;
So self-moving it drives on its pathway of cloud,
And the heavens with the burden of God-head are bowed.

The glory! the glory! around him are poured
Mighty hosts of the angels that wait on the Lord;
And the glorified saints and the martyrs are there,
And there all whom the palm wreaths of victory wear.

The trumpet! the trumpet! the dead have all heard,
To the depths of the sea covered charnel are stirred
From the sea, from the earth, from the south from the north,
All the vast generations of man are come forth.

The judgment! the judgment! the throne are all set,
Where the lamb and the white vested elders are met;
There all flesh is at once in the sight of the Lord,

The gracious Father has crowned you with blessings too manifold to be told. His tender watchcare has been over you all the days of your life. He has wooed you to embrace his love; has waited long, is waiting still. "He would not that any should perish, but that all should come to him and live." Well may the Psalmist have said, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits." "To-day if ye will hear his voice harden not your hearts." All the fitness he requireth is to feel your need of him.

Oh, friendly sinner, that you may give earnest heed to these solemn reflections, should be the prayer of every Christian soldier.

J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

EVERY boy and every girl in the State is entitled to an education. Parents, of all people, ought to be last to hinder them, and first to help them. There can be no danger of mistake, provided there is something in the boy or girl, and provided further a good institution is chosen.

IT is estimated that of all the children of school age (not under six nor over twenty-one years) in North Carolina, sixty-six per cent. are in public schools and eight per cent. in private or denominational schools; that is, one-fourth of the children in North Carolina are growing up in illiteracy. This will never do. We must have more schools, better schools and longer schools.

THERE are 133 children at our Orphanage—charges on the hands of the Baptists of North Carolina. They have many friends, but they need more. If there were room and support, many other little ones could be properly cared for and started in life with some education. The pastors of our churches can do a great work by calling their peoples' attention to these little helpless children.

BAPTISTS are broad—uncomfortably and undesirably broad; they are the broadest people in North Carolina, and we regret that they are. Secretary Stringfield has investigated, and he tells us that while he has looked in vain for a Catholic or an Episcopalian or a Presbyterian or a Methodist or a Moravian girl in a Baptist school in North Carolina, he has found Baptist girls in every kind of school.

Let us learn a lesson of narrowness, of common sense and duty, from our pedo brethren.

HERE it is, just as the old fogies predicted. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian church appointed a committee at the last meeting to consider the relation of the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Societies to the church, there being a feeling that the young people were being alienated. At the Christian Endeavor Convention in Boston the Presbyterians who were there (about 10,000) met and passed resolutions declaring their loyalty to the church, but asking that it give the Christian Endeavor Societies "full ecclesiastical recognition."

WE HAVE known more than one well-meaning brother to make trouble for himself, his friends and his cause by using comparisons. A striking simile is always effective, and, if it is rightly put, always in order. But those which draw more attention to themselves than to the matter to be illustrated should always be avoided. Any figure of speech that is more attractive than its subject is a bad figure, and should not be used, no matter how "beautiful" or high-sounding.

We hope our public speakers will bear in mind that, while similes are good and effective, comparisons are odious, and avoid at least all personal ones.

IF THERE is not an immediate offering of money for the Female University, the builders will have to stop work. The structure has reached the second story; it would incur serious loss if it should be exposed to the weather at this stage for any long period of time. Secretary Stringfield is getting out a general address to the people. Secretary Edwards is meeting them face to face and collecting money and getting pledges in a way to encourage us. The work must go on. Let there be no stopping. There is need for the institution; it has a great mission. To put off its completion is to give the cause a back set. God grant that the Baptist people of North Carolina may rise up to the call and put away forever further doubts of the future of this noble enterprise.

TO GET a lead is something difficult, but to keep it is not so hard; and especially is this true when one gets a good lead with so little exertion that he does not know it, as our churches have this year.

We show up $2,500 better this year for State Missions than last year this time, $1,000 better off for State Missions, and $700 better off for Foreign Missions. It would be unwise, not to say unbecoming, not to keep up this general improvement until the end of the year, and try to improve on it next year.

With this in view, let us try to increase the number of givers, and all the while try to be more systematic in giving. The responsibility for these things rests upon the pastors, who ought to be leaders in every good work.

THE MISSION OF OUR BACKWARDNESS.

North Carolinians are looked upon as 'backward' people by the average citizen of the United States,—not exactly in a disparaging sense, but as meaning not abreast with the times. Indeed, North Carolinians look upon themselves as backward. We speak of ourselves as a 'conservative' people—perhaps a little too proudly for our good. In some respects we are to day where New England was half a century ago—in industrial investments, for instance, we are just beginning to utilize our natural resources; in the field of education we are just beginning to make a way to wipe out illiteracy and to raise up an educated citizenship, in civil affairs we are just coming into a larger view of the power and the responsibility of the individual, there are signs of an awakening to the need of a Literature and a History, in Religion we are coming more and more to feel our duty to those beyond and in darkness. New England has had immigration to contend with, and is hardly as well off as she was, from certain worthy points of view. North Carolina has had the Negro and his false friends as her obstacles, and she is rising above them by educating the former and teaching him his station.

If anything, the backwardness of the average North Carolinian is intensified in Baptist North Carolinians. We owe little or nothing to foreign countries in religion as well as in citizenship. A people pure of blood and untouched by aliens is always solid and backward, in that good sense of clinging to "the old," not because it is old, but to so much of the old as is good, desiring rather to make the mistake in not going far enough than in going too far. These things are characteristic of North Carolina Baptists.

New England was backward until immigration vitiated her citizenship; such also will be the history of North Carolina if she does not take care in time. The tide of immigration has set Southward, and it is not going to stop until our country comes to the level of general citizenship.

Now let it be said that there is room for as much patience with those who hold to "the old" because of its age as there is for those who advocate the new because it is new. The standard is God's will, Christ's example and the revelations of his Word. Between a heathen Chinee and an infidel German scientist there is no choice, at least so far as spiritual things are concerned—and they are concerned to the uttermost now and ever.

But there is hardly any danger of North Carolina as a State or of the Baptist denomination being too backward in the coming years, and while there is more danger of her getting to be too advanced by reason of sudden growth and the inflow of immigration and the contact inevitable in a larger State-life, so much of this as is unwholesome can be avoided, if thought is taken in time.

The South, particularly the churches of the Southern Baptist Convention, more particularly North Carolina and the Baptist churches of North Carolina, have a most important mission in our National development to fulfil. It is a fact now generally acknowledged that one has to come South to see American life. To us has been given the responsibility of preserving our national identity, and with it comes also the duty of maintaining the strength and the purity of our religion. This is the mission of the backwardness which has so often been flung upon us for a reproach, but which we are coming to be proud of. Shall we rise equal to the moment, or shall the new order of things now in its beginnings absorb us too, and make of us a race of mad money hunters and foolish followers of "new ideas"?

We must man the State against the invasion that is coming, must man it with Baptist churches; and so must the South be manned. In the face of ignorance, indifference, vice, false religion and irreligion, there is nothing so saving as churches in which the pure and simple gospel is preached. As we heard said in a public speech a few days ago, the gospel is the only thing we have for our protection, unless it be a tyrant with soldiers and arms. Where employer and employee are Christians there are no clashes of Labor and Capital. Where the gospel of Jesus Christ is preached in its purity, higher critics cannot flourish.

Our section is the one remaining to be taken by new ideas. That it will be taken by them in all material relations is not to be doubted. Nor is it to be feared if we will take the takers with our religion. If the South does this (and it can) it will have more than replaced the loss by war. As the largest source of influence in the South, the churches of the Southern Baptist Convention have now a heavy responsibility upon them and a chance to do great things for God and country that they may not have again. As the largest source of influence in North Carolina, the State in which there is likelihood of most industrial progress, the churches of our Convention have even a heavier responsibility.

May it be that the mission of our backwardness shall be fulfilled, may our people be an efficient balance wheel in the stirring progress that bids fair to mark the near future.

DEATH OF MRS. W. D. KING.

Our China mail could not have brought us sadder or more unexpected news than that conveyed in the letters published elsewhere: "Sister Knight" dead! And the announcement will bring forth expressions of sorrow throughout our denomination in this State, and particularly in the Chowan Association, where she was well known and loved. Her bright letters won friends for her even where nothing was known of her personally.

She was an efficient worker, sincere of motive, and consecrated. Her career shows that she was a woman of unusual force of character. But God has called her to her Master while she seemed to be just on the threshold of larger usefulness. It is well with her; but the work and the workers are sorely bereft. Already has she done more for the cause than can be estimated. It can be truly said of her "she hath done what she could," she gave her life.

While our sympathy goes out to the grieving parents and husband, we know that they have blessed consolation in the knowledge that their dear one has entered into rest.

CENTRAL ASSOCIATION.

This body, consisting of twenty-six churches (having just received the West Raleigh Baptist church), met July 30, with Mt. Vernon church, near Neuse, Rev. A. D. Hunter, pastor, and continued in active session three days.

This was the thirty sixth session of the Association, and if those who have been regularly attending are to be believed, it was the best. The attendance the second day was about seven hundred. All through the session the churches were well represented.

The reports from some of the churches were encouraging, but from others they were not. There were several that reported only seventy-five dollars paid for pastor's salary, and contributions to none of the objects. Some of them have no Sunday-schools. These things ought not to be in the Central Association, whose bounds are honored with the location of our Convention's most useful enterprises. The Association, being the first of the season and having unusually intelligent leaders, ought to try to set a mark for the others.

The discussions from first to last were remarkably good. Dr. Carter made strong and original speeches on Periodicals, Home and Foreign Missions. Dr. Taylor and Hon. J. C. Scarborough added much to the interest and value of the meeting with speeches on Education and Home Missions. Dr. Durham's speech on State Missions was looked forward to with great interest. It filled us all with hope, as he told of the work that has been done and is now on foot, and showed the unusually good condition of our treasury. Said he, "We are now more on the upgrade than in any time in recent years; progress is being made everywhere." Dr. Gwaltney represented the Board of Education and obtained pledges to the amount of about $500. This Association does more for this Board than any other Association. Secretary Stringfield made a fine impression with his earnest effort for the education of women. It was good to see how popular he is among his own people as he went about shaking hands and getting kind words on all sides. His speech is being put in pamphlet form for general distribution. It ought to have a thorough and extensive circulation.

The subject of education was taken up in sections, as indicated in the divisions of the report, which we will publish next week, and which we commend as an admirable model for Associational reports on the subject. Bro. N. Y. Gulley, Moderator of the Association made a powerful speech on the report Thursday morning.

Orphanage, Sunday-schools and colportage were ably discussed, and encouraging reports were adopted.

It was decided to combine the Union Meetings of the Association, and ordered that they meet in one body at Forestville next fifth Sunday.

In the absence of Bro. Gulley, the Moderator, who had to give some of his time to his flourishing Law School at Wake Forest, our venerable Bro. P. A. Dunn filled the chair with grace and despatched business in rapid order.

The next session will be held with Roesville church.

A committee was appointed, which apportioned the contributions expected of the Association among the churches.

The entertainment was all that could be desired. Brother Hunter is to be envied in having such a people to preach to. The Association met with this church in 1861. There were some there last week who attended then. It is a new generation that entertained the thirty-sixth session, but it showed that it is filled with the free handed, whole souled spirit of its fathers.

NEWS NOTES.

....What agriculture is to the earth, education is to man.—Independent.

....The "Dan Valley" church was recently organized in the Pilot Mountain Association.

....Rev. E. Y. Mullins' Baltimore pulpit will be supplied part of this month by Rev. L. G. Broughton.

....Prof. A. T. Robertson of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary is resting and studying in Nelson county, Ky.

....Rev. Hight C. Moore passed through Raleigh Friday returning to Monroe after a pleasant vacation spent at Goldsboro.

....If there are any who sent for "The Baptist Position" and have not received it, we would be glad to be informed of it.

....The Franklinville church will withdraw from the Sandy Creek Association and join the young but vigorous Piedmont.

....Rev. T. M. Baldwin changes his address from Rice to Spencer, N. C. We thank him for sending us a new subscriber.

....Rev. G. N. Cowan has taken charge of the church at Clayton, Ga. His friends may address him there.—W. N. C. Baptist.

....Dr. G. A. Nunnally of Memphis, Tenn., has gone to La Grange, Ga., where he takes charge of a college for young women.

....Solicitor Herbert A. Seawell and Miss Ella B. McNeill were united in marriage at Carthage July 30th. We send best wishes.

....43.85 per cent. of the people of North Carolina are church members. This is far above the average, which is about 27 per cent.

....Wake Forest College can accommodate and ought to open with three hundred students. It will, if its friends do their part.

....When I hear people continually talking about their rights, I am inclined to think they are overlooking their duties.—Dr. Carter.

....Rev. Joseph E. Armstrong is now preaching regularly at Yanceyville, Milton, Shiloh and Providence churches. He lives at Danville.

....Prof. J. H. Gorrell of Wake Forest College is at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, getting some works ready for publication.

....President Taylor of Wake Forest College is attending the Southern Biblical Assembly. He was engaged to deliver an address before it.

....Prof. B. Puryear, formerly chairman of the faculty of Richmond College, has gone to Edgewood farm, Virginia, where he will conduct a school for boys.

....The Protestant population of the United States increased between 1880 and 1890 forty-two per cent. The population increased twenty five per cent.

....A contemporary points out that just now when the people are thinking so much on 'honest money' it is a good time to teach a lesson in honest money-making.

....Let information be the key-note of our associational meetings; let every one come to learn more of the work and go away prepared and determined to tell others.

....Some Pedobaptists would rather get Baptists into discussion than to see a circus. The remarkable thing about it is that they sometimes find a Baptist who will gratify their evil designs.

....The little membership at Walkertown are doing what they can to build a house of worship. This church is in the Pilot Mountain Association, and deserves the help of the denomination.

....The plan of appointing committees a year ahead, worked well at the Central Association last week. The reports were well thought out, and the speeches were fresh and vigorous.

....Rev. N. R. Pittman of Missouri is on a visit to his venerable father, Rev. A. R. Pittman, in Robeson county. The worthy son of a worthy father; they both are honored servants of the Master.

....It is encouraging news that Bro. Edwards sends: Five hundred dollars given the Female University by Mr. J. B. Crudup of Kittrell in honor of his father, Rev. Josiah Crudup of blessed memory.

....According to the United States census reports there is, proportionately to population, a larger number of communicants in cities than in rural districts. Does any one ask in which is the most religion?

....Rev. J. J. Payseur has been preaching the gospel effectually at Steel Creek, near Charlotte. Twelve persons have been baptized, and others will be. We will print a letter from Bro. Payseur next week.

....We learn that Rev. J. A. Howard, formerly pastor of the Baptist church here, has resigned his pastorate in Tallapoosa, Ga., and has removed to Atlanta and will engage in journalism.—Reidsville Review.

....One of the most remarkable growths in the history of missions is that which took place in Madagascar during the period between 1867 and 1870. In three years the converts grew from 13,663 to 231,759.—Examiner.

....Pastor W. F. Fry of the Bayboro-Vandemere-Oregon field, in the extreme east, an important locality, was in Raleigh the first of the week; and we are glad to know that the efforts he made to obtain money to complete a church house were favorably responded to. Bro. Fry will remain with this people, for work among whom he seems to be peculiarly fitted.

....Rev. W. T. Jones of Goldsboro, one of our best pastors, will about Sept. 1st give up his present churches and accept work in Virginia, to which he has been called. This is our loss, but Virginia's gain.

....The city parson who yearns for the rest that brings no rust should go hunting this summer for a few protracted meetings in the country where there is no night preaching.—Richmond Christian Advocate.

....The Waldensian colony in Burke county were recently received into the fellowship of the Presbyterian church. We have heard with regret that the crops of these people are so poor that they are discouraged.

....Mr. Ivey Allen of Littleton was elected Treasurer of the Thomasville Orphanage at the meeting of the Board of Directors last week. The Board could not have gotten a better man in the State for this position.—Warrenton Record.

....Rev. J. T. Edmondson has been doing successful evangelistic work since he left North Carolina, and was last week engaged at Marah Market, Va. We are glad to hear that he purposes going back into the pastorate, if the door is opened to him.

....There is a church in Philadelphia for every 1,577 people, which entitles it to the distinction of being called the city of churches. There is a church in Brooklyn for every 2,105 people, one in Chicago for every 2,300 people, in New York for every 2,838.

....Dr. W. W. Landrum of Richmond, Va., has announced that he will recommend to his church at the next conference meeting the adoption of the individual communion cup. Now let the church teach her pastor a lesson and decline to follow him in his folly.

....Bro. N. B. Broughton spent several days last week at the Southern Biblical Assembly, hearing Dr. Noah K. Davis lecture on the "Life of Christ," which is by far the most attractive feature on the Assembly's program. Bro. Broughton also spoke on the Sunday-school.

....Rev. C. V. Brooks, who is now conducting Bunn Level Academy, writes that our Cumberland Union church is enjoying a revival of religion. His school opened August 5th with good prospects. Brother Brooks is a former Wake Forest student and a worthy young man.

....Rev. W. L. Wright of Richmond will begin a meeting with Pastor Merrill at Troy next Sunday. We see that Rev. Oscar Haywood of Huntsville, Ala., preached a sermon at Troy recently, which was spoken of by the Trojan in the highest terms. Bro. Wright passed through Raleigh Monday.

....Seeing the note about the proposed new church at Burlington, Pastor Gwaltney of Wake Forest remarked that he was at Burlington when there was not a Baptist to be found anywhere in the vicinity. It would be hard to make Bro. VanDeventer confess that his flourishing field was ever a "waste place."

....We were glad to see Bro. J. C. Clifford of Davie county in Raleigh last week. He was on his way to Dunn, Harnett county, where he takes charge of the high school. Bro. Clifford is a well prepared and a conscientious teacher, and we bespeak for him the hearty support of our brethren about Dunn.

....Rev. Arthur C. Ludlow of Cleveland, Ohio, is making serious efforts to establish "Men's Leagues" in the churches. He says such organizations will do great good by bringing about "united, intelligent, enthusiastic action." He says also that "the social receptions should not be left entirely to the ladies."

....Rev. C. S. Cashwell is aiding pastor C. M. Murchison in a meeting at Penelope. We are sorry the report has been spread that Bro. Murchison will leave Penelope and go to Morganton. We have been informed that he will remain at Penelope and continue teaching his excellent school and preaching on his field.

....Rev. William H. Reddish, who after three years of good work at Wake Forest, entered the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary last fall, will not return to North Carolina this vacation, but is working hard for the Lord, preaching in Kentucky and Indiana. He will re enter the Seminary, and come back to his native State later.

....Bishop Potter, candidate for Primate (Pope) of the Episcopal church in America, the same who is a luminous member of a New York Social club which sells whiskey on Sunday, is working among the poor of New York City this summer instead of taking his usual trip to Europe. This is inconsistency of the most dazzling variety.

....Boys Brigades' from twenty-five Baptist churches are in camp at Cornwall, N. Y. We quote, "The boys are under strict military regulations, time being allowed for boating, swiming, foot-ball, games and strolls. The food is good. During the Fourth they enjoyed their fireworks, and no one was injured." And they call this religion!

....Prof. S. C. Mitchell of Georgetown, Ky., has been chosen Professor of Latin in Richmond College, succeeding Prof. Edmund Harrison. Old Richmond is now equipped with a remarkably young and a remarkably well educated faculty. That she will grow into a great institution we have no doubt. There are already many signs of a renewal of life, and we hope she may go continually forward.

....Rev. John C. Hoyett of Burlington writes: "I have just closed a meeting at Mt. Adar. The Holy Spirit was present, strengthening Christians, and there was some real interest among the unconverted, but none yielded themselves to Christ. The surrounding conditions were unfavorable during the meeting, we expect to protract again in the near future."

....Rev. Frank Dixon of Hartford, Conn., preached in the Second Baptist church, Richmond, Sunday.

....A Broadus Memorial church, says the Religious Herald, with fifty-five members has been organized in Richmond, most of the members coming from Bro. Wright's flock.

....After a very successful pastorate of several years, Rev. N. S. Jones of Salisbury has resigned. Bro. Jones is one of the foremost of our young men, and we hope his plans are fixed to remain in North Carolina.

....There are 199 Baptist newspapers and periodicals printed in the United States, fifty five being weeklies. Of these latter the South and Southwest support 89. There are 3,500,000 Baptists, at least, in this country.

....Dr. N. B. Cobb has returned from Sampson county, where he has been aiding pastor C. F. Hopper in a good meeting at Bethel church. There were several conversions. Dr. Cobb filled his regular appointment at Pittsboro Sunday. The true worker that he is, he is giving his spare time to holding meetings.

....A Texas correspondent writes to the Christian Index of Baptist affairs in Texas and says: "Here is some idea of our growth: Fifty nine years ago there wasn't a Baptist church on Texas soil, and there were only two or three preachers. Now (including colored people) there are approximately 4,000 churches, 3,200 preachers and 250,000 members."

....The Dover Association, one of the strongest in Virginia met last week, and her sixty-one churches reported a net gain in membership of 112. As the Leigh Street church, Richmond gained precisely this number, it is just to infer that the other sixty almost stood still. And yet the old stronghold made a rally and pledged to raise $5,000 for State Missions.

....Rev. J. G. Blalock commenced his pastorate of the Laurinburg Baptist church Sunday with two sermons that impressed our people with his ability of to day, and his possibilities in the future. Appointments at other churches were called in for Sunday night and the people, pastor and congregations, turned out and worshiped with their Baptist brethren.—Laurinburg Exchange.

....Our Ministerial Relief Board is not able to have a general travelling representative, and for this reason it becomes those who have the order of business of our Associations in hand to see to it that a favorable hour is set for discussing this noble work. Surely it is not necessary to urge the brethren to speak on this subject. Of itself its very character appeals to all people of generous impulses.

....On Sunday, July 21st, Rev. A. C. Dixon gave a prelude to his morning sermon on the work of the Law Enforcement Society, which is now being severely criticised, and of which he is the executive chairman. Mr. Dixon will only take three weeks' vacation this year, ten days to be spent at Lake Keuka, N. Y., where he will lecture ten times and preach twice; and the rest of the time probably in the White Mountains.—Examiner.

....R. L. and G. W. Paschal, two boys whom their Wake Forest school mates remember pleasantly, are visiting their father in Matthews township, Chatham county. At college they both did good work and stood high in their class and in the esteem of their students. R. L. has been teaching successfully in Texas, and G. W. is a student of Greek and Latin in Chicago University, and is of course making fine marks.

....Bro. Blanchard barely commits himself to Tithing in his article this week, but we will publish an out right defense of it from Rev. J. N. Stallings. In our opinion there is as much ground for defending modern circumcision. However, we think it will be instructive to have the matter ventilated, and especially since the Southern Baptist Convention has approved it.——Bro. Broughton's article is fresh and earnest, and on a growing subject.——Professor Carlyle writes interestingly of Chicago and the University.——The sermonette, "Prepare to meet thy God," is brief but forcible.——Sec'y Haywood writes of a noble enterprise which has done much good and will do a great deal more.——A brother contributes the Appeal to Parents, which we hope all will read.——"Colgate's New President" is by Rev. J. R. Edwards, a North Carolina boy, who has done well at Colgate as a student and also as a preacher. We believe he is in North Carolina now, and would be glad to hear that he has come to stay.

....Rev. W. A. Smith and Rev. E. C. Bobbitt are holding a meeting at Perry's Chapel in Franklin county. Rev. Z. D. Harrill has just closed an eight days' meeting at Forest City, in which Rev. H. D. Harrill, Rev. J. C. Gillespie, Rev. T. Bright, and others assisted. There were two additions to the church. Rev. J. W. Rose of Cove has been aided by Rev. R. W. Spilman at Spring Garden, with good results; he is this week at Truetta. Several conversions are reported from the Tabernacle church, Newbern, in which Pastor Burgess was aided by Rev. J. T. Jenkins. Rev. J. M. Walker has been assisting Pastor C. B. Justice at Mountain Creek, and there have been a good number of conversions. Rev. Dr. J. N. Stallings has been conducting a protracted meeting at Jerusalem. This week he is conducting a similar meeting at Farmington; next week at Eaton's church, and then the week after at Mocksville. Rev. S. J. Booker will assist him in some of the meetings. Rev. G. T. Watkins and Rev. H. T. Williams have been sowing the seed at Mill Creek. There were four additions to our church at Concord, near Magnolia, in which Rev. A. J. Taylor assisted Pastor Butler. Rev. L. R. Pruett has been helping Pastor Thomasson at Grover.

Mrs. W. D. King (Miss Fannie S. Knight) of China, Dead.

Dear Recorder:—It is my very painful duty to chronicle for your readers the sad news of the death of our beloved Sister Fannie Knight King. We have just returned from the foot of the great sacred mountain here where we laid her body to await the resurrection call of our risen and ascended Saviour whom she loved so dearly and served so faithfully. She and Bro. King returned from Shanghai, accompanied by Misses Humphries and Sullivan, just two weeks ago today, Friday, and on the following Tuesday, they all, with Dr. Crawford and Brother Crocker, went out for a day's rest on the hill-side right near where her grave was made this morning and she took her bed that night and did not get up any more. She suffered intensely and had high fever, but we could not tell what the disease was for several days, when it developed into a clear case of malignant or "black" smallpox. She passed away yesterday at 3.51 p. m., and we buried her to-day at 10:30 a. m. We are hoping and praying that none of the rest of us will take it.

My heart is too sad now and I am too much stunned by the blow to write much, but hope later to write more fully of her life, character and work. She was one of earth's noblest daughters. She was a good, faithful Christian woman. She had an ardent love for Christ and believed implicitly in his divine guidance for her, even in the small details of life.

Oh! how our hearts here do bleed for the afflicted husband, who is almost crushed, and the loved parents, brothers and sisters far away who will still be reading her letters for some weeks yet.

Of the six Baptists who left North Carolina in June or July, 1889, for the foreign field, four have gone up higher to receive their reward—Brother and Sister Newton, my own dear wife, and Sister Fannie Knight King! I only of the six, I believe, am left in Baptist work.

Very many earnest prayers will go up from China in behalf of the afflicted loved ones far across the sea. May God's grace prove abundant for them in this their sore trial. Sorrowfully and hopefully,

G. P. BOSTICK.

P. O., Gospel Mission Box, Shanghai, Taianfu, China, May 31, 1895.

FROM BRO. W. W. LAWTON OF SOOCHOW.

The many friends of Sister W. D. King will be greatly grieved to learn that on the 30th of May at Taianfu, Shantung Province, China, she became a victim of the small pox.

It will be remembered that she was only recently wedded to Rev. W. D. King. On April 4th at Chinkiang, Rev. L. N. Chappell, assisted by Rev. L. W. Pierce of Yang Chow, performed the ceremony.

Bro. King and bride then went on down to Shanghai where they remained for a short time before going back to take up the work which was dear to their hearts.

She was born in Gates county, N. C., in the year 1858. At the age of eleven she gave her young heart to Christ. Before her appointment to the mission field in 1889, she taught school in Virginia and appropriated her salary to Foreign Missions. Thus we see as Dr. Tupper says in his "Decade of Missions," that "her thorough preparation of heart and mind had already shown her a workman approved of God."

Rev. C. C. Newton and wife left the old North State the same month for Africa that Miss Knight left for China. While they were separated so far from their home and from one another, they doubtless sang,

"Though sundered far, by faith we meet Around one common mercy seat."

Now they are where there shall be no more partings. Their work has been done here below, and God has called them to wear the crown. May this life, so full of missionary zeal, inspire us to carry on the work which God has left us to do. We ask not why God deals with us thus, to remove from our working force one who was just in a position to do the most effectual labor for our cause; but we know this that He overrules all things for good to those who love Him, to those who are called according to His purpose.

Let us not forget to remember in our prayers the one who so deeply mourns the loss of his companion.

W. W. LAWTON.

Soochow, China, June 28, 1895.

We call attention to the advertisement, in another column, of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. The Academic Departments, as well as the professional schools of Law and Engineering, open Sept. 19th.

Notes of Travel.

Several days are very pleasantly and profitably spent at Scotland Neck, during which I am delightfully entertained in the homes of brethren Johnson and Biggs. The amount of cash contributions is gratifying for the season of year, and when all the brethren are heard from who have given assurances of help this fall, a handsome amount will be rolled up for this liberal church.

A few hours' ride puts us in Louisburg with our genial friend, Rev. W. B. Morton. He rightly feels that the lines have fallen to him in pleasant places. Louisburg is renowned for its sturdy oaks, and a sturdy race of men grows with them. After I have received a good contribution there, a letter follows me from Bro. J. P. Timberlake, whom I missed seeing on my visit to his attractive home, saying that he will forward check for one hundred dollars. Let me say here, by way of parenthesis, that it does my very heart good to be followed up with epistles of that quality; they may be brief, but they are weighty.

A night is pleasantly spent in the home of Bro. J. S. Timberlake at Youngsville. An incident occurred at Youngsville, which goes to illustrate the very general interest taken in the Female University throughout the State. I casually met a brother from a distance of eleven miles out in Franklin county. He at once showed a deep interest in the subject, handed me ten dollars, and added: "If nothing happens, I reckon I'll send you fifteen more. This is one of the most important things the Baptists of the State now have before them."

A FIVE-HUNDRED DOLLAR CONTRIBUTION.

I soon arrived at Kittrell, and spent an evening and night delightfully in the home of Bro. C. H. Williams. I had a romp with his bright little children, and how it rested me.

The next morning Bro. Williams put his horse and buggy at my disposal, and a ride of three miles brought me to the elegant home of Bro. J. B. Crudup. The stately mansion rests upon an oak crowned summit overlooking Tar River. I was cordially welcomed as a servant of God, and the conversation turned naturally to subjects of spiritual interest. Bro. Crudup's soul is in this great work. He only regrets that it was not begun years ago, and now he gives five hundred dollars as a memorial to his sainted father, Rev. Josiah Crudup, who did so much for the cause of God in North Carolina.

J. HARTWELL EDWARDS.

The Chautauqua.

Next week will be the greatest Sunday-school gathering that has ever been held in North Carolina. The soldiers of the Lord are coming from all parts of the State to muster. That means the most efficient fighting possible. The forces of evil are great and well entrenched in their strongholds. We need to be well prepared and well used to our armor that we may meet the forces and take the land. Every church and Sunday-school is a battle-ground where we shall fight the pitched battles for the King. We have a great Captain who unfailingly leads to victory those who follow him. We are anxious to meet every superintendent and teacher at Red Springs that we may know each other and pray for each other—that we may learn and help each other for the work. We will go home from there with new courage, loftier faith, enlarged views, higher aims and bigger hearts. Consecrated men and women will teach many things there that will help us in the Master's work. It is not a Sunday-school mass meeting; it is a Sunday school normal. It is full of suggestions and illustrations for the worker. Idlers will have no place there, but it will be happiness to the workers.

We hope to look into the faces of many fellow-workers whom we have never seen, but whom we love for Christ's sake.

All the year I have been buoyed up by the spiritual power gained there last year, and I have been helped in many ways by the suggestions of last session.

Sunday school worker, in His name I invite you to this feast next week. Come.

C. A. ROMINGER.

Report on Periodicals.

[Adopted by the Central Association at its recent session.]

Baptists should be a reading people, thoroughly grounded in the truth, and even ready to give a reason for the faith that is in them. In order to be thus furnished, it is important that doctrine and example be kept constantly before us.

Every Baptist in North Carolina should desire all the information that can be had bearing upon the work in our State, and no other paper so well and so completely covers the field as does the BIBLICAL RECORDER, which has been the organ of the Baptist State Convention for sixty years. It should be in the home of every family of our denomination. We commend also Charity and Children, which keeps us informed about those little children whom our Father in His wisdom has seen fit to deprive of earthly parents, and placed in our charge at the Orphanage.

The Foreign Mission Journal brings us reports and information of the progress of our missionaries in foreign fields, and joins our hearts in sympathy with those who follow the Savior's great comission. To the Sunday-schools, we commend the literature published by the S. S. Board of the Southern Baptist Convention at Nashville, Tenn.

Respectfully submitted,

R. O. PERNELL.

What causes bad dreams is a question that has never been satisfactorily answered; but, in nine cases out of ten, frightful dreams are the result of imperfect digestion, which a few doses of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will effectually remedy. Don't delay—try to-day.

Missionary Day in the Sunday-schools.

Missionary Day in the Sunday-schools last year proved to be a pleasant and profitable occasion. A great many schools all over our Southern country had missionary exercises on that day, and the minds and hearts of many thousands of teachers, scholars and parents as well, were filled with the thought of missions—the sending of the gospel into destitute regions of our own and other lands. Many thousands on that day thought and talked and prayed and gave for this glorious work. We know certainly of about six thousand dollars having been raised by schools on that day, and if we could have had full returns from all the schools that observed that day, we are sure the amount would have reached to between seven and eight thousand dollars. A goodly sum to have been gathered for missions, gathered much of it in pennies. And it come at a time when the Boards, Home and Foreign, were greatly needing money. But beyond and above the money income, the exercises of that day were valuable for their educational influence. It was a day of the turning of attention to the Lord's work among the destitute, and in some cases reported to us it was the beginning of missionary interest and missionary effort in whole schools.

Again this year the Boards of the Southern Baptist Convention propose to ask the schools to consider missions, and to give something for the furtherance of the work. As before, the programs will be furnished by the Sunday-school Board, Nashville, Tenn., but all the money will go to Home and Foreign Missions. Programs, cards, etc, will be furnished free to all schools desiring them. The day selected for this service is September 29, though schools can select their own day. For information or for supplies address,

REV. T. P. BELL,
Cor. Sec S. S. Board,
Nashville, Tenn.

Bro. Lamberth at Winston.

We feel that we at Broad Street have been the recipient of a great blessing in the form of an eight day's visit from Bro. J. H. Lamberth. He preached for us every night and I don't think I have ever heard stronger sermons. He is an earnest speaker and a gospel preacher. While the number of professions were few, yet much seed was sown from which we believe, if faithfully watered by us, God will bring about a great increase.

O, let us not weigh our reward by the number, for even one soul is worth the universe of worlds. How God's cause is suffering in many places to day because, in order to "count," a large number have been enticed into the church by the predominance of loaves and fishes over the preaching of the pure gospel, and who, when they find that their meat should be to do the will of the Master, are wont to turn away!

Baptist matters are moving along very nicely in Winston. Bro. Brown—dear, good Bro. Brown, whose very presence is a benediction—and his flock seem to be in good spirits.

I don't think I will get into the "regions beyond" this summer as my time is so called for "round about." My hands are almost full for August. I go on the 1st to the Pilot Mountain Association; on the 12th to Union Hill to assist Bro. Mason in a meeting; on the 23d I am to deliver an address at a great educational rally at Pinnacle, N. C.; and on the 26th I have promised to go to Ridgway, S. C., and preach ten days.

Death of Sister Florence Watson.

Departed this life for her heavenly home at the residence of her father in Carthage, N. C., on July 7th, 1895, in the thirty-second year of her age, Sister Florence Watson, wife of Rev. W. F. Watson of Norfolk, Va. She was converted when about twelve years of age, and ever afterwards lived a consistent Christian life.

She had been a great sufferer for several years, but bore her afflictions patiently as only the true Christian can do. During all of her sufferings, she found great comfort in the study of God's Word. She died a triumphant death. When she realized that the fatal hour had come, she called her loved ones to her bedside and told them she was going home, and said, "Jesus is precious to me in this hour." Just before she "fell on sleep," she said, "The Lord is my shepherd. He will take me by the hand and lead me through the dark valley of the shadow of death." These were her last words. The battle has been fought, the victory won, and Sister Watson is with the angels.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. G. L. Wolff of the Presbyterian church. She leaves a devoted husband, three little children and a large number of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. May the Lord comfort them in their great affliction. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." C. J. F. ANDERSON.

and carefully; reduce the painfully large per centage of infant mortality. Take no chances and make no experiments in this very important matter. The Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk has saved thousands of little lives.

The annual picnic at the Baptist Orphanage arbor in Davie county occurred the latter part of the week of the annual meeting. Rev. C. S. Cashwell delivered a strong and telling speech; Prof. Hobgood spoke instructively on education; Rev. J. N. Stallings made some timely remarks, and raised a good collection; and Rev. J. D. Newton, who had eleven orphans with him, also made a good speech.

School Notes.

We are always on the lookout for news of our schools throughout the State, and any items sent us will be gladly received.

We thank Secretary J. S. Kirby for a catalog of Trap Hill Institute, one of our efficient high schools, located in Wilkes county. Prof. E. L. Wagoner is Principal, and Miss Beatrice Smith, Assistant. Eighty-two students were enrolled last year.

Mars Hill College, A. E. Booth, A. M., President, is a co educational institution. It was established in 1856 by the Baptists of Western North Carolina. It was re-chartered in 1890, when Mr. T. M. Hufham was elected principal, and he at once brought the standard and the patronage up to a very successful basis. President Booth succeeds Prof. C. P. Sapp, under whose administration the College went forward admirably, and the prospect for the new administration is very hopeful.

Rev. Jul. E. Yates, A. M., will re-open Mt. Moriah Academy, near Auburn, N. C., August 19th. He will be assisted by Miss Ruth Wingate.

Rev. J. V. Devenny, M. A., has accepted the position of principal of Youngsville High School, and will be assisted by Miss Lillie Mitchell. They ought to have a good school.

Prof Hugh Long, M. A., and Miss Louie Long, B. A., graduates respectively of Wake Forest College and Oxford Female Seminary, have been chosen by the Board of Trustees to conduct Wakefield Classical Institute, one of the best equipped school properties in this part of the State. We wish them abundant success.

Prof. Isham Royal, recently removed from South River Association, has located at Walnut Cove, and his prospects for a large school are bright.

Oxford and First Honor Men.

A SCHOLARSHIP FOR ANY TOWN THAT HAS MORE—A PRIZE FOR THE BEST EXPLANATION OF THE TOWN'S PRE-EMINENCE.

Oxford has long ranked as one of the leading educational centres of the State, and now a bold challenge is made to the State in which a scholarship at the Horner School, worth $250, is offered to any town or city in the State that has furnished more first honor graduates at the University, Davidson, Trinity and Wake Forest Colleges, during the last three years than Oxford.

Further, the Horner School offers a scholarship, giving all the college fees free, at any college in the State to the school that has furnished more honor men at these colleges than the Horner School. There are cities in the State with five or ten times the population of Oxford and schools with four or five times the number of students of the Horner. Can they afford to let the claim go unchallenged?

The Horner School offers a prize of $150 for the best satisfactory explanation of this pre eminence on the part of Oxford, written by a boy under fourteen years of age. The terms and conditions of the contest can be learned by writing to the Horner School.—Charlotte Observer.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

1. The explanation must be written by a boy under 14 years of age, and must be endorsed by some reputable newspaper man of same county with the boy, whose endorsement we shall consider a guarantee that the work has been honestly done by the boy himself.

2. The Explanation must be headed: Explanation of Oxford's Preeminence in Scholarship: must contain not fewer than 100 or more than 200 words, written on one piece of paper, both sides if necessary.

3. Must be signed by some assumed name with full name and P. O. address of boy, on a separate piece of paper, all of which must be in boy's own hand writing.

4. No paper will be considered that reaches us after Aug. 15, nor will any papers be considered unless there are contestants from at least 10 counties in the State.

5 The papers will be submitted to three impartial judges, who shall not know the names of the writers.

There was a typographical error in the offer as it appeared in the papers. The prize as first offered was $50 in cash instead of $150. Since the error has been made however, we shall let it remain as it is with the understanding that only $50 is to be in cash and $100 in a Scholarship at the Horner School, not transferable, nor good for session other than 1895, '96.

Systematic Giving.

BY REV. O. W. BLANCHARD.

The writer is impressed that education along the line of systematic giving as a Christian duty is one of the pressing needs of our people just now. I would be very glad to see the report of the committee on tithing to the Southern Baptist Convention (see page 18 of Minutes) spread upon the pages of the RECORDER and the other religious papers of the State. Not that I am a stickler for the tithing system as the highest ideal of Christian development in giving. Not under all circumstances will the Christian's duty be measured even by the tenth, but it will be a decided improvement on any system we have ever adopted, or that we have known practiced even by those who decry it because it "doesn't reach far enough." This is a subterfuge under which to hide personal failures. The advocates of tithing would allow elasticity enough to the rule to grant further enlargement to brethren who would grow over the system.

To us the tenth is a scriptural demand and we have not reached the point of benevolence till we have exceeded it. To this conclusion we were led by a faithful examination of the Word on this phase of our Christian duty about ten years ago. The comfort that has followed it will out-weigh all the philosophy of those who oppose it without a trial.

The failures of the unsystematic efforts we have been following with their disadvantages and disastrous results to the progress of Christianity, are enough in themselves to condemn them as unscriptoral and ill-approved of God.

There would be many advantages to Christianity itself from a tithing system apart from its supply of means. It would revolutionize and evolutionize evangelization. It would supply the needs of our churches without resorting to clap trap measures to do it. It would save anxiety on the part of the needy and dependent ones. The appeals from our boards would not be harrassed for means, but measures and men would be their cry. It would relieve the church of its most uncomfortable barrier and throw the responsibility of this drill into the home circle where faithful parents could most effectually do it.

Do not understand me to say that any church would have the right to assess its members for this amount; it is the private duty of each member to establish it in his own household. It must be educated into the hearts of the people.

The writer from ten years experience can testify as a faithful witness, that the system is wholesome and practical to the different classes of our people. When the earnest one's soul is awakened to do a thing the difficulties can all be overcome. We have never met a tither who did not find real joy in distribution—scriptural requirement that seems to be lacking in the great majority of our people who give. You do not find them dodging committees with subscription lists, nor frowning when they are overtaken like they had cholera morbus or toothache.

It is the shortest road to prosperity to those who will adopt it for the glory of God. It is a scriptural claim and it is a duty. Any body can do their duty.

Colgate's New President.

For five years since the death of Dr. Dodge, Colgate University, one of the most prominent of the smaller educational institutions of the North, has been without a President. So long has been the time and so many the efforts and failures to place the right man at the helm, that many of the students and friends seemed almost to despair of ever seeing Colgate have another President. At last, however, George William Smith was elected July 3d by the University Board, which met in special session at Albany during the New York State University Convocation.

President Smith comes into his new position as a young man of wonderful endowments and remarkable preparation, being thirty-three years old.

Heredity and educational advantages have done for the new President all they could do for any man. His father for years was Professor in Colby University, Waterville, Me., where the son, George William, was born Aug. 2, 1862, and grew up amid the surroundings of learning, culture and refinement. He graduated from Colby in 1883 among the first of his class. The next year he began his work as an educator as Principal of the High School of Wescasset, Me. However he did remained in this position but a short while. But being attracted to the study of Law, he entered the Law School at Albany, N. Y., from which he graduated in 1887 with high honors. After a few years' practice of law he was convinced that he would be better adapted to an educational career, and so entered Johns Hopkins University as a graduate student of English Literature and History. While in Johns Hopkins he filled for a short while the Chair of History in Bucknell University. He was also, in addition to his post graduate work, instructor in Logic and Psychology in Johns Hopkins. In his third year's work as a graduate student, when Prof. Terry left Colgate to go to Chicago University, Professor Smith was induced to take the Chair of History in Colgate.

His first year's work showed that the University had secured a man who was an expert in his department, and a man of broad and liberal culture. He is a noble Christian man and a great favorite among the students, especially those who have enjoyed the blessings and opportunities of his classroom.

An Appeal to North Carolina Parents.

Dear brethren and sisters, let me have a few minutes of your time for a short talk on education. At this season of the year you are saying to yourselves, "What shall we do with our boy? He has some talents; he has done well in the elementary schools, and wishes a college education. Where shall we send him?" Permit a friend to offer a few suggestions toward the solution of this problem.

I have known parents to send their children to schools conducted by the Roman Catholic church, in order to obtain what is by them considered a high grade of education at a minimum cost; and when the impressionable minds of these youths have been steeped in the superstitions of the Romish religion, and they have deserted the faith of their fathers, there is a cry made, "Why have our children served us thus?" My friends, you have simply reaped the fruits of your own deeds.

There are some, on the other hand, who, either for the sake of a supposedly higher social standing or on account of some inducements in the way of expenses, send their sons to institutions some of which are out and out pedobaptistic, and others ostensibly non sectarian, yet opposed in spirit to many of the principles which we Baptists hold dear.

My brethren, such things ought not so to be; you assuredly wish your boys to become cultivated gentlemen, but can you afford to imperil the religious future of your children for the paltry attractions of so called modern society or in order to save a few pieces of gold.

Now, you have in your State a college which for over threescore years has not only been distinctively Christian, but also distinctively Baptist; it was founded by the Baptists, and has been nourished by the labors of their hands, by their prayers and their tears; it offers to your sons the best Christian society and the highest educational advantages. Ye Baptist fathers and mothers of North Carolina, Wake Forest is your college; by your affectionate devotion it can be made the leading Baptist college in our Southland, and it in your duty, yea more, your high privilege, to work with heart and soul for its advancement. You owe it to your children, to your church, and to your God.

Literary.

A valuable paper that should set people to thinking is the Hon. Walter Clark's brief review of the progress and development of the Telegraph Traffic in Great Britain, since 1870, when all the telegraphs in the United Kingdom were acquired by the government from the corporations who had previously operated them. The telegraph system in England is an integral part of the post office, as it is as much a part of commercial and social life to-day as the daily mail. Under the old system the Districts paying best had ample service at high rates, as is the case in this country, while whole sections off the lines of railway were without telegraphic facilities. The government at once extended the telegraph to all sections, and reduced the rate to one cent a word. The result is this. In 1870, under private ownership, seven million individual messages, and twenty two million words of press despatches, were annually sent. Now the annual number of individual messages sent is seventy million—(ten times as many) and over six hundred million words of press despatches—(thirty times as many.) And the cost is less than one third of what it was, the service quicker and prompter, and the government's postal service self supporting. In America, the telegraph companies are earning heavy dividends on a watered stock of over $150,000,000, while the postal service is not self sustaining and shows an annual deficit.

Mississippi Baptist Preachers. By L. S Foster, Pastor Senatobia Baptist Church, Senatobia, Miss. St. Louis: National Baptist Publishing Co. $2 00 16c extra for postage.

We often see a picture of the author as a frontispiece of a volume, but here we have a picture of the author and his wife, and though both are handsome, she is the better looking of the two. Here are sketches, varying in length, of 450 preachers, with pictures of 35 of them. They are arranged in alphabetical order, so as to dispense with an index. Mississippi certainly has reason to be proud of the Baptist preachers she has.

Glancing over only the B's and C's we observe such names as Lewis Ball, H. W. Battle, W. P. Bond, J. W. Bozeman, M. E. Broadus, William C. Buck, R. C. Burleson, D E Burns, A. C. Caperton, B. H. Carroll J. G. Chastain, J. T. Christian and William Carey Crane. The author deserves the thanks of the denomination for the material he has so faithfully gathered, and for the interesting manner in which it is presented to the public. Here is an important contribution to denominational history.—Western Recorder.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, of New York, Prof. of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital:

"In all cases of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys I have found BUFFALO LITHIA WATER of the greatest service in increasing the quantity of urine and in eliminating the albumen. In certain cases of Melancholia, accompanied by excessive elimination of Urates and Uric Acid, it is often the only remedy necessary. In Gout and Rheumatism it is highly beneficial. I have long regarded BUFFALO LITHIA WATER as the most valuable mineral water in use.

Dr. Allard Memminger, Professor of Chemistry, Medical College, State of South Carolina:

"I have used in my own case and prescribed for others, BUFFALO LITHIA WATER for Uric Acid Trouble with excellent results, and I regard it as the safest, surest and most agreeable way of removing from the system this most pernicious derivative of Uric Acid, the retention of which is followed by so many distressing symptoms, embracing Gout, Calculi of the Kidney and Bladder, Herpetiform Neuralgic affections, cases of Mental Depression and Nervous Irritability and Nervous Asthma, caused by the irritating action of Uric Acid on the bronchial tubes."

Dr. Harvey L. Byrd, of Baltimore, Prest. and Prof. of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children in the Balt. Med. College, Formerly Prof. of Practical Medicine, etc.,

"BUFFALO LITHIA WATER has an ascertained value in Bright's Disease. A knowledge of its action in that disease thus far would seem to warrant the belief that it would in many instances, at least in its early stages, arrest it entirely, and in its more advanced stage prove a decided comfort and palliative."

This Water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $5.00 f.o.b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent to any address.

"A Word in Due Season—How Good It Is."

Solomon so exclaims and so do we in humble echo.

The Associational season, when good words are expected to be thick as leaves in June, is at hand. How good at this season of good words would be a word fitly spoken in behalf of the woman's missionary societies.

As the women go up to the Association and meet one another, and talk of this, that and the other, there is due season for a word on missions.

As the brethren file into the church, out into the grove or in some neighboring house, the women may come together and tell one another how they are joining in their little bands at home to pray more, work more and give more to missions. Such words—how good they are!

Good as these woman's words are to each other concerning the things of the kingdom, as fitting and in season are a few words from some brother in the Association itself, recommending and urging the organization and encouragement of woman's missionary societies in all the churches. These societies in the Baptist churches of North Carolina have given in the last two years $7,123 59 to Home and Foreign Missions and to State Mission objects. This has been done by the slow but stately accumulation of small monthly dues, the result of increased interest in missions stimulated by regular monthly mission meetings. It is our belief that, far from detracting from the regular contributions of the church to missions, those contributions and the women's share in them have also increased as the women's interest grew. This year these societies are asked to raise $1,950 for the regular purposes of Foreign Missions; an extra offering of $1,000 for the equiping and sending out of a new missionary to China as a memorial to Dr. and Mrs. Yates; to raise $1 000 for Home Missions and $600 or $700 for State Mission objects. As this work is being done by some 250 societies, by far the larger part in country churches, and some of whom are languishing for an encouraging word from their pastor, it is not hard to see how very fitting a word in their behalf would be.

What would the accumulation of the women's littles be, if every church in North Carolina had such a band of women workers, basking and growing in the smile of the pastor!

At some of the Associations there will be carefully planned woman's missionary meetings, an hour or two in length in some house near the church.

Here is another opportunity to place an "apple of gold" in a silver picture. This was beautifully done by a good pastor last year. He had kindly announced the ladies' meeting once or twice before, but still thoughtful, when the time came, he rose in the Association and said: "The hour for the Ladies' Missionary Meeting has now arrived. We will sing a hymn while the sisters retire." They sang, and the sisters retired in a body except one or two, we are told, who were presumably too old or too decrepit to do so.

If the hundred or more women who attended that meeting did not return promptly to the Association more alive to its chiefest interests and more determined to aid them, then woman's wet eyes and warm handclasps mean nothing.

Concerning Country Societies.

MRS F. S. WOODSON, ASSOCIATION VICE-PRESIDENT.

[Read at the Annual Meeting in Washington.]

The lack of abiding interest among the country churches, in woman's work and the missionary enterprise in general, arises mainly from a lack of information. Letter-writing and missionary literature, though lavishly distributed, will in most cases fail to accomplish much.

Face to face, hand to hand, heart to heart work is the surest means of reaching them.

Then, first, go to them, meet them, know them, and when the thoroughly systematized plan of woman's work—from the Union down to the least Society—has been explained, they are led to understand and appreciate the fact that a W. M. S is not a side issue nor innovation, but is a part and pride of church work, carrying with it all the importance and dignity of the church. And that it is simply an advance by which every woman—it matters not how humble and obscure—may be helpful in carrying out the great commission, "Go ye into all the world." This much gained, you are ready to organize.

We should ever be mindful of the fact that it is the Lord's work we are engaged in, and because it is the Lord's work, we should not be remiss in enforcing, without the slightest semblance to tyranny or undue authority, a strict compliance with the very simple rules and regulations.

The officers should be selected with painstaking care. The pastor will help you in choosing women—the most intelligent, zealous and with practical enthusiasm—for officers. Each of them should be interviewed separately and the simple duty of their office explained

After organizing, the harassing problem, how to keep them going.

Well, their interest has now been awakened, and they will most gladly receive information furnished them. Having been among them, the Associational Vice-President can best select just that literature specially suited to the different tastes and temperaments.

Use the mails freely. Keep a record of meeting days, and write to the President in advance of each month's meeting, helping her by some carefully selected tract, and other suggestions to make the meetings interesting and edifying. And just as often as possible, let the Associational Vice-President meet with them.

Get the C. C. to allow the Associational Vice-President to send out the quarterly blanks—which will give her an opportunity to write to each Treasurer—at least once in three months. (She should of course keep up a close correspondence with the President and Secretary).

Request the Treasurer to furnish the Associational Vice-President a duplicate after each remittance. To know the financial standing of each Society in the Association will be most helpful in many ways, especially so when special appeals are made. And by the way, I would like to suggest that those appeals always be sent out by the Associational Vice-President accompanied by a letter of explanation. Then the little Societies are more apt to respond liberally than if the appeals are received formally and direct from headquarters.

One other valuable help to the work is for the Associational Vice President to be allowed the privilege of editing a column in the one paper which is very generally read by the country people. If it is an Associational paper, the advantage is unsurpassed, but my time is up.

Sow the seed carefully, nurse the plant tenderly, and God will give the increase.

Foreigners Among Us.

"The stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself."—Lev. 19: 34.

A gentleman riding on an elevated train in New York counted in his car men of nine different races amongst the passengers, "and it was not a crowded car either." A young engineer last winter in an Ohio city had gangs of men under him speaking eight to a dozen different languages. In many of our cities one hears more German than English used, while whole districts are filled with French, Italian, Chinese, German, Russian, Polish families, hardly using or understanding our mother tongue.

The Italians swarm everywhere in the East; they dig our sewers, they build our railroads, they put our wires under ground and our walls above ground. They are a hard-working, frugal people, not usually given to drink. They are eager to "spik Eenglis," and the children are wonderfully quick in learning it.

In a mission class of fifty mischievous boys, half could not at first understand a word the teacher said, yet in a few Sabbaths there was not one who did not try to repeat the texts and the Lord's Prayer. And how they sang! And how the black eyes flashed and the brown cheeks dimpled with smiles of delight, and all the little hands were up in an instant when a picture was shown them! If you watch Italians, you will see they talk almost as much with their hands as with their lips, and these little fellows had a whole deaf and dumb language at the tips of their fingers.

Bright, keen, full of fun and roguery, but most easily controlled by a gentle word or two—especially if there is a laugh with it—what will their future be? What will America do for them? There are the public schools, but will they learn anything of God in them? The men have broken away from the Roman Catholic Church and are willing their children shall be taught the Bible. Is there any one to teach them? The Russian and Polish Jews are pouring in upon us, ignorant, degraded, with habits and customs that make them utterly repulsive to us, as well as a constant danger, spreading infection and disease wherever they go. But they are a part of God's chosen people. Have we no message to carry them of the Messiah and the gospel that has made us to differ from them?

From northern Europe come multitudes of Danes, Swedes, Norwegians; even a few Finns and Lapps have found their way here. We welcome them when they come from Christian homes, but how about the thousands who are deceived by the Mormon missionaries? They only go to swell the numbers that make Utah and her Mormon colonies an "open sore" in the heart of our land.

How long, indeed, can we say "our land," "our country," if it is taken possession of by strangers, foreign not only to our language, but to our Sabbath, our Bible, our Lord Jesus Christ!

Surely if we love the stranger as ourselves, we must give him these, or else we shall be untrue to our Master, failing in the trust He has given to our care, and false to our beloved country.—J. W. J., in Over Sea and Land.

A valuable contribution to the literature of Sociology is the paper on "The Units of Investigation in the Social Sciences," by Dr. A. F. Bentley, issued in the series of publications of the American Academy of Political and Social Science (pp. 28, paper, 8vo. Price, 25c. Philadelphia, 1895.) It is an attempt to discover what facts are to be taken as the units of investigation in the study of the phenomena of society.

Think yourself less than you are if you would become greater than you are.

Millions Spent For News.

A writer estimates that the newspaper publishers in the United States spend annually $17,000,000 for news. There are 35,000 persons engaged upon editorial work on daily and weekly papers.

The largest paper bill in the United States is the New York World's which amounts to $670,000 per annum; the World also tops the list in the weekly composition bill, which amounts to $6 000. The Boston Globe comes next with $4,100 The World pays $315 a week for proof reading, and the same is paid by the Herald. Boston buys more paper in proportion to population than any other city in America.

We want not time to serve God, but zeal; we have not too much business, but too little grace.—Hamilton.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Jackson Springs.

If you are suffering with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhœa, General Debility, or with Kidney, Bladder, or Female Troubles, you can be speedily and permanently cured by drinking Jackson Springs Water, either at the Springs or from bottles shipped to you

Jackson Springs Hotel is situated in the very heart of what is known as the Long Leaf Pine and Deep Sand Section of North Carolina, which has been so well termed the great Sanitarium for those suffering with asthmatic and pulmonary diseases.

There is not a purer atmosphere or healthier climate in the entire South, and no water has ever received such universal commendations from those who have used it.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The N. C. Agricultural Society has issued its annual prospectus and premium list. It is said that the next State Fair held at Raleigh will be magnificent.——Mr. James W. Tufts, the Boston millionaire soda-fountain maker, is pushing the work of building the Moore county settlement. He has 150 hands clearing and preparing the 5,000 acres which he bought, and he has advertised for 200 carpenters to construct dwelling houses.——The Hunter family had a reunion at Prosperity church, near Charlotte, last week, which 1,200 people attended, 900 of whom claimed kinship.——A cotton factory at Hillsboro is said to be a certainty of the near future.——Mr. Hill Hamphrey, the well-known merchant of Newbern, has bought out the Thorntons of Fayetteville, and will move his business to that place.——A synd cate offers to buy all the State's swamp lands in Brunswick and Columbus county, at fifty cents an acre. The money would go to the school fund. But a survey must be made to see how much land the State has to sell. It is said that these swamps will make good farms when cleared and drained; and there is prospect of a railway running through them.——The North Carolina School for the Deaf and Dumb, Morganton, N. C., will open September 11. This is one of the worthiest and most ably conducted charities of our State, and those who can should send their afflicted to it and educate them for some respectable trade.——A small college will be established at Sandy Ridge by Mecklenburg and Union county people. Mr. Reuben Weddington offers to furnish a large part of the money.——The Morganton Herald recently took a census of Morganton, which shows that the population of that town has increased sixty per cent. in five years. The present figure is 2,475.——The insurance frauds investigation at Beaufort has brought out sensational particulars. It is in evidence that many people, old or invalid, have been insured through the machinations of heretofore respected citizens, under false representations. Eleven men are under arrest.——A $100,000 fire occurred in Durham, Aug. 1 The Reams tobacco warehouse, Stokes Hall, the telegraph and telephone office, the offices of the Durham Fertil zer Company were destroyed. Insurance, $60,000.——One hundred mechanics are employed constructing new buildings at Wilson.——Judge Walter Clark is compiling a documentary history of this State, supplementary to the Colonial Records; and the first volume is in the presses. It will cover the period from 1776 to 1790.——The first of the farmers' institutes will be held at Lumberton, Aug. 16 and 17.——Arrangements to send selections from the State Museum to the Atlanta exposition are being made. The railroads will also make large exhibits.——The earliest new tobacco of the season was sold at Lynchburg, Va., last week. It was raised in Eastern North Carolina. There were 1,000 pounds in the lot, and prices ranged from $3 40 to $20 a hundred.——A telephone exchange will be put in at Goldsboro——A $100,000 cotton mill to be built at Buffalo Shoals was set on foot by Statesville gentlemen last week.——Miss Mary Torrence of Charlotte and Dr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Worth of Wilmington started out to Japan Aug. 2d, to work under the Presbyterian church as a missionary.——A Second Adventist Association will meet the third Sunday in Mecklenburg county; thirty two preachers are expected.

In General.

The report that Indians have massacred settlers at Jackson's Hole, Wyoming, which was widely circulated, was false. The Indians did threaten serious trouble, but troops were ordered out, and they were pacified by a larger ration allowance.——Colored women of America met in their first national council at Washington last week. They discussed "Woman and Higher Education," and formally ostracised "the new woman."——The primary election called by the Irby State Executive Committee to select delegates to the South Carolina constitutional convention to Sept. 10th, occurred last week. The conservatives largely refused to vote, and the "Reformers"—Tillmanites—will have a large majority.——Three negro colonists, who left the South for Africa some months ago, have gotten back to this country. They report that many of their fellow colonists have died, and that those living are on the verge of starvation. The promises made them were fraudulent.——John B. Minor, LL. D., the venerable and learned Professor of Common and Statute Law at the University of Virginia, died July 29th, aged eighty-two years. He had been connected with the University half a century.——The committee sent to investigate the Nicaragua canal as purposed has returned. While no formal report has been made, it is announced with assurance that it will be recommended that our government go into the scheme. The canal would cost $110,000,000, and require seven years' building; and even with this, there is no certainty of success.——Treasury officials are said to have been surprised last week by demands for large sums in gold for export. The gold reserve is still intact, however.——The news from Cuba is discouraging to those who are in hope for the success of the insurgents.——There are rumors of a fearful massacre of Christians in China. A telegram from Soochow, Aug. 3, says five American women missionaries have been murdered in the Kansu Sinkiang province. A cable dispatch from Consul Jernigan reports a massacre of Christians at Kuncheng; but no Americans were killed. There are no Baptist missionaries in these provinces.

Nervous Prostration.

AN AMERICAN MALADY CAUSED BY OUR MANNER OF LIVING.

From the Star, Washington, D. C.

We Americans hurry too much. We do not take time enough for our meals. We haste to get rich, and wear out our bodies by the strain of our nerves. The result is nervous prostration. Probably there is no remedy which will reach all cases. Pink Pills came nearer being a specific for it than anything we know, however, and we have just interviewed two Washington people who have tried them for this malady in order to get some local testimony. The first is W. Henrich Robb, of 909 New Jersey Avenue, N. W.:

"For a long time, said Mr. Robb, I suffered horribly with nervous prostration, and tried many physicians and various highly recommended remedies without experiencing the slightest benefit. Last fall my business called me to Pittsburgh, Pa., and while there my mother, who remained in Washington, wrote recommending that I should try Pink Pills. To please her I procured a box. At time end for a long period previous my condition was most deplorable. I could not walk alone, and had I attempted to do so would have fallen. After I had taken them for a month I felt stronger than I had for many months. I should have mentioned that, until I had been taking the Pink Pills for about a week and for a long time before, I had to force myself to eat, but after the first box of pills had been used by me my appetite returned and I was able to eat ravenously. I should also have said that when I began taking the Pink Pills my legs had become as seemed to me like wooden legs, and my body was fast becoming in the same condition. The use of two boxes of Pink Pills, however, drove all this trouble away and I regard them as a wonderful medicine."

Miss C. E. Lewis, No. 1228 N. St., northwest, one of the teachers in Miss Payne's School of Cookery says: "Dr. Williams' Medicine Company's Pink Pills have been of great benefit to my health. I am very much averse to talking for publication but feel that I ought to testify briefly to the facts in my case. I had suffered from nervousness for a long time and was all run down, I tried various remedies but none of them did me any good. Last summer while in Delaware I was told of some wonderful cures that had been effected by means of the Pink Pills and bought a box. They helped me wonderfully after taking them for the past few weeks. I have been entirely cured of what was a severe and prolonged attack of nervous prostration."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggist, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

DIED.

SMITH—In Bladen county, on the 19th of July, Willie Mitchell, daughter of William and Elizabeth Ann McDonald Mitchell, and wife of Arthur Smith, aged 45 years.

WEATHERS—Mrs. Mary J. Weathers after a brief illness fell asleep July 9, 1895. She was the wife of Bro. Osborn Weathers, who departed this life about two years ago. She was in the seventy-sixth year of her age. Early in life she joined the M. E. Church, but became dissatisfied, and after a hard struggle to depart from the church of her early life, she joined the Fellowship Baptist church of which she remained a faithful member up to her death. The funeral was preached by the writer at her old residence from the text of her own selection, John 14, 1-3. She leaves five daughters and one son to mourn her loss. A woman full of years and good works has gone to her reward. W. P. DAVIS.

PEACE—Mrs. Annie W. Peace, wife of J. C. Peace, of Creedmore, N. C., and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Freeman, of Rolesville, N. C., departed this life after an illness of two weeks, on July 9, 1895. Her funeral was preached by the writer at Creedmore from the text, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Sister Peace suffered greatly, but with her suffering was mingled the joy of the hope of a better world to come. During her illness she sang, "I will soon be at home over there," and the chorus, "Will you meet me there" Sister Peace joined Rolesville Baptist church at the age of thirteen. After her marriage she took her letter to Creedmore, of which she remained a faithful and active member until God called her home to rest from her labors. She died a triumphant death, which only strengthened Paul's saying, "O death where is thy sting, O grave where is thy victory."

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep,
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."

M. P. DAVIS.

TEAGUE—Dr Samuel E. Teague, of Franklinville, N. C., in his fifty-seventh year. He was born October 17, 1838, and died June 13, 1895, aged 56 years, eight months and five days. Dr. Teague was the most prominent man of the laity we had in Franklinville church. He was superintendent of the Sunday-school and was foremost in every good work. In his death our little church sustains an almost irreparable loss. In all the relations in life he was held in high esteem because of the gentleness of his disposition and many amiable qualities which he possessed. Death, while sudden as to the messenger to take him away, found him ready and watching. He was paralysed only a few minutes after leaving church where he had offered a most fervent prayer for God's blessing upon the meeting which was in progress. We commend the bereaved wife and children to the God of all grace and comfort. S. F. CONRAD.

DRAUGHAN—Bro. Robert A. Draughan, aged 49 years, died at his home near Dunn, N. C., June 10, 1895, leaving a young widow and four little children, two boys and two girls. Bro. Draughan was a member of the Baptist church in Dunn, having a few years ago transferred his membership by letter from Baptist Chapel in Sampson county to this church, and was a most conscientious and devoted Christian. He loved his church, and whenever his health permitted was always present at her services, but his seat is now vacant forever. Bro. Draughan was laid to rest in the cemetery near Dunn with Masonic honors and buried on the day after his death (June 11) and the writer preached his funeral in the Baptist church in Dunn, which was largely attended by citizens generally and by the Masons, of which order he was a bright member indeed, most "worthy and well-qualified." But he has crossed over the river; his cheerful countenance will be seen no more on our streets, for, in this life, he "will not pass this way again." Peace to his ashes. He rests from his labors in the paradise of God and his works will follow him, for "the righteous hath hope in his death."

W. B. HARRELL.

Tributes of Respect.

TATUM—Ezra W. Tatum was born June 29, 1816, and died May 31, 1895, aged seventy-eight years, 11 months and 1 day. He professed faith in Christ and was baptized by Elder William Turner at Fork church, of which he became member in December, 1845, and of which he was elected clerk the following February, which office he held continuously until March, 1868, when he took a letter and became one of the constituent members of the church at Jerusalem. Prior to this he and a Presbyterian brother, Mr. J. C. Ford, who died several years ago, organized and conducted a Union Sunday-school at Jerusalem, which was changed into a distinctly Baptist church some years before the church was constituted, of which he was superintendent, continuing in that position after the constitution by the unanimous request of his brethren of the school year after year until his death. Bro. Tatum was an humble, devout, earnest Christian—of few, but wise and weighty words—of most exemplary life, a "living epistle known and read of all men." For fifty years a professing Christian, those intimate with him remember no word spoken which might not have been spoken in the company of the most refined woman, and no act not strictly consistent with his profession. He was indeed a model Christian gentleman in every walk of life, in his family, in his church, in his neighborhood and country, worthy of imitation by the most devout followers of Christ. Jerusalem church and community with all who knew him are deeply bereaved and sincerely mourn with his family their irreparable loss. All are comforted with the blessed assurance that our loss is his gain. Earth is poorer, Heaven richer. May all cherish his memory and imitate his virtues.

Cedar Rock Academy & Business Institute.
CEDAR ROCK, N. C.,
W. A. SMITH, B. A., Principal.
This school is situated in a fine farming section in Franklin county, 11 miles east of Louisburg. The surrounding community is densely settled by a cultured, hospitable and progressive people. The moral and religious influences are excellent. The good water and wholesome air makes it a healthful locality, almost entirely free from malaria.
We prepare for college or for practical business life, and make a specialty of preparing young men and young ladies for teachers in the academies and public schools. The Commercial and Music Departments also offer superior advantages. The music department is well supplied with the very best instruments, and is in charge of an experienced and thoroughly competent teacher. Young ladies wishing to make a specialty of music are offered excellent advantages, since we have a sufficient supply of instruments to give all the practice desired.
For the School of Art a special teacher has already been employed, whose whole attention will be given to that department.
Board, including furnished rooms, within a short distance from the academy, can be had at $7.00 per month. Girls, unless otherwise requested, are required to board with the Principal. Young men and young ladies are not allowed to board at same boarding house under any circumstances. We take a special oversight of the girls committed to our charge. Mrs. Smith (wife of the Principal) endeavors in every way possible to see after their interest.
Tuition rates are very low, ranging from $1 to $1.50 per month. The session of 1895-'6 opens Aug. 19th. For further information write to the Principal for catalog. W. A. SMITH.

The Home Circle.

The Bird With a Broken Wing.

One day a convict in Joliet prison picked up a scrap of paper from the corridor on which were these lines:

I walked through the woodland meadows,
Where the sweet thrushes sing,
And found, on a bed of mosses,
A bird with a broken wing

I healed its wound, and each morning
It sang in its old sweet strain;
But the bird with a broken pinion,
Never soared so high again.

I found a young life broken
By sin's seductive art,
And, touched with a Christ-like pity
I took it to my heart.

He lived with a noble purpose,
And struggled not in vain;
But the life that sin had stricken,
Never soared so high again.

But the bird with a broken pinion
Kept another from the snare,
And the life that sin had stricken
Raised another from despair.

Each loss has its compensaton,
There is healing from every pain,
But the bird with a broken pinion,
Never soared so high again.

A Mother's Practising.

A young man who had been examined preparatory to uniting with the church was asked, "Under whose preaching were you converted?" "Under nobody's preaching," was the reply. "I was converted under my mother's practising." What a tribute to a consecrated motherhood was that young man's answer! How very near to Christ must that mother have lived. Probably she was a woman full of the cares and work of life, but with what rare discretion and patience she must have administered the affairs of her household! Usually a boy takes but little interest in the things that make up the daily routine of a mother's life at home.

This young man's mother could never have been too much taken up with the claims of social life, the questions that agitated the outside world, or the duties of the home life, to stop and give her boy the attention he needed. It is likely that she had unusual burdens to carry, unjust provocations to keep patient under, or he would not have taken so much notice of her self-sacrificing, Christianlike life. What a beautiful, confiding, trusting love there must have been in the hearts of that mother and son for each other!

As mothers, are we not too apt in our weariness and multiplicity of cares to let the children think they are hindering and troubling us when they come to us so often with their needs and interests? We do not always show our appreciation of their confidences, and we speak hastily and unadvisedly often when they have done wrong.

A sainted mother, who lived to an old age, used to tell us much about the "Mount of Vision." When she was a young mother she had all her own housework to do, and a large family made constant demands upon her time and strength. "I had so much work in the valley," she said to us, "that if it had not been for the 'Mount of Vision,' I could not have possessed my soul in patience. When I became impatient and inclined to be what many of us call 'nervous,' ready to speak quick words and pass unjust judgment, I would go alone into my bedroom, and shutting the door, tell it all to Jesus. That room was my 'Mount of Vision;' for I always saw with a clearer light my weaknesses, and received strength from the Lord to administer government in the home with equity and more of a Christlike spirit."

And so should we all, we mothers, have a "Mount of Vision" to go up to when the work of the valley is so trying and upsetting. May the mothers' preaching in our homes be the means of leading the dear children to give their hearts to the Lord Jesus Christ in the days of their youth.—The Standard.

Rotation of Crops.

In a well planned system of farming, the subject of crop rotation should be carefully considered, as one of the essential elements of success in its highest best sense. It seems to be the prevailing opinion that the alternation of crops, in systematic order, is a modern invention that was gradually developed as a direct result of the applications of science to the art of agriculture. The early writers on agriculture, even from the times of the Greeks and Romans, have, however, quite uniformly urged the teachings of experience. They were satisfied that a variety of crops grown in succession, all other conditions being equal, would give a greater aggregate yield than could otherwise be obtained. The reason for the success of the system could not, it is true, be given, but practical men were fully agreed in urging its importance, and many systems of rotation, more or less perfect, were planned, some of which became the prevailing rule of farm practice in particular localities.

That these practical rules of alternating crops of different habits and modes of growth are based on correct, but not fully explained principles, has been shown by direct experiment.—N. C. Farmer.

Fare from Durham $3.50; from Henderson $3.00.

An Alphabetical Rhyme.

Dr. Cyrus Edson contributes a paper to the North American Review on the question, "Is Drunkenness Curable?" and ends the article by adding an alphabetical rhyme, describing all the stages of alcoholism from the first sip to a drunkard's grave, which he learned from a patient, a young man of great ability and fine moral perceptions, who was an incurable inebriate. The doctor says that his eyes would stream with tears as he recited the following verses, describing his own case and career. It is the most truthful and graphic picture of the kind that has been printed:—

A stands for Alcohol; deathlike its grip;
B for Beginner, who takes just a sip;
C for Companion who urges him on;
D for the Demon of drink that is born;
E for Endeavor he makes to resist;
F stands for Friends who so loudly insist;
G for the Guilt that he afterwards feels;
H for the Horrors that hang at his heels;
I his Intentions to quit not at all.
J stands for Jeering that follows his fall;
K for his Knowledge that he is a slave;
L stands for Liquor his appetite doth crave;
M for convival Meeting so gay;
N stands for No he tried hard to say;
O for the Orgies that then come to pass;
P stands for Pride that he drowns in his glass;
Q for Quarrels that nightly abound;
R stands for Ruin that hovers around;
S stands for Sights that his vision bedim;
T stands for Trembling that seizes each limb;
U for his Usefulness sunk in the slums;
V stand for Vagrant he quickly becomes;
W for Waning of life that's soon done;
X for his eXit, regretted by none,

Youth of this nation, such weakness is crime;
Zealously turn from the tempter in time!

A Hint on the Use of Perfumes.

Lillie M——came to see me yesterday, and after she had gone, Maria G——, who was putting a new braid on my second-best gown, said:

"That Miss Lillie uses very nice perfumery. It's so faint and fine, not anything you can smell a long way off, but something which makes you think of roses or violets when she passes you on the street. How does she manage it?"

Maria G——likes perfumes, but does not know how to use them.

"Not by putting cologne on her handkerchief," I answered decidedly. "Nobody should carry about scents poured on their garments." I had to say this.

Perfumes are used sparingly by elegant people, yet a touch, a vague sense of fragrance, does add something of daintiness to a girl's toilet. It is right for you to have perfumes about you if you love them.

Fresh rose-leaves thrown into your bureau drawers and scattered in the boxes where you keep your laces and handkerchiefs, and sprigs of lavender or lemon verbena left there to dry will impart a pleasant sweetness to whatever lies among them. Orris-root powder in little sachet bags of China silk, or strewn lightly between folds of tissue paper, will give to your clothing in closet or wardrobe a delightful faint odor of violet. If you use delicate soap with a sweet clean perfume, not of musk or anything strong and pronounced, and put a few drops of ammonia in the water when you bathe, you need not be afraid of any unfavorable comment on your daintiness. Perfect cleanliness is always dainty. Soil and stain, dust and dirt, are never anything but repulsive.—Harper's Round Table.

States That Have Gone Into Business.

It cannot well be claimed, then, that the sale of liquor by the State is a "business" in the ordinary acceptance of the term. She assumed control for a specific purpose: that of policing and regulating the traffic. The profit is an incident and as I have shown, may be eliminated; but is necessary in the interest of temperance, to prevent the encouragement of consumption, by making the liquor too cheap. But it is not such a bad thing, nor has it been held unconstitutional by our courts, State and national, for the United States Government is in the business of transporting the mails, has made it a monopoly, and protects that monopoly by stringent laws. It is in the business of manufacturing arms and building ships. It is in the business of printing and engraving. The United States also went into the business of building railroads, very extensively, about twenty five years ago, (and giving them away,) if not directly, still indirectly. The State of New York long ago went into the business of building canals, greatly to the benefit of her people; the State of Georgia went into the business of building railroads direct, and still owns a line from Atlanta to Chattanooga, worth nine million dollars, None of these things have been considered unconstitutional. But whenever society has attempted, through legislation, to stifle the evils of the liquor traffic the courts have always been prone to throw obstacles in the way and place the constitution, State or national, in the pathway of reform. It is a sacred word, but many sins are committed in its name.—B. R. Tillman in North American Review.

PERFECT HEALTH
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from Constipation, Kidney Trouble, and Indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 129 pounds; I now can brag of 150 pounds, and was never in so good health. If you could have seen me before and again after using you would want me for a traveling advertisement. I swear by Ayer's, and believe this preparation to be the best in the market to-day."—S. P. SMITH, 312 Poplar st., Towanda, Pa.
"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla for general debility, and, as a blood-purifier, find it does expressly as is claimed for it. I consider it unsurpassed as a cleanser of the blood."—S. J. ADAMS, Ezzell, Texas.

LET those who will, bewail the degeneracy of the times, one who looks on the bright side looks not vainly; but even if he did there would not be so much lost as they lose who croak or lament. To see good and rejoice in it, is not only a duty—it is a privilege. Hopefulness is not only a virtue, but a priceless gift.

That there are good men living, and that some of them have money, is in evidence by the gifts amounting to $4 075,750, which colleges and universities in this country have received since January 1st. Moreover, the statistician informs us that hospitals have received in this time $1,693,000; churches, $789,000; and libraries, $308,000. Besides this, $3,768,400 has been distributed among museums, art galleries, and various kinds of charities, making a total up to the time of the collection of these statistics, about a month ago, of $10,484,150.

IT IS not often we hear the "Macedonian cry" from genuine Macedonians. In fact the most of us hear so little of what moderns call "news" from the lands of the Bible that there is danger of us coming to think of them as traditional only. But the Macedonia that was worthy of the solicitude of the early Christians has lately been figuring lively on the Eastern stage, and in a role not likely to be lightly regarded by the heathen Turk, even though he is backed in suppressing her people by the larger "Christian" nations of Europe. To be brief, the Macedonians revolted against the Turks and won three battles in succession, and would have won more if the more powerful nations of Europe had not been obliged by treaties to take a hand in repressing them. So afraid of each other are these great nations that in addition to maintaining magnificent standing armies at the expense of the physical and domestic comfort of millions of poor people, they also do what they can to prevent lesser nations improving their condition, lest it somehow disturb the balance, the least jarring of which might precipitate an avalanche of war.

THERE are some editors within the borders of this State who do not conceal that they are troubled of soul with doubts of what will come to pass in their time, and whether it will affect them seriously. As to the main issue, at best we can offer only an indication or two; but we can assure them before going further that there is only the remotest possibility of the discovery of a poison fatal to patent outsides which club with outside weeklies, in communities where no better can be had. But we will not be positive, for stranger things than this are daily coming to pass and, true though it has ever been, it was never so amazingly true as it is to day that no man knows what a day may bring forth. In a reliable paper before us we have just read a description of an electric plow with which an inventor—a German, of course, who doesn't know anything of our rocks and hills and terraced lands and winding rows—hopes to displace our good and worthy and all-sufficient horse, already so happily excluded to a large extent from lung choking and leg wearing pavements of the cities. And another fellow, who doubtless never saw a large corn field, has made a substitute for the sun, rather thinks he has, and named it geomagnetifers. Its inventor says it will force quick growth by running electric currents in the earth about the roots of plants! These propositions are obviously impracticable, but they show how far reaching the possibilities of developed electrical science may be, and how bold they are who would develop it.

CO-EDUCATION is gradually settling into proper limits without the aid either of unreasoning advocates or violent opponents. Matters of war are usually settled after the smoke has cleared and silence has come; and so grave civil questions that presented all sorts of problems so long as those arrayed for and against contended one with another, are often quietly settled by experience. Co education in primary classes has never been objected to; and now in the very highest classes it is being worked successfully. It will never be a successful plan in colleges. But in the highest technical, scientific and classical departments of the highest institutions, such as are not equalled by any school exclusively for women, it is doing well. To make a college co educational is to injure it and to dig a dangerous pitfall. But there is no probability of lowering the standard of such institutions as Harvard, Yale or Chicago University; and women who would attend them are sufficiently advanced in years and settled of character to look out for themselves. Now, a word of caution needs be said, that some of the little colleges which would be co educational in order to be great like Chicago University, may not be misled. Such efforts always weaken. A college must be great before it can be successfully co educational.

ONE of the strongest arguments advanced for the higher education of women is this: They must have the right kind of education and enough of it, not that they may be better fitted for "Society," but that they may be competent to determine and strong to say what society shall be. If there are blemishes upon our social life, the women are largely responsible for them; for, if they only knew it—and they ought to—it is theirs to say what must and must not be, at least in this one respect. In affairs domestic their sway is by no means absolute; in affairs religious they have their duties, privileges and responsibilities, and heavy ones, too; but to men is committed the greater part after the training of children; in affairs financial and political they should go only when driven; but in affairs social there is no one who would dispute their title, if they will rise to assume it.

A GOOD way to avoid the evils of dancing is to leave the question of a daughter's going to the ball room to her father, and for him to make a point of talking a little with men who dance. Such experience is more powerful than volumes of sermons.

A PICNIC excursion is a study fit for any philosopher, a spectacle for any man to contemplate and learn a sober lesson from. We came in contact with one of the first water a week or two ago. There were the crowded cars, windows filled with faces, handkerchiefs flying, a bedlam of voices, baby yells, boyish whoops, cracked voiced laughter and shrill tones of greeting of old men and women, two bands of music with base-ball teams to match, and lemonade and barbecue venders on every hand.

The day was insufferably hot and dusty, but that had no effect. Everybody spent all he had both of money and energy and took no thought of the morrow. Everybody was on a level for a few hours. Down on a platform we saw Baptists and Methodists and Episcopalians and unchristian, stars of the first magnitude in "high society" and the bottomest mudsills of humanity, all on the same floor dancing, all sweltering in the sunshine, all given up to the ecstacy of the moment, none with a serious thought of utility, of future good or evil, no more impressed with moral or religious obligation than so many frolicking kittens.

It is a sad thing to see people forget not only their religion, not only their station, not only their responsibility, but also their own selves and the purpose with which they were given souls, and go backward to animal life! But it is likely to happen at a picnic-excursion; for they are nothing if serious.

THE unusually frequent reports of burglaries go to show that the number of desperate characters is growing larger in our State. Burglary is a capital crime in North Carolina, and, as it is an act that requires planning, one who commits it within our borders must be more than vicious—he must be desperate. We sometimes think, however, that most of the burglaries committed in the towns of our State are by men who do not know the penalty of the crime, and the truth is it is not a task to find men who do not know the different offences for which this State inflicts the penalty of death. They are either ignorant negroes, or whites who come from States or countries in which murder is the only capital crime, there being a large number of these latter passing through to the general swarm at the Atlanta Exposition next fall. If we are right in this opinion, and the pettiness of most of the burglaries points that way, then it is only necessary that our towns be manned with wide awake and energetic policemen.

What Portion? One Tenth.

BY REV. J. N. STALLINGS, D. D.

In an article published some weeks ago in the RECORDER, I showed from the Scriptures that every Christian is required to set apart and consecrate a portion of all he receives, as he receives it, for the Lord's service. I proposed then to show, in a subsequent paper from the Scriptures, what portion is to be so set apart and consecrated.

It is clear that all giving to be acceptable to the Lord must be by "every man according as he purposeth in his heart; .... not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9: 7. It is equally clear, however, that every man is required to purpose in his heart to give a certain definite portion, and to perform the giving promptly, willingly and cheerfully. This appears from the following Scriptures:

1. It is to be according "as God has prospered him." 1 Cor. 16: 1, 2.

2 It is to be "according to that a man hath and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8: 12.

3. It is to be so that there may be "equality." 2 Cor. 8: 14.

How can these directions be complied with, unless every one purposes in his heart to give some certain, definite proportion of what he has and of what he receives? Does not the command of the Lord by his Apostle, "Let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him," 1 Cor. 16: 2, require some certain, definite portion? The same command had been given to the churches of Galatia, 1 Cor. 16: 1. Gal. 6: 2 teaches the same. The same commandment is upon us.

What, then, is that certain definite portion? I answer, one tenth

Why one tenth?

1. Because God ordained it from the beginning, as shown by Abraham's giving Melchizedek one tenth. Gen. 14: 20; Heb. 7: 4

2. The vow of Jacob to give one tenth to God, Gen. 28: 22.

3 God expressly claims the tenth as his own: "it is holy unto the Lord." Lev. 27: 30

4 God says not giving the tenth is robbing him. Mal. 3: 8, 9.

5 God is unchangeable. Mal. 3: 6, and many other Scriptures. Now, if Abraham, the father of all who believe, gave one tenth to Melchizedek, the type of Christ, is it not to all believers the strongest reason to consecrate at least one tenth to the service of the Christ whom he typified? And do not Abraham's act and Jacob's vow show conclusively that God's law of the tenth is not a mere Jewish regulation or ceremony; but as it was given long before there was a Jew in existence, that it was for his people through all ages? Is it not clearly the will of God that man "honor the Lord with his substance and with the first fruits of all his increase" now, as well as under the old dispensation? Is not the necessity greater now than then? God made the tenth a law for the Jews to be enforced by their rulers; he had made it a law before for all that worshiped him to be enforced just as the law of the Sabbath was enforced by his blessing for voluntary obedience, and his displeasure for disobedience: may we not justly conclude that it is still his law for all his people to be voluntarily obeyed just as every other law of his is to be obeyed? It is clear that the law of the tenth was not a mere Jewish ceremony no more than was the law of the Sabbath. We may call it the Jewish Sabbath as much as we wish, but we know at the same time that the Sabbath antedates the Jewish nation, and is as old as man's creation. It is as binding now as it was before Abraham lived, and as it was when under the Jewish nation its observance was enforced by their rulers. "It is against physical and Scriptural law to work on the Lord's day"—for the Lord's day is the Sabbath. "The civil law has nothing to do with it," or rather, ought to have nothing to do with it, but it is still God's law, and his people are under it as a rule of conduct, and willingly and cheerfully obey it, both because it is right and beneficial and because it is God's law. Now, why is not this also true of the law of the tenth? It is as old as the law of the Sabbath. Both were commanded and practiced ages before the law was promulgated at Sinai; both were enforced by law under the Jewish economy; neither has ever been repealed. True, the Sabbath was changed from the seventh to the first day of the week, not by direct commandment, but by the example of Christ and his Apostles. It is also true that in the beginning of the gospel, "the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul; neither said any of them that aught of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common." We know from the example of the early churches and the teachings of the Scripture that this principle prevailed, and it is still recognized by every earnest, devout Christian. "We are not our own," but are "bought with a price." We are the slaves of Jesus Christ. All we possess is His, not ours. Still the New Testament saints were allowed to possess such things as He saw proper to give them. So he allows us to do now. He required them, as I have shown, to honor Him with their substance and with the first fruits of all their increase, by laying aside by them in store as God prospered them, and according to that they had to equally bear one another's burdens. He requires the same of us.

I have shown that to obey the requirement, it is necessary to lay aside some certain, definite portion—necessary for them and for us. What portion? They—many of them regenerated Jews—would say, at least one tenth. What shall we say? At least one tenth.

There are several objections urged against adopting the tenth as a rule or system, which I desire to notice; but this article is already larger than I intended it. I will answer these next week by your indulgence.

Some Important Questions.

BY MORGAN J. LINDORTCH.

EDITOR BIBLICAL RECORDER Dear Sir:—I have for sometime had the privilege of reading your paper, and have read it with care and deep interest. I read with closest attention all that was said in the paper on State appropriations to Higher Education. I read and re read President Taylor's articles as they came out, and then again as they appeared in pamphlet form. I have made it a study. It may be answered some day, but for the life of me I do not see how it can be done. I heard one of our ablest statesmen and lawyers say a few days ago that he had read it with care, and that it is wholly unanswerable.

Now I know that it is easier to ask questions than it is to answer them, yet I will venture to ask you a few:

QUESTION 1.—Did your people, or the people whom you represent, intend the destruction of any State institution by the discussion of this question? You know, or I suppose you know, that such an impression was made, or was sought to be made in some section of the State.

[ANSWER.—Far from it. The authorities at the State aided institutions themselves had no fear of this; but they took the opportunity to create such an impression in the popular mind. Practical experience shows, as pointed out by President Taylor, that the withdrawal of State aid tends to increase the endowments of meritorious institutions by bringing them closer to the people. We do not desire to build up by tearing down; but those who have become so accustomed to being fed by the State were so reluctant to stand on their merits that they made this impression. The truth is, State aided institutions are doing more harm to academies and colleges, by depriving them of support and compelling them to lower their standards, than would be done, if the State aided institutions were closed. Our aim is, to bring all to a better, freer and more useful existence on an equitable basis.]

QUESTION 2.—Should the discussion in the pamphlet, set forth in such a manly, Christian spirit, have called forth any such reflections upon its author, and upon all who hold his views?

[ANSWER.—Such methods are the natural recourse of those who cannot support their claims fairly.]

QUESTION 3.—Why did all, or quite all, who replied to these views, withhold their real names?

[ANSWER.—Mostly because they were connected with some institution which drew money from the State, we believe.]

QUESTION 4.—Do your people think that this agitation has injured their institutions of learning, or will endanger their future prosperity? I am led to ask this question by a remark I heard a prominent Baptist make a few days ago. He said if the discussion of great principles such as he read in President Taylor's pamphlet would kill our colleges, he wanted them to die; that they would not be fit to live.

[ANSWER.—Not at all. On the other hand, there is a decided rally to the support of our institutions, and they are doing far better than could reasonably be expected.]

QUESTION 5.—Do other denominations sympathize with your people in this discussion? So far as I have been able to learn, they have taken no part in the public discussion of this issue, or at least very little. But I was at one of your Associations last year and heard Dr. Durham—who, I believe, is your mission agent or secretary—discuss it at length. The crowd was very large, and all seemed, without exception, to have been of one mind. I never heard, in all my life, the presentation of any subject that was so taking. Some of my friends and neighbors, prominent members of other denominations, said that if all of their people were not in favor of these principles, they ought to be.

[ANSWER.—They do; but some of their leaders do not, especially some who have political hopes. We believe, however, that it is only a matter of months until even the politicians will see that their only hope is to stand with the people for the right.]

QUESTION 6.—If the Baptists should have to stand alone for these principles, will they continue to contend for them? I did not know until recently that the Baptists were so untiring and persistent in urging their claims for what they honestly believed to be right. This agitation has led me to give some attention to the history of your people, especially the history they have made in this country and in the formation of this government. I was amazed to find proof so abundant that they were the leaders in the fight for religious liberty. In this the greatest of all the revolutions of this country, or of any other country, the Baptists for entire seperation of Church and State stood alone. If there were time and space, I would quote from Dr. Hawks, Dr. Foote, Bancroft the historian, and many others. Your people have a history to be proud of.

[ANSWER.—If they are worthy of their name and true to their fathers, the matter of standing alone will only serve to make them more determined to stand long and hopefully.]

QUESTION 7.—Did you gain anything by the agitation, and what was it?

[ANSWER.—We gained friends; we gained confidence in our cause; we found out we were far stronger than we thought. The people have been aroused to the need of more educational facilities, especially for the poor children of the State. The people gained a knowledge of political methods that will serve them well when they come to name their representatives again.]

QUESTION 8.—If the bill before the last Legislature to reduce appropriations had been voted on, do you think it would have passed?

[ANSWER.—We think not; for, in spite of pledges, in spite of principles, such influence had been brought to bear through the leaders, that a good majority was reduced to a minority. However, if it had been brought up within the first three weeks of the session, we think it would have passed.]

QUESTION 9.—Why was it put off till the close of the session, a matter that seemed so popular with the people? I heard members of the three parties—Republicans, Populists and Democrats—say during the session of the Legislature that if it were submitted to the people of the State, it would be passed immediately and with an overwhelming majority.

[ANSWER.—In order that there might be ample time to lobby. We speak of this as a fact, because we saw it. Indeed, there was no great effort to conceal it.]

QUESTION 10.—What had this question to do with politics or with political parties? I meet intelligent men of all parties who are most heartily in favor of these principles. Indeed, I have never known in this or in any other State any one question on which men of all parties more fully agree. I must say that I have never met in this State, nor anywhere else, anything that has so astounded me as a question put to Dr. Durham by the Chairman of the Committee on Education appointed by the last Legislature. The question was, "How did you vote in last election?" When I read this, I said, "My country! Is patriotism dead! Must a Legislative Committee on Education know how a man voted to enable them to settle a question of vital importance to the best interests of the State?" Can you or anybody else tell me why such a question was ever thought of by such an important committee, to say nothing of its being asked? What or who could have suggested such a question?

[ANSWER.—The question of State-aid to higher education is a question of public policy, not a party question. There are people in all parties who stand with us. If they will only insist that their nominees represent their views, it will never become a party question. The same is true of Prohibition: if those who believe in it will refuse to vote for saloon men, the question will not need to become a partisan one. Instead of allowing a few "leaders" to be represented, it is time for the people to demand that they themselves be represented. As for the question put by the Chairman of the Committee on Education, it is clear that he did it to create prejudice. The very spectacle of a man in his position doing this, is a disgrace to our State.]

I have in mind many more questions, but the string of them is already so long I fear they will all go to the waste basket. I guess you have found that there are a great many within your denomination, and without, who, becoming so deeply interested in some subjects, can ask questions without number. If you can answer these now before you, you will afford great satisfaction to one who has been deeply interested.

Length of Pastorates Should Be Governed by Circumstances.

Dear Recorder:—I do not agree with "Anti-annual." Short or long pastorates should be governed by circumstances. You can't make any rule. Some men can't stay too long while others can't leave too soon.

I believe in annual calls. It does not hurt a man for a church to recall him, but it does hurt him, and the church, too, to hold on when the church desires a change. If a church would not recall a man, he ought not to stay; and no self-respecting man can afford to stay where he would not be recalled.

Annual calls do not keep a church from holding on to the right man while it gives them a chance to get clear of the wrong man without blowing him up with dynamite. The spiritual welfare of a church is more important than the temporal welfare of the preacher. Better sacrifice a preacher to save a church than sacrifice a church to save a preacher. Yours in the work.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 14, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, ... EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

IF THERE is room for a Sunday-school in your community, do not stop until you have started it.

THE idea of little children, who are blessed with fathers and mothers, helping to provide for the little orphans at Thomasville, is a very beautiful one.

We hope that Bro. Hilliard's account of the work of our Scotland Neck Sunday-school in this particular will call out many practical responses from Sunday-schools throughout the State. They cannot teach the children a nobler lesson, nor can they give support to a worthier cause.

ACCORDING to our Virginia correspondent, who is evidently under the influence of an overdose of B. Y. P. U. A. enthusiasm, we should go into saloons and experience their effect on ourselves before we denounce them. For he says we do wrong to speak our mind on the B. Y. P. U. A. before investigating it.

Is there such a thing as a rule of faith and practice for Baptists? Or must we put the New Testament behind us and accept or refuse doctrines touching these things according as they suit or seem unpleasant to us?

We have never attended a national meeting of the B. Y. P. U. A. But we have kept thoroughly upon its workings, and we know it openly, nay, zealously, approves departures from our doctrine and polity. We know it tends to undermine the authority of the churches. And, even if we had nothing else than experience to judge by, the performances of many who are active in the big meetings would be sufficient for us.

THAT was sad news which came from China last week, and which was mentioned briefly in our news columns.

The death of Sister Fannie Knight King was enough to intensify our feeling for the missionaries who so nobly give themselves to this work; but the news of widespread rioting in an inland province, and later of a massacre of a number of missionaries (variously stated, probably ten, all English) in a coast province, while it arouses a feeling of admiration for those who are exposing their lives in Christ's name, and while it rebukes us for doing no little, it also sickens the heart and gives rise to feelings of despair which we should not foster.

For some time there have been riots in Sechuan, an inland province of China, which were part of a deliberate plan by organized rioters. The late war had nothing to do with it, as the province in which these troubles occurred is more than a thousand miles from the seat of war, where the people know far less of Japan's success than we do. It is also evident that the government is not responsible, as the riots were instigated by a leader who had been degraded from office. A curious fact in the case is, the people of this province have heretofore been well disposed to foreigners. The riots began May 28th in Chentu, capital of the province, and in a few days spread to many other cities, and many thousands of dollars of missionary property were destroyed. All the missionaries in the province to the number of one hundred and fifty were driven out, making good their escape to cities in which they could get protection. Northern Baptist mission stations were seriously affected by these occurrences, and the Watchman speaks of them as the most serious interruption which our Baptist missions have ever suffered. But there was no loss of life in all these troubles.

News has more lately come, however, of a terrible massacre at Kuchleng, in a coast province, Fuh Kien, which has heretofore been considered safe. This field was occupied by missionaries of the English Church and Methodist Episcopal church (North) of the United States. Reports are somewhat confused, which is natural in such cases, but it is thought that ten missionaries of the English church have lost their lives and a young woman Methodist missionary is gravely injured.

Other demonstrations against the missionaries are reported from several cities, but they were not serious.

These experiences ought to stimulate our mission feeling. God will help us. Even now such efforts are being made and such demands are pouring in that the Chinese government afford better protection to the missionaries, that there is no doubt but that hereafter the workers will be safer than ever. If England and Germany and America take the stand they ought to, China can now be taught a lesson that will be for her everlasting good.

BRO. STALLINGS ON TITHING.

The veteran editor of a well known religious paper on leaving for a vacation in Europe some days ago left instructions to his substitutes not to send him any copy of his paper containing religious controversy; "it is too hot to be worrying so," said he.

We have no intention of fanning Bro. Stallings' embers into flames this August, but it seems to us sufficient may be said without this. We are sure he is wrong, and believe he will see his error.

In all seriousness we submit that a man cannot be required "to purpose in his heart," as Bro. Stallings contends in the beginning of his article. To purpose is a voluntary act. It is quite another thing to say every good man will purpose in his heart to give cheerfully than to say every good man shall give cheerfully a certain amount. You cannot make a man do a thing cheerfully.

Bro. Stallings refers to the Scriptures three times to show "that every man is required to purpose in his heart to give a certain definite amount." We would not seek better Scriptures to support our contention that the tithing system is faulty and not required nor approved in the New Testament. 2 Cor. 8: 14 is cited to show that there must be equality; 1 Cor. 16: 1, 2, to show that one must give as God has prospered him. Now a little thinking will bring it clear that if the widow gives a tenth of her mites and Dives gives a tenth of his thousands, there is no equality at all, and certainly no equality such as Paul means, for here are his words (2 Cor. 8: 12, 13, 14):

For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not. For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened: but by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for your want; that that there may be equality.

Certainly Paul did not mean that there may be an equality of gifts, but an equality of conditions; that the wealthy might give away enough of their wealth to the poor to bring all to an equality. In the very next verse he says: "As it is written, He that had gathered much had nothing over; and he that had gathered little had no lack." Now, it is impossible that this verse is true, if each gave only a tenth. For if it had been that way, either the poor man would have lacked, or the rich man would have had something over. Thus the very Scripture that Bro. Stallings cites goes clearly and squarely against him.

It is also clear that if the widow gives a tenth of her mites and Dives a tenth of his thousands, they are not giving as God has prospered them. According to mathematical calculation they give in equal proportion to what they have; but no one would contend that there is any real proportion. If Dives gave in the same proportion as the widow, measured by their relative prosperity, he would give nine tenths, while she gave one.

Again, it is clear and no one has ever denied that Abraham gave Melchizedek "tithes of all;" but there is absolutely no reason for infering from this simple fact that "God ordained tithing from the beginning," any more than he ordained from the beginning every act of Abraham; and we have no authority for this. The same is true of Jacob's vow, promising to give the Lord a tenth if the Lord would be with him and bring him back to his father's house in peace. Bro. Stallings' reference to Malachi needs not to be noticed here, as the verse cited is clearly addressed to the Israelites, being as follows: "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me even this whole nation." "Tithes and offerings," the Scripture reads; so even the Israelites were required to give not a tenth, but more than a tenth.

Nothing further is necessary to show the errors of Bro. Stallings' article. But if it were necessary to say more, we would merely repeat parts of the latter half of his article, where he speaks of the example of "Christ and the apostles and the multitude of them that believed"—all of whom gave not a tenth, not a half, not a definite amount, not in equal proportion, but their all. That is the Christian standard. Not that a man should not possess wealth, but that he should use it for Christ and fellow man instead of for himself. He whose religious convictions suffer him to use one-tenth for God and nine-tenths for himself has a poor conception of his obligations in Christ's name.

The more we look into the tithing idea, the more convinced are we that it is contrary to the spirit, the example, and the expressed will of Jesus Christ.

WE must get rid of the idea of "annual missionary sermons." A sermon is defective in an important particular if it is not missionary.

THE Associations so far have planned hopefully for enlarged work the coming year; higher marks have been set, and the delegates seem to feel confident of coming up to them. Hopefulness helps mightily in an Association and in all work. Many say we are at the beginning of an era of great growth, and we believe it.

THE questions asked about the efforts that have been made to have discontinued State aid to higher education, are answered by us at length and given prominence because we think they are questions of general importance.

We print also this week the report on Education adopted by the Central Association, which we urge every reader to study carefully.

IN THE Woman's Missionary Department is an account of the organization by the women of the Central Association of an Associational Missionary Union. We believe this is a new step in woman's missionary organization in North Carolina. They are fully up with the men now, having a Southern Baptist Woman's Missionary Union, a Woman's Baptist State Central Committee of Missions, a Woman's Associational Missionary Union, Women's Missionary Societies in the churches, Young Ladies' Societies, Sunbeams and Yates Mission Bands.

....Rev. R. J. Bigham, D. D., of Atlanta, Ga., has been elected Secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, succeeding Dr. W. W. Smith, resigned.

....Here in North Carolina it is not easy to believe that Catholics are anywhere making converts from Protestantism. But it is a fact; and they are making vigorous efforts to keep it up.

....The Salvation Army has just appointed its two thousandth commanding officer and enrolled its five thousandth auxilliary, with an attendance of nearly 16,000,000 on its meetings annually.

....Rev. A. I. Justice reports in the W. N. C. Baptist a fruitful meeting at Green Mountain church, Henderson county. Twenty-three converts were baptized, one received by letter, and one restored.

....As there is more or less misunderstanding about it, it seems well to say again that Bro. F. H. Briggs, cashier of the National Bank of Raleigh, is Treasurer for the Baptist Female University.

....Rev. J. A. Campbell is now aiding his father in a meeting at Benson. He says that our church and Sunday school at Hector's Creek are in better working condition than he has ever known them to be.

....Several denominations are holding union services at Franklinton. Rev. Jasper Howell, Jr., reports that great interest is manifested, stores mostly closed, and many yielding to the moving power of the gospel.

....A number of prominent Baptists attended the Southern Biblical Assembly at Asheville last week. The Assembly will adjourn this week, during which Dr. H. H. Harris of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary will lead.

....Rev. N. B. Jones reports that the Regions Beyond work of Rev. C. B. Cashwell and himself at China Grove and Connelly's Springs has proved very profitable. He hopes to give another week to this work this summer, if possible.

....The "color line" was drawn in seating the recent Epworth League Convention at Chattanooga, and some of the Methodist organs are denouncing the action. The recent B. Y. P. U. A. refused to take official action in this matter at Baltimore.

....Rev. Dr. J. W. Carter of the Raleigh First Baptist church will take vacation the next three weeks, spending it in West Virginia. During his absence the pulpit will be supplied by preachers selected by a committee appointed for that purpose.

....We are pleased to note that Professor J. T. Alderman has gone forward another decided step in his chosen work. He has just been elected superintendent of public schools in Columbus, Georgia. Last year he held a similar position at Tallapoosa.

....President Taylor was at Mars Hill, Aug. 6th and 7th, at the New Found Association on the 8th and 9th; since has been in Asheville, and expects to be at the Flat River Association this week. This is the kind of activity that secures students for Wake Forest.

....Rev. R. E. Chambers, who has for two years been assisting Secretary Willingham and doing city missionary work in Richmond, awaiting an opportunity to go to China, will leave for that field Oct. 1st. He and his wife will go with Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Graves.

....Prof. W. L. Poteat recently delivered his lecture in the Broad Street church, Winston, on "The Thirty Silent Years of Christ's Life." Prof. Poteat has rapidly come to the front as a public speaker, and is now among the first in our State in this respect. We see that he is announced as a speaker on the Baptist Congress program as a member of the faculty of the University of Virginia. With two others he will discuss the "Physiological Basis of Morality." This is a considerable honor to our State and Convention, as only two other Southern Baptists are on the program, although it contains the names of the most notable of the Northern brethren. The Congress meets Nov. 12-14 with the First Baptist church, Providence, R. I.

....Pastor J. W. Millard of Henderson passed through Raleigh, Friday, on his way to Asheville, where his sister, Mrs. Stevens, is very ill. We hope she will be restored to her loved ones.

...."The Baptists whom we need to reach," said a brother at the Beulah, "are not those who come to Associations, but those who never come." There is a way to reach them and to get them to the Associations: Send them the RECORDER.

....Bro. W. L. Pickard is assisting Pastor A. T. Robertson in a meeting at Salem, Nelson county. The work is deep and wide. Last week there were nine additions, eight for baptism. The meeting continues this week.—Western Recorder, Aug. 8.

....Rev. Thos. Carrick of Lexington has resigned the pastorate of our church there. Bro. Carrick is an able preacher and a good man. He has been instrumental in much good work at Lexington. The Convention's enterprises have always had an ardent friend in him, and we hope he will remain with us.

... We would consider it a great favor if those of our subscribers who can will immediately forward us part or all of the amount they owe on subscription. We are going over the books preparatory to straightening them up, and money paid now will not only come in good time, but will also save us trouble and expense.

....The Christian Index of Georgia has grown within recent months into a very able and altogether admirable Baptist paper; but it is not content with this, and has lately made another step forward by engaging Drs. Hawthorne and McDonald of Atlanta as regular editorial contributors. The Index is the oldest Baptist paper in the South.

....Rev. A. R. Pittman, with his son Rev. N. R. Pittman of Missouri, and Rev. Rufus Ford, has been conducting a meeting at Saddle Tree, in which much interest was manifested and several professions of religion made. Bro. Pittman is now being assisted in a meeting at Rennert by his brother, Rev. A. McA. Pittman of Ellore, S. C.

....Rev. C. L. Greaves of Sanford was ordained to the full work Aug. 4th, at Olivet Baptist church, Pasquotank county, Rev. Josiah Elliot preaching the sermon. Bro. Greaves received his education at Wake Forest College. He has had considerable experience as a preacher, and is regarded as a young man of good promise for usefulness.

....An Episcopal preacher in Mississippi, as we learn from the Christian Standard, joined the Catholics. Writing to the Episcopal bishop, he said: "It is unnecessary for me to go into my reasons for this step further than to say that I have at last seen the folly of trying to be a Catholic and a Protestant at the same time."—Western Recorder.

....Dr. Hume is now resting at his summer home, Waynesboro, Va., and will not return until the University opens. He has been doing no little extra work this summer, taking an active part in the University Summer School, and more recently in the Southern Biblical Assembly at Asheville, before which he read a paper on "The Enemies of the Bible."

....The laborers are going forth hopefully to the harvest. The Lord is giving them souls for their hire. This being a time of especial effort for soul-saving, and in a period when the people are likely to be more spiritually minded, all Christian people should pray especially for abundant results. Rev. J. W. Cobb and Rev. R. A. Moore have been holding a meeting at Manchester; thirteen additions, and meeting still going on, Bro. Moore doing the preaching. Bro. Cobb was last week at Bladen Union and has brother D. C. Britt with him; thence they go to Ephesus. Rev. S. D. Hart of Virginia is helping Pastor W. B. Waff at Great Fork in a good meeting. Rev. E. S. Pierce has been helping Pastor Wilcox at Reedy Creek, Granville county, and the meetings are reported a great success. Rev. A. L. Stough of Pineville has been protracting at Brown's and seven persons have joined the church. Rev. R. L. Limrick of Shelby has been preaching at Sandy Plains, and seven have joined the church. Dr. J. B. Richardson baptized three at Leaksville recently. Eighteen were baptized at Boiling Springs Monday of last week as a result of a meeting in Boiling Springs church in which Rev. G. P. Hamrick preached. Rev. A. G. Wilcox is this week preaching the Word at Harris' Chapel. Eight days preaching by Pastor J. G. Fisher and W. S. Melvin at Zion's Tabernacle were blessed with seven additions to the church. At Mountain Creek there has been great demonstration of the Spirit's power, nineteen persons being buried with Christ in baptism at the conclusion of a revival which Rev. C. B. Justice conducted. The revival meetings in the Newbern Tabernacle, Rev. C. S. Burgess pastor, having with him Pastor J. T. Jenkins of Morehead, have closed; there are many evidences of good done. Rev. J. E. Hutson of Richmond will conduct a meeting in this church later on. Dr. R. R. Overby is being assisted by Rev. J. F. Love of Suffolk in a meeting in the Eastern section. Rev. J. Q. Adams is assisting Rev. J. L. Bennett at Peachland. Rev. H. D. Harrill and Rev. J. M. Walker are holding protracted services at Abilene. Five additions are reported from the meetings at Spring Garden, in which Rev. B. W. Spilman helped Rev. J. W. Rose. Bro. Spilman will help Pastor W. F. Fry at Bay Creek next week. Eight baptisms are reported from the meetings at Lower Creek church conducted by Rev. G. H. Church and Rev. A. E. Croom. We notice that Hon. W. C. Newland has presented this church with two handsome pulpit chairs. Rev. C. W. Scarboro has just closed a fruitful meeting at Pendleton, and is now at Roberts Chapel. Rev. M. J. Willoughby baptized nine converts recently into the fellowship of his Beech Island, S. C., church; and Rev. John O. Gough baptized twelve at Manning. Bro. Gough is visiting at Wake Forest, where he preached Sunday.

....Rev. Z. C. Taylor, missionary of our Convention to Brazil, is visiting in this country.

....We were glad to have a visit from Rev. J. D. Moore of Beaufort, Monday. He was going to Globe, his old home, preparatory to going to the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in October. Bro. Moore has done exceedingly well as pastor at Beaufort since he graduated at Wake Forest in 1893. We are sure he will come back to us stronger for having attended the Seminary.

....Rev. G. N. Cowan, we are very glad to say, is at Clayton, N. C., instead of Georgia, as stated. He succeeds Rev. W. C. Newton on that field, and is well known to the people thereabout, having taken part in meetings while he was at Wake Forest College. Those who know Bro. Cowan expect him to grow stronger and stronger in the Lord's work, in which he has made such a good start.

....Thirty thousand Baptists read the RECORDER every week. If the pastors will help us, we will make the number one hundred thousand; and then the denomination will be able to use its real strength. As it is now, no one knows what a power the denomination might be. The word is "Go Forward." Let every reader try to get a new subscriber. Introductory rate, strictly to new subscribers, until January 1st, 1896, for fifty cents.

....We thank Rev. W. A Smith for the following notes: "Our meeting at Perry's Chapel was very good. The church seemed right much revived. There were several professions, but only four were baptized. We are under obligations to brethren Howell and Wilson of Franklinton and Bro. Bobbitt of Mitchener's for their kind assistance. Our meetings at Cedar Rock and Rehoboth will not be held before fall. Our school opens August 19th. The prospects for this session are much better than ever before."

....The Roman Catholic Total Abstinence Union met in Convention in New York last week. Its sessions were unusually stormy because of two factions, one of which was inclined to tolerate the making and selling of beer by certain monks—the beer being called St. Vincent's beer; the other faction was ardently desirous of denouncing this infamy, and succeeded in getting its denunciatory resolutions passed. We are not so much surprised to learn that the monks were making beer as we were to learn that the Moravians run a brewery in this country and give the profits to missions.

....Rev. J. A. Hoyle, one of the Lord's good and faithful servants, writes from Maiden, August 6: "I have just closed a week's meeting with Mt. Zion church in Lincoln county. The Lord's presence was with us in great power. Seventeen persons were received for baptism, and four were restored to the fellowship of the church, and the entire membership was greatly revived. Rev. C. H. Durham of Asheville was with us and did most of the preaching. Bro. Durham is a young man of great power in preaching the pure gospel. He is now with Bro. Morris in a meeting at Salem. I am in a gracious meeting at Mt. Ruhama, Catawba county. Bro. Durham will join me Saturday on my way to King's Mountain, where we will hold a week's meeting. Pray for the Lord's blessing upon us."

....Rev. John R. Moore has gone to Carthage, where he will succeed Rev. C. J. F. Anderson, who gives up his field to go to the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Bro. Anderson is an unusually gifted young man, and he has used his talents wisely since he entered the pastorate. His people no doubt regret to give him up; but if he will come back to us from the Seminary, it will be well. We know Bro. Moore personally. He is the son of our venerable brother, Rev. R. R Moore; is a graduate of Wake Forest College, where during his last year he was one of the editors of the Student, on which he did good work. He is earnest and consecrated, and we bespeak for him the love and confidence of those whom he has come to serve in the Master's name.

....Rev. John C. Hocutt sends us the following news and suggestion, both of which are good: "Last Sunday I baptized four (two brethren and two sisters) into the fellowship of Haw River Baptist church. The next first Sunday I baptize others. Quite frequently there are professions of conversion in our congregation. This, as it seems to me, is as it should be. It is a good thing to have a protracted meeting when it is necessary; but it is usually the privilege of the churches to have such a continuous work of grace as to make the protracted meeting unnecessary." Brother Hocutt also sends the name of a new subscriber with fifty cents, and that means the paper will go to her the rest of this year, giving all the news of the Associations, the progress of the work in general, and stimulating interest in all that pertains to our cause. Would that many of our pastors would follow this example.

....Some one sends us a newspaper clipping which declares that "D. L. Moody was immersed by Geo. Pentecost while at Northfield; B. F. Mills was immersed by a Baptist preacher at Northfield; N. H. Harraman, a wonderful revivalist around Boston, was immersed by S. Hartwell Pratt. Yatman, once editor of the Christian City in New York City, and the greatest Y. M. C. A. evangelist now living, was immersed; Munhall, a union worker with Moody, was immersed; Major Whittle and Mr. and Mrs. Clark Wilson were immersed; Henry Varley, the great English evangelist, was immersed. Why were these distinguished evangelists baptized by immersion? Their answer is that when they gave Bible readings during their revivals, and studied the word of God topically, they found immersion to be the form of baptism practiced by the apostles." We are not sure that all of these evangelists were immersed, but we are told that it is quite a common event for Pedobaptist ministers to receive immersion at Mr. Moody's Northfield assembly.—Indiana Baptist. We publish this item in hopes of getting the truth of it.

THE ASSOCIATIONS.

PILOT MOUNTAIN.

The last session was held with Beaver Island church near Madison. We always look forward to the meeting of this Association with pleasure. Only a few years ago it was formed from the old Beulah. Its meetings have always been well attended, its work wisely and well done, and it is now one of our strongest and most progressive Associations.

The introductory sermon was preached by Bro. C. C. Haymore, who has been one of the pastors to build up and carry forward the work of the Association. The sermon was strong, pointed and appropriate, and proved an "earnest" of the fine interest which followed in the remaining days of the session.

Bro. D F. King, who for many years has been the Moderator, was at once re elected, to the entire satisfaction of all the brethren. He is not a "wordy" Moderator, but his kind and courtly bearing serves as a stimulant to those who speak as well as to those who listen.

The Clerk, Bro. Valentine, was in his place in good time with greetings for the brethren and smiles for the sisters. The brethren of the Pilot Mountain have put this office under "civil service" rules, and so hold to their Clerk from year to year without electing at each.

The discussion of Periodicals closed the work of the first day. Bro. Peterson was present and spoke in the interest of the North Carolina Baptist. Brethren Brown, Oliver, Lamberth, Wray and others spoke for the RECORDER. So it only remained for the representative to reap the results of the efforts of these brethren, who not only spoke for the RECORDER here, but who through all the years of their ministry have faithfully and earnestly endeavored to circulate the paper with their people.

Bro. Van Deventer, Vice-President of the Foreign Mission Board, was present and made an interesting address, and also furnished the brethren some helpful literature on the subject of Foreign Missions.

Bro. J. H. Lamberth, the pastor at Mt. Airy, is now spending his first year in the Association. He is showing here as he has done in former pastorates, that he is a preacher of unusual power, an aggressive worker, a safe and judicious leader in all denominational work. His speech on Foreign Missions ranks among the best efforts we have heard on this subject.

The growth and success of the Association is due largely to the work of the Executive Committee. It has been through the efforts of this Committee that a large number of new churches have been built, and now most of the territory is occupied. Brother Brown has been the chairman of this Committee for the past ten years, and the universal desire of the churches that he should remain in this position is the best evidence of his fitness for the work.

One new church was received this session, built by Bro. Wilson, who for twelve years has been one of the most useful pastors in the Association.

The brethren were all glad to see Bro. Durham and hear him again on State Missions; for while this Association works through its own Executive Committee, the work is all reported through the State Mission Board.

The Pilot Mountain Association has always felt a live interest in the work of the Orphanage. The discussion this year was very good, and the good work of the churches for this object will continue to increase as it has done through the years that are past. The body passed resolutions commending Bro. Mills and the work he has done during his administration as General Manager of this work.

The report on Education was read by Bro. W. H. Wilson. The writer of the report and Prof. W. L Poteat entertained the Association with a fine discussion on General Education, and Dr. John Mitchell spoke on Ministerial Education. The churches had all paid their pledges, and Bro. Mitchell was much encouraged by the liberal pledges made for the coming year.

Bro. Blanchard was given a special hour to speak on Wake Forest College. His address was interesting and instructive, and we think prepared the way for his doing some good work in this section for the Endowment and securing students for next session.

Dr. J. B. Richardson preached a sermon of great power at the arbor on Saturday. As I saw this great crowd of people melted by the earnest, fervid appeals of the preacher, I thought sometimes it is better to have preaching "at the stand."

Bro. Ellington, the pastor of the church, and his brethren did their part well in providing entertainment for all present.

We are especially grateful to Bro. John H. Price, a good Methodist brother, for his kind and hospitable treatment during the session of the Association.

THE BEULAH.

met with the church at Ephesus. Those of us who know something of this church and the section in which it is situated were prepared to anticipate the pleasant meeting which grew in interest to the last. This is one of the oldest churches in the State. It is now more than a hundred years since the Lord's people met here to worship and carry foward his cause in the world. The memory of the fathers, long gone, remains to cheer those whose feet are near the shore, while Bro. Lamberth, the pastor, by his vigorous preaching and wonderful tact at bringing things to pass, has developed the younger members into efficient and loyal church workers.

Bro. S. P. Adams was elected Moderator, and no more need be said, than that with a due amount of experience, he promises to walk worthily in the footsteps of Herr, Poteat, Bominger, and others, who have so well filled this office before him.

Bro. H. T. Williams was made Clerk. He brings with his natural qualifications for this work, the training received in the West Chowan, in some respects the most effective body of Christian workers in the entire State. Bro. B. S. Graves, who has for years so well discharged the duties of Treasurer, was still retained. The churches with one or two exceptions were all represented and I think in every instance increased their pledges over last year.

Three hundred dollars was raised to employ a missionary and colporter to give his entire time to the work of the Association. This is a step in the right direction and promises, if successful, to be the turning point in the work of the Association.

Wednesday was a "field day" for Education. The address of Prof. Poteat would have done credit to any man, on any occasion or before any assembly. He was followed by Prof. Hobgood, who spoke encouragingly of the prospect of the school in Oxford, also by Bro. Beam, whose school at Bethel Hill the Association endorsed for the preparation of the boys and girls in its bounds to take higher courses in other institutions.

We are glad to see that Brother Mitchell's health is better, and also that he is meeting with encouragement in his work.

Bro. Durham was at his best on all questions of Missions, and when this is the case he is the best of the best. He has travelled over more of the destitute portion of the State since the last meeting of our Convention than ever before, and he is using what he saw, heard and did in the way of organizing new points of work with fine effect on the Associations now being held.

The brethren were glad to see for one day Bro. J. W. Bailey, editor of the BIBLICAL RECORDER. He spoke to the report on Periodicals, and fully sustained the good opinion the brethren had for him, who had only known of him through his writing in the RECORDER

Bro. J. E Armstrong, who is now at Milton and has several churches in the Association, is full of energy, and will, we think, be a valuable accession to the work of the Association.

Brethren Durham, Mitchell and Prof. Hobgood made some most satisfactory statements in reference to Brother and Sister Boone, who take charge of the Orphanage Sept. 1st. A good collection was taken and a number of subscribers obtained for the Orphanage paper.

NOTES

Thus far there has been less to disturb the harmony of the work of our Associations than for the past five years.

The spiritual influence that has pervaded the meetings of our Associations to the present is marked indeed.

Our people have lost none of their enthusiasm on the subject of Christian education, and are more determined than ever to resist the part the State is taking in higher education in all the years to come.

"I send my child to no school where I can not go and judge for myself of the sort of work done. We are not so negligent about our pigs."—Prof. W. L. Poteat.

Notes from Fayetteville.

The famous old town of Fayetteville is in striking contrast with the noisy and bustling railroad center which I recently left. Fayetteville is also a railroad center with two railroads running through it, and putting our people in easy reach of the leading cities.

I like Fayetteville. The town is well located, and the people are hospitable. They know how to welcome the preacher, and how to treat him after they receive him. We have never had a more cordial reception—never found things in better shape—carpets down and furniture arranged, and table ladened with good things to cheer the body. We felt at home in the parsonage as soon as we entered it. The work begins under favorable circumstances.

Fayetteville has many attractive homes, several good churches, but there are plague spots here. The bar-rooms and brothels are the curse of the community. The town seems to be the radiating center for the sale of whiskey. There is much to do along the line of temperance.

The people are responsive to the appeals of a pastor. It is a characteristic of the eastern people. They let the heart rule in matters of religion, and seem to throw more fervor into their worship and work. The prayer meetings are well attended and the congregations on Sunday have been large and attentive to the preaching of the gospel.

The news of "Miss Fannie Knight's" death comes as a shock to her friends. She was a woman of fine culture and consecration. The people of the Chowan section loved her devotedly. Her mistakes, which some of us thought she made, were mistakes of love. The spirit of Christ crowned her defenses of her position. She will be sadly missed by the "Gospel Mission" as well as by her husband. The workers fall, but no gaps are made in the ranks, for God fills them by his own power.

May God's blessings rest abundantly upon the RECORDER and its young editor. Let all the brethren help him in his work.

Johnson's Magnetic Oil Horse Brand is the most powerful and penetrating liniment in existence for external use only, for man or beast. Spraine, bruises, swellings, rheumatism, neuralgia and lumbago. Large bottles, 25 and 50 cts. Sold by Jno. Y. MacRae, druggist, Raleigh, N. C.

A Good Example for Other Sunday-schools.

Editor Recorder:—There are many interests that press upon the Baptists of the State, but just now nothing presses upon us with more importance than our Orphanage at Thomasville. Thus far the Orphanage has been more or less cramped in its efficiency because of the small receipts with which to meet expenses. It is an easy matter, however, for the Baptists of the State to handsomely and liberally support the institution, and the only condition is that our people become acquainted with the real needs of the Orphanage, the great work being done, and also become thoroughly aroused to the importance of its proper support.

The Sunday schools can easily support the institution if they will go about it systematically. The Scotland Neck Sunday-school has been greatly interested in the Orphanage from the first, and perhaps our plan for raising money might work with other schools. For the first two or three years our Sunday-school made a special contribution to the Orphanage on the first Sunday in each month, and by vote of the school that contribution was always to be at least five dollars. Then the school increased this monthly collection to ten dollars, and it was very easily raised. Two years ago the Sunday-school voted to make the collection for the Orphanage on the first Sunday in each month fifteen dollars instead of ten. We found no more trouble in raising the fifteen dollars than we did in raising ten.

Last Sunday our Sunday school voted to make our monthly collection for the Orphanage twenty dollars instead of fifteen, and although a large part of the school were kept away by reason of rain, the amount was easily raised. Our Sunday school averages about two hundred, and by keeping the interest of the Orphanage before the children and young people, it is an easy matter for the school to raise once a month an average of ten cents for each scholar.

The plan works admirably with us, and I call the attention of the Sunday schools to it in the hope that it may be a means of stimulating other schools that have not already done so, to some systematic contributions to the Orphanage. If all the Baptist Sunday schools in the State would adopt some good plan of systematic contribution, it would be an easy matter to support the institution.

As the institution grows, its needs multiply, and it claims the special attention of the denomination just now. Its support may easily be secured through the Sunday-schools if they will manage their work for it wisely, zealously and systematically.

Scotland Neck, Aug. 6, 1895

From Missionary E F. Tatum.

TO THE YADKIN AND SOUTH YADKIN ASSOCIATIONS.

My Dear Brethren and Friends:—In the BIBLICAL RECORDER of April 17, you might have seen the statement that the Calvary St. church, Rev. L. G. Broughton, pastor, Roanoke, Va., had undertaken my support. I have also had a very kind letter from our Sec., Dr. R. J. Willingham asking whether or not I could agree to such an arrangement. The expressed willingness on the part of Christian people to support a missionary gives him something to be thankful for. When unable to support himself, how can he come except he be sent? But I do not forget the kindness bestowed upon me in your effort to arrange for my support before I came to China. And I wrote our Secretary that while little was said about it now, if you were supporting me and desired to continue, I should be pleased to have you do so. Since writing him I have referred to the minutes of the South Yadkin Association, and find contributions to Foreign Missions in 1893, $164.12, in 1894, $104 18. Very little, if any, of this was specified as being for my support. During these years I do not know how much the Yadkin Association has contributed for Foreign Missions; but not enough, I fear, to justify in claiming to the Virginia brethren that you support me. Now dear brethren and friends, when you meet in your approaching sessions, will you kindly consider the question: Is it possible for you to support me? I know you will not be satisfied with simply having the name to do so. If you cannot contribute that amount, $500 00 annually, and will kindly write me, then I am ready to fall in with the plan of our Secretary, Bro. Broughton, and his congregation. Brethren, let's stay together.

The last time I wrote you as to the amount of my salary, I was accepting $400 00 as an experiment. I said then that if I found that to be insufficient I would accept more and tell you about it. Last year I received $450 00. This year I am receiving at the rate of $500 00 a year, the amount our Board allows each missionary. (You do not forget that a married missionary receives salary for two, that $100 00 per year is allowed for each child, and a house is furnished us.)

Now some notes as to our work. Three weeks during April, in addition to our regular afternoon service, we (missionaries, evangelist and church members) met six nights per week for services at the "Old North State" church. We had prayer and song, two short sermons and tract distribution and personal conversations with any who were so disposed. We took the names of those who were willing to enlist as inquirers into the Christian Doctrine. Thirty gave their names. The list has increased to fifty now. Early in June, accompanied by an evangelist I had a two weeks visit to Soochow to fulfil in part a promise made to console Bro. Britton when he was about to leave his station. When we arrived at Soochow, Bro. Lawton had gone for his dinner. (He boards with a neighboring Presbyterian brother missionary.) The place seemed very desolate and unnatural without Bro. Britton and family. Bro Lawton took same. He treated me with so much kindness and seemed to appreciate my presence to such a degree and found so much for me to do that I stayed several days longer than I intended. Preaching twice a day and three times Sunday added to directing Chinese painters and carpenters, who were doing some repairs, is enough to keep one happily busy.

When I did return to Shanghai, I found Bro. Bryan had invited the inquirers to his house for a free easy meeting. Around a table furnished with Bibles and christian books, with tea to drink and watermelon seed to eat, the missionary or evangelist seeks to teach more perfectly these benighted ones. Will this plan bring them in? No, but the Spirit of God will. Pray that He may be in our midst with saving power.

Yours fraternally,

E. F. TATUM.

Shanghai, China, July 6, 1895.

School Notes.

Prof. C. C. Teague made a pleasant visit to our office last week. He has been successful in a marked degree as director of the Commercial Department of Bro. W. A. Smith's Cedar Rock Academy, and is now entering upon similar work in Ramseur Institute. We commend him to the people of that vicinity.

The Raleigh Male Academy, of which Messrs. Morson and Denson are principals, is one of the most efficient preparatory high schools to be found anywhere. The State University, Wake Forest College, Davidson and Trinity have all recognized the high character of its work in the young men who have been prepared by it for these institutions. It is also equipped to give a first-class business education.

Prof. F. P. Hobgood, Sr., is attending Associations in the interest of our work in general, and especially for his excellent Seminary. He has reasons to expect a good attendance this year—better than the prosperous school of last session. Oxford Seminary has been moving forward steadily since Professor Hobgood resumed charge of it, and he is hopeful of even more rapid advance within a few years.

Rev. J. A. Beam formally gave Bethel Hill Institute to the Beulah Association last week, and the Association adopted it, recommending it as a preparatory school. Bro. Beam is looking forward to the completion of his $5 000 building, and says there will be great need for it this fall.

Bro. W. L. Foushee, who successfully conducted Roxboro Academy last year, will continue in that work. There are no more popular people in their section than the Foushees, and W. L. may look forward to having a large school as a matter of course.

If our school friends could persuade Professor Poteat to write out for the RECORDER his Beulah Association speech, it would pay them richly. We suggest that they employ a stenographer to get it the first time he can be caught repeating it.

Prof. F. P. Hobgood, Jr., will go back to his position in the faculty in the Asheville city schools, in which he gave entire satisfaction last year.

Dr. Chas. L. Cooke, one of the most esteemed of Virginia educators, places before our readers a first class picture of his famous institution, Hollins Institute, and also gives names of a faculty of teachers that any institution would be proud of.

We met a brother on the cars last week who sets a fine example in the matter of education. He is less than forty years old, is well-to do, is a hard, steady worker and keeps up his interest in his denomination in spite of the many cares to turn him aside. He runs a school of his own, employing a tutor, as he has a family of eleven children, and he is expecting to give them every one a chance. He is not one of those who give up without trying, and we believe he will be blessed richly for his interest in the welfare of his children.

Buie's Creek Academy is now equipped with a faculty of seven teachers. The institution is only eight years old, but it is one of the most highly commended institutions of its kind in the State. Bro. Campbell enrolled more than two hundred last year, and he expects to surpass this record in the year which he began Aug. 5th.

Prof. R. N. Cook, Wake Forest '93, and Professor C. P. Sapp, Wake Forest '93, will conduct Bardstown, Ky., Male and Female Institute this year, with six assistants. Both of them are naturally well endowed, and their records at Wake Forest were of the first order. We are sure they will meet the success which they merit in this well-known institution.

Three Meetings.

From the second Sabbath in July the meeting was protracted six days with the Baptist church at Stovall. Eight professed faith in Christ, seven were received for baptism, and one by letter. Christians greatly enjoyed the meeting.

From the third Sabbath in July the meeting was continued seven days at Island Creek church. Eighteen professed faith, and sixteen were received for baptism. It was a precious meeting.

In these two meetings I was aided most of the time by pastor H. H. Mashburn, who preached the old gospel with new unction and power. His ministry was a blessing to my people.

From the fourth Sabbath in July the meeting was continued five days at Rock Spring church. There were eighteen professions, and ten were received for baptism. Others may join. This is a new church in a strong Pedobaptist community. It was a good meeting. Pastor J. E Smith rendered me valuable aid during most of the meeting. He is a zealous worker.

I conduct my meetings on the old plan of inviting penitents to the front seats. I am slow to turn away from old, well-tried methods of work. J. A. BRADSHAW.

Report on Education.

[Submitted to the Central Association at its late session at Mt. Vernon church by the Committee on Education—Dr. C. E. Taylor, M. L. Fowler and J. S. Timberlake—and adopted by that Body.]

1. The Education of Ministers.—The first object of the Baptist State Convention, as stated in its Constitution, is the education of young Baptist preachers. There is not now, and there has not been for sixty years, any more important object before the Associations which co operate with the Convention. The Central Association has throughout its history warmly sympathized with and liberally contributed to this work. But there has never been a time when sympathy and contributions have been more needed than now. The men aided by the Board of Education and the work done by these men are an unanswerable argument for the value of the system and the wisdom of the methods of the Board. Very many young ministers, licensed by their churches, commended by their neighbors, and unable to secure education without aid, are now asking the Board for help. This can be given only through the gifts of the members of the churches. Shall these gifts be withheld, and these young Baptist preachers be denied the chance of attending school?

2. Wake Forest College.—Every Baptist in the State has a property right in this institution. But it happens to be located in the territory of the Central Association, and it would be natural for the members of this body, even more than of any other, to take a lively interest in it. It is convenient for their inspection and their patronage. The Trustees are seeking to administer its affairs with wisdom and economy. They appeal to every Baptist in the State to co operate with them in helping, in every way possible, to adapt the College to the needs of our own people. The completion of the endowment of the Royall Chair, especially, is commended to the beneficence of the members of the churches.

3. Colleges for Women.—It is to be hoped that by Sept., 1896, the new College in Raleigh will be opened. A large, commodious, and beautiful building is in process of erection, a large amount of money has been subscribed, and popular interest in the enterprise is increasing. Located, as it is, within our borders, this institution will be, in a peculiar sense, the child of the Central Association. That provision should be made for its wants needs neither argument nor exhortation.

The old, well established institutions at Oxford and Murfreesboro are well managed, well equipped, and worthy of the patronage of all Baptists. Any young Baptist woman who desires a liberal education can secure it at one or the other of these colleges.

4. Academies.—There is no distinctively Baptist Academy located in our Association. It is to be hoped that ere many years shall elapse, each Association will found, endow, and cherish a first rate co-educational academy. This, however, is not likely to come to pass until some fundamental educational questions be settled. Meantime there are at least seven well organized Baptist academies in other Associations. And in our own, as well as in other Associations, there are good schools taught by Baptist men and women. These, as well as others, should receive our hearty support.

5. Common Schools.—These are the main reliance of the great majority of the children of the State for their knowledge of reading, writing, arithmetic, &c. They are far from being as efficient and useful as they might be made. It is our duty as Christians no less than as citizens to urge and labor for their improvements.

6. The Claims of Christian Education.—The fure of civilization in America depends, in no small degree, on the extent to which distinctively Christian education shall be encouraged. The State has no more right to supply it on Wednesday in a College, male or female, than it has to provide it in a church on Sunday. Education, so far as it is distinctively Christian, must be furnished on the voluntary principle or not at all.

Within the last few years a number of the Christian institutions in North Carolina have been placed on the defensive by the policy of some who have been acting in the name of the State. The resistance which these institutions have made has been forced upon them. It has been successful, to a great extent, up to the present. It has, incidentally, been very useful, in that, as a result, in part, of the almost universal discussion of the principles involved, there has been a more general revival of interest in popular education than has ever been known in North Carolina.

The necessity for this resistance is to be deplored; but so long as the necessity shall continue, the attitude of resistance ought to be maintained. To submit without a protest to what we believe to be unjust and wrong and to allow the efficiency of our institutions to be impaired without seeking to defend them is neither manly, Baptistic, nor Christian. But our protests and defence need be none the less manly because they are Christian in spirit, in expression, and in method.

Sister Humphries Tells of the Death of Sister King in China.

Rev. R. L. Patton, Morganton, N. C.

Dear Brother:—April 30th, Miss Sullivan and I, in company with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. King, set out from the great city of Yang Chow upon our journey to the "regions beyond." Taking passage in house boats, we came two hundred miles by way of the Grand Canal. Two hundred miles more we came overland upon wheelbarrows. May 17th we reached Taian, tired, but well and happy. We two newly arrived missionaries, who have been waiting nearly four months for a convenient season in which we should be conducted inland by some one of our number, were jubilant when the realization came that a place which we could feel was our very own; and I cannot forget Mr. King's look of satisfaction as he said at breakfast the first morning after our arrival, "It is so good to be at home once more." I knew much more could be added from the depths of his heart, for he was hoping he and Mrs. King would soon be settled in their own home in this city, where together they would carry on the work of preaching the gospel to the lost about them.

Wednesday morning, May 22d, Mr. King came to breakfast alone, and we were sorry to hear him say that Mrs. King was confined to her bed. She grew worse, and nobody could tell what ailed her. Mr. Royall, our Gospel Mission doctor, was eighty miles away; but so soon as he could reach here, he came, and confirmed what we had, in the meantime, been forced to admit, i. e., that our dear sister was suffering from that fearful disease, small pox.

Neither the medicines, nor our prayers for her recovery, nor the tender care of her husband all the time by her side, availed anything. May 30th, just two weeks after our arrival at Taian, and a few days less than two months after her happy wedding-day, we laid our own "Fanny S. Knight" to rest at the foot of the great sacred mountain, Tai Shan.

I remember the night I spent with her in Mr. Chappell's home in Chinkiang. She told me, then, that she felt led of the Lord to be married: she felt that her work in China as an unmarried woman was done. She had been true to her convictions, and I knew she had arrived at this conclusion only after waiting upon God in prayer.

And now it seems strange to me that her only work as a married woman has been to make Mr. King happy for a few fleeting days, to bring Miss Sullivan and me to our station; and then giving us a welcome and the blessing of her gracious presence for a little while only, she went to God to receive the reward of the faithful.

She has been faithful: she has not lived long in China, but she has lived well. I would that her mantle fall upon us for usefulness and true hearted service.

To day Mrs. Crawford showed me a letter written to her last November by a member of another mission who wrote inquiring about some of Miss Knight's plans of work. After all I have heard said outside of our Baptist missions in praise of her, I believe I may justly quote one sentence at least from the letter mentioned: "We cannot hope that a century will produce more than one Miss Knight, but we can follow afar off."

Her mission to China was the Lord's own work. If he sees fit to give her the glory and gain of death as early as this, why long we for her to live Christ among these Chinese? What is that to us who are left to labor and to wait?

Hers is a lonely grave among graves; for she is the only foreigner fallen here and buried from this old, old city. If the Lord should come now, she would perhaps be the only one of these dead who would rise to meet him in the air: the others would call upon the rocks and the mountains to fall upon them, because they have not known the Father nor the Son.

The Lord has been good—good to me every step of the way in this strange land, according to his gracious promises.

Virginia Notes.

I am now in Norfolk, in many respects the leading city of the State and promising to be the leading port of the South. For nearly a month I have been "vacating" between Baltimore and this point. Of course, I took in the great Baltimore Convention. What a great mistake any pastor made who could, and yet didn't go! Am surprised that the editor of the Recorder didn't go. North Carolina was not represented in the general call for States. I was sorry. She had some bright men there, however, who could have done her honor in a response had the State been organized.

This movement is here to stay in some form or another. Let's get hold of it and use it. To refuse to investigate a thing and then kick against it is like the blind man who went to investigate an elephant. He had an apple in his hand. The elephant proceeded to reach out his snout and took it in, whereupon the blind man cried, "Satisfied! The elephant is a curious animal. He eats with his tail and walks backwards!" Lots of our kickers against the Young People's Union are jumping at conclusions without investigating. Is this right?

Virginia has lost another great man in the death of Prof. John Hart. He was truly a great thinker.

It was my pleasure Sunday night to worship with Dr. Owen's church in Portsmouth. Dr. Owen is a great man at home, which means even more abroad.

I spent a few moments with Bro. Battle in Petersburg the other day. He showed me his church. It is being repaired. He is very popular in Virginia.

We feel hopeful over the coming of Bro. Mullins to be Associate Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board. He is a splendid man.

Our Calvary church is now to have its magnificent auditorium completed. A good brother gives us $2 500 conditioned upon our raising $1,500, which we accept.

Your correspondent is supplying in Baltimore a part of his vacation, and greatly enjoys it. He is to begin evangelistic meetings in Richmond soon, holding meetings with both Drs. Hiden and Dill. Then he goes to Knoxville, Tenn.

I hope to see many friends at Red Springs.

Corresponding Secretary of Central Committee, MRS. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

SUBJECT FOR AUGUST—HOME MISSIONS.

"I the Lord have called thee in righteousness." Missionaries, 425; churches and stations, 3,484; baptisms, 5,921; Sunday-schools, 2,110; teachers and pupils, 23,702; churches constituted, 179; houses of worship built, 52; Bibles and Testaments distributed, 7,392. Receipts of Home Board, $88,640 20.

Study Topics.—Growth of Southern cities. Future of the South in manufacturing interests. Great increase of emigration to the South. Pressing need for new church edifices. Best methods of reaching the colored population.

The woman's missionary meeting held in connection with the Central Association, on Wednesday, July 31st, had everything in its favor: the large number of ladies in attendance the bright, pleasant day, but most of all, the highly appreciated kindness of the brethren, who at the suggestion of Pastor Hunter and on motion of Mr. J. C. Scarborough, seconded by Dr. C. Durham, adjourned, and gave up the church to the ladies for an hour. It was pleasant to see the room full to overflowing with ladies during this short meeting, but it is to be regretted that there were not more of the members of the missionary societies of the Association present.

Three years ago when the Association met at Wake Forest, a large ladies' meeting was held, and it was then determined, if possible, to hold such a meeting in connection with the session of each Association. At this meeting, and to the end of perpetuating these annual associational meetings, a rough draft of a constitution was drawn up, to be perfected later. It has proved impossible to hold regular meetings at the two intervening Associations.

Miss Irene Dunn, Neuse, secretary of the meeting sends the following brief report:

The Associational Missionary Union of the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Central Association met during the meeting of that Association with Mt. Vernon church, Wednesday, July 31st, it being the first regular meeting since the organization at Wake Forest, August, 1893.

Miss Fannie Heck called the meeting to order. Hymn, "I gave my life for thee," was sung, Miss Zoa Pace presiding at the organ.

After prayer, Mrs. J. W. Carter of Raleigh, member of former committee on constitution, offered substitute for rough draft of constitution made at Wake Forest, which was adopted.

Miss Heck was elected chairman of the meeting, and Miss Irene Dunn of Neuse made Secretary.

The following societies made reports: The Woman's Missionary Society, Young Ladies' Society, and Yates Missionary Band of the First church of Raleigh; Woman's Missionary and Sunbeam Societies of Wake Forest, and the Woman's Missionary Society of Forestville and Mt. Vernon. The amount of money reported as collected by these Societies for last year was $666 50.

Miss Heck made an earnest and encouraging address, telling of our past work and our hopes and plans for this year.

An essay by Mrs. T. H. Briggs was read by her daughter, Miss Lizzie Briggs, the subject being "The Yates Memorial," the same to be an extra $1,000 for the sending out and salary of a new missionary for one year, after which the Foreign Mission Board will be responsible for his support.

After prayer, the Union adjourned, to meet with the Central Association at Rolesville in 1896.

"His Ways are Not Our Ways."

Last summer a young lady offered herself to the Northern Baptist Board of Foreign Missions, asking, if practicable, that she might be sent to Burmah.

She had taught for some years, and had just completed the course at the Philadelphia Training School for Missionaries; she had presented excellent recommendations to the Board, had filled out the papers required, with great satisfaction to the committee, and then she went to a physician for a certificate of health.

Before being examined she said: "Doctor, I have always had excellent health; I have not found it needful to keep my bed a day for nearly seventeen years. You can give me a fine certificate, I think." The physician examined her carefully, asked numerous questions, requested to see her hands, and then was reluctantly obliged to tell her that her "heart was a great nothing," by this meaning she was liable to heart failure at any time, and added, "I cannot give you your certificate."

After recovering from the shock this unexpected news had brought, she explained that one of the reasons she had had for going as a missionary to the foreign field was that she had always been so blessed with excellent health she wanted to use this gift for service in distant climes, thinking she could endure any climate, &c., so many would like to go, but were unable physically; but now—it was a great and sudden disappointment. The physician encouraged her by saying that if she spent the next winter in a warmer atmosphere, if she followed out certain directions, she might become much stronger in that respect, &c. So, in one short hour all her plans were changed; she communicated the news to the Missionary Board with a sad heart. She remembered that one of her teachers at the Training School used to say "she always would have her own way," now she thought came to her, "Is this so? Am I to learn this lesson, that His ways are not our ways?" And so, when the winter season came on, she went to North Carolina, where she found some missionary work to do, but as she closed this little story she brightly added: "I still hope to go to Burmah."

"How can we get the members of our mission society to lead in prayer?" is the question that has reached us from many bands. We frankly confess that it seems very strange to us that a Christian woman, a woman whose heart is filled with love to God, cannot kneel down with a band of her Christian sisters and lead in a prayer to her Heavenly Father for a blessing on those who are strangers to his love. Yet we know that in very many societies all the praying is done by one or two members. We saw the following plan worked one afternoon with good success: The leader of the society stated that we would have a short prayer service, and that she very much wanted every woman present to pray aloud. "We will all kneel," she said, "and I want us to go right around the circle and every one present will please offer a prayer, if it is but one sentence. Pray the one burden of your heart. Of course," she said, very earnestly, "if none of you have any special request, if you have no word of thanks or praise, or if God has really never given you a blessing in all your life, we will excuse you. Perhaps, though, if any one present has a feeling of such ingratitude in her heart it would be well for such a one to say 'God be merciful to me a sinner.'" All knelt, and in turn every woman present prayed aloud. It was a blessed season. The Holy Spirit came upon us and very many in that room never again refused to lead in prayer when called upon. Oh, we need to come close to our dear Lord. We are following him afar off. When we are asked to pray we think too much of those present and not enough about the great white throne and the One seated there. Another trouble, we do not pray enough at home in secret and before the home circle. There are grown children in many homes who never heard their mother pray. "Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud; and he shall hear my voice," sings the Psalmist David, and in 2 Chronicles 7: 14 we read, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." Oh, surely we have much need to pray; yes, to pray without ceasing. Sisters, let's read God's word more closely and study the mission fields more carefully, let's get nearer the blessed Jesus and nearer our sisters in other lands who bow down to idols because we do not tell them about the one God. Let's think more about heaven, and we will get our hearts so softened that it will seem a sweet privilege to gather together from week to week in our little mission circles and thank God for all his goodness to us and plead for blessings on the unsaved of the world.—Hollie Harper.

If this land is suffered to increase and develop in wealth and population without the controlling power of pure religion, the next fifty years will not pass without serious calamities. Nations live by right and die by wrong. This is a law which God has written in a swath of fire on the field of history. Home missions teach righteousness to old and young, they mold opinion in its plastic condition, they are as salt thrown into corrupt communities, and as light sweetening dark and sour places.—C. A. Stoddard, D. D.

Swift Creek Union.

This Union was held with the church at Nashville, N. C., June 28th, 29th and 30th, 1895. Sermon was preached on Friday 11 a. m. June 28th, by Rev. A. A. Pippin.

Phillip Paillips, to whom is given credit for originating modern services of song, is dead. He himself was a sweet singer, and his song, "The Home of the Soul," is widely known. It is also said that Ira D Sankey, the great sacred song singer, was first moved to enter this work by Phillips.

To Our Sunday-school Chautauqua.

Many thanks for the invitation to Red Springs; but owing to the hard times I cannot go. I certainly would enjoy seeing the many good faces that were at Mt. Vernon Springs, and I hope they may all attend at Red Springs and do much good.

We have had a better Sunday-school at Mt. Vernon since the Chautauqua than we have had for many years. We did not have the fine church or Tabernacle for them, nor did we have the crowd that is thought will be at Red Springs; but the people were good and attentive. Every person went to do some good. There was no showing off nor pleasure riding. They had not the time for anything but to get to the church for fear something would be said that would not be heard. From what the program says, I fear the time will be long before they will meet with us again—certainly so, if they have to wait for a new church. If every Baptist who reads the RECORDER had sent me twenty-five cents, we would now have a nice, good church: there were so many calls through the RECORDER for money to build fine churches, I felt my call was set aside.

I am glad that the North Carolina Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua was started at Mt. Vernon Springs in the old mother Baptist church.

I hope the Chautauqua may grow and grow and do much good wherever it goes, and hope it will remember its mother, Mt. Vernon Springs. ALICE RUSSELL.

The Late Rev. Dr. J. L. Carroll

The following resolutions were passed by French Broad Baptist church:

"Resolved, That in the death of Dr. J. L. Carroll, the founder of our church and our former beloved pastor, the church has sustained a grievous loss.

"Resolved, That in the death of our departed brother our denomination has lost one of its strongest, noblest and most consecrated leaders.

"Resolved, That we recognize and commend the unselfish, untiring love of our brother for the cause of Christ; a love so boundless that it knew no obstacles, but won men as if by magic.

"Resolved, That, while we cannot understand this blow, we bow in submission to the will of our Heavenly Father. That we tender our sympathy as a church to the family of the deceased, and that a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family, also the Asheville Citizen for publication. Also a copy to be spread on the minutes of the church.

Good Work in Mecklenburg.

The Lord blessed us at Long Creek and near Lodo in Steel Creek community, Mecklenburg county. The Baptists of the State who are interested in State Mission work are somewhat acquainted with the history of Long Creek church in Mecklenburg county.

This church was organized with about fifteen members two years ago last May by Rev. J. F. Morris. He was pastor for one year and some months, during which time the membership grew to twenty-eight in number, but nothing was done toward erecting a house of worship. I took charge of the church last October, and we have been hard at work since then. I have never seen a little body of Christians work with as much earnestness. God filled them with his Spirit, and they worked and gave until they felt it.

Brethren Beaty, Todd, Spurier, Phillips and others are the very salt of the earth. It was through their work and some money that I raised among the good people of Charlotte that we had one of the neatest country churches dedicated to the Lord last May.

Our Dr. C. Durham was with us and preached a grand sermon. You would expect nothing else from him.

We have had a glorious time for the last two months. I began a meeting on Friday night before the third Sunday in July, and we had a real good meeting from the very first. We had no one to help us, but we held on day and night for eight days, and received into our church eighteen members, and others will join at our next meeting. Some of these were Methodists, some Presbyterians, but the greater part of them were from those outside of any church. Our little church is greatly strengthened.

After beginning at Long Creek I came to Beaty's Chapel, a Presbyterian church in Steel Creek, in which I have been preaching for four or five months and began a meeting. This point is in the heart of Presbyterianism of the State, and the people in the main know scarcely anything of the Baptist church. I preached day and night at this church until to-day when I closed the meeting to go to Pleasant Plain to hold a meeting.

I have been "into it" this week. The pastor of Steel Creek Presbyterian church announced that we should not preach "doctrinal" sermons in their house. But they had invited me there without any such conditions, and so I did not heed his prohibitory announcement. I preached Jesus to large crowds. I tried to induce them to do like the Eunuch did when Philip preached to him Jesus. I took nine happy converts down into the old Catawba river, baptized them, and brought them up out of the water. It was a scene that this community had never beheld. Many saw what they never saw before, namely, the immersion of believers in water. Two others await baptism, and one came to us who had been excluded from a Baptist church.

We have just organized a Baptist church in a Presbyterian house. We organized with twenty-one members, but now we have thirty-two. I had never seen a church organized, but we could not get any help, and so we just organized anyway. We have some real, good members here, and every member favors the erection of a house of worship as soon as we can. They are poor and weak, but may God put it into the hearts of our able brethren to help them. If any one will help, please send the contribution to the pastor, the undersigned, at Matthews, N. C., or to Bro. J. T. Mitchell, Lodo, N. O.

God has wonderfully blessed me in all my work, and I try to do his work faithfully. Yours in Christ,

J. J. PAYSEUR.

Parents and guardians having girls to educate will do well to consider the following facts:—

Only experienced teachers of broad culture and special training for their particular work are employed.

Thorough work is required of pupils, and diplomas are conferred only after critical examinations. The administration believes that education should be practical, and that girls should be trained not to feel above their homes.

The discipline is mild and parental. Pupils are treated as daughters.

The health of the Institute is unsurpassed.

Charges have been reduced to suit the times.

Weak Arms Strong Arms

They're all on the same level when you wash with Pearline. The woman who is strong can keep her strength for something else; the woman who is weak will feel that she is strong. It isn't the woman that does the work—it's PEARLINE.

So it is with the clothes. They needn't be strong. The finest things fare as well as the coarsest. They all last longer, for they're saved the rubbing that wears them out. Work was never so easy—never so well done. And safe, too. Nothing that is washable was ever hurt by Pearline. If it were otherwise—do you think we would continue to sell enough Pearline yearly to supply every family in the land with several packages.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 181 JAMES PYLE, New York

The Pastor's Troubles.

A REPORTER'S INTERESTING INTERVIEW WITH REV. WM. LEISER, OF ELSMORE, KANSAS.

HE WAS AFFLICTED WITH A COMPLICATION OF DISEASES, BUT DISCOVERED THE RIGHT REMEDY IN TIME AND WAS CURED.

(From the Fort Scott, Kan., Monitor.)

During the past year there have been published in the newspapers throughout the country wonderful accounts of a new discovery in medicine. Some of the most conservative journals have taken the matter up and investigated the cures said to have been effected, and in nearly every case the facts have bordered on the miraculous.

A few days ago it was reported that Rev. Wm. Leiser, pastor of the M. E. church at Elsemore, Kan., had been cured of a severe case of rheumatism and a complication of other diseases by the same medicine. The facts as reported were rather remarkable, and The Monitor determined to find out the truth and publish the real facts in the case.

A reporter went to Elsmore, and called at the house of Rev. Mr. Leiser. That gentleman was at home busily engaged in helping his wife, a slight, pleasant, little woman, prepare some fruit for preserving. Introducing himself, the scribe made his errand known, and was received kindly by the reverend gentlemen, who invited him to a seat and told him the story of his sufferings and recovery in a straightforward manner.

"My trouble," said Mr. Leiser, "was a complication of diseases from which I had suffered for several years. Catarrh was my original trouble, and I was also afflicted with skin disease. To these rheumatism was finally added, and I was for some time confined to my bed and suffered severely. This was in March, 1892. While I was sick I saw in some paper an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and thought I would try them. I was then living in Girard, Kan. None of the drug stores had the pills at that time, but Brother Atkins, the druggist, sent for a few boxes and I tried one. The improvement was not immediately noticeable, but was gradual. After taking the first box I bought more and took them. The improvement went on, and the rheumatism disappeared. I have never had a twinge of it since, though I have been exposed and wet several times. I believe the cure is permanent. I have not had nasal catarrh since, and the only symtom of the disease now left is a slight soreness of the throat. My blood was cleansed and purified.

"I think the pills an excellent medicine and have no equal as a blood purifier, and have recommended them to others who were in need of a remedy of this kind. They are very agreeable to take, too."

"I think," he continued, "that your plan of going to the people who have been reported cured and getting their own statements of what benefits they have received is a good one. It secures reliable testimony as to what the medicines will do, and should be of great value to other sufferers. It also prevents bogus medicine manufactures from imposing on the public."

Mrs. Leiser corroborated her husband's statements in regard to the operation of the Pink Pills and the benefits he had derived from their use.

Mr. Leiser is a man of about 35 years, of mild and unassuming manners and not a man who would pose for a pen picture in a newspaper. He has the complexion of a man through whose veins pure blood courses, and honestly believes that Pink Pills are the source of that kind of blood. He will answer inquiries of sufferers who may wish to satisfy themselves of the genuineness of this testimonial if addressed at Elsmore with stamp for reply.

An analysis of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills shows that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female, and all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50, they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., or Brockville, Ont.

From Rev. J. M. White.

Dear Recorder:—We closed a week's meeting at Salem church, a mile from here last Friday, 2d inst., resulting in about ten or twelve professions.

Bro. A. C. Cree of Wake Forest College aided me—indeed, did nearly all of the preaching. Only those who have heard him know how he preaches. He is a young man of great earnestness and of marked ability. He went from here to Ephesus (Wake county), and has the affection and prayers of us all.

This week I am with the Green Level brethren in a gracious meeting. Bro. Carrick is preaching there for pastor Hilliard. Immense crowds and great interest felt. There have been some fifteen or twenty five professions to date.

Gloom spread over the great congregation to day, when it was learned that Sister Ellen Scott, living quite near the church, by mistake had taken arsenic (rat poison) for salts. She died very soon after taking it.

My school at Green Level opens Sept. 23d. Our great aim should be to have a good academy in each Association, under Baptist control—perhaps more than one in each Association would be better. They would better reach the masses of our people. Evangelize and educate. This is the mission of the churches. J. M. WHITE.

DIED.

WEST—Noah West died at his residence in Duplin county, July 20th, 1895. He was baptized in his early manhood by Elder Lewis Williams, and was seventy-three years old at the time of his death. He lived with abiding trust in his Saviour, was faithful to his church, and died in hope.

WATSON—At her home in Raleigh, July 10th, 1895, at 9:15 o'clock p. m., after a lingering illness, the spirit of Ida Loraine Watson took its flight. She was born in Chatham county November 25th, 1872, and at the age of ten years moved with her parents to Raleigh. She gave herself to Christ in February, 1886, and connected herself with the First Baptist church the following October. Her amiable disposition, warm and generous heart, endeared her to all whom she was associated with, and while we lament her untimely death, how soothing to our wounded hearts to know that when death claimed her she was ready and willing to obey the summons, and now in the glory land she basks in the sunlight of God's love, where, with her devoted mother who preceded her just a little over two months, and a loving sister just three and a half years, they will wait together the coming of the resurrection morn.

Father, brothers and sisters, weep not; but look up through your tears with an eye of faith, and behold your loved ones on the bosom of him who said, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

Dear Ida, though gone forever from our midst, you will never be forgotten; and your beautiful Christian life and peaceful death will make us feel that heaven is dearer and more real since you are there.

M. E. H.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in his infinite wisdom to take from our midst our late Bro. Robt. W. Downey; and whereas, the intimate relation long held by our deceased brother with the members of this church render it proper that we should place on record our appreciation of his services as a church member and his merits as a man; therefore, be it

Resolved 1. That while we bow in humble submission to the will of God, we do not the less mourn for our brother who has been called from his labors to rest.

2. That in the death of Robt. W. Downey this church loses a brother who was always active and zealous in his work as a Christian, ready to succor the needy and distressed, prompt to advance the interest of the church, devoted to its welfare and prosperity, and an honest and upright man whose virtues not only endeared him to the brethren of the church, but to his fellow citizens.

3. That this church tender its heartfelt sympathy to the family and relatives of the deceased in this their sad affliction.

4. That these resolutions be entered on our church book, and a copy sent to the family of the deceased, and a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

The Home Circle.

If We Had but a Day.

We should fill the hours with the sweetest things,
If we had but a day,
We should drink alone at the purest springs
In our upward way;
We should love with a lifetime's love in an hour,
If the hours are few;
We should rest, not for dreams, but for fresher power
To be and to do.

We should guard our wayward or wearied wills
By the clearest light;
We should keep our eyes on the heavenly hills,
If they lay in sight;
We should trample the pride and the discontent
Beneath our feet;
We should take whatever a good God sent,
With a trust complete.

We should waste no moment in weak regret
If the day were but one,
If what we remember and what we forget,
Went not with the sun.
We should be from our clamorous selves set free,
To work or to pray,
And to be what the Father would have us to be,
If we had but a day.

The Rescue from the Wreck.

A thrilling story of German heroism at sea, which goes far to offset some of the reports regarding the loss of the "Elbe," comes from Schleswig-Holstein. One stormy morning a fishing village was awakened by a gunshot off the cost. Hastening to the beach, the people saw a ship wrecked on a reef a mile away. The crew were in the rigging. A life boat was run out, but Harro, the leader of the crew, was absent.

Eight men, however, rowed out to the wreck. The crew were got into the life-boat, with the exception of one who was lashed high up on a mast. He was half frozen, and as the storm was increasing and the life-boat overloaded, it was decided that he could not be taken off. When the life-boat returned to the shore Harro had arrived. He asked if every one had been saved, and was told that one remained.

"I will fetch him," said Harro. "Will you go with me?"

The men refused, saying that it was impossible.

"Then I will go alone," cried Harro, and sprang into the life-boat. At this moment his mother came running down and begged him not to venture out, reminding him that both his father and brother Uwe had been drowned. Uwe was his youngest brother, and as he had not been heard from for years, he was supposed to be dead.

"For love of me," Harro's mother begged, "don't go!"

"But the man on the mast!" exclaimed Harro. "Are you sure he has no mother to mourn his death?"

Harro's mother said no more, and her son and four other men set out for the wreck, which was now quite under water. The waves were so furious that it was difficult to approach. At last the life boat reached it, and Harro climbed the mast and fetched the half-frozen man down. He was laid in the bottom of the life-boat, and Harro bent over him and remained so until the boat was so near shore that his voice could be heard. Then he waved his cap and shouted:

"Tell my mother we have saved Uwe!"—New York Sun.

A Word to the Boys.

If you have anything to do, do it at once. Don't sit down in the rocking chair and lose three quarters of an hour in dreading the job. Be sure that it will seem ten times harder than it did at first. Keep this motto: Be on time in small things as well as great. Habit is everything. The boy who is behind time at breakfast and school, will be sure to get "left" in the important things of life. If you have a chronic habit of dreading and putting off things, make a great effort to cure yourself. Brace up! Make up your mind that you will have some backbone. Don't be a limp, jelly fish kind of person. Depend upon it, that life is very much what you make it. The first thing to decide is what are you going to make it. The next thing is to take off your coat and go to work. Make yourself necessary somewhere. There are thousands of boys and young men in the world who wouldn't be missed if they were to drop out of it to morrow. Don't be one of this sort. Be a power in your own little world, and depend upon it, then the big world will hear from you some day.—Standard.

Doctor's Bills in China.

We Occidentals only pay our doctors when we are sick, and sometimes not even then. The Celestial method, as shown by the example of the Emperor of China, is to pay the doctor only when one is well. As soon as the emperor is sick it is a notification to his physicians that their salary is cut off till he is perfectly well again. The passionate zeal with which the regulars go to work to get his Majesty back where their salaries will begin again is said to be something astounding. The result is that the Emperor is about the healthiest man standing on this planet, and his physicians seldom lose a day's salary.

Nervous debility is a common complaint, especially among women. The best medical treatment for this disorder is a persistent course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla to cleanse and invigorate the blood. This being accomplished, nature will do the rest.

A Genius for Helping.

"There," said a neighbor, pointing to a village carpenter, "there is a man who has done more good, I really believe, in this community than any other person who ever lived in it. He cannot talk very much in public, and he does not try. He is not worth $2,000, and it is very little he can put down on subscription papers. But a new family never moves into the village that he does not find it out and give them a neighborly welcome and offer them some service. He is on the lookout to give strangers a seat in his pew at church. He is always ready to watch with a sick neighbor and to look after his affairs for him. He finds time for a pleasant word to every child he meets, and you will always see the children climbing into his wagon when he has no other load. He has a genius for helping folks, and it does me good to meet him on the street."—Selected.

Helps to Patience.

A woman, whose life has been long and chequered with many reverses, said lately: "Nothing has given me more courage to face every day's duties and troubles than a few words spoken to me when I was a child by my father. He was the village doctor. I came into his office where he was compounding medicine, one day, looking cross and ready to cry.

"What is the matter, Mary?"

"I'm tired. I've been making beds and washing dishes all day, and what good does it do? To morrow the beds will have to be made and the dishes washed over again."

"Look, my child," he said; "do you see these little empty vials? They are all insignificant, cheap things, of no value in themselves; but in one I put a deadly poison, in another a sweet perfume, in a third a healing medicine. Nobody cares for the vials; it is that which they contain that gives them value. Your daily work, the dishes washed or the floor swept, are homely things, and count for little in themselves; it is the sweet patience or real or high thoughts that you put into your work that shall last. These make your life."—Youth's Companion.

Few perhaps, have agreed practically with Wesley about giving. As in almost everything else, he got above the ordinary conceptions of men in reference to man's duty on this subject. In his late years he exclaimed: "O, that God would enable me once more, before I go hence and am no more seen, to lift up my voice like a trumpet to those who gain and save all they can, but do not give all they can."

"In Cicero and Plato, and other such writers, I meet with many things said that excite a certain warmth of emotion, but in none of them do I find these words: 'Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest.'"—Augustine.

For many years I suffered from Catarrh, which destroyed my hearing, and for 25 years I was so deaf that I could not hear a clock strike by holding my ear against it. I had tried every known remedy, and nothing gave me the slightest relief. I obtained Dr. Moore's treatment, and in three weeks my hearing began to improve, and now I can hear common conversation across a room; can hear a clock strike in an adjoining room, 80 feet away. I think I am entirely cured, and my hearing permanently restored.

Robert Pollock in his "Course of Time" tells of a man whose ambition was

"to leave a name,
A light and landmark on the cliff of fame."

Some good people recognize and cater to this disposition. In the university Methodists are seeking to rear at Washington every minister subscribing one hundred dollars is assured that his name shall be graven in one of the buildings. Now the Presbyterians are seeking to raise a million dollars to extinguish the debt of their missionary boards. In a circular sent to pastors the announcement is made that the names of all subscribers "will be published in volumes, which will be preserved in the archives of the Presbyterian Church." By paying for it a man can have his name printed in large type in a city directory, and perhaps this has led a college professor who is also an elder to suggest that "The circular ought to promise that the size of the type in which the donor's name will be printed will depend upon the size of the subscription."—Watchman.

King Humbert, of Italy, is reported to spend more in charity than any other European monarch. He gave the poor $80,000 at Christmas, and abandoned the second ball at the Quirinal to save expense. For a year and a half he has not touched the income of the crown.

Ayer's Hair Vigor
RESTORES
Color, Fullness and Texture
TO HAIR
Which has become Wiry, Thin, or Gray.

"Some five years ago, I was not a little alarmed to discover that my hair was falling out, threatening speedy baldness. AYER'S Hair Vigor being recommended, I procured a bottle and at once applied it to my hair and scalp, continuing to do so for several weeks, and was happily surprised that my hair stopped falling and new hair came out full of life and vigor. AYER'S Hair Vigor does not only restore new hair, but gives new life and vigor to its growth, and is a blessing to all who use it." Rev. D. J. A COLLEGE professor expressed surprise several months ago that any one would think he should select "Immigration" as a suitable topic of the time for school-boys to write competitive essays on. He had a mistaken view of the matter. It is a topic of the time, a problem for the most intelligent, and one which the South, particularly North Carolina, must seriously confront. And none of us know enough to dismiss it indifferently, either, even if it is in some respects threadbare.

In the year ending June 1st, 276,136 immigrants landed on our shores—a lower figure than has been registered since 1879, only half as large as that of 1893. The number is small, but coming in a time when there was no inducement to come, and many reasons to stay away, it is not unexpectedly that we find that those who composed it were mostly of very objectionable classes—Russian and Polish Jews. The fact that such a number has come in a time when our land was advertised to the world as oppressed by a great "money-power," is evidence enough that when long-looked for Prosperity returns, there will be such a renewal of immigration that the seriousness of the matter will be forced upon us again.

But if a law were passed to morrow that not another immigrant shall come to the United States in half a century, the influx into the South of foreigners from the congested North and disappointing West would be sufficient to keep the problem living and burning in the South. The Atlanta Exposition is bringing hundreds of tramps into North Carolina, and will bring thousands of aliens to live here, most of whom will be undesirable seekers of small wages and unsteady jobs. Railroads greedy for fares and careless of the rest, on the same business policy which trans-Atlantic steamship companies have long pursued, will keep the stream flowing full and steady long after the Exposition is over. And we cannot by any means prevent inter-State migration. We have got to face it.

Evangelize and Educate is the only way out. The citizens of North Carolina, particularly the Baptists of North Carolina, must prepare themselves to do these two things; prepare themselves, by evangelizing all communities in reach and educating themselves, their children, and making it possible for the poorest to be evangelized and educated, they and all their households.

Let us not rest until Baptist churches and Baptist school-houses have been established in every inhabitable locality of our Commonwealth.

BY THE way, we may lay many things at the door of the Negro, but we should not overlook the service he has done as a bulwark against immigration. Negro labor has kept out alien labor, has kept out discontent and strikes and anarchy.

If we will educate the Negro properly, teaching him his station, pointing him to wholesome ideals and arousing worthy ambitions, he will continue to be the safeguard in lower laboring circles in the South. And we ought to stand by him in the competition that Italians, Irish, Poles, etc., etc., will bring upon him, because he is better suited to our climate, able to do more work, more tractable, and possessed of more of the spirit of our institutions than they. Take the Negro out of the hands of designing politicians and he is more desirable than any alien of the lower grade. Education will do this; education and proper but firm and uncompromising treatment.

WE HOLD with a well-known preacher that women ought not to ride bicycles. We do not find anything in the Scriptures expressly against it, however. But there are doctors of experience who affirm that it is positively injurious to them, although, indeed, there are others who say it is good exercise for them. We have never seen a woman look womanly 'on a wheel,' and we never expect to, which is to say we never saw one look well.

A CONTEMPORARY says it is probable that four-fifths of the Negroes in South Carolina will be disfranchised by the adoption in the near-at hand Constitutional Convention of an article restricting registration of voters. Such a step would have been undeniably wise thirty years ago. There is no doubt of the incapacity of the Negro to vote intelligently then. There is no doubt but that they are now in many localities controlled by prejudice or by designing politicians, there is no doubt but that a great number of them have no conscientious scruples nor even an adequate idea as to their obligations and responsibilities as voters,—these are evident facts, but we doubt the wisdom of depriving them of their supposed and widely conceded right to vote at this late day, when they have been exercising "their right" so long. It will make them reckless, it will stir them to hatred, it will deepen their prejudice; and some one has said it will make them strive all the harder for education sufficient to qualify them to vote and it will call their well meaning but poorly informed Northern friends afresh to their aid. We had rather live in a city with ten thousand Negroes trained by Southern people than with five hundred educated by Northern people. If the South will pursue the proper policy towards the Negro, his Northern friends will have no occasion to take a hand in his training, and unintentionally prejudice him against Southerners and puff him up with too high hopes of political and social advancement. If any one says the South will not do anything for the Negro, we will not speak for other States, but for North Carolina we invite them to come and see. The Negroes have excellent public school facilities, and they are being improved and made more adequate. A striking instance of the attitude toward the Negro is to be found in the hospital at Raleigh, where white and black are administered to without discrimination, the nurses being white, of the South, and highly respected.

HERE is something colossal now and passing the limits of sane imagination in future possibilities: The greatest locomotive works in the world, the Baldwin, representing $10,000,000 in capital and controlling the chief patents in locomotive enginery, and the Westinghouse Electric Company, representing $10,000,000 in capital, itself one of the two greatest, and more likely the greatest electric motor company in the world, have combined. Steam gives way to electricity. One company will furnish the trucks, wheels and the like, the other will furnish the motors, the power-makers. One says it has motors to carry trains 150 miles in sixty minutes, the other says it will furnish wheels and axles and cars strong enough to stand such a strain; both say trains will be moving at this rate within a few years, having in mind, of course, the great trunk lines, whose road-beds are sound and stations few and far between.

The Westinghouse Company has recently come into a patent for street railway motive that is expected to save us from the trolley and its horrors and supercede the cable cars. It is an electric device, not complicated, and apparently practicable. The combined companies will give attention to work of this kind and to elevated railway construction in the cities before taking to the country in general.

TO SHOW what Roman Catholics will do to choke out religious liberty, attention is called to the adoption by the Belgian chamber of representatives of a school bill, making religious education compulsory. In 1879 the public schools in Belgium were completely secularized, but in 1884 the Roman Catholics got hold of the country and withdrew all government support, in order that each town might be limited to the alternative of educating its children at private expense or sending them to some Romish free school. After awhile aid was extended to these church schools, on the ground that they were used instead of the public schools, and then it was only a step to recognize them as public schools. This was bad enough, but the Roman Catholics, having a good working majority in the present chamber of representatives, have gone farther and made it unlawful not to attend their schools. If Romanists could get a majority in Congress, they would try to effect the same plan in our country. A Roman Catholic doesn't know what patriotism is, doesn't know what freedom is—that is, if he is a "good Catholic." And those who come within this qualification make up another class which we must set upon to evangelize and educate.

It is true that thought is deeper than all speech, feeling deeper than all thought; yet it is equally true that feeling indicates itself in thought and speech, and manifests its power in action. He who never shows a loving spirit in his conduct, and who never speaks a word of loving tenderness, gives no proof that he has a loving heart; and if he has one, no one but himself knows it, and he is mistaken if he thinks himself its possessor.—Sunday school Times.

Objections to the Tenth System Answered.

BY REV. J. N. STALLINGS, D. D.

The first objection I notice is one partially, if not fully met in my last article, viz, that the law of the tenth was a Jewish ceremony and that Jesus fulfilled it and abolished it. This objection is pure assumption. Jesus Christ did fulfil all law. He abolished all Old Testament ceremonies, becoming "the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth." It has been shown, however, that the law of the tenth was no more a Jewish ceremony than the law of the Sabbath. Jesus, while he fulfilled the moral law for us, and by his death "redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us," did not abolish the moral law. It is still our rule of life; and, although we are delivered from its condemning power and so are "not under the law but under grace," yet we "delight in that law of God after the inward man," and "serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter." The law of the Sabbath is still God's law, and we gladly obey it. The law of the tenth has never been repealed, and must be law still. Why not gladly obey it, too? Both were Jewish laws, but much more than Jewish laws, as has been shown. The law of the Sabbath is one of the ten commandments; the law of the tenth is founded upon love to God and love to man, which briefly comprehends the whole law.

The second objection I notice is: All giving ought to be voluntary, a freewill offering, not taxation. This objection assumes that the tithe is taxation and not a freewill offering. Of course, a system of tithing, by the civil law, would be as objectionable as is the enforcement of the Sunday or Sabbath by such authority. But why may not any Christian or assembly of Christians adopt such a system and carry it out voluntarily, just as any commandment of Jesus is accepted and obeyed? Our Lord commands every one that believes to be baptized, yet no one obeys that command properly who dares not do so voluntarily and joyously. Why not apply the same reasoning to giving? If my Lord command me to give at least one tenth, may I not do it as voluntarily and as gladly, aye, more so, than those that give without system upon mere impulse and in a haphazzard way? To talk of adopting the tenth system as taxation is simply absurd. It, like every other system proposed, must be voluntarily adopted by individuals and by churches amongst our Baptist people, or it will never be adopted. But Baptists only want to know what the Lord will have them do, and they will not only voluntarily but joyfully adopt it.

The third objection is: It is impossible to carry it out. I reply, that is a mere assumption. If there is only a willing mind, it will be found not at all difficult to arrive at a just approximation, if not always at the exact amount. All that is demanded is that one exercise ordinary common sense and act conscientiously, and then the error, if any, will be very small. If convinced that the Lord demands it, try it, and you will be surprised how easily it works and how much more you give than heretofore, and how well you can do it.

The fourth objection is: Some ought to give more than one tenth, while others ought not to give so much. The first clause of this is admitted; the second, denied. The contention that every one should give at least one tenth by no means hinders those that are able and willing from giving more. Many ought to give more. The way is open. There is not much danger of any one giving more, until he comes to the tenth, which very few, if any, who have adopted the system, do. No one is too poor, even if an object of charity, to give one tenth. The Bible says "every one" is to "lay by," &c. That surely will include the poorest. His tenth will be very little, while the tenth of the richest will be considerable. It brings about equality of giving, the only equality possible. It insures a full church treasury, if adopted by an average church, and not only causes the expenses of the church to be promptly met, but her poor to be properly cared for and the gospel to be sent to the ends of the earth, if adopted by all the churches.

The fifth objection is: Not only one tenth belongs to God, but all is his. Admitted. But, brother, what consistency is there in saying this, when one tenth is not given? Give one half, one third, one fourth, or whatever you please; but do not say all is the Lord's, while you refuse to give for his cause one tenth. The real objection is that it will reach every one and largely increase the amounts given by them that now give. A great many do not want to be reached, and those that do give small amounts now know it will largely increase what they give. The Lord's cause does not get a twentieth, I suspect. My opinion is that one fortieth faithfully given would amount to more than is given. The Lord collects the balance of his tenth by the floods, drouths, storms, locusts, worms, and other devourers. I am fully persuaded that if the Lord's people, or a considerable number of them, were conscientiously to adopt the teachings of the Lord's Word on this subject, and then honestly perform it, there would be great prosperity in our land. "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first fruits of all thine increase, so shall thy barns be filled with plenty and thy presses shall burst out with new wine." A picture of great prosperity.

The signs of the times are not auspicious. It was not nonsense that the Convention did when it recommended the adoption of this system. It was Scriptural and in consonance with common sense, the demands of these stirring times, and the needs of the Lord's work. Not the abundance of the rich only is needed, but systematic, proportionate giving which will reach and enlist every one.

The Cock's Crow.

A STRANGE INTERPRETATION—A WOMAN'S DIVISION OF MEN—A PRAYER-MEETING.

BY C C BROWN, D. D., SUMTER, S. C.

I had a visit from a peculiar kind of preacher last week—a genuine landmarker, who has doubtless set me down as so hardened and set in my loose theological views as to be beyond the pale of hopeful reformation. The said preacher is a Baptist, a wonderful sort of Baptist. He does not exactly profess to know everything; but he does know wherein all other people are wrong. Concerning others' heresy, he easily reaches his conclusions. His process is taking—just as taking as it is simple. He finds out what a man believes, compares it with what he believes, and if the two tally, all right. If not, the other fellow is adjudged corrupt. I want to commend this course to all heresy-hunters. It is so simple that any one can adopt it. It never requires a man to examine into his own positions, but leads him at once to investigate the standing of others, assuming that he himself is fixed and solid.

This aforesaid preacher read a sermon of mine about Peter and his denial of Christ. A large part of it agreed with one he had recently preached on the same subject. This led him to commend mine quite warmly. He came at last to where I said Peter's love for Jesus led him to follow to the judgment hall; but when he got there, he found he had over estimated his strength, and he who had promised to die with him if needs be, was now cursing and swearing against his Lord. My critic could not stand this, and began to exclaim, "You are wrong, sir; you are wrong." He then went on to explain the matter. He said Peter was angry with Jesus; that in the garden, before the face of the mob, Jesus had vexed him by saying sharply, "Put up that sword, sir—put it up at once." This humiliated Peter; so he determined to get even with him, and watched his opportunity. It soon came. Jesus was carried away. Peter, full of revenge, followed along behind. The judgment hall is reached, and Jesus is within. Without in the court, Peter is consorting with the enemies of Christ. Christ sees him and hears him, and Peter is glad now to have Christ hear him swear and say, "I know nothing at all about that man—I am not his disciple." Thus he got even with Him.

This amazed me. I had never heard anything like it. It is the basest charge ever preferred against Peter. I tried to argue the brother out of it, and begged him not to preach it. I asked him where he found such a vile interpretation, and finally I offered to give him a new hat if he could produce a man of sense anywhere who would follow his theory. I want to know if you have a man in the Old North State who agrees with my brother over on this side of the line.

Our discussion finally became frivolous. I cited the tradition which is found in some of the old books, to the effect that Peter, after that fatal night, always wept at hearing a cock crow and fell upon his knees. "Yes," said my intercolutor, "but preachers don't weep for that cause now. In fact, it is quite cheering to hear a cock crow when approaching a brother's house after a long ride. It indicates that there is a chance of having chicken for dinner."

Upon this I turned our talk. Was I not right? How hard it is for some preachers to dispel the savory idea of fried chicken! and yet it has brought misery to many ever since the night that the crowing cock sent Peter forth in tears.

Where can we find anything keener at the point than the following? It is an extract from a woman's speech—one of those women of whom it is said she must not make speeches:

"I divide mankind into four classes—

"First. Those who do not know, and do not know that they do not know. These are fools; leave them.

"Second. Those who do not know, and know they do not know. These are children; teach them.

"Third. Those who know, and do not know they know. They are asleep; rouse them.

"Fourth. Those who know, and know they know. These are wise men; follow them."

I may be wrong; but it does seem to me that a change might be made for the better by allowing some of the women to preach who can preach, and stopping some of the men from preaching who cannot preach.

Bro. Jenkens' notes on the prayer meeting question were full of interest. The article, however, seems to take for granted that the men are there in numbers, and all ready to take part in the services. It remains for him to tell us how to get the men there, and how to bring them out in public prayer and speech.

Three-fourths of my prayer meeting people are women, and of late I have been having a sort of Bible reading service, but not the sort of Bible reading which takes up a single word and chases it through the whole Bible like a dog after a rabbit in a canebrake without any regard to the connections and context. With your permission, Mr. Editor, I will give a sample. The study will be the man Mark, and we want to find out all that the Bible tells us about him. Here are my notes:

WHO WAS MARK?

The man who wrote the second gospel. This we get from church history. It cannot be proven from the New Testament.

Col. 4: 10, cousin to Barnabas.

Acts 12: 12, son of Mary who seems to have been a woman of means, as her home was a rallying point for the disciples.

1 Pet. 5: 13. Who was the instrument in his conversion?

What is the record of his work?

Mk. 14: 51, 52. It is commonly believed that this young man was Mark. He shows in a bad light here.

Acts 12: 25. This is the first record of any work done by him. "Minister" is sometimes used to mean interpreter. May be Mark did this.

Acts 13: 13, shows what happened on this journey.

Acts 15: 36–41, shows the result of his defection. Two missionary parties are formed, in place of the one.

Col. 4: 10, shows that Paul had no bitterness towards Mark, and that Mark was with him in the first Roman imprisonment.

Philemon 24 shows the same.

2 Tim. 4: 11, shows Mark with Timothy at Ephesus, and this is the last we see of him.

See how little the men who wrote these wonderful gospels have to say of themselves.

In using the above, I assign a passage to any person who will take it, man or woman. These read them as I call for them, and I add a few words of explanation. So far ten or fifteen women have taken part in the service as volunteers. To the men I assign passages without asking their consent to take part. For some months this has been my practice, and we have studied, in the words of the Bible, the outline given of the life and work of many of the leading characters. My last subject was, "Women who came to Jesus for Help." I have come to know, however, that my plan is not always the plan, and the brethren must only take my suggestions for what they are worth to them.

A Bright Gospel.

The gospel of Christ is a bright gospel. It is the good news of the light of God. It is the glad tidings of the advent of the Lord of heaven, the light of the eternal city, the brightness of the everlasting glory. It tells of a Saviour coming to sinners, taking upon him "the likeness of sinful flesh," becoming a man among men; entering into their joys and sorrows, bearing their infirmities, sympathizing with their distresses and listening to their cries for help. All of Christ's discourses were radiant with the brightness of crystal truths. There was not a dark sentence in one of them. The light was not always clearly seen at first. It was not always appreciated. It could not be in some instances,—in many indeed, but the light was in all that Christ said, because he taught no error, he uttered no inconsistency, he made no mistakes. So, too, it is with all that goes to make up the gospel. It is bright from beginning to end. It is a brilliant gospel, shining for men in all ages of the world, for all classes of men, in all conditions of life and in all degrees of experience. And this gospel never grows dim. Age does not affect it, use does not detract from its splendor and assaults cannot wear off its glory. Wherever it is received it lights up human hearts, disperses moral darkness, makes society more cheerful, transforms nations and fills millions of souls with the joy of an eternal hope. With such a bright gospel we ought to be gladdened with the expectancy of ultimate triumph.

Divine Support.

One of the sweetest passages in the Bible is this one: "Underneath are the everlasting arms." It is not often preached from, perhaps because it is felt to be so much richer and more touching than anything we ministers can say about it. But what a vivid idea it gives of the divine support! The first idea of infancy is of resting in arms which maternal love never allows to get weary. Sick room experiences confirm the impression when we have seen a feeble mother or sister lifted from the bed of pain by the stronger ones of the household. In the case of our Heavenly Father, the arms are felt but not seen. The invisible secret support comes to the soul in its hours of weakness or trouble; for God knoweth our feebleness, he remembers that we are but dust.—T. L. Cuyler, D. D.

Doing is a great thing. For if, resolutely people do what is right, in time they come to like doing it.—Ruskin.

Out of suffering comes the serious mind; out of salvation, the grateful heart; out of endurance, fortitude; out of deliverance, faith.—Ruskin.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 21, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

A LEARNED infidel of the last century took it upon himself to say that the Bible would be obsolete in a few years, going to the shelf long before his own books. Now he is remembered chiefly because he so violently opposed the Bible, but the old Book grows more and more upon the nations of men.

The American Bible Society is the largest organization of its kind that we know of; but there are others, and the statistics of this Society serve only to give an idea of the circulation of the Holy Scriptures. Last year the Society distributed 1,958,674 Bibles, Testaments and integral portions of the Bible. Of these more than 700,000 were scattered as seed in foreign lands. This Society has not been fair—some say "honest"—by the Baptists; but it is doing a wonderful amount of publishing and distributing of the Scriptures.

No STATE is growing so rapidly as North Carolina; and no denomination in North Carolina is growing so rapidly as the Baptist. Since winter broke we have dedicated on State Mission fields ten houses of worship, and one or two others not on mission fields. We have excellent authority in saying that no less than twenty-five houses of worship for Baptists are now in course of construction in this State.

We cannot measure the influence the gospel will have in the making of this State through our denomination; but we need not be uneasy for the results if we only do our duty and keep up our good work now while the iron is hot.

A Baptist church in every community and a Baptist school-house near by is our aim. By such means only can we fully meet our responsibility to God and our State.

TO-DAY week Wake Forest opens. May three hundred boys crowd her walks.

A week is time enough to put in a quiet word with some young man in your community; talk to him about educating himself, whether he has the means or not. Many a boy has made a way where there seemed to be none. Will is the thing needful.

The College is nearer the hearts of the Baptists of North Carolina than ever before; it is higher in the esteem of the people of North Carolina than ever before. It is second to no Baptist college, North or South. That is something to be proud of; it is something to think on when we come to count the blessings of God upon the sincere efforts of his children; something to think on when we come to strike another blow, to make another step in his name.

Wake Forest's alumni are waking up,—not that they have been asleep, but that some of them have been a little forgetful. If present plans of the more active alumni mature, the institution will have a standing army of efficient representatives and loyal supporters for all time.

WE FIND the following here and there in the State press:—

"The Baptists are getting in readiness to continue their war against a continuance of appropriations to the University. The BIBLICAL RECORDER will take up the cry next week. The subject is being discussed at the Baptist Associations, which are now in full blast. Each Association will be forced to go on record."

Brethren of the newspaper fraternity, it is an insult that ought to be resented but for the fact that it is not intended as such, to speak of an Association or any body of Baptists being forced. The most voluntary people on earth are Baptists; their religion is entirely voluntary, their church membership is entirely voluntary, their system of giving, of supporting denominational work, pastors, missions, education, is voluntary. There is nothing a Baptist ought to so quickly resent as an insinuation that he is not free—absolutely free. No Association will be forced to go on record, no Association can be; there is no power except the churches in an Association, and churches cannot be forced.

The method of procedure in Baptist Associations in the matter of education, as in missions, periodicals, etc., etc., is as follows: the moderator appoints a committee on education, the committee to be composed of delegates sent by churches of the Association. The committee meets and formulates just such a report on the several phases of the subject as it sees proper. Then the report is read, and if there is motion and second to adopt, general discussion is in order.

Let's be fair and open in this matter. There is great principle involved that any one may discuss without insinuations or slurs or misrepresentations.

THE NEW EARTH THE CHRISTIAN'S HEAVEN.

The earth was born of a benevolent purpose; and from the beginning it was in the Divine mind to make it a success. The world is in no sense a failure. Its origin is not a thing of chance, nor is its destiny. The globe is not aimlessly drifting through space, but as an arrow speeds to its mark, it is hastening to its goal.

This earth, purified and glorified, is to be the believer's home, the Christian's heaven. God has promised this. Peter says, "We, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." If we turn to Isaiah, we find this promise clearly stated in two separate chapters, thus: "Behold I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." And, "As the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed and your name remain." So John says in Revelation, "I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away. Yet, we do not understand that matter will be annihilated; for the universe will rise from its baptism of fire a spiritual temple of our God. Like rags that have been gathered from hut and gutter, soiled, worn, and rent, yet turned into most excellent paper, this sin-cursed earth shall be cleansed and become the dwelling place of righteousness. Jesus points his disciples to a home on the new-born earth when he says, "In the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Thus we are taught that the world shall be regenerated, and that regenerated man shall live in it.

The Scriptures have clearly outlined some of the great physical changes that are to take place; among which we note first the abolition of the oceans. John says, "There shall be no more sea." The sea is the symbol of unrest and destruction: it breaks the world up into separate peoples, forming a barrier to the unity of the race; but then there shall be one people dwelling in happy homes where now the angry billows swell. This change of sea may necessitate changes of clouds, rain, snows, ice, hail, blizzards and lightnings. We may suppose a perfect climate, under whose rejuvenating influences "the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick;" and "there shall be no death there."

Another change will be the cessation of night. No darkness shall rest upon the glory of the new earth; no shadows mar its splendors; for "there shall be no night there." Night is so necessary in the present economy of nature, that it is difficult for us to form a fair conception of a world without it. Yet night indicates infirmity, and will, therefore, be banished from the world when "that which is perfect is come."

Change of night demands a change of sun; hence we read, "They need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light." The sun may have new functions in the regenerated heavens, and cease to gladden as now the earth with his rays; for "the Lamb is the light thereof."

There will also be spiritual changes quite as remarkable. The church will not exist as at present. There shall be "no temple therein." There shall be no human ministry, no ordinances. These means of instruction will not be needed, for the Lord God giveth them light. We shall not see through a glass darkly, but face to face; and we shall be taught of God. No more guessing and blundering, but "we shall know even as we are known."

Some reader will ask, "How about those already dead, and those who shall die before the earth's glorification?" They will come back to this world and live in it forever as the utterably blessed home God hath prepared for them. What else does John mean when he says in connection with the new earth, "I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband?" So the spiritual Jerusalem of the blessed shall return, and "the meek shall inherit the earth."

WOMEN SPEAKING IN MIXED ASSEMBLIES.

Dear Recorder:—It has been the custom in our church and all this country in the Baptist churches for our sisters in times of protracted meetings to relate their experiences and make requests for prayers of the church, &c. We have some good sisters who are a power in the land as good workers. Some lead the congregation in prayer. Do such acts by the said sisters conflict with the Word of God in 1 Cor. 14: 34?

Give us your opinion as to how far our women should go on this line. We have some women in our church who are great workers and have been the means of great good: in fact, some of our preachers have said that they were more help to them than most of the preachers. Some few have objected to the women speaking in church. Please answer through the RECORDER.

Your brother in Christ Jesus,
J. Z. FALLS

Belwood, Aug. 10, 1895.

ANSWER.—According to 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35, our women should "keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak. * * * It is a shame for women to speak in the church."

To doubt these words is to doubt the inspiration of the Scriptures. To be indifferent to them is to neglect God's Word.

In our opinion, and we speak with the good sense and the consecrated scholarship of this and past ages to support us, women may not go further in this matter than to speak in assemblies of their own sex, although there can be no objection to a woman asking for prayer.

THE NORTH CAROLINA BAPTIST SUNDAY-SCHOOL CHAUTAUQUA.

Chautauqua is a new word whose title to place in the English language has not yet been officially recognized. It is an Indian name, and has gained currency from being the name of a town and a lake in New York, which are headquarters for several popular summer gatherings of literary and scientific societies. Chautauquas are new institutions anywhere, and especially rare are they in the South. When the people know more of them, there will be more chautauquas no doubt.

We will not undertake to tell now of the significance of the Indian's chautauqua, but we can speak from experience of that of the "pale face." A chautauqua is an institution of learning, a school in which teachers teach teachers, and every day is both a holiday and a learning day; an institution with a serious purpose which it keeps fully in view, but at the same time is so managed that there is no lack of pleasure. The North Carolina Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua has a high purpose—the arousing and training of the Sunday-school workers in North Carolina, with particular aims at Baptist workers,—but we daresay no one who attends feels like he is in a training school, but more likely he gets the training as he gets the substance of a pill made sweet by a coat of sugar.

Now before we go further, let it be said that our Chautauqua can be improved. It is not perfect, not by any means. The RECORDER did not attend the meeting to criticise, but it will criticise whenever it sees a chance to do good. We see in the Chautauqua an open opportunity to push the Sunday school work, and we are going to help in it. The Chautauqua does not go on record with a view to any set policy; it is a meeting for the exchange of views, and that is what was done last week, brother criticising brother, and speakers taking directly opposite views, but we saw no face flush with hot blood; and no one was voted up or down, for there was no voting on questions of discussion. We hope the meetings will always be like this one in this respect.

For our own part we do not approve of some of the things said by certain speakers about people who oppose certain instruments in churches and Sunday-schools. We think, with the exception of one piece of instrumental music, the musical work at this Chautauqua was superb. At intervals there was inspiring congregational singing. We had a talk with Prof. Ruebush who conducted the music, and he assured us that he would cheerfully sell the works of the publishing house, in which he has an interest, through our Baptist Supply Store at Raleigh, and that he would make such a price as would permit the Store to sell at the regular retail price. So we hope those whom his kind offices at the Chautauquas have interested in his publications will order through our denomination's Supply Store.

Six hundred people were present in the airy and capacious and very suitable tabernacle (the property of the Presbyterians) Tuesday afternoon, when President Broughton called the Third Annual Chautauqua to order. Singing was the first thing on the program, and there was never a time afterwards when singing was out of order. Dr. C. C. Brown of Sumpter, S. C., conducted devotional exercises, Dr. A. M. Simms of Raleigh leading in prayer. Then several brethren, Bro. Simms, Bro. Smith of Charlotte, Bro. J. Q Adams, Bro. H. B. Downing, Bro. L. Johnson, and Bro. B. S Peterson, told why they had come and what they purposed doing, all making their statements brief. Rev. M. L Kesler, the pastor at Red Springs, delivered an address of welcome, which from the way things looked when we reached the scene next morning, put the visitors entirely at home. Bro. Broughton responded, telling something of the history of the Chautauqua, of which he has a right to feel proud, since he has done more than any other man for it. At night Rev. J. Q. Adams preached a strong and helpful sermon from the text, "God hath chosen the weak things of this world to confound the mighty."

Wednesday morning crowds came through the country and on the cars, Scotch Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists, from every direction. It was a good looking crowd the day before when it was small; it was better looking to-day when it reached up to about 1,000, and it was magnificent Thursday when the guesses at the attendance ranged from 1,800 to 3,000. It gives us courage down in our heart to see such a crowd of prosperous looking, conservative and orderly people. Robeson county is a model of orderliness and among the first for intelligence. She has no saloons. She has good schools; she has active preachers and good churches.

Mrs. T. M. Tucker read an earnest paper, well written, and interesting, on "Visiting." Dr. Simms delivered an address on the relations of pastor and superintendent. Speaking of the qualifications of a superintendent he put especial emphasis on Christian piety, thorough work, method, punctuality, ability to measure men and women on short acquaintance, lovableness, which he said was a better name than 'magnetic.' As for co-operation, the pastor ought to be the superintendent's right hand man, and the superintendent ought to be the pastor's: they should keep one another's eyes open and be seeing in all directions; looking after absentees together, co-operate in making the teachers' meetings helpful and in visiting together, and each should point to the other his duty without fear.

Bro. C. C. Brown of South Carolina followed on the same subject. He is the wittiest preacher in South Carolina, but he is unfortunately an avowed and incurable crank. He has an article in this paper in which he gets off the track at least three times, but he is good natured, and doesn't mind being told that he is wrong. We do not know whether he believes in women speaking in mixed assemblies or not,—we hope he does not,—but he is at any rate a good man at a Chautauqua. He believes a Sunday-school superintendent ought to be blessed with "that uncommonest thing I know of—common sense;" sensible but not sensitive, active, and imbued with the spirit of progress; persistent, yet movable.

Before adjourning for the morning, Bro. Simms introduced the newspaper men present with kindly words, the courtesy of which we acknowledge with thanks.

Rev. Livingston Johnson conducted prayer and praise service in the afternoon, based on Acts 16: 25. He brought out very impressively the contrast between the imprisoned disciples singing praises and praying in jail, and people now complaining of the least afflictions. He made his hearers feel more like praising God. "Too often we pray to God without praising him."

By request of the president, Rev. A. R. Pittman lead in special prayer for guidance of the Holy Spirit.

Bro. Broughton paid a high tribute to brother and sister W. H. Dodd, who have conducted the infant class in the Raleigh First Baptist Sunday school thirty-three years—the period of a generation. No one can estimate the extent of their good influence, but we hope there will be no occasion to sum it up for many a good year yet. After a few words by Prof. Ruebush on music, Bro. Dodd gave a lucid talk on the methods used by him.

Wednesday night Dr. C. A. Rominger, one of the most zealous laymen, lectured on "Anglo-Israel, or God a Covenant Keeping God." His effort was to show from Scriptures that the Anglo Saxon race is made up of the children of "the ten lost tribes."

Rev. J. O. Alderman conducted religious exercises Thursday morning, reading 103d Psalms. After prayers by himself and Bro. J. G. Pulliam, Dr. Rominger made an admirable talk on "How to Run Mission Sunday-schools." He told of the work at Reidsville, how a great deal had been accomplished by doing a little at a time. He was followed by Bro. J. G. Pulliam in a vigorous talk on the need for work of this kind; and Bro. C. C. Brown, Bro. Parker, and others, also spoke on this topic.

Bro. M. A. Allen captured the large audience with an interesting illustration of how he conducts the Reidsville infant class. He called for little scholars from the audience and went over the lesson with them on "The Report of the Spies." Taken all in all, it was one of the brightest performances during the meeting. Under the inspiration of the moment, Bro. Webster of Siler City, an active worker, made an effective plea for more trained workers.

Next in order came one of the saloons' foremost enemies, Rev. J. A. Smith of Fair Bluff. It was evident that he was in dead earnest, and that he was speaking out of the fulness of his heart. We have never heard a stronger temperance address, and we wish it could be made everywhere. If he will send it to us, we will print it.

Some questions brought out information that nine Sunday-schools in the State have teachers' meetings; that one man, Bro. Street of Roxboro had, until lately, been superintendent of three schools at once; that the Scotland Neck school has four missions, that the Rockingham, Reidsville, Raleigh, Rocky Mount, and others, have one or more.

The chapter of orphans from our Orphanage, expected to give an entertainment at this hour, did not come, and Bro. Broughton used the time well by making a talk for them. It seems to us that this work ought to be closer to our Sunday-schools than any other, and we believe that the little children can be trained more easily to give to this object than any other. Would to God that every Baptist Sunday school in the State would take up a collection for the orphans at Thomasville as soon as it can, and fix a regular time for it afterward.

Prof. Quakenbush of Laurinburg, whose reputation as a teacher of boys is second to that of no man in this State, and who stands high in the esteem of the people in this section, taught a class of grown people Thursday afternoon on the subject of the Golden Calf. He had only a few hours notification, but he did his work well, getting deep down into the meaning of things, yet making a special point of not getting meanings where they cannot be substantiated, depreciating the frequent habit of speculating and guessing at constructions and interpretations.

Bro. Broughton gave superintendents good advice, which may be briefly suggested in the following: Use your Bible; know your teachers, individually, personally, socially, at home, in business and in the work; be loyal to your pastor; have a high conception of your work; be in earnest, giving thought, study, time, money, self, to your work; be cheerful, encouraging teachers and scholars; be the children's friend, and get them to be yours. And then Bro. Broughton said he stood ready to try to answer questions.

Bro. Pulliam, who contributed much to the meeting by asking pertinent questions, here asked where the pastor ought to be while the lesson was going on. "In his study," said Bro. Broughton; "I do not believe he ought to have a class. I think he ought to do his Sunday school work in the teachers' meeting, which can be held just after prayer meeting." "But suppose, Bro. Broughton, you have no teachers' meeting." "No use supposing any such thing; we can have what we want."

When the RECORDER representative left Thursday evening to come back and get out the paper, Judge Eller had the floor, and was making an earnest talk. Thursday night Pastor B. W. Spilman of Kinston delivered his notable lecture, "Laugh and Grow Fat," which he entertainingly illustrates through and through as no artist could.

Friday was a rainy day, but the people turned out in crowds. Rev. J. O. Gough, a growing preacher of the Word, opened the session. Col. T. F. Toon delivered an address, "Dont's in Sunday-school Work." Mrs. T. D. Wray gave a practical illustration in teaching. Bro. S. P. Smith of Charlotte gave a black-board lesson on Books of the Bible. "Methods of Work" was the next topic, and it was open for general consideration, the president leading.

In the afternoon Dr. Rominger taught the lesson of the Brazen Serpent. He was followed by Pastor Rankin of the Red Springs Presbyterian church, on "Giving." At night there was a concert at the hotel.

Saturday was closing day, although Sunday school and preaching took place Sunday. No change in officers was made, and we would be disappointed to hear that a change of place had been decided upon.

SAID AND HEARD.

There is nothing, humanly speaking, so helpful in an infant class as singing.—Allen.

A teachers' meeting in the church is a little Chautauqua. There ought to be more of them.

I haven't been without a teachers' meeting in fifteen years. I start one wherever I am pastor.—Simms.

If you have any complaint to make of your pastor, make it to him, and to no one else on earth.—Broughton.

Everybody was a Scotchman or the son of a Scotchman. The geniality of the good people of Robeson was catching.

You'll not find a perfect pastor nor a perfect superintendent, but we must get them as nearly perfect as possible.—Simms.

Put the home, put the church, put the Sunday-school down on the liquor-traffic, and we will win the day.—J. A. Smith.

Your work will be no higher than your conception of it. You cannot get too high a conception of your work as a teacher.—Broughton.

Chautauqua is pronounced sha-to-qwa. The first a like a in sofa, the o like o in nor, the last a like a in sofa. The accent on the second syllable.

A Sunday-school will uplift the whole character of a community. I have seen them accomplish wonderful transformations.—Rominger.

It was a matter of general regret that the residence of Rev. R. A. Moore of Red Springs was destroyed by fire Friday night of Chautauqua week.

Bro. A. Johnson and Bro. Dave Oates manifested a commendable spirit of enterprise in getting out a daily Chautauquan. It contained full and thorough reports.

Every Sunday-school should have a good library—not "goody, goody" books, but strong and sound ones. Any book good for the home is good for the Sunday-school.—Broughton.

Bro. Kesler kept his eyes wide open and his head and hands and heart full looking out for his guests. We heard many good words for him, but no complaints. No wonder the Red Springs people feel tied to him.

Right here (Red Springs) there was neither hair nor hide of a Baptist fifteen years ago. If all the State had gone forward in the work like Robeson, there is no telling how big our denomination would be.—J. A. Smith.

The RECORDER cannot begin to express its gratitude for the kind treatment and assurances of interest in its future that the people gave. We will not forget these kindnesses, especially of those sisters who came forward with encouraging words.

A Sunday-school worker ought to be one who can be moved without tearing him, the school and the church up by the roots. We ought to take root, but I do not like to see them grow through and clinch themselves on the other side.—Brown.

So many of us seem to think that Sunday-schools are places for formal gathering, for entertaining children and the like; I want to impress you that teaching Sunday-school is teaching God's Word, is pointing out the way, is dealing with matters of awful consequence!—Rominger.

There were many kindly references to Mt. Vernon Springs, but all agreed that for convenience in reaching and in sheltering a large audience, Red Springs cannot be surpassed. As a brother put it, "The people at Mt. Vernon are all that could be desired, but we had to move on account of the difficulty in getting to the place."

Hon. H. McMillan informed us that near Red Springs lives the oldest Sunday-school superintendent in the State and probably in the country—and a woman at that. She is more than eighty years of age and has been superintendent of a Presbyterian Sunday-school forty five years. Her name is Miss Jane McNeill, and she lives five miles from Red Springs. On our way home we mentioned this to a Baptist sister, and she informed us that she was superintendent of a Baptist Sunday school during the war and for sometime afterward. So we live and learn.

Dwelling on Moses' petition that his name be erased from God's book unless his people were forgiven, Prof. Quackenbush asked a brother if he knew of any other person who prayed to be cursed. The brother replied in the negative; whereupon some one quoted Paul, "I could wish myself accursed,"—

"Wrong," said Bro. Brown; "it is a different thing to say I could knock you down from knocking you down." Just here Bro. Kesler saved us all from a psychological collision by quoting Broadus on the passage, saying that Paul meant he almost wished, etc.; "that is," continued Bro. Kesler, "he was on the ragged edge of wishing." "Then you struck the word," said Bro. Brown, "if Paul had been here I believe he would have said 'ragged edge!'"

NEWS NOTES.

....Attend your Association, if possible, and get some one to go with you.

....Rev. W. C. Newton of Goldsboro will attend the Rochester Theological Seminary.

....As the Sunday-school idea grows, we must see to it that it grows up into the Baptist church idea.

....Bro. John T. Pullen of Raleigh has been aiding Pastor Jonathan Wood in a good meeting at Bryson City.

....Wake Forest opens next week. What you do, do quickly. A man never has opportunity to do a better deed than to get a boy into a Christian college.

....Dr. John Mitchell ought to be enabled to carry through forty young men preparing for the ministry at Wake Forest this year. God still calls for workers.

....The Charlotte Observer, Aug. 16th, is responsible for the statement that the A. R. P. Y. P. H. M. S. Convention met at Statesville, Aug. 15th. We extend sympathy.

....It is not encouraging to see the Ministerial Relief Fund running so low. Let's rally to it, brethren, before winter overtakes us, and some retired veterans of the Lord suffer.

....The Mt. Holly Baptists had a packed house last Sunday morning to hear Rev. D. M. Austin, of Charlotte. The church will extend a call to Mr. Austin.—Gastonia Gazette.

....Dr. J. C. Hiden reports having held a meeting with pastor George Snead, of Bethel church, Fluvanna county, Va., in which ten persons were received for baptism.

....Rev. E. B. Pollard, D. D., of Roanoke, was elected to the professorship of English at Columbian University, Washington, D. C., instead of Bro. Hatcher, as was stated.

....Rev. Joseph G. Blalock of Rockingham made a short visit to our office last week. He was on his way to his old home Association, the Flat River, and also to a family gathering.

....Dr. A. T. L. Kusian of the Chair of Modern Languages at Hollins Institute, Va., made a pleasant visit to our office Monday. We were glad to learn from him that the prospect for Hollins was never better.

....Rev. D. P. Bridges writes that a Baptists church with fourteen members has been organized in the western part of Iredell county, where he and Elder J. F. Morris have been holding a "Regions Beyond" meeting.

....Prof. W. L. Poteat of Wake Forest College lectured to the First Baptist church of Raleigh, Sunday morning last, on "The Thirty Silent Years of Christ's Life." At night he talked on "Faith." Both services were highly instructive.

....Several lay brethren of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle have been doing "regions around" work in a brush arbor near Raleigh. Dr Cobb informs us that at one of the services which he attended eight grown people came forward for prayer.

....Rev. J. O. Alderman, who, by the way, contributed greatly to the Chautauqua, told us at Red Springs of a good meeting he and Bro. Suttle lately held in Stanly county. There were a goodly number of conversions. Bro. Suttle is doing fine work in this part of the State.

....Our city pastors have all been granted vacations by their respective churches. Revs. Barker and Craig have gone and Revs. Adams and Crawford will follow soon. No town in the State can boast of a more zealous or harder working lot of preachers and they have richly earned a rest from their labors. We hope, however, that all of them will not be away from their pulpits at the same time.—Webster's Weekly (Reidsville).

....Pastor W. B. Morton of Louisburg passed through Raleigh last week, returning to Louisburg after a pleasant vacation spent with friends and relatives about Leaville. Bro. Morton is in good health and goes back to his work with strong hope.

....We were glad to see Rev. J. O. Gough of Manning, S. C., last week. Returning from a visit to his wife's home, Wake Forest, he stoppd over at Red Springs and enjoyed the Chautauqua. Bro. Gough has one of the best working fields in his section, and it is growing in activity under his ministry.

....Bro. W. F. Marshall of the Gastonia Gazette made a pleasant visit to our office last week. He was on his way to Louisburg to spend a few days with his mother. Bro. Marshall is fortunate in having a wife who can keep house and maintain the excellence of his paper as well while he and the children rest.

....We were glad to see Professor J. Hendren Gorrell of the Chair of Modern Languages at Wake Forest, in Raleigh last week. He was returning to college from Baltimore, where he used his vacation working. Next year, if possible, the professor will travel in North Carolina among the brethren.

....Work is progressing on the Baptist church. Our Baptist friends will have a very neat and handsome church when it is completed. Rev. Duncan McLeod is deserving a great deal of credit for his efforts in this work and we are glad to note that they are meeting with success.—Washington Progress.

....The Southern Biblical Assembly has adjourned. Growing out of it an auxiliary of the Society of Religious Education has been organized which will be permanent. It is proposed to establish similar auxiliaries in several leading Southern cities. Dr. Thos. Hume will tell our readers next week about the Assembly.

....The Fayetteville pastor writes: "Chas. A. G., Jr., arrived at the parsonage yesterday (August 18). All well. We had a great crowd last Sunday night—couldn't seat the people. I hope there are great things in the future for us." Bro. Thomas will contribute a strong article for the next issue of the RECORDER.

....Rev. G. M. Tolson, who was pastor of the Baptist church at Crisfield, Md., and who has since repeatedly sought a pastorate in this State, has, says the Evangel, announced that his views have undergone a change and is no longer a Baptist. He is expected to unite with the Episcopal church. There now. We might have saved a preacher (?) by "locating" him!

....Rev. N. S. Jones assisted Rev. J. E. Greene at Elkin in a good meeting last week. Bro. Jones writes: "We are expecting a good and profitable session of the Association, which meets with our church on the 30th. We hope every object of our denominational work will be well represented, and there are large possibilities before us on all the lines. May the strength of the Lord be with us.

....There was an immense congregation at the Baptist Church Sunday night, composed of all denominations, as there were no services in any of the other churches. Rev. Mr. Thomas preached a fine sermon, full of lofty thoughts, couched in splendid language. He has a clear, strong voice, and his articulation is perfect. The Baptists are fortunate in securing such a talented pastor.—Fayetteville Observer.

....Bro. W. H. Smith of Granville county died at his home last week. He was one of the most respected men in his part of the State, and had the confidence of his fellow citizens to such an extent that he was once elected sheriff of the county without a vote against him. He was a strong, loyal and useful Baptist, and reared his children in the faith. He had read the RECORDER thirty-six years steadily. Dr. R. H. Marsh preached the funeral at Enon church in the presence of a large concourse of friends.

....Rev. J. W. Powell has returned from Rochelle, Ga., to the great pleasure of his many friends. Mr. Powell says there is a great future before South Central Georgia, as soon as the new railroad to Florida passes through. Rochelle is twenty miles below Cordele where Mr. W. L. Middleton now of this city did an extensive business some years ago and still has large property interest.—Rocky Mount Phœnix. We understand that Bro. Powell has a call to Georgia, but earnestly hope he will see his way to stay in North Carolina.

....Dr. N. B. Cobb returned to Raleigh last week from Benson where he had been assisting Rev. A. A. Campbell in a good meeting in which there was a number of conversions. Dr. Cobb is not an evangelist in one sense of the word, but in another—as a gospel-carrier—he is. Since July 1st he has preached more than forty sermons. He is looking stronger for his work than ever, and it is a fact that he weighs more now than he did July 1st. He is now at Gum Spring, Chatham county, in a meeting with Bro. L. R. Dixon.

....Bro. C. J. Rivenbark the aggressive Superintendent of the Sunday-school at Goldsboro told us at the Chautauqua last week of the 55th Anniversary of his school, which is said to be the first Sunday-school organized in Wayne county. Rev. C. J. Nelson organized it and was superintendent 23 years. This took place at Waynesboro, and there were only seven members. Bro. Nelson still lives to counsel in this work so much of which is due to his zeal and faith. Since Bro. Nelson retired there have been twelve superintendents. The church has had twenty-one pastors, the list of whom is remarkable for the number who have become well-known. Rev. John T. Albritton, Rev. C. J. Nelson, Rev. J. W. Millard, Rev. J. T. Edmondson were members of this church before they entered the ministry.

....Rev. Thomas Carrick's resignation of our Lexington church is not to take effect until the end of the year. Bro. Carrick has been on this field nine years. He has been successful in building up our cause, has strengthened our forces, and in many other ways shown himself a worthy servant of the Lord.

....Pastor S. J. Porter writes encouragingly from Newbern: "This week I have been assisting Rev. A. H. Porter in a meeting with his church at Piny Grove, Jones county. When I left, one had been restored and nine were awaiting baptism, while a number of others were seeking the way of life. As the meeting will probably continue a few days longer, we hope these precious souls may find the Saviour. The work is very encouraging here in Newbern. Bro. Burgess and the Tabernacle brethren are full of zeal and good works for the Master. The Middle Street church is in fine working condition, and the brethren seem encouraged. Our congregations continue to grow, and interest in the prayer-meetings continues. We are building a baptistery in our church and an addition which is to contain pastor's study, rooms for Sunday school, etc. It will add much to the comfort and convenience of our house of worship."

....The following figures which we find going about in trustworthy contemporaries will be interesting to those who have an appetite for statistics: Reports show that the Baptists in the United States have 1,022,217 more members, 10,209 more churches, 8,027 more ordained ministers, 5,000 more Sunday schools and 312,804 more pupils, than they had ten years ago (from 1880 to 1890), while the benevolent contributions have more than doubled. The increase is at the rate of 102,000 members, 1,000 churches, 800 ministers and 31,000 Sunday school scholars a year. More than one fifth of all the Protestant church members, one-sixth of the Sunday-schools and one-seventh of the Sunday-school scholars, are Baptists. Of educational institutions, the Baptists have seven theological schools with sixty-seven instructors, 937 students and property valued at $3,517,103; thirty five universities and colleges with 723 instructors, 9,385 students, 946 of whom are preparing for the ministry, and $19,370,888 of property.

....The good work still goes on. We have gleaned the following from the North Carolina field for this week, through the county papers and letters: There have been more than ten conversions at a meeting at Pleasant Hill church, near Mack, in which Elders C. B. Justice, Wm. Davis, John Walker and A. J. Hensley took part. Elder J. W. Cobb of Lumber Brigde was in a fine meeting at Bladen Union last week, assisted by Bro. D. C. Britt, a Wake Forest student. Thirteen were added to our church at Manchester, Cumberland county, in which Elder R. A. Moore aided Elder J. W. Cobb. Rev. M. A. Adams has been protracting at Warren Plains with good results. Rev. R. D. Carroll has been holding a meeting at Smyrna, Lenoir county, and five persons have been baptized. Last week he was in a meeting at New Hope, near Kinston, with Rev. J. W. Rose. They are two of our most active men. Pastor C. S. Burgess of the Newbern Tabernacle baptized four persons recently, and there are reasons to expect others. Rev. W. F. Fry supplied for Bro. Burgess a few days, during which the latter rested at his parents' home in Camden county. Twelve persons were added to Cape Fear church during a meeting held by Bro. D. C. Britt and Elder A. E. C. Pittman. Bro. W. N. Johnson, a Wake Forest student, aided Rev. M. C. Walton in a good meeting at Jacksonville. There were thirty two additions to the church. Rev. J. W. Powell of Rocky Mount is assisting Pastor Newton in a meeting at Kelford. Dr. J. B. Richardson has been holding protracted services with his faithful Meadow Branch church, near Monroe. Rev. J. C. Gillespie has been aiding Rev. A. P. Hollifield at New Bethel. Rev. J. B. Harrell has been helping Pastor S. D. Swaim at Lisbon in a good meeting. There were two additions to the Deep Creek church after a meeting conducted by Rev. G. O. Wilhoit. Rev. Thomas Dixon, Sr., and Rev. C. H. Durham will assist Pastor J. A. Hoyle in a meeting at Long Creek, beginning next Sunday. Rev. C. S. Cashwell has been aiding Pastor Jones in a good meeting at Lowell, near Gastonia. Rev. H. H. Mashburn and Rev. G. N. Cowan have closed an interesting meeting which they have been holding at Flat River Union. Rev. L. M. Curtis is assisting Rev. R. C. Sandling in a meeting at Spring Vale, Sampson county. An exchange says several people were baptized at the Bernhardt Mills Thursday, near Lower Creek church. (We would be obliged if the makers of such notes would give the name of the pastors). A meeting at Pleasant Plains church is reported to have resulted in fifteen additions to the church. Eleven persons were added to our church at Pinnacle in a meeting in which Rev. C. W. Blanchard aided Pastor Haymore. There were three professions of religion in a meeting at Rockyhock, in which Rev. G. W. White did the preaching. Bro. White last week aided Elder Leggett at Cedar Branch. He expects to go later to Plymouth. Rev. A. C. Cree and H. H. Mashburn held a good meeting at Shiloh, near Raleigh, last week. The rain cut the work short, and Bro. Cree expects to hold another meeting later. Bro. Cree is this week aiding Pastor Hunter at Mount Vernon, near Neuse. Rev. H. H. Mashburn is helping Pastor McDuffie at Mount Hermon. There were thirty-three accessions to our church at Oak Grove, near Monroe, Rev. J. W. Little reports. Twenty-three have been baptized at Toxaway, following a meeting by Rev. J. C. Owen. Bro. J. V. Devenny has been helping Bro. J. L. Martin at Midway. Rev. J. A. Wray of Winston has been in a good meeting at Union Hill. Rev. F. H. Martin is in a good meeting at Scottsville. Rev. B. H. Matthews with two laymen, brethren Williams and Bryan, is in the "regions beyond," Dismal school house.

Goldsboro Letter.

The Sunday school of the First church celebrated its fifty fifth anniversary Aug. 11th. Our enterprising superintendent, Bro. C. J. Rivenbark, prepared an attractive program, in which he embodied many interesting facts connected with the early history of the school and church. I quote a few of them for the lovers of modern ecclesiastical history.

"Our Sunday-school was organized with seven members in the year 1840 at Waynesboro, then the county seat of Wayne county, in a free meeting-house by Chas. J. Nelson, who was its superintendent for twenty-two years. As an outgrowth of this school, in the year 1848, what is now known as the First Baptist church of Goldsboro was constituted with five members. In 1851 services at Waynesboro were discontinued, the greater part of the population having moved to Goldsboro, the new county seat. For several years there was no church in the "Borough," but services were announced by ringing the bell at the carriage shop of Bro. C. J. Nelson. At night the old tallow candle was the only available light."

Rev. J. T. Albritton, the first minister sent out by the church, was with us and preached the anniversary sermon in the morning. To those who like myself had not seen him, I may say that he is as good a preacher as a writer, and that is saying much. Our people love him and are always glad to have him meet with them.

The afternoon and evening were devoted to music, recitations and addresses by members of the school. Rev. Chas. J. Nelson gave interesting reminiscences at the evening service. Though he is now in his eightieth year, he is still one of the most active men in the church. He attends three prayer-meetings each week and often leads the singing.

Rev. W. T. Jones of the Second church leaves us this week for the Valley of Virginia, where he has accepted work. He has endeared himself to the membership of both churches and they are loath to give him up, but since he will go, they bid him Godspeed and extend congratulations to their Virginia brethren.

The First church will also soon be pastorless, but these people are not of the kind that allow their parsonage to remain long empty; nor will they find it difficult to get a good minister of the Word, for they will make the field so very attractive to him that he can't afford to stay away.

Revival at Grover, N. C

Dear Recorder:—Our little village is somewhat quiet this evening and the general topic is the great revival that has been going on at the Baptist church for the past two weeks, conducted by Rev. D. W. Thomasson, assisted by Rev. L. R. Pruett of Charlotte. Bro. Pruett did the preaching with great power and tenderness, and from the beginning the speaker held the audience under his eloquence and mighty persuasive powers: it does he seem he declared the whole counsel of God, and the Holy Spirit carried the message to the hearts of men and women.

Old churchmen say they have never experienced such a revival of religion in our midst. Many backsliders were reclaimed. The meeting closed to day after the ordinance of baptism was administered to twenty six candidates.

Brethren Thomasson and Pruett left this afternoon to hold meetings at other points. May the Holy Spirit ever bless the labors of these men of God.

Dear Recorder:—With deep sorrow I announce what will be a sad intelligence to the public generally.

Manly, the eldest son of Brother and Sister N. Y. Gulley of Franklinton, N. C., after a brief illness of nine days, departed this life August 13th. Next October he would have been fifteen years of age. He was a boy of great promise, the pride of his father, and the delight of his mother. He would have entered the Sophomore Class of Wake Forest College next session. We plan for life. God plans for eternity. We cannot know why it was best for one so young to be taken away but God's providence is wise and gracious. It is a Father's hand that was laid upon the youth and upon the parents. Let the fond parents find consolation in the fact that he could not have fallen into tenderer hands. "All things work together for good to them that love God."

May this bereavement direct all the loved ones and relatives to that heaven of which the Apostle John spoke: "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes: and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." A short service was held at Bro. Gulley's home. And on Wednesday morning the body was laid away in the cemetery at Wake Forest, to await the resurrection morn. Friends all over the State deeply sympathize with Brother and Sister Gulley in their bereavement. God bless and comfort the dear mother.

"When my dim reason would demand
Why this or that thou dost ordain,
By some vast deep I seem to stand,
Whose secrets I must ask in vain.
Be this my joy that evermore
Thou rulest all things at thy will;
Thy sovereign wisdom I adore,
And calmly, sweetly, trust thee still."

School Notes.

The well known preacher and teacher, Dr. J. N. Stallings, has consented to become principal of Jerusalem Academy, Davie county, which opens next month. He will be assisted by his daughter, Miss Bettie.

Enfield Collegiate Institute opens Aug. 26. Prof. O. J. Peterson, Wake Forest College, '92, is principal, and the prospect is for the best school Enfield has ever had.

Prof. John Duckett attended the Chautauqua. He told us the Robeson Institute was growing. The people in that section have great confidence in the school.

Prof. R. B. White, M. A., says the prospects of Franklinton Classical Institute, of which he is principal, are fine. Bro. White is son of Rev. J. M. White and a graduate of Wake Forest College.

Bro. C. W. Wilson passed through Raleigh last week on his way to Scotland Neck to prepare for opening the Male School. Bro. Prince is also there. They are looking forward to an unusually good session.

The county commissioners acted wisely in choosing Rev. John E. White county examiner for Chowan county.

We were glad to have a visit from Prof. T. R. Crocker of Turlington Institute, Smithfield, last week. Bro. Crocker says the Institute will have a successful year.

Prof. C. D. Graves has been elected principal of Edenton Academy. He is a graduate of Wake Forest College, and since he made teaching his life work, he has developed many admirable qualities for it. The last two years he has been teaching acceptably in Chowan Baptist Female Institute.

Notes of Travel.

A few days, early in August, were spent in a meeting with Rev. T. B. Hill at Poplar Creek church, which he is serving. Quite a number were converted and added to the church. I had happy experiences there which can never be forgotten, and secured some liberal contributions to the Female University.

The following Sunday was spent in Oxford with my Seminary friend, Rev. J. H. Hardaway. He is a true pastor and very much beloved. The new church building will be one of the most beautiful and convenient in the State. It is built of brick set in red mortar, and the gables are adorned with terra cotta tiles of handsome design. The main audience room, semicircular in shape, will accommodate five hundred, and the large Sunday school room on one side can by rolling shutters be made part of the audience room, adding three hundred to the seating capacity. Besides these there will be six smaller rooms for various purposes. The work, which was suspended for some time, has been resumed, and the brethren are making strenuous efforts to complete the building at an early day.

I was cordially received. The Female University, even under these circumstances, was given some help, with promises of more to follow.

It was our privilege to dine with Prof. Hobgood and to meet his charming family. He is looking forward to a still larger attendance the coming session at the Oxford Seminary.

On arriving at Creedmore I found a host of Baptists from all quarters attending the Flat River Association. It is a strong body and well equipped with progressive pastors.

The report on Education called special attention to the establishing of an endowed institution at Raleigh for the girls of the State. We are much mistaken if a canvass of this Association does not very materially increase the amount already contributed to this noble cause.

J. HARTWELL EDWARDS.

To the Pastors and Churches of the Eastern Association.

Dear Brethren:—In order to meet the pressing demand for funds to promote Foreign Missions, the committee appointed by the last Southern Convention recommend a definite sum that may reasonably be expected of each Association in the South.

The amount named for the Eastern Association is $800 for the current Associational year. This is truly a small amount for us, even in hard times, and one that we can easily raise if each and every church and pastor will give it proper attention.

At our Association at the Johnson church in 1893 we failed to take pledges from the churches, and the result has been disastrous; therefore it was heartily recommended at Lisbon in 1894 that we return the basis of pledges made at Dobson's Chapel in 1892 or Mary's Chapel in 1891.

Please ascertain, brethren, what your usual pledge for Foreign Missions has been, make that the basis of action, and add to it if possible, appoint a special committee of one to look after it, and let us report at Corinth this fall at least $800 carried up or sent up for the needy foreign field.

Yours for the great commission,

O. P. MIKES.

Christian Union.

BY ELDER J. A. STRADLEY.

I am glad I can say with Paul, "Grace be with all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity;" and that as I grow older I can join with the aged John in saying, "Little children, love one another." I am growing more and more brotherly in my feelings towards all who love my Master; and am ready to join with them in any Christian work that does not require me to compromise my honest convictions of Bible truth. But I do feel that Baptists are drifting towards dangerous compromises. I say Baptists, because compromising to them may mean the surrender of all that makes them Baptists. To them it may mean to lose much and gain nothing. To Pedobaptists, compromise means to lose little and gain much. It has long been a matter of astonishment to me that Presbyterians, Methodists, Episcopalians and others should be divided into different denominations and maintain separate church organizations. In the main, they are agreed as to sprinkling or pouring for baptism, as to infant baptism and open communion. Their doctrinal differences are not very great. Really it seems to me that their differences are so unimportant that they might unite without sacrificing any great religious principles. But it is not so with Baptists. We are a peculiar people. We hold views of Bible truth that separate us widely from all other denominations. Baptists stand alone for a converted church membership, for the baptism of believers only, for immersion alone as Scriptural baptism, for restricting the communion to those who have been Scripturally baptized, for the independence of each local church, and for the separation of Church and State. For Baptists to compromise these principles would be to give up some of the essential foundation truths on which Christ and the Apostles built the New Testament churches. This view makes it plain that others may compromise, but the Baptists cannot, without being disloyal to the truth for which we stand alone.

I believe in each denomination and church doing its own work in its own way, and let others work with them in what they can and as far as they can.

If there must be "Young People's Meetings," let them be denominational, as the "Epworth League," or the "B. Y. P. U." I think it unwise to hold "Union Protracted Meetings." It is true that most of the work done in such meetings is Christian and undenominational in character; but the natural tendency of such unions is to destroy or at least weaken the responsibility of individual churches. They will come to feel that they cannot do their work alone; but they must depend on others to help them. If a church has a right to exist, it is because it has a work to do that no other church or churches can do for it. It will be a sad day for any church to feel or believe that she cannot hold a revival meeting without the aid of other churches.

When a man does his own work he gets the healthfulness and helpfulness that comes from individual labor; so when a church does her own Christian work she gets a spiritual blessing that can come in no other way. In unions of different denominations, honest convictions of Bible truth must be suppressed, or else trouble will arise. The church with which the union is held, and the preaching will naturally exert the strongest denominational influence.

The way to do the most good and get the most good, and to live in love with all other Christians is for each church to do her own work in her own way.

None of Cæsar's Business.

"It is none of Cæsar's business to deal with our consciences, neither will we ever obey Cæsar in any matter which touches conscience. He may make what laws he will about religion, but by our loyalty to God we pour contempt on Cæsar when he usurps the place of God. He is no more to us than the meanest beggar in the street if he goes beyond his own legitimate authority. To Cæsar, Cæsar's; politics to politicians; obedience, cheerful and prompt, to civil rulers; to God, and to God only, things that are God's; and what are these? Our hearts, our souls, our consciences. Man himself is the coin upon which God has stamped his image and superscription (though, alas! both are sadly marred), and we must render to God our manhood, our wills, our thoughts, our judgments, our minds, our hearts. Consciences are for God. Any law that touches conscience is null and void, by the act itself, for the simple reason that kings and parliaments have no right to interfere in the realm of conscience. Conscience is under law to none but God."—Spurgeon, in Vol. 10 of Sermons, Funk & Wagnall, New York.

East Durham Notes.

Rev. C. W. Blanchard, Financial Agent for Wake Forest College, was moving about among his old friends in East Durham last week. We were out to Berea, engaged in a protracted meeting, and missed the pleasure of shaking his hand and passing a word or two. Sorry, but some of his old charge took him in, and cared for him gladly, so we were told on our return.

Sisters Eva Cameron, Lanie Stone and others have been gathering up the fragments and investing in a carpet and other fixings for the pulpit. How much a little work can change the appearance of anything and everything, save sinners like those mentioned in Ezekiel 3: 5-7.

Another member was received into the fellowship of East Durham church by letter, Aug. 4th. We have room for others living near by, who have not yet accepted our repeated invitations to come in with us. There may be many reasons for Baptists living near a town church holding membership in a far-off country church, but they are all as stale, perhaps, as the oft repeated "I don't like the way you town people worship." As a rule, Baptists ought to have their membership and Christian influence together. This would save some of our churches a deal of trouble they now have, looking after stray and trunk members.

Protracted meetings are going on in every direction this week. Mount Moriah, Sandy Level, Cedar Fork, and several churches of other names than Baptists, have meetings in progress this week. "This is the convenient season" to get religion, and "attend big meetings!" Well, I would love to see the time when people could accept and live Christ all the year round. Better become a Christian in August or some week in some other month than never to find the Saviour; but to have a revival every time we come together for worship would be much better.

O. C. HORTON.

Literary.

The Preacher's Magazine for August is at hand. The Sermon, by Dr. Hugh Macmillan, entitled, "The Door of the Sheep," is good. Rev. F. B. Meyer contributes a choice Sermon upon "The Woman Who Saved a Man." Another valuable paper by Rev. John Edwards on "Methods of Illustration," enriches this number. The Homiletical matter is varied and instructive: "Before the Lord's Supper, by Rev. James Dunk; "Salem," by Rev. E. A. Griffin; "Indifference to Christ," by Rev. F. Brought Wilson, are all of superior merit. Notes and Illustrations, Brief Sermons for Busy Readers etc., are also in this number. It is published by Wilbur B. Ketcham, 2 Cooper Union, New York. The price of single copies is 15 cents, or $1 50 per year.

The Homiletic Review for August bears on its face the proof that it has not been "edited with shears." Dr. Gregory continues his series on "The Preacher and the Preaching for the Present Crisis." His paper in the July number on "The Relation of Preaching to Reform" attracted wide attention and elicited hearty approval; the August paper, on "Preaching the Law," as a necessary preparation for the Gospel with its regeneration and reform, Dr. Cobern's article, on "The Old Syriac Gospel Recently Discovered at Mt. Sinai," is a through discussion of that interesting document, the age of the text and of the MSS; and a capital presentation of the main points of variation from the commonly received Greek text. Dr. Witherspoon's article is a fresh and discriminating presentation of "Sensational Preaching," false and genuine.

The Treasury of Religious Thought for August has as frontispiece the portrait of Rev. Westwood Wright Case, D. D. (Methodist), of San Francisco, whose sermon on The Law as a Teacher holds the initial place; and is followed by outlines and synopses of sermons by Rev. Philip S. Henson, D. D., and Rev. Mr. McG. Dana, D. D., and Rev. H. M. Gallaher, D. D., of Brooklyn, and others. The "Timely Occasion" anticipated is Labor Day, which is treated in an article considering the rise of wages and the humane spirit of many capitalists. Looking backward to the recent commencements, an article on the Practical Value of College Work is made from recent addresses of some of the most distinguished college presidents, by whose portraits it is illustrated. The entrance by graduation of such a reinforcement to the ranks of educated men is the subject considered in various lights in the editorial. Annual subscription, $2 50. Clergymen, $2. Single copies, 25 cents. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 5 Cooper Union, New York.

Not since "The Anglomaniacs" has there been so clever a society satire as Henry Fuller's "Pilgrim Sons," which is published in the August Cosmopolitan. The problems involved in woman's use of the bicycle are so startling and so numerous, under the rapid evolution of this art, that one welcomes a careful discussion of the subject by so trained a mind and so clever a writer as Mrs. Reginald de Koven. The Cosmopolitan illustrates Mrs. de Koven's article with a series of poses by professional models. A new sport, more thrilling than any known to Nimrod, more dangerous than was ever experienced by even a Buffalo Bill, is exploited in the same issue in an article no "Photographing Big Game in the Rocky Mountains," before shooting. The idea that ten cents for The Cosmopolitan means inferiority from a literary point of view is dispelled by the appearance in this number of such writers as Sir Lewis Morris, Sir Edwin Arnold, Edgar Fawcett, Tabb, W. Clark Russell, Lang, Sarcey, Zangwill, Agnes Replier, etc. Nor can we entertain the idea of inferiority in illustration with such names as Hamilton, Gibson, Denman, Van Schaick, Lix, Sandham, etc., figuring as the chief artists of a single month's issue.

Martin B. Anderson, LL. D. A Biography. By A. C. Kendrick, Dr D., LL. D., assisted by Florence Kendrick Cooper. Philadelphia, Pa.: American Baptist Publication Society. $1.50

President Anderson's biography is valuable both for the importance of his life work and for the inspiration of his personal character. Any biography by Dr. A. C. Kendrick would be of value as well as of interest. In the volume before us, therefore, we have the triple value, which ought to insure for the book a wide reading. The life, character and work of Dr. Anderson are sketched with sympathetic touch, with discerning eye and with skillful hand. His birth in Brunswick, Maine, Feb. 12, 1815, with his ancestry and environment; his life in Bath; his struggles for an education which convinced all who knew him "that he would amount to something;" his life at Waterville, first as a student and then as a teacher; his marriage—and we thank the author for telling us so much about Mrs. Anderson—his work as editor, of special interest and comfort to us; and his great work at Rochester, in whose harness he died—all these are told most charmingly. Instead of naming the various elements of his character, the narrative tells facts which reveal clearly those elements to the reader. Ninety pages at the close of the volume are given to a personal portraiture from several hands. We have The Man, by Dr. Lemuel Moss; As a Scholar, by Prof. W. C. Morey; His Personal Relations with Young Men, by Pres. M. E. Gates; As a Factor of Inspiration, by Dr. MacArthur; As a Denominational Force, by Dr. Crane; As a Public Man, by Judge Tourgee, and A Characterization, by Dr. Boardman.

Mission Work of the English Baptists.

The one hundred and third report of the Baptist Missionary Society, now issued, without supplying statistics in detail, furnishes a general view of the entire field of operations. The work in India is still slow, but the laborers are hopeful, and the indications are numerous that the seed sown is secretly germinating in many hearts. The Baptists have now 178 stations in India, the number of missionaries, native and European, being 77, and native evangelists 108.

The Ceylon mission has 99 stations, 4 missionaries, and 24 native evangelists. Numerous baptisms have taken place, and Christian elementary school work has been well maintained. There are also a considerable number of inquirers awaiting baptism.

In China there are now 198 stations, 21 missionaries, and 53 native evangelists. Despite the disturbed state of the country, the year has been one of special blessing and progress. The number of conversions has been large, and there has been a marked development of aggressive self supporting church life in the converts. Thus the Rev. Percy Bruce, B. A., of Tsing Chu Fu, in Shantung province, writes: "The total membership now stands at 1,340. Since the last report 88 have been baptized, and there are now 144 candidates under instruction with a view to baptism, besides 321 other inquirers who worship regularly with us." Surely such tidings call for thankfulness.

In Palestine there are 7 stations and 1 missionary. Among other items is the following: "The little church in Jerusalem still holds on, and every Lord's day they meet together in their dwelling."

On the Congo, Upper and Lower, the work of the mission has made steady progress. The gospel is taking hold of the people and producing results in their lives and habits of a most cheering character. Valuable work, too, has been done in translating and printing, and this without cost to the society. "Even the books sold to the natives are purchased at prices enabling us to cover the cost of printing them."

Substantial progress is recorded in the West Indies Mission. Several of the churches have of late become self supporting. The Jamaica churches, which for long time have been self-supporting, have now a membership of 36,777.—Missionary Review.

In accordance as the scales of prejudice are falling from off the eyes of men, will they be enabled to see the good there is in Christianity in its influence upon the individual, national, and social life of the people. It seems as if that time has come—that it is beginning to be understood that a man can be a true Christian and at the same time a true Japanese. If this latter fact is once thoroughly established, one of the strongest arguments now used against Christianity by its enemies will have been removed.

The Christians of Japan stand identified with the burning questions of the day. In relief and charity work they are often the leaders. In earthquake disasters, in the hospitals among the sick and wounded, and by the bedside of the dying, they show the kindly helping hand. They have founded orphan asylums; they organize charity and benevolent schemes by which to succor the poor and the needy, to relieve the sick and the infirm; and in this way they are teaching, by example, that Christianity is a saving, helping religion, and all these things are gaining for it its just recognition.

What, then, is the outlook? On this there is a variety of opinion. Some are looking forward to great gains in the near future, others have no ground for such hope. It is believed that some time will be required to recover from the serious set-back the work has received during the last five years. It is also known that the opposition of the Buddhist has never been more determined that it is now—that there is an immense amount of indifference in regard to religion in general, and the Christian in particular; so that the idea once entertained that Japan will be born a Christian nation in a few years is pretty generally abandoned.

But that the outlook is hopeful, more so than for the last three or four years, is generally acknowledged, since all the facts in the case go to show it. This should greatly encourage the workers on the field, leading them to still greater effort, and stimulate the churches of the West to meet all demands of men and money required by the present improved condition of Christian work in Japan.—Missionary Review.

There are about one million of Italians in the United States, one third of them being settled in the principal cities. They are hard and steady workers, very saving, and anxious to improve themselves. They are mostly Roman Catholics, but not one-tenth attend church, as they are tired of the papacy. They should have Protestant missionaries at work among them.

An extra cent a day from each one of 15,500,000 Protestant Evangelical church-members in the United States would add $56,575,000 a year to the Lord's treasury. Only an extra cent a day is required.

"Yet who, when looking backward o'er his years,
Feels not his eyelids wet with grateful tears,
If he hath b en
Permitted, weak and sinful as he was,
To cheer and aid, in some ennobling cause,
His fellow men?"

The day is long past when any except the ignorant and prejudiced speak of foreign missions with a sneer. The century now drawing to a close has no prouder laurel than that which it wears as distinctively the century of missionary effort and progress recorded in the evangelization of the world. —Harper's Bazar.

It is said that there are 120 Buddhist temples in Canton. They are mostly dingy in appearance, the chosen abodes of bats and spiders, whose webs are black with the smoke of the ever-rising incense. In the courtyards outside congregate fortune-tellers, hucksters, and beggars in sackcloth full of sores. Even gambling-booths are not forbidden in the temple precincts.—Review.

Knowledge is power. If Christianity is to have force in the world it must be intelligent. This is the age of general information. The members of the church must be informed along the line of their work equal to the patrons of any other calling. The great trouble with the church to day is the lack of information. First, as to the needs of the world; second, as to the opportunities and responsibilities of the church.—Rev. R. V. Hunter.

The women have had a noble part in the noble work of grace in Cuba. They should feel divinely proud, and loftily inspired in Jesus' name to yet nobler things for the "Queen of the Antilles." It was a band of women who, by their prayers, first turned our eyes toward Cuba. It was a woman whose consecrated life first pointed Diaz to a Saviour; a little girl was the first convert; the mother of Diaz, once against him, has been a power in his work; and the Baptist women of Cuba are among the best of the toilers. Let us realize our opportunity and our responsibility toward Cuba, as she lies so near, a next-door neighbor to us. A long line of islands, stretching from Florida to Cuba, seems to tell the story that once Cuba was a part of this continent. Let us annex Cuba christianized, to a christianized America, by the powerful ties of a pure gospel; not by proclamation of president or earthly potentate, but by authority of the King of Kings, speaking in his Great Commission, issued from the mountain-top in Galilee, A. D. 30, and never yet repealed.

The Commissioner of Agriculture will be assisted in the meetings by Professors Massy, Irby and Emery, of the Agricultural Experiment Station, and subjects of practical interest to farmers will be presented, and full discussion of all topics be open to all present.

Come out and let us have full and useful meetings—no politics of any sort—but only practical farm and garden matters.

S. L. PATTERSON, Commissioner.

The thorough and altogether excellent address delivered in Raleigh on Memorial Day (May 10, 1895) containing a memoir of the late Major-General Wm. Henry Chase Whiting, by Capt. C. B. Denson has been published by request of the Ladies' Memorial Association. It is an interesting contribution to Confederate history.

Baptist Growth in the United States.

"On the whole, no large Protestant denomination in the United States has suffered less for a lack of harmony in doctrine and practice than have the Baptists. This can be made patent by statistics. Of the 13,900,338 non-Catholic Christian communicants in the United States, one-third of the whole, more than 4,560,000, are antipedobaptists and immersionists. This estimate takes no account of Christadelphians, Plymouth Brethren and United Brethren, and so is within the mark.

"These figures are from the census reports of 1890. We may look at the facts in another way, which will make the growth of the denomination seem even more interesting. During the century ending with 1890, the population of the United States increased from 3,639,214 to about 63,000,000, or about sixteenfold. During the same period the Baptists increased from 65,346 to 8,717,960, or more than fifty sixfold. Then other antipedobaptists and immersionist parties were considerably larger. Thus it appears that from 1790 to 1890, Baptists have increased nearly four times as fast as the population. It must also be borne in mind that Baptists have gained far less from immigration than almost any other of the larger denominations. Roman Catholics, Lutherans, Reformed, Presbyterians and Episcopalians have profited largely by the great influx of population from Ireland, Germany, England, Scotland, Italy, and the Scandinavian and Slavonic countries of Europe. Baptist immigration has been insignificant in comparison."

ABSOLUTELY PURE

No Man Wanted Passed Forty.

We read in our morning paper of June 9th an application by a church for a pastor, accompanied by the statement that no man is wanted passed forty.

How many eminent physicians or lawyers can you find that are passed forty?

How many great statesmen—the Bismarcks and Gladstones?

Suppose D. L. Moody had retired at forty, or Rev. Dr. Storrs of Brooklyn, or hundreds of the most eminent divines of both Europe and America?

Our own life work for dumb animals and humane education did not begin until passed forty.

We are now seventy-two, without a thought of stopping, and if our physician is right, we have a fair chance of ten years more of good service before the curfew bell tolls the hour for retiring.

No man passed forty?

What sort of a church is it that wants no man passed forty?

It is all very well for the boys and girls to keep pushing, but this world would be in a sad condition to-day without the men and women who are passed forty.—George T. Angell, in Our Dumb Animals.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The threatening gathering of the Negroes at Winston amounted to nothing. No doubt there would have been grave results, if the militia had not been in reach. One of the leaders of the Negroes has been sent to the roads for six months, and penalties will be imposed on many others by a special court ordered by the Governor.——Explorations by Prof. Holmes for phosphate near Wilmington have been unexpectedly fruitful; a deposit in strata three feet thick has been found near the surface in twenty five acres. The tract of land covers 2 000 acres, all of which is promising.——Prof. E E Smith, colored, has been elected principal of the State Normal and Industrial School at Fayetteville.——The North Carolina railroad was last week leased to the Southern Railway for a period of ninety-nine years. The terms are as follows: The purchaser to pay stock-holders 6½ per cent. interest on their stock for six years, and 7 per cent. for ninety-three years.——The ninth annual session of the North Carolina State Farmers' Alliance began Wednesday at Cary. J. M. Mewborne presided, and 68 delegates, representing as many counties, were present. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Angier, and J. W. Denmark responded. In his speech he stated that it was the purpose of the Alliance to go into manufactures and to make Cary its manufacturing centre. President Mewborne delivered his annual address. He said the Alliance was making large gains in membership. Congressman Sibley made a big speech, and others followed.

In General.

Hon. W. D. Dabney has been elected to succeed the late Dr. John B. Minor at the head of the University of Virginia department of law.——It is now said that Spain must shortly land 100,000 soldiers in Cuba or give up the Island.——Rev. W. T. Richardson, D. D., senior editor of the Central Presbyterian, died at his home in Richmond last week.——The Whiskey Trust has been sold, and, it is said, will be reorganized.——A dicision to the effect that Senator Ransom's appointment as minister to Mexico was unconstitutional has been handed down. He will most probably be re-appointed.——Mr. Denby, representative of the United States, has obtained promises from the Chinese government that it will redress the wrong done the missionaries and take greater precautions in future.——A free coinage conference of leaders was held at Washington last week. A big rally occurred at Concord where Senators Butler (N. C.) and Tillman (S. C.) made speeches to 8,000 or more people. A call for Silver State Convention is being issued.

Southern Business College.

The Southern Business College at Asheville, N. C., the mountain city, is now one of the well established schools of which our state can well be proud. There is now no more need for our young men to go to other States for a business education than for a University or a College education. It is fast becoming the Poughkeepsie of the New South, has already had students from 15 states and its graduates are filling responsible positions.

Notes from Caldwell County Meetings.

Dear Recorder:—The fourth Sunday in July we closed a meeting of nine days with North Catawba church. Three professed faith in Christ and four were approved for baptism, and will be baptized at next meeting.

Bro. J. S. Gwaltney, who has moved into that section and whose membership is in that church, assisted us in the meeting. Bro. C. M. Murchison was with us three days. These brethren did good work in the meeting, and it was pleasant to be with them. Bro. E. A. Poe preached once.

The sickness, death and burial of our good brother, Elijah Bradshaw, father of Bro. W. R. Bradshaw of Moravian Falls, made against the attendance, and, to some extent, the interest of the meeting. He was taken seriously ill just at the beginning of the meeting, and died Thursday, and was buried on Friday. He was about fifty-five years of age, was a deacon in North Catawba church, and lived a pure and blameless life. We will miss him much. He was regular in his attendance and devoted to the interest of his church.

Bro. W. R. Bradshaw was to have helped us in the meeting, but was prevented by the illness of his father.

Monday, 5th inst., we closed a good meeting with Lower Creek church. The meeting began on the fourth Sunday in July. Bro. H. C. Marley of Lenoir preached the first sermon in the absence of the pastor. Bro. G. H. Church of Statesville came on Monday and remained to the close, doing all the preaching, and preaching nothing but the pure Word of God, giving book, chapter and verse, and urging an immediate acceptance of Christ as the only Saviour and the only way of salvation. He is truly a Bible preacher and an earnest, untiring worker. It was pleasant to have him with us. This was the fourth meeting he has conducted at this church during his ministry, and a good per cent. of the present membership has been led to Christ under his preaching, and I am glad to say most of them are holding out well. It was a real pleasure to me to have Bro. Church with me. Then for a short while he went to school to me, and later I assisted in his ordination, and I have all the while been greatly interested for his success as a servant of our common Saviour. Large crowds attended all the services, and some twenty-five persons professed faith in Christ. Some were baptized, and since the meeting closed four more have been received for baptism, making thirteen in all, and others are expected to unite with the church soon.

The Lord willing, Bro. Church will assist us in a meeting during the fall months at Lenoir. We have recently had seven additions by letter to the Lenoir church. We need a good revival of religion there very much.

This week Bro. J. F. Davis of Watauga county is assisting Pastor Nelson in a meeting with Piny Grove church.

Next week Pastor Marley hopes to have a good meeting with his church at Blair's Fork.

Bro. W. R. Beach has been elected Principal of King's Creek Academy, and his school opened last week with about fifty.

Cedar Rock Academy & Business Institute.

CEDAR ROCK, N. C.,

W. A. SMITH, B. A., Principal.

This school is situated in a fine farming section in Franklin county, 11 miles east of Louisburg. The surrounding community is densely settled by a cultured, hospitable and progressive people. The moral and religious influences are excellent. The good water and wholesome air makes it a healthful locality, almost entirely free from malaria.

We prepare for college or for practical business life, and make a specialty of preparing young men and young ladies for teachers in the academies and public schools. The Commercial and Music Departments also offer superior advantages. The music department is well supplied with the very best instruments, and is in charge of an experienced and thoroughly competent teacher. Young ladies wishing to make a specialty of music are offered excellent advantages, since we have a sufficient supply of instruments to give all the practice desired.

For the School of Art a special teacher has already been employed whose whole attention will be given to that department.

Board, including furnished rooms, within a short distance from the academy, can be had at $7.00 per month. Girls, unless otherwise requested, are required to board with the Principal. Young men and young ladies are not allowed to board at same boarding house under any circumstances. We take a special oversight of the girls committed to our charge. Mrs. Smith (wife of the Principal) endeavors in every way possible to see after their interest.

Tuition rates are very low, ranging from $1 to $7.50 per month. The session of 1895-'6 opens Aug. 19th. For further information write the Principal for catalog. W. A. SMITH.

Parents and guardians having girls to educate will do well to consider the following facts:—

Only experienced teachers of broad culture and special training for their particular work are employed.

Thorough work is required of pupils, and diplomas are conferred only after critical examinations. The administration believes that education should be practical, and that girls should be trained not to feel above their homes.

The discipline is mild and parental. Pupils are treated as daughters.

The health of the Institute is unsurpassed.

Terribly Afflicted.

From the Herald, Cayuga, Ind.

A headache is a common ailment with everybody, but very few people are tortured with that terrible affliction—sick headache or bilious headache. No one who has not suffered this agonizing malady can form any just conception of the almost unendurable pain in the head, extreme nausea of the stomach and utter exhaustion af the body that usually accompanies each attack. Mrs. John W. Middlebrook, of Hilisdale, Ind., was so afflicted for years and her husband told a reporter the following remarkable story:

"My wife suffered terribly four or five years with her head and was in constant agony day and night. Nothing brought relief. Finally a lady friend in Montezuma recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I bought a box and my wife began taking the pills. She had not taken the first box until she was better and those awful pains in her head were less severe. By the time the first box was entirely gone she felt greatly relieved and I purchased the second box. Her improvement continued and I kept buying pills until four boxes were used. The pain in her head stopped. That was last October, 1894, and she has never suffered with her head since. My wife is about 65 years old and very feeble but these pills have greatly benefited her health in other ways.

The reporter further confirmed the story by talking to the old lady. Her face lighted up with a smile when he mentioned Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and a joyous tear sparkled in her eyes as she remarked, "That pain is all gone."

That there is virtue in these pills is evident from the fact that Charles Kirtz, the Montezuma druggist, reports that he sells more of them than any pill in the house.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are considered an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc., They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

MARRIED.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, God in his infinite love and mercy has deemed it proper and wise to remove from our midst Bro. Jas. W. Ashely; therefore be it Resolved 1. That as a church we bow to the will of our Father who art in Heaven.

2 That in the deceased Antioch church had a faithful and conservative member.

3. That as a church we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved, and remember them at the throne of grace.

4. That we spread a copy of these resolutions on our church-book, that we send a copy to the Person County Courier and BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

WHEREAS, During the session of the Spurgeon Memorial Baptist church of Norfolk, Va., in regular conference assembled on the evening of July 8th, 1895, the church has received the sad intelligence that on the 7th inst. our dear sister Florence S. Watson, wife of our beloved pastor, W. F. Watson, fell asleep in Jesus; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we do deeply sympathize with our dear brother and his children in their sad bereavement, and that we pray our God to strengthen and comfort them as he alone can.

2. That we desire to bear our loving testimony to the gentle, patient, high and noble Christian character of our dear sister, and to express our sense of the deep loss sustained by the church in her death.

3. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the church, and be published in the Religious Herald, the Atlantic Baptist BIBLICAL RECORDER, and that the clerk be requested to forward at once a copy to our pastor.

4. That as a mark of respect to our dear sister's memory, and of sympathy with our pastor and his children, we omit the regular course of business and immediately adjou n.

A union meeting of the Christian people of Durham was held at the First Baptist church the 4th inst. Interesting topics pertaining to evangelizing the town was discussed.

Dear Friends:—You are aware how for several years we have been trying to inform our young people of the great work of missions, and to train them to take part in the advancement of the Master's kingdom. While we teach them to sing the praises of God, and pray to him, and study his word, we feel that we should also teach them to give for his glory, and to work for the advancement of his kingdom. To this end the Southern Baptist Convention has thought it well to have one day set apart when we shall especially consider in our Sabbath schools, the work of Missions. Of course where this day does not suit any schools, any other of their appointment will do just as well. A day is suggested in order to have some uniformity in the work, and that we may act in concert. God has greatly blessed our missions during the past year. And we feel that we ought to return thanks to him as well as pray to him for his continued blessings. Our Sunday-school Board will perform the work of communicating with you, and furnishing you with circulars giving information, which you can use as you think best. We hope none of you will feel that you are tied down to the printed circulars which are sent out; as live progressive officers and teachers you will change these to suit the conditions of your various schools. Still you will find these excellent helps to you.

We hope all will unite in an earnest effort to impress upon the young hearts, that God has sent his gospel to a world of sin to save the lost who believe on him, and that he has sent us who love him to give this message to the lost. Let us try to take hold of this work so that this year will be the most glorious that we have ever seen in an earnest effort for the extension of the Master's kingdom. Whatever you need in the way of circulars, with information, programs, &c, address Baptist Sunday-school Board. Nashville, Tenn. Yours fraternally,

R. J. WILLINGHAM.

In pursuance of the instructions given by the Convention, the Sunday-school Board is moving forward in the matter of furnishing literature for our young people, whether organized into Societies, or in classes in the Sunday-school. The Young People's Leader is to be made a weekly, and published at seventy-five cents a year. It is going to be the effort of the Board to make it so instructive, and at the same time entertaining, that to be wanted in Young People's Societies, Sunday-schools, and homes, it needs only to be seen. It will be bright, sprightly, yet devotional in tone and instructive in content. It will not in any case be a newspaper, so will not trench at all upon the sphere of the denominational weeklies. See advertisement in this issue.

Rev. S. J. Becker Ordained.

The church at Jerusalem having called together a presbytery, the ordination of Bro. S. J. Becker to the gospel ministry took place here July 29th, 1895. The presbytery consisted of brethren J. M. Bennett, J. N. Stallings and J. F. Redwine.

Bro. Bennett preached the ordination sermon, and Rev. Dr. J. N. Stallings delivered the charge.

Bro. Becker gave very satisfactory proofs in the examination of his fitness for the work. J. H. RICH, Sec. Ex. Com.

Education.

A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring:
There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again.
Fir'd at first sight with what the muse imparts,
In fearless youth we tempt the heights of arts,
While from the bounded level of our mind
Short views we take, nor see the lengths behind:
But more advanced, behold the strange surprise
New distant scenes of endless science rise!
So pleased at first the towering Alps we try,
Mount o'er the vales, and seem to tread the sky;
Th' eternal snows appear already past,
And the first clouds and mountains seem the last,
But those attained, we tremble to survey
The growing labors of the lengthen'd day;
The increasing prospect tires our wandering eyes,
Hills o'er hills, and Alps on Alps arise!
—Alexander Pope.

An Object Lesson in Missions.

She was sitting before the gate one quiet Sunday morning in autumn. Fresh fuel had just been put on the fire, so much indeed, that except for a little glow in the bottom of the grate, the fire seemed entirely out. The subject of the morning lesson was "Missions."

"What is the use of it all?" she asked of her mother, who was an ardent worker. "You go to the meetings regularly. There may be a dozen of the members present, but more probably there will be two or three. You have your 'teas' every quarter, and because they are pleasant and social you have fifty or sixty present; but how much good does it do the heathen? You pay your dues every year, and help pack boxes and boxes; but it is only a dewdrop, compared with the floods necessary. I tell you it is just like that fire—there is too much fuel for the live coals."

The mother smiled gently as she buttoned her neat glove.

"All we have to do is to see that our coals are alive," she answered.

She went out the door and down the street toward the little brick church whose bell was sweetly calling.

The girl still brooded over the fire. The soft, gray smoke began to quiver up in thin little waves, dying down many times, but each time starting up more vigorously. The coals glowed brighter underneath. Presently the smoke poured up in a thick cloud, and then burst into flame. The mass of fuel was soon glowing in the flames, each particle giving of its life to vivify that which was not yet quickened.

"There is my missionary sermon," said the girl, pointing to the glowing mass, as her mother came in at the moment.

And the mother knew the morning had brought to her daughter her needed lesson. —Emily D. McBride.

A Woman's Choice of Profession

It is hard, very hard under any circumstances, for a woman to choose a profession in life, for the good reason that she has to decide between two bundles of hay, one on either side of her. If she elects to give up her inherited profession of domesticity for another of choice, it would seem that she should be more than sure of her peculiar fitness for public life. And yet, as the only possible school for such equipment lies in public work, there is ample reason for perplexity.

If we fail we fail, is not a motto for women. Though written for a woman's lips, they are manly words. While manhood takes failure with comparative stolidity, and tries again on another tack, womanhood is crushed and humiliated. Therefore it is best that she should choose her world's work wisely.

In the selection of a profession, there are of course many questions of fitness for a woman to consider, but there is one universal test which applies equally to all the professions she can enter into, though it seems to be considered least of all in the weighing of pros and cons. The first question a woman should ask herself when she thinks of leaving her four walls in body or on paper or canvas is this, "Am I fitted for struggle?"

If her answer be only weakness, let her stay where she is so long as those walls can possibly continue to shelter her. For no matter how deep her calling for public or semi-public life, the work she thinks of doing is, after all, the world's work, and she must take the world's buffets in its accomplishment.

Repeatedly gifted women who have seemed divinely called to one or another profession have failed, and failed utterly and lamentably, simply because they could not grasp the cold fact that the distinct profession was not all they had to learn.

Lack of power to meet the world—to struggle—is at the root of more failures than is unfitness for the specific work undertaken. How to prepare a bandage is one thing; the applying it quite another, but equally necessary parts of a nurse's training. —Harper's Bazar.

Our Bug-Catchers.

We have a garden around our house where we try to raise fruits, and flowers, and peas, and beans, and lettuce, and cucumbers, and such like. But we have one trouble: there are lots of little bugs and worms that seem to like our provisions as well as we do, and that are always on hand to take their portion. And in fact they sometimes seem to want to take the whole.

Well, what is to be done in such a case? I will tell you what to do. We have several little bug catchers, curious creatures,—in color and shape they look almost like a lump of earth, and one would hardly know them from the clods among which they travel about. The children see them about the fields or highways, and wherever they find one they speedily pick him up and invite him to make his home in our garden; and so they have their dwellings in holes and corners about the yard.

The little fellows have a queer way of catchings bugs. They have a long, sticky tongue, though where they keep it is a mystery, as it seems to be longer than its owner. Perhaps they take a reef in it, as the sailors say, and stow it away. But when one of them gets near a little bug he sits and looks at him and winks in a kind of solemn way, till at once his mouth opens, and quick as a flash the tongue goes out and in again, and the bug is among the missing! And then our little friend sits winking and blinking and waiting for another bug to come that way.

He is said to have an ear for music, and to do some singing in the warm spring evenings, but we do not count on this; nor do we brag much about his good looks. His skin is not smooth, nor his complexion fair; but for real usefulness he is about the best kind of live stock we have on our farm; and if people want to keep their gardens free from bugs the best thing they can do is to get on friendly terms with the little toads. —Selected.

What the South Can Do.

It is evident that the South has at hand, and therefore cheap, all the raw materials entering into manufactures; that its labor and cost of living are cheaper than at the North; that it can, in consequence, manufacture goods of all kinds at less cost than the North or the West; that it can not only supply the home demand, but also export goods with profit; that in the finer lines of manufactures it is extending its operations with success; and that, to compete with it, wages in the North must be reduced. With all these advantages on its side, the fault will be with the South if it fails to reach out its hands and take what nature has so kindly offered.—Frederic G. Mather, in North American Review.

"Oh, these learned men say it goes round the sun, and that the sun holds it up by virtue of attraction," was replied.

The old lady lowered her specs, and by way of climax, responded: "Waal, if these high larnt men says the sun holds up the airth, I should like to know what holds the earth up when the sun goes down."

A person may need nine hours' sleep out of the twenty-four. Indeed, he is a wise man if, feeling that he requires them, he is sensible enough to take them. Goethe, when performing his great literary feats, took nine hours' sleep. A full-grown adult, in a healthy condition, will seldom require more than eight. If, however, he discovers that he is not sufficiently refreshed by eight hours, he should take more. It is a pretty safe rule to sleep as long as you are sleepy. "There are people," says a writer, "who are wise enough to eat when they are hungry, but who have never attained that higher reach of wisdom to sleep when they are sleepy."

It is said that the Moslems believe in the existence of "seven great hot hells," bearing the names of Jahannam, Latha, Hutamah, Sa'ir, Sakar, Jehim and al-Kariah. The first is to be the endless abode of the Dahriyah, a sect which denies the creation; the second is for Manichees and Arabs; the third for Brahmans; the fourth for Jews; the fifth for Christians, and the sixth for the Magians. The seventh, the "great, great, hot, hot hell," is reserved for liars and hypocrites. The last is packed to suffocation.—American.

It is the simplest truth that tariff, silver, income tax, or any other form of national taxation, currency or revenue, is of far less practical importance to the farmer than the condition of his roads. It is a conservative estimate that places the loss to the farming community at $200,000,000 a year from bad roads. And this is considerably more than the tariff receipts are likely to be for the current year —Chicago Inter-Ocean.

AND SOON RECOVERS STRENGTH.

"A year ago, my partner died, and the whole burden and responsibility of a large grocery business fell upon me. The increased care and hard work so taxed my strength that I became all run down, had no appetite, was weak, nervous, and endured all the torments which headache, indigestion, and total loss of energy could inflict. The medicine recommended me did no more good than so much water. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being favorably brought to my attention, I tried it, and, in a short time, began to feel better. I continued to take this medicine for two months, at the end of which time I felt like a new man. My appetite, energy, and strength returned, and all traces of headache and nervousness disappeared. I am convinced that if I had not taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I should be totally unable to attend to business."—WM. H. BROWN, 33 Gorham St., Lowell, Mass.

THE lease of the North Carolina Railroad for a period of ninety-nine years to the Southern Railway has not met with the approval of the people of the State, whose interests the Board of Directors and the Governor are expected to have solely at heart. The politicians have been questioning if the lease is not bad politics. We have nothing to do with that; but we can assure them that if it is bad business it is worse politics, and it requires no financier to perceive that the lease, the terms of it and the manner of reaching them, were exceedingly unbusiness-like.

In the first place the old lease had six years more to run. In this time the opinion of the citizens of the State could have been obtained (and it will yet). Not only this, it was unfair to lease the Road without giving other roads opportunity to bid—unfair to other roads, unjust to the people whose interests the directors were appointed to guard. Suppose, for instance, one of those directors owned property in a growing town in North Carolina, the property paying 6% per cent. on the money invested in it and bound to pay this much six more years. Would that director put aside the possibilities of improvement in the six years, put aside the probability of new bidders in the six years, and lease the property for ninety nine years at an advance of one-half of one per cent.? Would he put aside all hopes of improvement of the value of the property in ninety-nine years, for the sake of a paltry advance of one half of one per cent?

North Carolina is growing. Property is increasing in value. The North Carolina Railroad will grow and increase in value, but so far as you and I and the others who really own the Road are concerned, it will hereafter be the same forever, thanks to the foresight of our public guardians.

In 1871 when North Carolina Railroad stock was sold at $40 on the hundred, it was leased for a period of thirty years at a rental of 6% per cent. on the capital stock of $4,000 000, or $260,000 a year; in 1895, six years before the expiration of the 1871 lease, the stock now being at $105 on the hundred (having increased more than two hundred per cent. in twenty-four years), the same property is leased for ninety-nine years at the advance of a paltry half of one per cent., or $280,000 a year.

Further, the seven per cent is to be paid on the capital stock of $4,000,000 The actual cost of construction and equipment of the Road is $4,975,262 33 (The original capital stock of the Road was $3 000,000; but this has been increased to $4 000,000) By the contract made by the directors, only the rental is to be paid on the $4,000,000, and thus property to the value of $975,262 33 is given to the Southern Railway for ninety-nine years—absolutely free. Of course, the lessees of the Road will pay taxes and keep the property in order.

There is not an advantage to the State, there is absolutely no reasonable ground for the action of the directors, the State's servants and guardians, the Southern Railway's dupes!

When matters stand thus—and the RECORDER has taken time to investigate before speaking—the people have to infer one of two things, namely, that the directors were influenced or fooled. For one, we hope the matter will be carried into the courts!

THE North Carolina Railroad runs from Goldsboro to Charlotte by way of Raleigh, Durham, Greensboro and Salisbury. It was constructed by the State during the period between 1849 (when it was chartered) and 1856 (when it began operations). Three-fourths of the stock is owned by the State, and one fourth privately. The fact that the private stockholders desired to make the lease has been used as an argument that the State should be satisfied. It is only natural that the private stockholders are glad to get a certainty of income. According to the charter of the Road, they could not hope to get controlling interest in it. They had to accept any policy the State's directors elect to pursue. And, moreover, there is no denying that seven per cent. on money invested in property, especially railroad property, is good for these times. Still no one of the private stockholders would have sold his interest, if he owned controlling stock, at such a rate for ninety-nine years; a child would not have done this six years ahead of time without giving other bidders a chance. Any one who will trace the route of the Road will perceive that it reaches the most promising manufacturing section of the State, a section just at this time more promising than any section of country in the South.

INCONSISTENCIES are too common to attract attention; but occasionally one is startlingly dazzling. A newspaper which took the leading stand against the lease of the North Carolina Railroad, without reservation declaring that it was "a crime of the century," a "monstrous transaction," a "blunder without excuse," a "crime without palliation," came out after the lease was consummated, and praised in highest terms the man to whom it had given credit for getting the lease. That is an ideal for the rising generation, isn't it? A great man he, a man "whose genius and great ability challenges admiration," a man whose "masterly ability the people cannot help admiring," a man "worth a fortune to a railroad company."

We do not say that any one man secured the lease, but our contemporary does say so. We do not denounce any man, but we do protest against laying such grave charges against a man and then hold him up for the admiration and congratulations of honest people.

THE outbreaks of the Chinese against the missionaries have afforded an excellent opportunity for people who never give a cent for missions to decry missionary efforts and declare that they will never give another cent of theirs to such objects. But missions have gone on all these years without them, and they will hardly be missed now.

There is another class that attack the character and the motives of missionaries. We noticed several unwarranted libels in a daily paper, coming from a ship's officer. A meaner thing than this we cannot imagine. The Chinese butcheries are not a circumstance. How much more base it is to try to destroy the character of men and women thousands of miles away and utterly defenceless, since the accusations are made general instead of particular. Of course such efforts cannot succeed. The fact of one's going to China on such approval at home as will secure his support is not only a high testimony to his character, but a proclamation of his determination to give his life that others may live eternally.

One day China will be Christianized, one day the anti-missionaries and the unchristians who having the gospel heed it not, and the malcontents who feed on criticism, will be put to shame.

THE longer we live, the more necessary it appears to us that the people have confidence in the press. Beyond all shadow of a doubt, the press is the safeguard of the people. In the same ratio does the necessity for a cool-headed and honest press appear. To follow a false leader, to have a false friend, to have a pretended safeguard, is worse than to have none at all. A newspaper is nothing, if it has not the confidence of its readers, it is nothing to itself (unless it be money), nothing to its readers, nothing to the common good. We advise every man who can establish any reasonable ground for suspecting the editor of a paper he takes to be a liar or to be capable of deceiving the people, concealing that which ought to be told, or misrepresenting facts with a motive, or for an inducement or because of prejudice, to quit reading the paper then and there. No such paper has room in a home, nor on earth.

THE people of the United States have any number of secret societies supported by them, but the country is singularly free from secret political orders, although we cannot say it is entirely free. China is said to be honeycombed with political secret societies of the rankest kind. The massacre of missionaries was brought about by a society of Vegetarians (so named because they do not eat meat; it is said that they do not use opium, either), who are leagued against the rulers of the empire. They were an insignificant sect until the Japanese invasion; but since then it has grown rapidly, and now has a dangerous hold on several provinces, in which not infrequently they have overthrown the law and released their arrested friends. They are willing to do anything to destroy the present dynasty. They were glad of the Japanese victory and made good use of it. What such a band of anarchists (about 12,000) will do in a country so poorly governed as China, we will have to wait and see; but it is not beyond possibility that, working up the great discontented masses, they may bring on internal war.

The Baptists Have Never Persecuted.

BY REV. CHAS. A. G. THOMAS.

Once in my life I heard a Baptist publicly declare that the reason Baptists have never persecuted is because they have never been in a position to do so. Such a statement has been made frequently by Pedobaptists; but I had never before heard it from the lips of a prominent Baptist. It may be wise politically for a Baptist to make such a statement, but it is not true religiously or historically. Such a statement is reckless in the extreme and out of harmony with the history of our denomination in all the ages.

The statement is not true when considered from the doctrinal standpoint. Just as soon as a man lifts the hand of religious persecution, he ceases to be a Baptist. The principle of religious liberty is inseparably and indissolubly connected with the name Baptist as with no other. In fact, no denomination or individual who accepts infant baptism as a religious teaching or practice can be a true advocate of liberty of conscience. True, all denominations have made explicit declarations with reference to this principle, but the practice of infant baptism has placed the brand of insincerity upon their declarations. Baptist declarations and practice have always agreed in this matter. Among the distinctive principles of our denomination there is not one which in the slightest degree infringes upon the doctrine of religious liberty. The principle is so interwoven with our system that the whole structure falls if it is denied.

The statement is not true when considered from an historical standpoint. I have never read of one single instance in Baptist history in which they have been persecutors. I have before me Armitage, Vedder, Pendleton, Jones, Lorimer, Smith, Bitting and others, but not an instance is given by any of them. The motto written across our history is ever persecuted, never persecuting Baptists were the first to advocate this principle, and they have never receded from the advanced position taken by their forefathers.

Baptists have had opportunities to exercise the sceptre of power, yet they have stood by their principles in every instance. True, some few individual Baptists may have forgotten the principle for a short while and accepted State aid, but the instances have been rare and the denomination at large has protested, and the errors were afterward corrected.

Baptists have had the opportunity to receive, with other denominations, aid for Indian schools from the government, but have refused. Congressman Linton said in Congress two years ago, "The Baptist denomination has never accepted, but always refused this public money for their missionary work." He seems to be better informed on this question than some of our Southern brethren. Rhode Island was founded by Baptists. They had the opportunity to dictate terms, but they refused to provide any laws save those consistent with this principle. Judge Story says of their code, "We read for the first time since Christianity ascended the throne of the Cæsars, the declaration that conscience should be free, and men should not be punished for worshiping God in the way they were persuaded he requires."

When in Virginia a compromise was offered, so that each taxpayer might say to which denomination his taxes should be applied, the Baptists protested and succeeded in defeated the issue.

In Georgia in 1785 when a similar law was enacted, the Baptists protested and worked against it until that was repealed.

In Holland the king offered State patronage to the Baptists, but they refused. It has been true through the ages.

When the Baptists established Brown University, they could have shown a spirit of intolerance, but they made no religious tests, making large provisions for Pedobaptists as well as Baptists among its "fellows" and trustees. Well did Dr. Francis Wayland say of us, "When they have obtained the power to persecute in turn, they used that power only to return good for evil, and by granting to their persecutors every right which they claimed for themselves. When any sect can lay claim to higher or more honorable distinction, we will bow before them and cheerfully yield them Christian precedence." The Baptists stand on and stand by that great doctrine of "soul liberty." For doing so they have worn with their Master the robes of reproach, and the crown of thorns has pierced their heads. But their march is a march of triumph. In that great day of the Lord they shall wear the robes of royalty and crowns of glory.

Matters in Kentucky.

The farmers in Kentucky are in good spirits, for they have good crops and good prices. Hence we are expecting a hopeful time at the Associations which begin this month. A Kentucky Associational meeting is a royal occasion. There are great crowds, the best of dinners served on the ground, and good feeling everywhere. In large sections of Kentucky the Baptists have it all their own way. There is hope for the future when this great host becomes better trained and render more united and intelligent service. Like the Baptists of the Southern Baptist Convention, we have not yet awakened to our possibilities and our power.

The church of New Salem, which has been under my care for five years, has just enjoyed a gracious revival which lasted two weeks. There were thirty one additions, twenty-one by baptism. Dr. Pickard of Louisville was with us one week of the time, and his work was greatly enjoyed. The church has now three hundred members, and is in fine condition.

THE SEMINARY.

Dr. Whitsitt has been kept busy answering letters of inquiry from young ministers about coming to the Seminary this fall. So many letters were never received before. We hope it means the largest attendance we have ever had. I hear of quite a number of bright men from North Carolina who are coming. You will never be sorry, my dear brother, that you came. I always feel much constraint in trying to persuade young ministers to come and study with us. For any just statement of the results of such a course of study sounds only bewildering and seems overdrawn. But it is not putting it too strongly to say that the Bible is made new to you, or, rather, for the first time, really become yours. You own a copy of the Bible, but you do not possess the Bible till you know it, till you know its history and its teachings.

We Southern Baptists have been slow in taking hold of the Seminary's work, but there is every indication now that the Seminary is deeply rooted in the hearts of our people. We are a conservative people and do not wish our preachers taught anything that will subvert their faith in the Bible as God's word, while we are anxious to receive all new light that is really light and not darkness. In our Seminary, Southern Baptists have an institution pledged to maintain and teach the Bible as the sole and sufficient authority for Baptists.

The chief concern before us now is to stir up the preachers to the importance of such preparation. If it is worth while for a physician to pursue special studies for his chosen work, surely it is none the less important that the man who is to spend his life explaining the Scriptures should know these Scriptures. The better your general education, the better prepared you are for such a course of study. The better endowed you are by nature and by grace, the more you will be able to get out of it. The supreme question with you is, not whether you will be able without the Seminary course to do as well as others, but whether you will be able, without the Seminary study, to do the most and the best that is in you. For it is unworthy of you to render unto Christ anything less than your highest service. If you are troubled about your duty in this matter, write to some of us about it. Write to Dr. W. H. Whitsitt, Louisville, Ky., for catalogs. If you need help to pay your board, write to Dr. E. C. Dargan, Louisville, Ky.

Make a sacrifice to give yourself an opportunity to get a deeper, truer hold upon the Bible.

North Carolina at Appomattox.

BY HON. WALTER CLARK.

From the 95th volume of the official "Rebellion Records," recently published, I take the following synopsis of the North Carolina commands in the "Appomattox parole lists," showing the North Carolina brigades at the surrender with the commanding officer and strength of each.

North Carolina had there paroled one Major-General, Bryan Grimes, and six Brigadiers, i. e., W. R. Cox, Matthew W. Ransom, John R. Cooke, Wm. MacRae, W. P. Roberts and J. H. Lane.

1. Cox's,	Brig.-Gen. W. R. Cox,	572
2. Grimes',	Col. D. G. Cowand,	580
3. Johnston's,	Col. J. W. Lea,	463
4. Lewis',	Capt. John Beard,	447
5. Cooke's,	Brig.-Gen. J. R. Cooke,	560
6. MacRae's,	Brig.-Gen. Wm. MacRae,	442
7. Lane's,	Brig.-Gen. J. H. Lane,	570
8. Scales',	Col. J. H. Hyman,	710
9. Ransom's,	Brig.-Gen. M. W. Ransom,	425
10. *Barringer's		98
11. *Roberts',	Brig.-Gen. W. P. Roberts,	93
Major-Gen. Grimes and staff,		18
Cummings', Miller's, Williams', Flanners' and Ramsey's Batteries,		180
Total North Carolinians paroled,		5,093

*Cavalry.

The following North Carolina Regiments were in the above Brigades at the surrender: 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 9th (1st Cavalry); 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 18th, 19th (2d Cavalry); 20th, 21st, 23d, 28d, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 30th, 33d, 34th, 44th, 35th, 37th, 38th, 41st (3d Cavalry); 43d, 44th, 45th, 46th, 47th, 48th, 49th, 52d, 53d, 54th, 55th, 56th, 57th, 59th (4th Cavalry); 1st North Carolina Battalion Sharpshooters, 2d North Carolina Battalion, 10th North Carolina Battalion (Cavalry), and the five Batteries of Artillery named. Total, forty-two Regiments and one Battalion Infantry, five Regiments and one Battalion Cavalry, and five Batteries of Artillery.

That all these should have numbered only 5,000 rank and file at the surrender shows the wear and tear North Carolina troops had sustained. First and last by the muster rolls, these commands had contained over 100,000 men.

The official "parole list" settles that the rank of Gen. John B. Gordon was only that of Major-General and not Lieutenant General as has been claimed, for he could not have been promoted after the surrender. Major Gen. R. F. Hoke of North Carolina, therefore, ranked him, and next to Lieutenant Generals Longstreet and S. D. Lee, is the ranking Confederate General now living.

The number of Confederates surrendered has been often stated as 9,000. The number of muskets, exclusive of officers, wounded, cavalry, artillery, medical, commissariat, ordnance, &c., may have approximated that, but the parole lists show conclusively that at the supreme moment, 28,231 Confederates still abided by the colors and surrendered with Lee. In immediate front of them was Grant with 180,000 men and 100,000 more in calling distance.

The Southern Biblical Assembly.

BY REV. THOS. HUME, D. D.

The Southern Biblical Assembly was really a very useful institution and was enjoyed by a large company of devout and intelligent people. It was held in Asheville, beautiful for situation, with its pure sweet air full of inspiration for the worker and student, and its church life offering every advantage for meetings, services, lectures. It occupied more than four weeks and was conducted by professors of theological seminaries and university and college men, pastors and expert laymen. Courses in the Old Testament history and prophetic literature, discussions of moral difficulties under the old dispensation, the position of women amongst the Hebrews, mooted questions suggested by the critical investigation of our day, the great Maccabean period, the life of our Lord, the development of his teachings in Acts and Epistles, all these and other subjects came under careful review by such men as Professors White of Washington and Lee, Alexander of Vanderbilt, Noah K. Davis of the University of Virginia, and E. H. Harris, newly elect to the Chair of Old Testament Introduction and Polemics in our Southern Seminary.

I heard several of the lessons of these high teachers and was profoundly impressed by their broad and thorough method and their devout spirit. Crowds attended while I was there. Other Baptists besides Davis and Harris were invited to take part in the conferences and to preach and lecture. Drs. Turpin, Clopton, M. B. Wharton, Chas. E. Taylor and Hume did special work by appointment. I do not mention all our people who were there. I remember well that Bro. W. B. Broughton rendered important service in the Sunday school department to which the attention of skilled workmen was given every day.

Child-culture was a feature of one of the sections of the Assembly. At night lectures on Oriental manners and customs, on Bible characters, on the literature connected with the great Book, instructed and entertained large audiences. Peter Mamrew from Jerusalem was very effective with his costumes, tents, pictures, and his graphic style.

This work is directed by the American Society for Religious Education, with Gen. John Eaton, late U. S. Commissioner of Education, as its President, and Rev. Dr. J. E. Gilbert, author of useful works on Bible-teaching, as Secretary. Dr. Gilbert is full of spiritual life, an excellent administrator, and an interesting lecturer and teacher. Our friends would do well to communicate with him. A small fee for membership provides "the sinews of war" with whatever a town like Asheville may contribute in money and hospitality. I have reason to speak warmly of its generous treatment of its guests. Lawyers Murphy and Tucker and Craige, a trio destined to still greater distinction in their noble profession, the first my special host, knowing perfectly how, with his excellent wife, to make a home-place for the stranger: these, and Bro. J. T. Betts of the French Broad church, whose active spirit helped every one, and Bro. Lemmond of the First church, well represented the beautiful town. Asheville will have the Assembly again next year. Atlanta, we think, will have it reproduced in its best features, with improved plans and large opportunities, during the great Exposition to be held there this fall. It will be well worth attending. We rejoice that the Inspired Word is illustrated on every side and its life and literature brought home to hundreds who could not be so well reached, if this happy thought had not been put into execution.

The Real Good.

"What is the real good?" I asked in a musing mood.
"Order," said the court;
"Knowledge," said the school;
"Truth," said the wise man;
"Pleasure," said the fool;
"Love," said the maiden;
"Beauty," said the page;
"Freedom," said the dreamer;
"Home," said the sage;
"Fame," said the soldier;
"Equity," said the seer.
Spake my heart full sadly,
"The answer is not here."
Then within my bosom
Softly this I heard:
"Each heart holds the secret,
'Kindness' is the word."

The right conception of duty toward God defeats also the proper relation to our fellowmen.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

EVERY church ought to try to increase its pledge for State Missions every year. There is room for a much larger work than the income of the Board now makes possible. It seems to us that a live church will not be content to pledge "same as last year;" for if churches are for anything they are for growth in strength and for spreading the gospel.

PASTORS should help mothers and fathers in "packing off" their boys and girls to school. An active pastor will see to it that the young man or woman carries a church letter to school, and he will also write to the pastor at the school. Nothing in life is so important as beginning right at school. Brethren, look after this matter this week.

BRO. LIVINGSTON JOHNSTON writes candidly but kindly of the Chautauqua. His remarks are pertinent, the good things he says are deserved and the criticisms wise.

We have yet to meet the man who, having seen the Chautauqua in session, thinks it is not a good institution—one which will do good and keep on doing good.

As our brother suggests, we must strive to make the Chautauqua the common property of the denomination by getting more churches to take a more active part in it. This can be more easily accomplished by having the meeting when there is no Association in session, so that the enterprises of our work may be fully represented.

The speaking of women in the meeting will destroy nine tenths of the influence of the Chautauqua. We know women make good teachers in Sunday schools, and that is very well; but it is a different thing to get up before an audience of two thousand, and especially under the auspices of a strictly Baptist institution; although, as for that matter, we do not approve of women speaking in any kind of mixed assembly.

But this can be remedied without loss to the work. The sisters can have hours to themselves just as they do at our other meetings.

"WE HAVE about nine hundred and ninety thousand (Baptist) girls and young women who are doing absolutely nothing for the Lord," is the statement a zealous writer makes in another column. The statement is a characteristic one—characteristic of workers full of good works, and most likely young in the work, and in position to get only a limited view of the world and the work.

To tell the truth, we do not believe there are 800,000 young Baptist women in this land. But if there are that many, we shall not impeach them and their pastors for inactivity because they do not appear in certain parts of Christian work.

Not all people who are never heard of—especially is this true of women—are inactive or undutiful.

It is not given to all of us to do certain kinds of work. The comforting visitor in the sick-room may be an awkward and out-of-place mission worker. We do not wish to discourage our mission working women, but there is no concealing the fact that women have done, ought to do, and always will do more work for the Lord in other spheres than missions. Every woman who does a kindness in his name to any human being—not particularly a Chinaman or other heathen—does something for the Lord. One who devotes herself entirely to missionary society activity may not do a tenth as much for the Lord as some other whose name is never printed in the papers, but who loves her neighbor as herself, who helps the poor, living humbly in the love of her Master.

Too often we hear that anywhere from one tenth to nine tenths of church members are unsaved; too often we hear that the churches are not doing their duty. If a brother overlooks another in undutifulness, he should not proclaim it as an evidence that all Christendom is rotten with hypocrisy, but, according to the Scriptures, go to him, go again and again, and talk with him. This done in vain, there is not yet reason to proclaim it to the world or to make it a premise from which to argue that half the church members are covetous hypocrites. The thing to do is to withdraw fellowship from him and all his like.

If it is not the duty of church members to keep the church pure, we do not know what it is. If it is not a sin for a church member to talk about his brother's faults without trying to help him out of them, we do not know what is.

A Christian who thinks that his brother is not doing as he ought to do, and, instead of going to him about the matter, goes [illegible] is very prominently in his own light.

LIGHT ON SEVERAL MATTERS.

Bro. Bailey:—In RECORDER August 7th you mention the organization of an "Associational Missionary Union" in the Central Association. You state that "they are fully up with the men now," and proceed to enumerate, with apparent approval, the numerous missionary organizations among the women. Will you please state what you consider the corresponding organizations among the men. It seems to me that the women are much in advance (?) of the men, rather than "fully up" with them. Do you not think that the church, the Association, the State Convention, the Southern Convention, belong to the women as much as to the men?

If the 'young people,' as you argue, can find work in the church without a special organization, cannot the women? If one is wrong in principle, is not the other? If organization is for development, should it not exist among the young people of both sexes rather than among the women? If it is for the promotion of missions, is not the church society enough? If women have such societies, should not the men? Then we might see reports resembling this: W. M. S., for missions, $5 00; M. M. S., $7 00; church, 75 cts. I am opposed to any organization that would tend to show the church as insufficient for its work.

O. J. PETERSON.

Enfield, N. C., Aug. 16, 1895.

It is needful to say here that space in these columns will be given for answering queries only when they are of general importance; that queries designed to draw out a "hit" upon any one will be returned unanswered; and that queries of only local significance will be cheerfully answered by mail to the best of our ability.

To take up Bro. Peterson's letter: We made the note without approving or disapproving. The fact is, while such an organization may do good, we do not see how it will do harm. So, we are entirely willing to wait and see; and if we can help it, we will.

We did not mean that the women are fully up with the men in having identical organizations; but in having reached a stage of organization which they cannot go beyond without making a decided departure. However, we could take the statement as Bro. Peterson evidently takes it; for the fact is the first missionary societies of modern times were composed of men as well as women.

The Association, the State Convention, the Southern Convention, "belong to" the churches, that is, they are the creatures and the instruments and absolutely in the control of the churches. So the question is, Does a church belong as much to the women as to the men? Yes; for both men and women belong to the church, as servants of God, one as much as the other. Without doubt the men are divinely privileged to have more influence in directing the affairs of a church than the women, as is manifest in the call of men only to the pastorate, in the ordination (since primitive times) of men only to the deaconate, and in the command that the women keep silence in the churches. There is, on the other hand, a sphere for which the women are peculiarly fitted, fully as honorable, more noble and as worthy in God's sight—that is as ministering angels. Thus in the divine economy, the great principle of division of labor is brought into play. Take, for instance, the economy of God's other divine institution, the family: the family "belongs to" the wife as much as to the husband, but each has peculiar duties.

The general organization of younger church members and the general organization of women members are two entirely different matters, and on general principles it cannot be said that what is true of one is true of the other. We argue that the sole object of generally organizing the younger church members is (as the advocates of such organization repeatedly affirm) "Culture for Service,"—an undeniably taking motto. We say that more culture and better culture and sounder and safer culture for service can be gotten in the church and in the local society than can be gotten by general meetings; we say that it cannot be reasonably shown how these meetings can add to the effectiveness for culture of the local societies; and, moreover, we contend that these general meetings are liable to alienate the younger members and to weaken their regard for the authority of the churches.

Now, the women do not organize for development, although, no doubt, they develop in their work just as any other worker, secular or religious, does. Their general meetings are not enthusiasm meetings, are not culture for service meetings; they are business meetings, plan-laying meetings, conference meetings. They are old enough in their church attachment not to be turned by every wind and notion or lead by eloquence into quagmires of enthusiasm. So the only question of principle involved in woman's organization is identical with that which is involved in the Southern Baptist Convention or the Chowan Association, while those involved in young peoples' organization are entirely different.

The Southern Baptist Convention is organized for the promotion of missions, not in any degree to take the place of the churches, but as a means for magnifying and strengthening the work of the churches. The church society is not enough, for the plain and simple reason that the average church society is not strong enough to raise twenty-five dollars a year, not strong enough to protect a missionary; and is not certainly permanent. For the same reason that a number of churches in some localities now join in together to support a missionary in China, for the same reason undeniably seventeen thousand Baptist churches in the South join in together to support eighty five missionaries in foreign fields and four hundred in the home work. For the same reason the general organization of the women's societies has been brought about. In no sense of the word do such organizations tend to show that the church is an insufficient instrument for its work, not any more than an agreement between four churches to pay a pastor one hundred dollars each a year shows that they are insufficient for the worship of God, to labor for his kingdom or to be edified concerning his will.

As to the question, "If women have such societies, should not men?" it is as unreasonable as to ask, If women wear sun-bonnets, should not the men? The fact that one person or a class of persons do a thing, is never safe ground for saying that another person or class of persons should do it. God's standard is far higher than that. A man who does a thing because somebody else has done it, has no idea of duty.

HISTORY OF THE RIOTS IN CHINA.

The hold of civilization in China was impressively put before us last week. We received a booklet of seventy five pages, from Shanghai, entitled "A History of the Szechuen Riots (May–June, 1895)," by Alfred Cunningham, well printed and altogether creditable. Only three weeks ago we heard the first of these riots. Now we have a history of them all the way from Shanghai. If a riot against the Chinese had occurred at Chicago the last of May, and a history of it had been printed, it would not have gotten to China much sooner than this book has come to us. God is bringing the heathen in contact with civilization.

The fact that this history has been written is evidence that our brethren in China look upon the riots gravely. We have also received other evidence, such as appeals from foreigners in China to rouse the people of the United States, so that the government will take a hand.

We see that a committee of American citizens resident in China has drawn up a series of charges and resolutions, and that Dr. R. T. Bryan's name is on the committee. The most serious of the charges is that the riots were officially inspired and encouraged. This makes it more necessary that our government look into the matter and see that proper steps are taken with a view to the future. The resolutions to which Bro. Bryan's name is attached, say that the fruit of years of toil and sacrifice has been swept away, and that much valuable property belonging to American citizens has been destroyed, rendering homeless twenty four adult American missionaries. Our government is respectfully appealed to; and we have no doubt but that it will take proper action.

It is clear that the riots were not directed against the missionaries, but against all foreigners. Circulars endorsed by native chiefs of police, or governors, were scattered among the Chinese like this: "Notice is hereby given that 'foreign barbarians' are hiring evil characters to kid-nap small children that they may extract oil from them by boiling them. I have a female servant named Li who has personally seen this done. I exhort you, good people, not to allow your children to go out." Here is another: "At the present time we have obtained clear proof that foreigners deceive and kid-nap small children. You soldiers and people must not be disturbed and excited. When the cases are brought before us we certainly will not be lenient with them." This last is an ingenious piece of work.

The Szechuen riots, the history of which we have before us, must not be confounded with the Kuchieng massacre, which occurred more recently. The Szechuen riots caused great loss of property and occasioned widespread alarm in Chengtu, Yachow, Suifoo, Kiating, Paoning-fu, (mostly at Chengtu), but in none of these cities was there loss of life. The massacre of the two missionaries of the Methodist Episcopal church (North) of this country and of the English church occurred at Fuh Kien in Kuchieng, on the coast, and several hundred miles away from the riots of which we have been writing. When the account of the massacre is added to that of the riots we will have one of the most terrible chapters in mission history. Blood has ever been the test of the faith and the endurance of God's people.

It is gratifying to see frequent mention in the History of services of Consul General Jernigan. He held the flag of his country high, and by means of it forced the Chinese authorities on one occasion to let him forward a telegram inquiring into the welfare of American subjects. In the meetings which were held afterwards he took leading parts.

....Rev. L. S. Foster is writing a history of the Mississippi Baptists.

....Rev. J. L. Shinn sends us three new subscribers. He shows what other good pastors can do.

....Rev. C. S Blackwell of Elizabeth City has been doing good in a meeting at Blackwater, Va.

....Wake Forest opens this week. It appears that the session will be marked by a large attendance.

....Rev. G. T. Watkins has given up his Red Mountain church, much to the regret of the church. His field was too large.

....Rev. A. C. Cree has resigned the pastoral care of Ephesus church, which he has been serving very acceptably for some time.

....Rev. J. R. Edwards of Colgate University, New York, has been supplying at Greensboro and will continue a few Sundays.

....Rev. J. W. Little of Union county recently held a meeting at Oak Grove church, in which there were thirty-three additions to the church.

....Pastors who feel that the RECORDER ought to have a larger circulation among their people, should make known our January 1st, 1896, offer.

....Bro. N. B. Broughton conducted service at the Soldiers' Home at Raleigh Sunday afternoon, and one old veteran made a profession of religion.

....Rev. J. G Pulliam preached at Greensboro Sunday night. Rev. W. C. Newton of Goldsboro preached for him at Smith field at the same hour.

....Rev. J. F. Love of Suffolk, Va., has been visiting at Oxford, the home of his wife's parents. His book of Jubilee Convention Sermons will soon be out.

....Rev. Josiah Elliott baptized twenty-two persons at his Beres church recently. He was aided in the meeting by a promising young minister, R. S. Monds.

....Evangelist Moody has agreed to hold a meeting at the Atlanta exposition, and a tabernacle will be built for him. The exposition will be closed on Sundays.

....Delegates to the South Yadkin Association will report at our church in Salisbury, corner Church and Council streets, three blocks from depot.—N. R. Jones.

....The Wake Forest students of Union county had a banquet and alumni rally at Monroe Friday night. It is a good idea to bring the boys together as often as possible.

....Elias Dodson used to say, "The workers never grumble, and the grumblers never work;" and it is just about so. The antidote for complaining is work in frequent and full doses.

....Draw the work close to your people, that their interest and zeal may be kept alive. Get them to reading the RECORDER, by starting them off on our offer of the paper until Jan. 1st, 1896, for fifty cents.

....There were several professions of religion in the meeting at Independence Hill, Rev. D. W. Thomasson pastor, and several are awaiting baptism. The meeting closed prematurely on account of the rains.

...."The summer law school at Wake Forest has proved so successful," said a brother, "that some of us think the College ought to run a general summer school." The quietness and pleasantness of "the Hill" would attract many.

....Rev. A. D. Hunter and Rev. A. C. Cree held a helpful meeting at Mt. Vernon near Raleigh last week. Sunday Bro. Hunter went to Wakefield and preached, and Bro. Cree supplied for him at the Raleigh West End church.

....We are much obliged to Rev. R. L. Patton of Morganton for his pamphlet on the "Law of Christian Giving." A hasty "glance through" shows that it is strong and clear and decidedly positive in its conclusions. We hope to read it thoroughly.

....We extend sympathy to Bro. J. H. Lassiter of Henderson, who lost his wife by death the 19th inst. Their home has always been an open one, and especially to Baptists. Sister Lassiter, who contributed so much to its pleasantness, will be widely missed.

....Dr. William Dean, a veteran retired missionary, died last week at San Diego, Cal., where he had lived quietly several years. He was one of the missionary pioneers, laboring in Siam and China, and translating portions of the Scriptures. He was an active worker half a century.

....Dr. J. W. Carter told his Raleigh flock that he would probably preach as much while he was on vacation as he would at home. We see that he attended his old Association (the Parkesburg, W. Va.,) and took part in several discussions. Bro Carter is West Virginia's best gift to North Carolina; and while we can spare him a little while to go back to his native State, we hope the brethren up there will understand that he is a North Carolina fixture—just getting ready to do his best work in this State.

....Bro. D. M. Prince of the Scotland Neck Male School writes: "Our prospects for another year are good, but we will have to work very hard. Bro. Cullom is holding a meeting at Hobgood, this county, and I hear he is having a good meeting. No Baptist church there."

....Bro. Blanchard was in Raleigh last week. He had been holding a meeting in addition to his regular work. He is looking forward to largely increasing Wake Forest's endowment before the Convention. He is at Pinnacle this week, where there is an educational rally.

....Pastor Simms of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle received one into the fellowship of that church Sunday. He had good audiences both services. At the Swain street mission chapel of the Tabernacle Rev. Alvin Betts has been conducting interesting and fruitful revival services.

....The busiest Baptist in North Carolina is Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas of Fayetteville. He writes weekly for two papers, and as often for the RECORDER as he has anything real good to say (witness his article this week), and we believe he is about to add another paper to his string.

....The two brilliant North Carolinians in the Richmond College faculty are making fine impressions on the Virginia people, whom they are meeting at Associations. We are glad to note also that among others Rev. L. G. Broughton and Rev. C. J. Thompson are making strides forward.

....We thank brethren H. T. Williams and W. L. Foushee, Clerks respectively of the Beulah and Flat River Associations for minutes of the late sessions. These are the first of the season. The RECORDER keeps them on file, and of course is grateful to the brethren who think to send them to us.

....Rev. Dr. G. W. Gardner writes from Jackson, Ga.: "The meeting that Rev. T. J. Taylor held with me continues to bear fruit. I have baptized twenty-five people recently, not all at one time, but they have been coming in month after month, which keeps the church greatly encouraged in the Lord's work."

....We received the sad news of the death of Rev. J. M. Register too late for announcement last week. We did not know him personally and cannot speak of his life and labors definitely. He was a good, unassuming and faithful servant of the Master. Rev. E. W. Wooten will furnish us a sketch of his life.

....Our church at Lexington is not quite fifteen years old, but it has made steady growth. Eight years ago when Rev. Thos. Carrick took charge the membership numbered 75; now it is 173. In this time more than 300 persons have been baptized; and a debt of $1,500 has been paid off. That is what we call a successful pastorate.

....We learn that the death of Mr. J. H. Adams at Wilson, father of Rev. M. A. Adams, was not unexpected. He was fifty four years of age. For many years he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, but in later years united with the Campbellites. He was a devout Christian, and is now with the faithful gone before.

....Rev. Pinckney Oliver writes: "We closed an interesting meeting at Bethel, Stokes county, on Saturday, the 17th. Bro. N. J. Mathews was with us for a week, and did all the preaching after he arrived. The church was revived and encouraged. Four new members were added by baptism and four by letter. The church is growing slowly, but we trust surely."

....Rev. John E. White of Edenton preached for the First Baptist church at Raleigh Sunday last. Brother White has preached in Raleigh every summer since he entered the ministry, and it has been gratifying to see how rapidly he is growing into a powerful preacher. He had the closest attention of his audiences Sunday, and every one present seemed to enjoy his discourses.

....Rev. G. A. Sowell, who graduated at Wake Forest College in 1893, and then entered Crozer Theological Seminary, will close up his work at Clayton, New Jersey, Oct. 1. At present he is not only occupying his own pulpit at Clayton, but is also supplying for the Presbyterian pastor. Bro. Sowell's work in New Jersey is well spoken of. He is a safe, conservative man, and we hope he may see his way to come back to North Carolina.

....The Texas Baptist Standard asks us to enumerate the departures of the B. Y. P. U. A. from our doctrine and polity. Women speaking, hand clapping, flag-waving, and the like, in spiritual meetings. In addition to this it raises money by selling worthless badges like Romanists sell, mementoes, etc., encourages foolish yelling, and teaches the young people (by example) that the churches are not sufficient for their spiritual training and work.

....Rev. J. A. Hoyle writes from Dallas: "We are now in the best revival meeting ever held at this place. Rev. C. H. Durham is with me and doing the preaching. Bro. Durham is one of the Lord's best young men, and is just fitted for evangelistic work. The people here say his equal is not to be found. I do not know how many persons have professed faith in Christ. Several have joined the church, and the interest is still increasing. I leave to day for Long Creek to hold a meeting. Bro. Durham will remain here a few days."

....The Wake Forest Student for July is out. It is a decidedly attractive number. The frontispiece is a half tone engraving of President Taylor, which is followed by a brief sketch of his life by Prof. Poteat. Bro. E. N. Simms, one of the leading students, contributes a thoroughly informing article on "Political Parties in the United States." Other articles, all above the average, are by Prof. B. W. Haywood, J. A. Oates, Jr., Chas. E. Taylor, F. E. Parham, J. E. Moore and J. C. McNeill. This closes the Student's fourteenth volume, which has been very creditable from the beginning.

....Dr. T. E. Skinner has returned from an extended sojourn at the Springs much improved in health. The Doctor preached eleven times, while away. All his friends will be glad to know that he is hale and hearty and hopeful.

... A newspaper trust is being set on foot. Its aim is to run up the price of paper in the interest of the manufacturers. It will work hardship, but it will also do good by arraying the papers of the land solidly against trusts—as they should have been arrayed long ago.

....We failed to make note of one of the Chautauqua indispensibles, the man whose mission is to make folks feel at home—Bro. J. C. Birdsong, the efficient Secretary of the Chautauqua, who has been Prest. Broughton's lieutenant from the beginning. We are under obligations to him for many kindnesses.

....The Watchman (Boston) says "Rev. L. B. Plumer has been voted by his church in Altoona, Pa., the month of September for vacation, and he goes with his tent to Charlotte, N. C., to hold meetings with Rev. T. H. Pritchard, D. D." We learn from the Charlotte Observer that Bro. Pruett and Dr. Pritchard intend using the tent especially for factory people.

....We heard a brother returning from the Liberty Association saying that Bro. Weaver, at present supplying the First Baptist church, Petersburg, had done a great work at High Point, and that the people there spoke most highly of him. Bro. Weaver not only serves as pastor here, but teaches in Greensboro, and also keeps up his ministerial studies. He is one of our coming men.

....We were very glad to see Dr. J. B. Robertson and his son John A., in Raleigh, Saturday. Bro. Robertson told us that Pastor Cowan had won the hearts of the Clayton people. He was holding a meeting there last week that was full of promise. The Methodist pastor said it was the best meeting he had seen at Clayton. Bro. John Robertson this week begins a four years course at Wake Forest, which we are sure he will complete with credit.

....We are obliged to Rev. A. H Porter for the following: "We had a very good meeting last week at Piny Grove, Jones county. I was assisted part of the week by Rev. S. J. Porter of Newbern. I baptized nine, one restored, and a number of others seemed much interested. I am assisting Rev. J. W. Rose at Cove, Craven county, this week. Please acknowledge one dollar received from Bro. R R. Barnes, Robeson Association, for Maysville church."

....Rev. Rufus Ford, lately of Newbern, has accepted a call to Bennettsville, S. C., in Marlboro county, a regular Baptist strong hold. Bennettsville has a good church and parsonage. Bro. Ford has lived and worked in our Convention more than four years. His gentle spirit and faithful works won him many friends who will follow him with love back to South Carolina, and be glad that he is situated pleasantly. The work in Newbern and in the surrounding country has prospered very greatly in the last four years.

....Rev. C. J. F. Anderson sent us the following from Jonesboro last week: "Our meeting at Bethlehem closed last Sunday. The church seemed greatly revived. Eighteen professed faith in Christ. Rev. J. R. Moore, my successor at Carthage, did most of the preaching and did it well. We received eight by baptism with others to follow. Bro. Moore is now aiding me in a meeting at Jonesboro. From here he goes to Montgomery county, to aid Rev. G. L. Merrell in his meetings."

....The North Carolina Christian Advocate led off last week most encouragingly with an editorial on the educational question. We are sure that our brethren will join in the struggle for free and untrammelled Christian education, if they keep on thinking along the line of their editorial. This is well said: "Again we say thank God for our Christian colleges which ask nothing of the State but the protection of just laws and no unfair taxation or legislation towards them. Let our people rally around them. In them our sons and daughters find the knowledge of God, and moral securities which no State school can supply."

....We regret to see that Rev. John A. Wray is going to leave our State. His first pastorate, Broad Street, Winston, has shown him to be a strong adherent to the faith and a good preacher and pastor, and a man of solid backbone. Considering his experience his work in this difficult pastorate has been remarkably successful. Bro. Wray goes to Milledgeville, Ga., in response to a repeated call. We know he was reluctant to leave North Carolina, but it seemed better to go. Milledgeville is a good and growing field, and one in which Bro. Wray will no doubt develop the promise that is in him. We hope some day to get him back to North Carolina.

....We thank Dr. N. B. Cobb for the following interesting note: "The meeting at Gum Spring was still in progress when I left on Saturday. Between twenty-five and thirty had asked for prayer, and two grown persons professed conversion on Friday afternoon. The congregations were large and attentive, and the interest was increasing from day to day. By invitation, I preached on Thursday night to a good audience in the Presbyterian church in the old town of Haywood, which came in one vote of being the capital of the State, and contested with Chapel Hill for the site of the State University. It is now a dead town, with a beautiful grove in the centre, in which stands the public school house of the district. The Methodists have given up the place and removed their house of worship to Moncure, and the Presbyterians now have the only house of worship in the place, with a membership too small to keep a regular pastor. The two lines between the Haw and Deep rivers, just above their junction to form the Cape Fear, land in beautifully located on a high and healthy bluff within a mile of Moncure."

....We did not say that Roman Catholics are gaining converts in North Caroline, as two contemporaries quote us; but we are willing to let it go that the Roman Catholics are gaining strength. They have dedicated two churches in the last eighteen months, one of them a very handsome structure. They will no doubt gain strength in the immigrants who will come in crowds to the State in the next decade. Eternal vigilance is our duty and only safeguard.

....We were very sorry to see our dear friend and brother, Rev. J. D Moore, who has been pastor of the Baptist church here for two years, leave on last Monday. He has made a host of friends, both inside and outside of his own church, who will greatly miss him. He is an excellent, all round Christian gentleman, and his place will be hard to fill. He will spend sometime among his old friends in the West and then go to the Seminary to complete his theological studies. Success and happiness attend him. —Beaufort Herald. Bro. Moore has promised to write us a letter about his Beaufort work.

....We have heard that some good people are holding back their daughters with the purpose of entering them at the Female University when it is opened. Last week we asked Bro. Stringfield about this. He said, "Tell them, by all means to enter some Baptist school now if they can, and be the better prepared for the University. We know we will have plenty of students." This is the right view of the matter. We have good schools; patronize them. The fact that we need an institution that will offer to our girls advantages which Wake Forest offers to our boys, does not weigh in the slightest degree against the excellent institutions of brethren Brewer and Hobgood or any others.

....Rev. Haywood Morris, of Palmerville, writes: "I began a meeting the first Sunday in August, with Corinth church, Rowan county, N. C. The meeting lasted six days. The Lord blessed us greatly,—first, by providing for us to get Bro. Henry Sheets of Lexington, N. C. He has done us faithful service. He is a good, earnest, faithful preacher. He is pleasant, agreeable and loved wherever he goes. We had a very pleasant and profitable time. The church was much revived and twelve professed faith in Christ. Four were approved by the church for baptism. I think others will join soon. I have been serving the church here as pastor for nine months, and I feel that the good Lord has blessed me very much and the church also. When I came here, the church had no Sunday-school; now, we have a good Sunday school. The Corinth brethren have built a very large and comfortable house of worship. It is very gratifying to know that the brethren have worked on the pay-as you go plan, and that they are almost out of debt. They have their pastor paid up to date. We take public collections every month, and will soon have our pledges for the different objects collected and forwarded on to the different Boards. May the Lord still continue his blessings with this people."

Representatives of the Baptist Female University.

The following brethren will represent the Baptist Female University at the Associations:

E. K Proctor, Robeson Association.
Rev. E. W. Wooten, Cape Fear Association.
Rev. J. A. Campbell, Little River Association.
Rev. H. C. Moore, Union Association.
Rev. I W. Thomas, Caldwell Association.
Rev. J. W. Dixon, Montgomery Association.
Rev. J. A. Smith, Brunswick Association.
Rev. N. S. Jones, South Yadkin Association.
J C. Whitty, Atlantic Association.
W. C. Petty, Sandy Creek Association.
Rev. L. Johnson, Pee Dee Association.
Rev. C. S. Cashwell, South Fork Association.
Rev. J. F. Tuttle, Columbus Association.
Hon. J. C. Scarborough, Raleigh Association.
Rev. I P. Hedgpeth, Bladen Association.
Rev. W. V. Savage, Tar River Association.
Hon. W. C. Fields, Ashe and Alleghany Association.
Rev. Thomas Carrick, Liberty Association
W. B. Oliver, Eastern Association.
Rev. W. R. Bradshaw, Brushy Mountain.
Rev. T. M. Honeycut, French Broad Association.
J. G. Pulliam, Three Forks Association.

Bro. J. Hartwell Edwards and I will visit as many Associations as we can. It is very important that the work be discussed fully and freely. Let our people see that the Lord is in it and they will gladly make the necessary sacrifices for the establishment of the school. Faithfully,

O. L. STRINGFIELD, Sec. Bd. Trustees.
Raleigh, August 20, 1895.

Royall Chair.

J. K. Reynolds, $5 00.

THOMAS H. BRIGGS,
Treasurer Wake Forest College.
Raleigh, Aug. 26, 1895.

CORRECTION.—The total of last week's acknowledgment should have been $24.34 instead of $23 34

If the hair has been made to grow a natural color on bald heads in thousands of cases, by using Hall's Hair Renewer, why will it not in your case?

Very much to our regret, we have to leave out of this issue valued letters from Dr. H. A. Brown, Rev. O. L. Stringfield, Rev. J. R. Jones, Rev. D. P. Bridges, Rev. J. R. Howell.

ASSOCIATIONS

THE FLAT RIVER.

The one hundred and second session was held at Creedmore in Granville county, last week. This point is near the border of the territory, and this, with the busy season of the farmers curing tobacco, caused a small number of delegates to attend.

The church here has just been completed, and while the house makes a good appearance outside and inside, the timbers are too slender and not sufficiently braced to be safe in a high wind.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. P. A. Fontaine of Bethel Hill. We did not reach the church in time to hear the discourse; but by a vote of the body it will appear in these columns.

Bro. A. C. Parham was again elected Moderator, and Bro. W. L. Foushee, Clerk.

The Ministers' Relief Board was put on as an object to be considered at the future meetings of the Association. Bro. Tyree, President of this Board, Bro. H. A. Reams, a member of the Board, and Bro. J A. Beam addressed the Association in behalf of the Board.

Dr. Willingham, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, was among those who came in on the evening train. He was given a hour in which to speak on Foreign Missions. The report read by Dr. R. H. Marsh was full of encouraging facts about this work, and the presence of Dr. Willingham and the fine address he made for this department of work will bear fruit in due season.

Prof. W. L. Poteat is here to speak for Wake Forest and to talk to young men who may have in mind to go to that Institution.

Bro. J. H. Edwards, who is now assisting Bro. Stringfield in raising money to complete the Baptist Female University in Raleigh, was welcomed to a place in the Association and given time to speak of his work. The trustees are fortunate in engaging Bro. Edwards in this work; his energy and industry, coupled with his natural qualifications for this sort of work, are bringing good results from his canvass.

Bro. Mitchell was much pleased that the Association increased its obligations for the support of the Ministerial Board of Education. The lessening of interest in this work by this Association ought to be a forcible reminder to our beneficiaries that the brethren are setting a high standard for the ministry, and when they fail to reach this either at college or after they leave for this work, the effect will be felt for years to come.

Durham came down in force in a special train bringing a number of brethren whom the Association felt great pleasure in welcoming to seats in the body.

The RECORDER was ably discussed by brethren Williams, Hill, Smith and Malone. We are always grateful for these evidences of the interest the brethren feel in our denominational organ, and if we could only bring to pass the things recommended in this report, especially the getting a systematic effort among our preachers to work for the paper, it would not be long before its circulation would be double what it now is.

We ought to be encouraged in all of our work. Not a single Association has failed to increase its pledges over those of previous years. Crops are fine in every section and the brethren hopeful.

We were obliged to leave at the close of the second day, and so missed much of the proceedings which it would be pleasant to give in this account.

YADKIN ASSOCIATION.

Friday morning, we are at the one hundred and fifth session of this Association. Bro. J. E Burrows is again the Moderator, a position he has held with great credit to himself and profit to the Association for many years.

Often we are made to admire some weak churches and small Associations, which in their weakness attempt and accomplish so much. Then sometimes an Association becomes an object of interest simply on account of its great undeveloped resources. The Yadkin is one of the latter kind—situated in one of the finest sections in all the State, good soil, clear, beautiful streams of water, and abundant forests, containing large varieties of trees both useful and ornamental. No colder or purer water ever came from the earth, and the balmy breezes, fresh from the mountain tops, are full of health and joy to all who come.

The Association met with one of the oldest churches in the Association. Several told me the value of property held by the membership, some putting it at as much as $125,000, and none less than $75,000. What do you suppose this church pays its pastor? Just fifty dollars! and for other objects in the same proportion. This will not be the case always, but one of these days, when this sleeping giant shall awake to realise its great power and possibilities for work, these fine resources which have grown and ripened through the years, will be given to Him for whose glory they were made.

NOTES.

One of the very best introductory sermons to which we have listened, was that preached by Bro. H. T. Williams at the Beulah, and by mistake overlooked in the proceedings given in these columns.

"I feel that there is nothing so important as the establishing of the Baptist Female University in the City of Raleigh,"—R. D. Haymore, Mt. Airy, N. C. This brother confirms his opinion by giving the institution $1,000.

Bro. L. N. Chappell gave the brethren of the Yadkin Association a talk on his work in China. He evidently has a broad, clear and comprehensive idea of his work, and so far as we can judge, he uses the language with more naturalness than any missionary we have heard. J. C. C.

Rev. Jasper Howell, Jr., has been called to fill out the year he pastor at the famous old Flat Rock church.

From Whiteville.

Bro. Editor:—In the midst of this hot August weather, one may be pardoned for seeking some diversion from the common, every-day routine of work and wear, even though it be in writing a news-letter to the RECORDER our organ, and, therefore, the chief medium of our denominational harmonies. Why not? for so it should be, and without assuming prophetic kan I may add, so it must and will be. But I started out to say, I have been greatly interested in the

"REGIONS BEYOND HOLL"

I am glad so many of the brethren are still mindful of the multitudes who live beyond the range of their ministry. This is as it should be, as it should have been all the time, and is suggestive of a revival of apostolic spirit, when they "went everywhere preaching the Word." Still, let it not be forgotten that there are others who, without any public notice or official assignment, have been doing that kind of work. These have done it, not by donating one or two weeks of voluntary service, but by giving themselves in the main to the destitute and poor, without so much as the hope of pecuniary reward. Estimated on the basis of compensation, there would appear variously from one fourth to three fourths of gratuitous labor. I am also glad this is so, for it is an evidence that there are yet men who are willing to "endure hardness" as good soldiers of Jesus Christ. This year, especially, my own experience has brought me into sympathetic relations with this class of brethren. By a miscarriage of plans I was "side-tracked" here at Whiteville, with only half my time occupied. In the mean time, the little churches at Porter Swamp and Clarkton invited me to preach for them. As they are both very weak bodies, why, of course, I have done so without any expectation of due or adequate compensation. For this arrangement I claim no credit what ever. It was one of those accidents which, despite our "best-laid plans," will come in to supplement one's prudence or rebuke his presumption. Albeit, I have done this work willingly, cheerfully, gladly. It has been to me a sweet privilege to preach the gospel to these two little churches. I humbly trust that what I may lack in material support, may be awarded to them in spiritual blessing. Already there are some signs of promise, and if the Holy Spirit shall mature them, then there will be a spiritual harvest. But I must now come home. Here at we are getting on in a rather modest, quiet sort of way. From my entrance here, I have had some marked evidences of appreciation, and if the church were able, I am sure my time would all be occupied at home. This is not their fault but my misfortune. I am sure I have the ear and confidence of the community, and shall be much disappointed if there shall not be other proofs of fruitfulness than those already manifest. It is true I have not had any "overflow congregations," nor "wept over the crowds turned away for lack of room"—we have had ample seating capacity so far—but congregations have been uniformly good and growing better. The work at all points, so far as I can ascertain, is quite up to, if not beyond its usual status in former years. During the year nine have been baptized, and the hand of fellowship given to six others. My continued residence here, however, must depend on some new arrangement, providing remuneration for this outside service, as the discomforts of straightened circumstance loom up in my future horizon. So while I should turn reluctantly away from so important and interesting a field, I must not count as faith any unwarranted presumption of mind. Further, the principle of sacrifice, except as a privilege, may not be so partially shared. The obligation or duty is general, not specific, and so binding on all alike. Who that questions the truth of this promise, let him illustrate his theory by conforming to his creed.

Another interesting feature of our little town is, a seeming revival in educational work. We are to have a inaugurated Sept. 1st, to be manned by a principal and two assistants; and if it shall be permitted to do its legitimate work, it may be assumed now to be the beginning of a better era in the history of Whiteville and Columbus county. It will mean more and better schools, with corresponding tendencies toward improved conditions in other directions.

It is to be hoped that, with the material progress so clearly foreshadowed, our denominational interests may not be neglected. Already we have the people, but unless we keep abreast with these progressive movements, it is only a question of time when we shall not have them. A wise denominational policy looks both to the field of its investments and that of its resources.

I close with my bow in acknowledgment of the high standard of excellence maintained by the RECORDER, giving assurance of an abiding interest in all that concerns its management. J. F. TUTTLE.

Whiteville, Aug. 15, 1895.

The Baptist Woman's College.

At Richmond, Va., is situated one of the best equipped institutions in the land for the education of young women—The Woman's College, the property of the General Baptist Association of Virginia. Being situated in Richmond, healthful, wholesome, progressive but quiet, and a Baptist city, nothing further need be said in this respect. Being the property of Baptists, and conducted openly as a Baptist institution for Baptist women, in the control of a Baptist Board of Trustees, at the head of which stands Dr. H. A. Tupper, Dr. Wm. E. Hatcher, and Dr. W. W. Landrum, and being in the hands of a noble Baptist educator of women, Dr. James Nelson, M. A., D. D., of the Columbian University, a man who has had large and successful experience in the education of women,—these things being so, there is nothing needful of being added unless it is a word or two about the faculty.

Happily the faculty is one that can be proudly named. There is Prof. C. H. Winston (lately elected to succeed Dr. H. H. Harris as President of our Foreign Mission Board) a M. A. of the University of Virginia, who has since received the degree of LL. D. He is a foremost educator and greatly respected in Virginia. He teaches Mathematics, Physics, and Natural Science in the Woman's College.

Miss Orie Latham Hatcher, daughter of Dr. Wm. E. Hatcher, is a splendid Virginia woman. She is one of the few Bachelors of Arts of Vassar in the South, and she received this degree with great credit.

Prof. E. C. James of the Chair of Modern Languages, is a graduate of Richmond College; he has also studied in Leipsic and Paris.

Miss Harriet L. Campbell of the Latin department is a distinguished linguist, and her students have won especial praise for thoroughness and aptness.

Miss Lenoir Duke, Bachelor of Oratory of Neff College, Philadelphia—the leading institution of its class—has charge of the department of Elocution and Physical Culture. She is a most accomplished woman.

The Musical Faculty is adorned with teachers who have had the best training that America and Europe afford. Prof. A. F. Unkel of Stuttgart, Ger., who teaches instrumental music, especially the piano, spent four years in special study, under the masters. Associated with him is Prof. Ernest Boling, a gentleman of pronounced talent, who has had large experience.

Miss Carrie K Jones is a North Carolina woman, of a well-known Baptist family, who graduated with distinction at the New England Conservatory. Dr. Nelson says she is a most valuable addition to his musical faculty. Her department is the piano.

Miss Pauline Larrabee has charge of Voice Culture. She received her training in Florence, Italy.

The entire faculty numbers twenty-four. All of them cannot be mentioned here, because space is valuable; but we have named enough to give one an idea of the high plane of this institution. Strong testimonials from prominent patrons, from former instructors of members of the faculty might be produced column after column, but this is not necessary.

Dr. Nelson is determined to give the best education, and yet his charges are not high. He also lays especial emphasis on thoroughness; and in teaching the English language and literature he has gone a step in advance and offers more advantages for extended study than Richmond College itself.

Last year the number of students was 188.

The highest degrees are given—Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, and Bachelor of Literature.

The beautiful catalog of the institution will be sent on application. Session opens Sept. 18.

School Notes.

Dr. James Nelson of the Richmond Woman's College was in Raleigh a few hours last week. Later he went on a visit to Lillesville. He has a school that is worth being told about, and we are glad that our readers have an opportunity to get better acquainted with it this week.

We were glad to see President Hobgood of the Oxford Female Seminary in Raleigh last week. We have never seen an educator in better spirits. He is sure of a good attendance of both boarders and day scholars, and we are very glad to know it.

Matthews High School has opened with fifty pupils. The principal, Rev. J. J. Peysour, is assisted by Miss Katie Conn of Raleigh, who teaches music.

Prof. H. W. Reinhart, one of the most experienced and capable educators in the State, has accepted charge of the Morehead City High School. This should insure the success of this new institution.

Bro. J. S. Kirby informs us that Trap Hill Institute opened with seventy five students, which is a good showing.

The Warwick High School, near Glidon, N. C., opened August 19, 1895, with Miss Lena V. James of Etaha, Pasquotank county, as principal.

Bro. Spencer Chaplin, Jr., one of the brightest boys in the Junior Class at Wake Forest last year, has taken charge of the Academy at Columbia. He is now pushing ahead with the work of constructing a new building. We do not know a young man more worthy of the confidence of the people.

T. M. Hufham, Esq., one of the most brilliant young men in this State, has accepted a position in Clairmont College at Hickory. This will not interfere with his practice at law, in which he is already making a mark.

Some Impressions of the Chautauqua.

BY REV. LIVINGSTON JOHNSON.

Those who had the privilege of attending the great meeting at Red Springs last week will never forget it. Profit and pleasure are happily combined at these meetings.

Those who need a few days of recreation, where they can throw off the grinding cares of life, could not find a better place than at the Chautauqua. The reduced rates at the hotels is another great advantage.

Bro. N. B. Broughton, president of the Chautauqua, is undoubtedly the livest Sunday-school man in the State. He is an admirable presiding officer, and knows just how to manage a crowd. He has tact and enthusiasm, and can impart inspiration to others. He has the happy faculty of sustaining the interest all the way through. No meeting of which he has the management can ever drag.

Bro. Broughton is ably seconded by Dr. C. A Rominger, the efficient vice-president, who is also a very wide awake Sunday-school man.

Bro. Birdsong, secretary and treasurer, is the right man in the right place.

The music was the finest ever heard in this section of the State. Any man who has any music in his soul must have been lifted above the cares of this busy world as he listened to those soul-stirring strains. Prof. Ruebush is the finest director of music I have ever seen. He isn't nervous and fussy as so many in his position are, but in a quiet, unostentatious way he proves himself master of the situation. I shall be much disappointed if the music at Red Springs last week will not be the means of improving the music in all the Sunday schools and churches in this section.

The free and easy way in which the meeting was conducted was quite refreshing. Subjects of practical importance were discussed, and questions asked and answered in an informal way. One of the most practical and helpful features was the teaching of classes, and criticisms passed on the methods of teaching. Special emphasis was placed on primary teaching. Brother and Sister Dodd, the veteran infant class teachers, were there. Their presence was a benediction. You have but to look into their faces to find the secret of their success. Bro. Dodd has a benevolent, open countenance, that is an index to a warm, loving heart. Who was not impressed by the womanly modesty of Mrs. Dodd? Shrinking from notoriety and blushing like a school girl when asked a question which must be answered before the vast audience, she is just the kind of woman that every parent should like to have train his child. May the modest Mrs. Dodds ever predominate in our State, and never be superceded by the woman who doesn't know how to blush. No wonder this dear couple can draw around them lisping childhood and bind them to them with hooks of steel.

Bro. Allen of Reidsville taught a class of children, which was the finest piece of work of its kind that I have ever seen.

As great as was this meeting, and as much as I saw to commend, there were some things that I think might be remedied, of which I expect to speak frankly, but in the kindliest spirit. I do not think there was enough help for country schools. Most of the speeches and suggestions would apply to the town schools, but a great deal of what was said was impractical for the country. According to Dr. Taylor's statement (and I doubt not that it is true) the country schools most need helping and stimulating. They haven't the facilities for running a model Sunday school, and I fear that the ideal was made so high that country superintendents and teachers might feel discouraged. Now to select the best workers from some of the country schools, and give them subjects appropriate to the country schools, would, it seems to me, be an improvement.

Another thing—was it imagination on my part? It may have been, but it seemed to me there was a sort of feeling that a few churches in the State had a kind of monopoly of the thing, a sort of "holy of holies," so to speak, into which they enter alone. Now I am aware that the moving spirits of the Chautauqua came from these churches; and I am convinced further that these brethren are not aware that that impression was made on any. It may be that other churches cannot be made to take the interest in the matter that these two do. But it strikes me that if the managers could get the other churches to feel that the Chautauqua was the "North Carolina Baptist Chautauqua," as its name indicates, and not an institution of a few churches, it would be more far-reaching in its influence.

One more criticism: The "speaking sister" was on hand. Rev. C. C. Brown of Sumpter, S. C., conducted the devotional exercises at the opening. He said he would like a dozen or more of the brethren, in speeches of a few minutes length, to tell why they were there, what they hoped to get out of the meeting, etc. The second brother who addressed the Chautauqua was a sister. Some say they do not call that speaking, but hundreds of us didn't know what else to call it.

Later on this same sister taught a class. She selected her own class, and chose to sit at her feet the biggest men to be found. Fortunately the class was so arranged that her back was turned to the congregation; but she wouldn't stay turned. The first thing she did was to turn her back on the class and address the assembly. This she did frequently during the half hour given her to teach the lesson. She took occasion, too, to fling at those who hold the Pauline idea of women's speaking in public, and she did it with all the zest and animus of a regular "woman's righter." It was stated that this was not a church, and that it was not responsible to any church or denomination. That is true, but so long as it bears the name of the "North Carolina Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua" it should represent Baptist principles and polity. I am not talking about woman's speaking in general; at some future time I may discuss that; but am telling of the impression that this particular case made upon hundreds of people who saw and heard it.

Now I have given my impressions pro and con. I have written from the purest motives and in the kindliest spirit. As the teachers at the Chautauqua were open to friendly criticism, so I think the Chautauqua itself should be. Its power and efficiency can be greatly increased by lopping off a few of the objectionable features. There is a conservative element in the State that will not give the weight of their influence to this grand movement until some changes are made along the lines indicated. It may be argued that they are too conservative. That may be true, but to go to one extreme only drives them further to the other. What we need is to get the great Baptist host of North Carolina in full sympathy with this great work, so that Sunday-schools all over the State may feel the inspiration. I thank God that he put it into the hearts of brethren Broughton and Rominger to inaugurate this movement. I am profoundly grateful that our Association was honored with the meeting this year. We trust that this is only the beginning of many happy and helpful meetings to be held at "Robeson's Saratoga."

Couldn't Have Happened to a Baptist.

The gentleman who was to preach at the Presbyterian church recently didn't know whether he was expected to come or not, so he telegraphed to the "Session of the Presbyterian church," which means the elders, if he was expected. The telegram was returned to Cheraw next morning, stating that there was no Mr. Session in any Presbyterian church in the county. So there was no preaching, it being too late to rectify matters.—Rockingham Index.

Twenty Opinions.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Societies last fall in Charlotte, it was determined to endeavor to raise $1,000 extra as a memorial to Dr. and Mrs. Yates. This step was taken under the approval of Dr. Willingham, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, who, at the memorial meeting held at that time, urged that this memorial take the form of a living voice, the thousand dollars being used to send out and pay the salary of a new missionary to China for one year.

When Dr. Yates finished his noble work, many sought to raise some memorial to him on his life-long field of labor. Six years longer his wife, a helpmeet indeed, labored on without him. Then she, too, laid down the burden to receive the crown and the plaudit, well done good and faithful servant. To these two, our greatest missionaries, reunited in the glory land just out of sight, it seemed more than fitting that the women of North Carolina should, on the occasion of Mrs. Yates' death, raise some living memorial. So it seemed to the ladies last fall in Charlotte. The year rolled away. Hard times came, harder than before. Large plans were laid for general work at the meeting of the Union in Washington. Yet the Yates memorial could not be forgotten. A year and more had passed since the passing away of "Mother Yates," as the missionaries called her. If this memorial was not raised this year it would, in all probability, never be. It seemed that this memorial so fitting in honoring those so fit to be honored and so helpful to the work they spent their lives to help, must be made now or never.

Still, the Central Committee were unwilling to make the endeavor until they knew that others thought as they, and that others were as willing to make the needed effort to raise this extra offering—for it must be extra, unless it would injure, not aid, the very cause of missions they were working for. With this in view, and laying the matter directly before the Societies, a number of ladies in different parts of the State were asked if in their judgment this extra memorial offering of a thousand dollars could and should be raised. Below are given twenty opinions on the subject from as many ladies. Since receiving these replies the memorial has been urged upon each Society, and we trust that many, if not all, are already at work, determined to add one thousand dollars to the regular contributions of their Societies in the next four months. How easily this can be done with the help of one thousand women!

We think you can raise th's money—one thousand dollars (extra) as a memorial to Dr. and Mrs. Yates—although we realize it means a great deal of work for you.—Mrs. Thomas Franklin, Charlotte.

We discussed the several points in your letter, and decided that it is always best to attempt great things for God and expect great things from God.—Mrs. R. H. Lewis, Kinston.

I'll do all I can for the memorial.—Mrs. Frank Bennett, Paris.

Your letter was read before our Society at its last meeting, and ten dollars was agreed upon as the amount we are willing to promise; but we will do more if we can.—Mrs. W. C. Moore, Mt. Airy.

It does seem to me wise for the Committee to endeavor to raise this year a thousand dollars as a Yates memorial.—Mrs. R. T. Vann, Scotland Neck.

We cannot afford to fail in this great work, and must press forward with renewed zeal and perfect faith. My own heart responds warmly to your letter concerning the living memorial to our beloved Dr. and Mrs. Yates. I can speak confidently for our Society that it will cheerfully do its part.—Mrs. W. C. Lankford, Wake Forest.

I am willing to do what I can in this effort.—Mrs. H. P. Markham, Durham.

All concurred heartily in the proposed memorial to Dr. and Mrs. Yates. Eleven dollars was subscribed at once, and it was proposed to wait on the ladies of our congregation and receive further pledges.—Mrs. L. G. Grant, Goldsboro.

After thinking and praying over this matter, I think it wise to raise the thousand dollars. It seems to me we will all feel glad to do this as a memorial to these our two greatest missionaries, and we can do it if we want to.—Mrs. J. Hartwell Edwards, Ridge Springs, S. C.

I will promise that no effort shall be spared to make the collection for the memorial as liberal as possible.—Mrs. Samuel Saunders, Murfreesboro.

I am sure I thank you very much for allowing me the privilege of expressing myself on this very important matter. Yes, I believe this the year in which the Baptist women of North Carolina should raise the amount for a "living memorial" to these dear ones—this father and mother of missions. I have spoken to our pastor as to the importance of this work and the time, and he encourages me by saying that he thinks this the year to raise this memorial. In view of all the facts before us in regard to China, this is the time of all others when God is calling loudest for help in this field. seems to me he is speaking plainer than ever before, "The fields are white unto the harvest, send in the reapers and garner the sheaves for the harvest home." * * * The thought of all the noble men and women who have laid down their lives for the dear Saviour's sake should inspire us, too, to make greater sacrifices for his cause.—Mrs. L. A. Battle, Durham.

Your letter came just about a week before the meeting of our Society, so waited to confer with them. All seemed perfectly willing to do something, but could not say how much. To postpone the effort would in my judgment be a mistake.—Mrs. H. R. Covington, Wadesboro.

I feel sure it is our duty as well as our pleasure to raise the one thousand dollars to send the missionary.—Mrs. W. C. Petty, Manly.

In regard to the "living memorial" to Dr. and Mrs. Yates, I favor it highly, if we can keep before us the thought that it is for the Master's sake, not theirs. So many of us are so short-sighted we lose the ultimate in the immediate, and therefore God is not glorified. Concerning "hard times," board debts, etc., see for explanation 1 Cor. 16: 9. The command is "Go forward." I for one am willing to try.—Miss Laura Lazenby, Statesville.

Let each Society do all in its power to aid, leaving with them the choice of plans of raising money for this purpose.—Mrs. S. M. Robbins, Southport.

If it is decided to raise this memorial, I think I can safely say that the Tabernacle Society will come forward with the amount required of us. It is indeed a fitting memorial for our beloved missionaries. It is worthy of great effort.—Miss Mamie Birdsong, Raleigh.

I have consulted some of the members of our Society in regard to raising the memorial, and they think it can be done.—Mrs. Wiley J. Forebee, Belcross.

Are there not one thousand noble women connected with missionary societies who are willing to give one dollar each for this grand cause? I am in full sympathy with the proposed memorial.—Mrs. W. B. Ray, Leaksville.

I have been thinking and praying very earnestly over your last letter. As I said, I am quite young in the work and have not grown tall enough to see over it. But constantly a voice seems to ask me these questions: "Is the call from God?" and "Is he able to supply means to accomplish this work?" I cannot hear the answer to the first question, but to the second the same voice seems to reply, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," and "every beast of the forest is mine and the cattle upon a thousand hills." The need is so great, can we doubt the call? We can unite our forces and accomplish the work through him who is all strength and wealth. * * * Yes, the times are hard, but they are hard because we make them so, because we are so selfish with what God gives us, and will not divide with him as liberally as he requires. The more we give the more he enables us to give.—Miss Hattie E. Cox, Magnolia.

Our Young Women.

BY MISS HOLLIE HARPER.

Out of the 4,000,000 Baptists in America, it is fair to infer that at least 1,000,000 of them are girls, unmarried young women. How many of th's million of young women have a mission in their Christian life? Would not 10,000 include every one; every Sunday school teacher, every mission collector, every soul winner in the social walks and every girl who is sufficiently interested in mission work as to be really working for Jesus? It is safe to say that as a denomination we have about 990,000 girls and young women who are doing absolutely nothing for the Lord. Only giving Him the poorest sort of existence, exerting for Him only the influence which may grow out of being known as a professing Christian. Many of these are bright, active young women. They are cumbering their lives with the things which they can grasp at best but for a little time, when they may lay hold of things which shall be theirs for eternity. This is the great need of so interesting them in missions as that every one of that vast number will find her mission and go to work at it. Let us not preach at our young women about the frivolity and waste of time in seeking after worldly pleasures, let us give them something better—crowd out the worldly thoughts. They love the Lord Jesus, and they need to be directed to do his work. Letting go the unworthy things, —self seeking. Train them out of pleasure-seeking into pleasure giving. They themselves will be happier when they realize that they are doing God's work. It is glad tidings, good news we are spreading. Let us do it joyfully. It is sweet service. I speak from experience. I was but a child when the love of Jesus constrained me to give him my heart. In working for him my life has been filled with joy and gladness. Some have said to me, "How can you sacrifice your life to mission work?" Ah, they do not understand! They cannot see that there is no sacrifice in it. The sacrifice comes in giving the best years of one's life to that which satisfieth not. Alice Freeman Palmer says: "I am so sorry for girls and women who have no great absorbing interest outside of themselves. Girls naturally desire to be beautiful, but if the beauty is to be lasting they must live outside of themselves."

What nobler purpose could these young Christian women have, to what better work could we direct them than the carrying out of the great commission? Not only do they need the work, but the work needs them. The contributions that they would make, and induce others to make, would be no small consideration. They would disseminate missionary information. The brightness and enthusiasm of these young workers would revive and strengthen the older workers. If the Woman's Missionary Union is to live, the young women of to-day must take the places in a few years of the women who are now at the helm. Then, again, recruits on the mission fields come from among the young. When we want money for the work we say educate; when we want lives for the work we would say with greater emphasis, educate. There are some homes where the children imbibe missionary information from the home folk, but in very many homes there is not this training. Hence the need of active teachers in every church.

For this work to be done, those who are now interested in missions must set themselves to interest others. Coming up to the meetings with papers on the needs, getting together and discussing methods, will never do the work. Experienced, consecrated workers in each church must take hold of the matter with a prayerful determination. They must study this as a lawyer studies his case, as a teacher studies to meet the demands of her calling. Study missions, study the Word as the foundation of missions, and study painstakingly and persistently the young women they would interest, and lastly study methods of doing the thing. She who would train another need only have a converted heart and the tact to find a work worth doing which that person can do and then wisely direct the effort for awhile, and the training is sure to follow. The secret of interesting a young woman in this work is to give her something worth the doing which she can do, and stand by her in it until she can stand alone. When it is expedient, organize mission bands. In all that is planned never lose sight of the fact, and do not let the girls lose sight of the fact, that it is all done in Jesus name and for his sake.

Missionary Reading Clubs might be helpful. Interest in missions is always commensurate with information. Many a dear girl who could not be induced to read a tract or attend a mission meeting would be charmed with a bright book. Rev. Frank S. Dobbins, care of Examiner, New York, has prepared a list of about 200 missionary books. This list will be found very helpful. Many plans will suggest themselves to the tactful leader. Effort is already being put forth in behalf of the young women. Success is attending the movement, but, oh, there is so much more needed to be done! In every church there are many young women yet to be reached—there is need to hasten.

The bringing of the world to Christ seems such an enormous work—let us apply a little mathematics to it: Say there are 1,000,000 Baptist young women in America in 1895, and by May, 1896, each one should lead one other soul to Christ, and so on through the years. Figures bewilder women, but work it out—in 1909, fourteen years, every member of the human family would be saved. Jesus would look down upon a redeemed world; his children having finished the work he left them to do. If only the saved young women of the Baptists of America could be so interested in missions as that each one of them would lead annually some other soul to Christ!

A Pedlar's Prayer.

There was a pedlar who carried his wares from house to house in Scotland. One day, while upon his errands, he entered a cottage where a noble lady was visiting its inmates. Some conversation ensued when the lady rather haughtily inquired of the pedlar, "What, can you pray?

"Well," said he, "I kan I can."

"Then kneel down at once, she cried, "and let me hear you."

Whereupon the man put his bag off his back, went upon his knees, and at once spoke thus to his God:

"O God, give me grace to need grace.

"O God, give me grace to ask for grace when I am given to feel my need of grace.

"O God, give me grace to receive grace when thou givest the grace I need.

"O God, give me grace to show grace when I have received grace from thee, whether I get grace shown to me or not."

We commend this prayer to every one who is endeavoring to walk through this world to the glory of God as one of the most practically beautiful expressions of dependence on God ever uttered.—The Gleaner.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The town of Clinton has voted a school-tax of fifty cents on the $100 valuation and $1 50 on each poll, which is the heaviest school tax ever voted in the State.——A $9,500 nugget of gold was found near Albemarle, Stanly county, last week.——The Grand Lodge of Knights of Honor met at Morehead City last week. The following officers were elected: Past Grand Dictator C. M. Brown, Grand Dictator N. L. Shaw, Grand Vice Dictator G. W. Blount, Grand Assistant Dictator N. Jacobi, Grand Treasurer S C. Schoolfield, Grand Chaplain L. A. Bickle, Grand Guide K. R Jones. Grand Guardian W. H. Carstarphen, Grand Sentinel F. H. Boyette, Grand Trustees T. H. Gatling, P. C. Clark. M. O. Sherrill; Grand Representatives to Supreme Lodge J. T. LeGrande, E M. Nadal. The Grand Lodge next meets in Wilmington in 1897.——The railroads will make a rate of one cent a mile to the next State Fair.——The State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts at Raleigh has elected Prof. N. R Craighill to its new Chair of Mechanical Engineering.——An 8,000 spindle cotton mill will be established at Henderson ——Tobacco breaks in several towns are encouraging; large sales, active markets and fair prices seem to prevail.——Hon. Oct. Coke, Secretary of State, is ill with typhoid fever.——Seventeen persons charged with having part in the recent insubordination at Winston have been punished.——Mr. F. H. Thatcher of Buffalo, New York, has been called to be Secretary of the Y. M C. A for North Carolina. The Raleigh Y. M C. A. is almost dead.——A canning factory will be established at Pineville.

In General.

One of the quietest elections ever held in South Carolina was that which occurred last week, delegates being chosen to the Constitutional Convention which meets Sept. 10. The Tillman program was carried out.——Three thousand weavers in Palladelphia who recently "struck" for higher wages won their contest.——Market quotations: Cotton 6 to 7¼; wheat 62; corn 36 and 38; oats 20; pork 9 80.——A number of riots, more or less disastrous, are reported to have occurred in China within the last few weeks. It is said that the originator of the troubles has been appointed to investigate them. This sounds much like China's way of doing things. So far we have heard of no injury to any Southern missionary or mission station.——The Governor of Texas will make all efforts to prevent the pugilistic contest in that State. Mexico has announced that it shall not occur on her side of the Rio Grande.——A powerful combination of manufacturers has been formed to fight the cigarette trust. It is a case of dog eat dog.——Twenty people were killed in an explosion which wrecked and set fire to a Denver, Col., hotel.——It seems that the Cuban insurgents are more than holding their own. They have organized a nominal provisional government which may become permanent, unless Spain does better than she has been doing.——Librarian Spofford of the National library at Washington has fallen short upwards of $90,000 in his accounts.

Promptly Paid.

About two weeks ago Mrs. Mary F. Walton of Garner, N. C., died, holding a $3 000 policy on her life in the Union Central Life Insurance Company. The proofs of her death reached the Home Office the 21st of August, and Mr. Cary J. Hunter, Supt. for Virginia and North Carolina, showed us a check dated Aug. 22d in full payment of the claim.

The Union Central is a most excellent Company, not only in paying claims promptly but in giving desirable policy contracts, especially advantageous to the insured.

About the Work at Pinnacle.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Just a word about the Lord's work in Pinnacle. Our pastor, Rev. C. C. Haymore, secured the services of Bro. C. W. Blanchard to assist in our recent meeting at this place. Brother Blanchard reached our town Saturday, Aug. 3d, and remained with us till the following Saturday. He preached twice each day. He is strictly a gospel preacher, and has the rare gift of presenting's God's truth in a plain, forcible and convincing manner. We do not remember ever having attended a meeting more far-reaching in its results. Eleven were added to the church—ten by baptism, and one by letter. The church was greatly revived and helped to a higher plane of Christian living.

Bro. Blanchard returned to Pinnacle on Tuesday, 14th inst., and lectured on Wake Forest College. He is doing earnest, faithful work for Wake Forest. May the Lord bless his efforts. He will return to Pinnacle on Aug. 24th, and speak for us on general education at the great education al rally.

Very truly, CHAS. T. BALL.

Cedar Rock Academy & Business Institute

CEDAR ROCK, N. C.,
W. A. SMITH, B. A., Principal.

This school is situated in a fine farming section in Franklin county, 11 miles east of Louisburg The surrounding community is densely settled by a cultured, hospitable and progressive people. The moral and religious influences are excellent The good water and wholesome air makes it a healthful locality, almost entirely free from malaria.

We prepare for college or for practical business life, and make a specialty of preparing young men and young ladies for teachers in the academies and public schools. The Commercial and Music Departments also offer superior advantages. The music department is well supplied with the very best instruments, and is in charge of an experienced and thoroughly competent teacher. Young ladies wishing to make a specialty of music are offered excellent advantages, since we have a sufficient supply of instruments to give all the practice desired.

For the School of Art a special teacher has already been employed whose whole attention will be given to that department

Board, including furnished rooms, within a short distance from the academy, can be had at $7.00 per month. Girls, unless otherwise requested, are required to board with the Principal. Young men and young ladies are not allowed to board at any boarding house under any circumstances. We take a special oversight of the girls committed to our charge. Mrs. Smith (wife of the Principal) endeavors in every way possible to see after their interest.

Tuition rates are very low, ranging from $1 to $7.50 per month. The session of 1895-'6 opens Aug. 19th. For further information write to Principal for catalog. W. A. SMITH.

A-head of everything that can be used for washing and cleaning, is PEARLINE. If your work is heavy, it is a necessity; if your work is light, it is a luxury. It lessens the labor of washing, and helps everywhere in the housework. There's nothing so harmless—nothing so effective—nothing so popular and yet so new—it is rapidly succeeding soap. Try it for washing dishes—try it for washing anything—everything; only try it—for your own sake and ours. A house without Pearline is "behind the times."

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 283 JAMES PYLE, New York.

Institute,

MURFREESBORO, N. C.

Parents and guardians having girls to educate will do well to consider the following facts:—

Only experienced teachers of broad culture and special training for their particular work are employed.

Thorough work is required of pupils, and diplomas are conferred only after critical examinations. The administration believes that education should be practical, and that girls should be trained not to feel above the home.

The discipline is mild and parental. Pupils are treated as daughters.

The health of the Institute is unsurpassed.

Charges have been reduced to suit the times.

The forty-eighth annual session begins on Wednesday, September 4th

Proprietor,
STATESVILLE, N. C.

I keep constantly on hand the largest and most complete stock of granite and marble to be found in the State. I take pleasure in furnishing designs (in photographs) and estimates on any style of monument or headstone. I possess the very best shipping facilities, and can not only guarantee the lowest prices, consistent with good material and first class work, but also the best freight rates, and the most prompt and safe delivery of goods.

We solicit correspondence from every section of the State. In writing for designs give age of deceased and some limit as to price.

Stricken With Paralysis

From the Industrial News, Jackson, Mich.

Myron L. Root, a worthy workman, has lived for nearly twenty five years in the city of Jackson, Mich., at 234 Adrian Ave., where he owns a happy home. His health had failed him for some years back, and the loss of his wife, two years ago, filled his cup of misery to overflowing. Grief and worry soon brought on a stroke of paralysis. A few weeks later he had a second stroke, which totally disabled him. He could neither move a limb nor his head and had to be fed like a baby. The best medical aid was furnished him, and his friends did all they could for him, but human hands seemed powerless to give him relief.

Both physicians who were treating him told him, after a consultation, that there were no means of helping him. He was then but a mere skeleton, without power to move and scarcely strength enough to express his wishes. Death was truly much preferable to a lingering life of such misery and helplessness.

The marvelous cure, by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, of a woman afflicted similarly to himself, which appeared in the Industrial News, was read to him, and although only a lingering spark of hope existed, he consented to give the medicine a trial, but insisted that another physician be called, in order to lay the matter before him. The physician was summoned and after a thorough examination of the patient and learning the history of the case, said that he could promise no relief and advised him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which he had often known to succeed when everything else had failed. The pills were procured, and he took them according to directions, with the most wonderful result. At the end of two weeks, although weak, he was perfectly cured and is now able to do all kinds of light work.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Going Forward at Sanford.

Dear Recorder:—At the request of Bro. Greaves, I went to Sanford for him the first Sunday in this month. I found Sanford to be a much better place than I had thought. The Baptists are weak there in number, but strong in faith and work. They have begun their new church building on a beautiful lot and are anxious to finish it before they stop, but they have only money enough to finish the outside work. There will be some inside work and seats needed for which they are not able to pay just now. We who have houses to worship in should help those worthy and energetic brethren who are doing a work that ought to have been done several years ago.

Bro. J. R. Weatherspoon is Treasurer, and will receive any contributions sent for the church. If the pastors would put this matter before their churches, a little help would be secured to enable them to complete their church.

Bro. Greaves will begin his meeting at Sanford on Monday after the fourth Sunday in this month. The prospects for a good meeting are encouraging.

W. C. BARRETT.

Running a church is a good deal like running a coal fire. You must keep the coals together, shake out the ashes occasionally, and feed it at every opportunity. The preacher who depends wholly on keeping the coals together will not have a fire long, neither will the preacher who is always shaking out the ashes; while the preacher who is always adding new fuel without using the shaker will soon have his church so full of clinkers that he will have to dump the grate and start over again.—Richmond Advocate.

DIED.

HUNTER—J. T. Hunter of Cary, N. C., departed this life on Aug. 15th, 1895. His was a rapidly fatal case of fever. He was a member of Salem Baptist church, and we hope he is gone to rest. A. D. H.

WILLIAMS—Ephesus Sunday-school has again been reminded of the uncertainty of human life. Death visited us on July 24th and took away one of our little lambs, Myra Williams, the first born of Frank and Tellie Williams. She was twelve years and six months old. While she had never made an open profession of faith in Christ, yet she was a sweet little girl. Every one that knew her loved her. She was especially noted for kindness and thoughtfulness of her father and mother. We deeply sympathize with them in their sad affliction, and offer them our sincere condolence. W. D. W.

BELL—At her home in Camden county, N. C., July 10th, 1895, at 8 o'clock a. m., after a short illness, the spirit of Helen Bell took its flight. She was born in Camden county March 24th, 1875. She gave herself to Christ when she was quite young and connected herself with the Baptist church. Her amiable disposition, warm and generous heart, endeared her to all with whom she was associated; and while we lament her untimely death, how soothing to our wounded hearts to know that when death claimed her she was ready and willing to obey the summons; and now in the glory land basks in the sweety of God's love, where with her devoted grandma, who preceded her some time ago, they will wait together the coming of the resurrection morn.

Father, brother and sisters, weep not, but look up through with an eye of faith and behold your loved ones on the bosom of him who said, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

Dear Helen, though gone forever from our midst, you will never be forgotten; and your beautiful Christian life and peaceful death will make us feel that heaven is dearer and more real since you are there. J. B. F.

MORGAN—W. H. Morgan departed this life July 21st, 1895. He was born Feb. 12th, 1847. Bro. Morgan became sorely afflicted when quite young, losing the use of his left leg. This suffering continued occasionally until death, but without a murmur or complaint. He was converted while young, and continued steadfast in the doctrine of the cross. Owing to his affliction he did not meet his brethren often at church, but his words, prayers, money and influence was for her. In the rebuilding of the church his twenty-five dollars was the first in hand. No one could make himself more useful than he in each and every department of the Lord's work. At home, walking upon his crutches, yet he had an oversight of each temporal and Christian duty. One of his highest enjoyments was to talk upon Christian work as taught in the Bible. This happy, go-lucky religion, he did not believe in, because it would not save. "The Bible teaches," says he, "to obey, do right, go forward, and ask no questions. He was a great admirer of Bro. J. H. Mills, because Bro. Mills would call things by their name. Plainly, he loved Charity and Children. As he would speak of the orphans he would weep and say, "God bless them." All who knew him loved him. A good man has fallen. The church will miss him; the pastor will miss him; the home more than all, so thoughtful and quiet he was, yet ever planning to make home happy in every possible way. His niece, sister and her husband, with other relatives, will miss him. The vacant chair, the unheard foot-step! God bless the home. Let sweet memories of the past help you, as your loss results in his gain.

The remains were carried to Berea church, of which he was a member. After service, a host of friends followed the remains to the long resting place to await the resurrection morn. I pray the Lord to help us so live that when we are called away we may be missed.

Loved ones, remember he is not dead, but only gone before. JOSIAH ELLIOTT.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to take from our school our beloved sister, Miss Chloe Robinson, whose life went out at the home of her sister at Pollocksville, N. C., on Sunday, August 4th, 1895; and whereas, our school has lost one of its devoted members, therefore be it

Resolved 1. That while we bow in humble submission to the will of him who doeth all things well, we will ever cherish the memory of our dear sister, who by her sweet Christian spirit had greatly endeared herself to us.

2. That we will strive to emulate her Christian virtue, and thereby show to the world the beauties in the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ, and humbly pray that we may all be prepared to meet her in that upper and better kingdom when we, too, shall be called to our reward.

3. That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved family in this sad hour, and trust that her hope may be theirs, and that they may have the sustaining grace of Almighty God to comfort them.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and one copy each to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, N. C. Baptist and Evangelist for publication.

COTTOLENE.

When Your CAKE Is All Dough

When your cake is heavy, soggy, indigestible, it's a pretty sure sign that you didn't shorten it with COTTOLENE. When this great shortening is rightly used, the result will surely satisfy the most fastidious. Always remember that the quality of COTTOLENE makes a little of it go a long way. It's willful waste to use more than two-thirds as much as you would of lard or butter. Always use COTTOLENE this way, and your cake and pastry will always be light, wholesome, delicious.

Genuine COTTOLENE is sold everywhere in tins, with trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin.

The Home Circle.

A Solitary Way.

There is a mystery in human hearts,
And though we be encircled by a host
Of those who love us well, and are beloved,
To every one of us, from time to time,
There comes a sense of utter loneliness.
Our dearest friend is "stranger" to our joy,
And cannot realize our bitterness.
"There is not one who really understands,
Not one to enter into all I feel;"
Such is the cry of each of us in turn,
We wander in a "solitary way."
No matter what or where our lot may be;
Each heart, mysterious even to itself,
Must live its inner life in solitude.

And would you know the reason why this is?
It is because the Lord desires our love.
In every heart he wishes to be first.
He therefore keeps the secret key Himself,
To open all its chambers, and to bless
With perfect sympathy and holy peace,
Each solitary soul which comes to Him.
So when we feel this loneliness it is
The voice of Jesus saying, "Come to Me:"
And every time we are "not understood,"
It is a call to us to come again;
For Christ alone can satisfy the soul,
And those who walk with him from day to day
Can never have a "solitary way."

And when beneath some heavy cross you faint,
And say, "I cannot bear this load alone,"
You say the truth. Christ made it purposely
So heavy that you must return to Him.
The bitter grief, which "no one understands,"
Conveys a secret message from the King,
Entreating you to come to Him again
The Man of Sorrows understands it well,
In all points tempted He can feel with you.
You cannot come too often, or too near,
The Son of God is infinite in grace.
His presence satisfied the longing soul,
And those who walk with him from day to day
Can never have a "solitary way."

A Good Driver

"Oh, mamma, I do wish Teddy would get over his lameness; I'm just starving to drive something!" wailed a lively little boy to his sympathetic mother.

"Suppose you try driving yourself. I have found Sanford Brooks a very frisky creature to drive," suggested mamma, smiling.

"Now, mamma! How could I drive myself!"

"What is the thing that pleases you most when you drive your little donkey!" asked mamma.

"Why, it is because I make him go and stop when I want to, and turn around; and then, it is so nice to feel and pull on the reins, and know that I can master him."

"That is just what is so delightful in driving one's self," said mamma. "I mean you should try to make Sanny Brooks obey Sanford Livingston Brooks when Sanny wants to be wild and foolish."

"That would not be one bit of fun, mamma," and Sanford looked reproachfully at his mother.

"You think so because you have never tried it. Just promise me that the very next time that Sanny wants to do what you know is wrong you will say, 'Whoa, Sanny!' and pull hard on the reins, and make him trot along straight in the right road, with never a kick."

Sanford rubbed his hair up from his forehead till it looked like straw wisps, and he scraped one foot along the edge of the sofa before he promised to try mamma's idea. But he was a boy to keep his word, and within an hour he had a chance to try his new kind of driving.

Two of his neighbors looked into the garden, and called: "Hi, San! Come and hang on the carts."

Sanford's mother objected to his hanging on behind carts, because it often brought bad words from the drivers; but she did not forbid him, being a wise mother. "I know that it is not in boy nature to resist hanging on carts," she said, "and I would rather that Sanford should keep on openly until he sees the foolishness of it than that he should do it on the sly and then lie about it, as I know some boys do."

Sanford knew this was his mother's view of the matter. Just as the boys repeated their call, he remembered about driving himself. So he shouted back: "No! Mamma does not like me to get all muddy. Next time, perhaps."

"Oh! lily white boy, can't stand mud," shouted the boys. And they ran off, leaving Sandford very indignant and longing to pound them.

"Whoa, Sanny!" he said, suddenly; and somehow he straightened up and held his head high, as if some one had really reined him in.

He went to the orchard to look at Teddy, who was enjoying the rich spring grass. "Teddy, I am better than you, for you cannot drive yourself," he said, as he patted the little donkey.

Then a funny thought came into his head: "When a boy cannot drive himself, is he like a donkey!"

"Whoa, Sanny! Keep straight; don't kick! Mind me; I'm your master, Sanford Livingston Brooks, Esquire!" he shouted, half laughing at his own fun. But he was putting the lesson into his own mind all the time, without understanding how important it was.

When he asked his mamma, some hours later, about the donkey conundrum, she said, very seriously: "Yes, my dear child, you have found the right idea. The boy who can hold a tight rein over himself, over the thoughts and acts he knows are wrong, is a splendid driver, fit to be at the head of men and to lead them to victory, either in peace or war. But the boy who cannot drive himself is really on a level with the lower animals."—The Colporteur.

How the Money Goes.

Just a little at a time; five cents more at your luncheon for a cake that was neither digestible nor strengthening; ten cents more for some folly that gave you no pleasure, and a dollar more that your name might be on some subscription list. You went on this list to buy flowers for the dead, or a wedding present for the living, not because you wanted to, but because you were afraid to say no. You didn't like to think that anybody would call you mean. Now, it is much meaner to give away money that of right should be put some place else, than not to give at all. It goes for a silly frock that is above your station in life. You tell me that it cost you thirty five dollars. Your opportunities for wearing it are very few and far between—only in the evening after the office is closed, and then only if somebody asks you to go out. So between times it is carefully folded and locked away, and your thirty five dollars are spent, and for it you are not even getting a percentage of pleasure, while in three months' time you gown will be old-fashioned. Now, if you must spend those thirty five dollars, it would have been better for you to have added a dollar a week to your board and gotten a larger room with more air, and then you would had a good interest of better health and better temper.

Somebody once said that women had so little sense they never saved any money until they were past thirty. I don't believe that about my girls, and I am going to urge on them again and again to learn to use their money judiciously; to have a little saving, no matter how small it is, and to keep adding to it all the time.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Won's Power

The Crown Prince of Germany, though only about twelve years old, has a very ready wit and a queer way of saying things. He sees the funny side of a situation at once. One day, while visiting in Potsdam, the little Prince was amusing himself by trying to make a donkey draw a cart. But the donkey was stubborn, and would not go. "Your donkey has a great deal of will-power," called out the Emperor, who had been watching the struggle between his little son and the stubborn beast. "Oh, no, papa," replied the little Prince, quickly, "it isn't his will-power that troubles me; it is his won't power—he won't go."—Pacific Advocate.

FREE!

This remarkable statement, to which we direct special attention, is from a Tennessee farmer: My age is 63. I suffered intensely from Catarrh 10 years. Had intense headache, took cold easily, had continual roaring and singing in my ears. My hearing began to fail, and for three years I was almost entirely deaf, and I continually grew worse. Everything I had tried, failed. In despair I commenced to use the Aerial Medication in 1888, and the effect of the first application was simply wonderful. In less than five minutes my hearing was fully restored, and has been perfect ever since, and in a few months was entirely cured of Catarrh. ELI BROWN, Jackson, Tenn.

Drinking a Farm.

Bob Burdette gives this simple recipe: "My homeless friend with a chromatic nose, while you are stirring up the sugar in a ten-cent glass of gin, let me give a fact to wash down with it. You may say you have longed for years for the free, independent life of the farmer, but have not been able to get money together to buy a farm. But there is just where you are mistaken. For some years you have been drinking a good, improved farm at the rate of 100 hundred square feet a gulp. If you doubt this statement, figure it out yourself. An acre of land contains 43,560 square feet. Estimate for convenience the land at $43 56 an acre, you will see that it brings the land to just one mill per square foot, one cent for ten square feet. Now pour down the fiery dose and imagine you are swallowing a strawberry patch. Call in five of your friends and have them help you to gulp down that 500 foot garden. Get on a prolonged spree some day and see how long it requires to swallow a pasture land to feed a cow. Put down that glass of gin; there is dirt in it—100 feet of good, rich dirt worth $43 56 per acre."—Mass. Ploughman.

BY THE USE OF

AYER'S PILLS

A friend speaks through the Boothbay (Me.) Register, of the beneficial results he has recieved from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me any relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are in need of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills. I am perfectly confident that they will do good."

"As a family medicine, I consider Ayer's Pills superior to all others. In my family, I have used them for years and never known them to fail. Can commend this medicine to mothers, as being mild, pleasant in action, and yet effective."—Mrs. U. I. Pugh, San Diego, Texas.

THE ONE RECOURSE OF THE PEOPLE.

We bear a message to the voters of North Carolina: Be of good cheer; free government is not a failure; the people still have power to shape the laws and direct the officers of the Law. If the people of North Carolina—if you, reader, will use your power to protect yourself and your State, the great wrong done by leasing the North Carolina Railroad to the Southern Railway will yet be righted. Would to God that we could make the reader believe this so strongly that he will arouse and join in to wipe out the wrong that was done when his property—yours and mine—was virtually given away.

For a lease of ninety-nine years is practically a sale; and if it is, it follows clearly that, no purchase money being paid, the body of the Road was given away. The rental of $280,000 a year will be paid by making the rates high; after that is done, the rates must be still further increased in order that the Southern Railway may get something out of it. That is, the Southern Railway purposes making rates high enough to pay the owners (the private stockholders and the State) seven per cent. and then to get a good profit out of the property for the Southern Railway stockholders; in other words, it is fair to estimate that the profits taken from the pockets of the people who ride on or get freight by way of the North Carolina Railroad will be at least twelve per cent. (counting seven per cent. for the North Carolina Railroad stockholders and five for the Southern). Undeniably this is outrageously high. But the Southern doesn't care. It has the contract; it is not afraid of the people. There has been a lot of talk, but this corporation is used to talk.

Are we as powerless as we and the Southern think we are? An eagle once swooped down, as it thought, upon a sleeping kitten; but it was partly concealed and turned out, too late for the eagle's good, to be a full grown cat. It was the cat that enjoyed a fine breakfast that morning. Evidently the Southern Railway thinks it has made a fine bargain in this matter, but if the people of North Carolina will do what they have the right to do, what they ought to do, what they can do, and must do if they would be free, the Southern will be treated to an experience not unlike that which the eagle underwent.

In short, the people have this matter in their own hands. The U. S. Supreme Court has again and again decided that the fixing of fares and freight rates is at the absolute discretion of the Legislatures of the States, subject probably to the condition that the rates be sufficient to yield reasonable interest (six per cent. is reasonable interest) on the actual value of the property.

Now, let the people of North Carolina instruct their representatives to fix the rates on the North Carolina Railroad, the Southern Railway and all the other railroads in this State, allowing them to get a reasonable income on their property, but prohibiting them from getting such an income as would enable them to pay large rentals and still make big profits. This ought to have been done long ago. Wisconsin has done it successfully. We should make the effort the very next Legislature, if the railroads control it, we can elect another. We can fight for right forever with the assurance that we will win finally.

If the next Legislature should fix the rates on the North Carolina Railroad so that the income on the property will be six or seven per cent. on the valuation of the property of the road, it would be reasonable, very reasonable. But it would put the Southern in the position of the eagle which the cat made breakfast on. To do otherwise is unreasonable. To allow the Southern to fix a rate that will pay the owners of the North Carolina Railroad a net profit of seven per cent. and will also pay the Southern a good profit besides, is not only unreasonable but very wrong: it is allowing a corporation to charge the people double; it is allowing the Southern to carry out its purpose of getting the body of the road (that is, the road itself, the engines, depots, etc., etc.,) for nothing, of making the people pay the running expenses, the rental to the owners and a profit to the Southern!

In a report of the Southern Railway lately issued, it is shown that it made nearly a million dollars last year above rentals and running expenses. When it is remembered that this system, owning little or no railroad property, has to pay the real owners regular rentals, it is apparent how much we allow to be taken from our pockets, by not asserting ourselves and fixing fares and rates as they should be. If by reason of superior wealth and influence a man rents all the land in a section for $10,000 a year, and then, taking advantage of the necessity for the people to stay in that section, compels them to pay him a rental of $15,000 or $20,000 a year in addition to keeping up the land, or give up their homes, does that man do right? This is on a small scale what the Southern Railway will make the people of North Carolina do, if we do not fall back on our one recourse—the power of the States to fix railroad rates on a fair basis, a power that has been tested and found indispensable.

WE KNEW a young man of ability who started out to be a public man. At twenty-one he cursed and drank and caroused and boasted that he would be a Congressman in seven years. He did not conceal that he had no idea of pure politics, but rather paraded the opinion that every party-leader was an office seeker and every party man a tool of office seekers.

A Baptist preacher approached this young man: "Tell me, what do you think will become of you, going on as you are? What do you mean? Do you ever think about the future in this life, not to say anything further?" The young man looked down on the honest and innocent minister with a look that seemed to pity him in his ignorance. "Why, sir," he replied, "do you know Congressman ——— and Senator ———? Don't you know that they live just as I do? Why, man, I am going to be Senator. I am following the example of the illustrious ———, whom you have helped elect time after time, am I not?" The preacher could say nothing. He had never thought of it that way before.

This is a true picture; true of one man and one preacher, and may be true of a thousand.

A young newspaper man told us not ten days ago that he would sell his editorial opinions to anybody for $10 000. Another told us that he would not expose a man for fraud, because he had promised him $500 worth of official advertising. "And I am going down to see him right straight," the young man continued, "and see if he wants me to say anything against all this talk about him." All three of these men are young. God be thanked that there is yet time for their views to change. We have recited the instances not to discredit honorable professions, but to call attention to the ideals fathers and mothers unwittingly allow to be set before their sons. How grave a matter it is to allow a paper to be read in your home which you cannot rely on! How grave to vote for any but Christian gentlemen to become public officers and, therefore, models for the community. Doubtless many a father never saw it in this light before.

WHEN so distinguished and conservative a man as Justice Brown of the Supreme Court of the United States makes such a statement as we print below, it is time for the men that are left were aroused to their senses:

"I have watched the rapid evolution of social democracy in England; I have studied autocracy in Russia, and theocracy in Rome, and I must say that nowhere, not even in Russia, in the first year of the reaction occasioned by the murder of the late Tsar, have I struck more abject submission to a more soulless despotism than that which prevails among the masses of the so-called free American citizens when they are face to face with the omnipotent power of the corporations."

It is so often the case that office-seekers practice deception upon the public by bewailing the times and laying no end of imaginary woes at his opponent's door, that we have come to look upon nearly all hard times talk in public as demagoguery for office only. But this man is not an office-seeker; he isn't hungry, is not a laborer whose wages have been reduced. He has no motive for deception. He has travelled and studied. He is in position to know. If any man may speak with authority, he may. There are not many who may speak in such terms as he about the corporations and the people, but the least of us knows the power of the saloon.

The tyranny of money; who that lives in its reach does not feel it? Why is the capital city of the State dark as Egypt at night, except on a few streets, why are its streets badly kept? Money-d interests hold it both. A few wealthy families do more harm than a band of burglars or a host of beggars! It is so. Every large city in America has sold its streets to corporations—better say given, for though prices were paid they went into private instead of public coffers. So unusual is it for a man to be incorruptible that one who has lately risen to power in New York is talked about like children talk of Jack the Giant-killer.

Annual Calls Again.

BY ANTI ANNUAL.

In the RECORDER of Aug. 14th objection is made to an article by "Anti Annual" advocating indefinite pastoral calls. The objections seem based on the ground that indefinite calls compel churches to keep pastors whether they suit them or not. Exactly the opposite is intended, and I think clearly stated by "Anti Annual."

I hold that every single advantage that is claimed as gained by annual calls, can be gained more speedily and satisfactorily by indefinite calls. Re-read the article, and if this is not shown, then I confess that I do not know the meaning of words or the purpose of the writer. In that article it is clearly stated in substance that whenever a pastor or church sees reasons for dissolving the pastoral relationship, two or three months' notice should be given, to give the pastor or church time to make other arrangements. If a church is dissatisfied with her pastor, she can at any time, through her deacons, privately inform the pastor that a change is desired, and if he has any of the self respect of which the objector speaks, he will quietly resign, and step out of the way, without waiting to be blown out by dynamite.

Under the annual call a church is bound to keep a pastor all the year whether he suits them or not. He has been called for a definite time, and he can stay and demand his salary for the whole year. Under the indefinite call he can be honorably and quietly got rid of at any time of any year.

Some years ago a church called a new man for one year at a fixed salary. Before three months of the year had passed, the church was sick and tired of the pastor. They longed to get rid of him; but he afforded them to the end of the year, and got his salary. Under the indefinite call, they could have been relieved of him in three or four months, paying him for the time he served.

If a pastor and church are suited, why go through the mere form of recalling annually; if not suited, why compel them to remain dissatisfied for a whole year!

Baptists claim to pattern their churches and church work after New Testament teaching. Does this book give even a hint of New Testament churches making annual calls; or of the "Apostles ordaining elders" (Acts 14: 23) to serve the churches annually? Have not Baptists got the idea of annual calls from John Wesley's system of Methodism and not from the New Testament? Many churches work under the indefinite call, and find it much better than the annual. If all churches and pastors will adopt the indefinite call, and be kind and candid with each other in carrying out the terms of agreement, then all needed pastoral changes can be made at any time quietly and satisfactorily.

Work of Our Home Mission Board.

GENERAL STATEMENT.

Number of missionaries this year, ending April 30, 1895, four hundred and twenty five, an increase of forty four over last year, and more than in any year of the Board's history.

Baptized five thousand nine hundred and twenty one, an increase of one thousand four hundred and fifty one over last year, and five hundred and seventy-two more than have been baptized in any year since the organization of the Convention.

Cash receipts $68,640 20, being $15,310 39 larger than last year, and greater than any previous year except the Centennial.

The Board began the year with a debt of $6,763.54; has paid on house of worship in New Orleans $9,476 50, and for church buildings at other points $2,386 62, a total of $11,863 12.

After paying missionaries, April 1st, its indebtedness was $23 000, which May 1st had been reduced to $1,100 00, with a balance of $100.66 in the treasury.

Increase of missionaries has been nearly 12 per cent., of receipts, 20 per cent., and of baptisms, 32 per cent.

The Board needs for its work the present year one hundred thousand dollars.

This sum will be apportioned to the States, and through the assistance of State Boards and other friends the Board hopes to secure this amount in full.

DESTITUTION.

One of the gravest difficulties in the way of our work is that people do not realize the great needs of our field. It requires no argument or even thought to convince any one interested in missions that there is destitution in China, India, or Africa. But they are so accustomed to the enjoyment of religious privileges themselves that they cannot realize that in this favored land there are any communities which are without such privileges. It requires facts, argument, reflection to produce the conviction that there is destitution in America as well as in foreign fields.

It is a startling thought that as all are born without knowledge of the truth, if evangelistic efforts should cease America would become as much a pagan country as China within a single generation. It is another startling fact that notwithstanding all that has been done by our churches and mission boards in the last fifty years, and the great success that has attended their efforts, though Baptists have increased from 450,000 to 2,600,000 in this Southern land, there are more unregenerate persons within the limits of this Convention than there were fifty years ago.

It is estimated that one half the population of the South, say 10,000,000, are under Baptist influence; deducting one fourth of this number as below the age of accountability, and the 2 600,000 church members, leaves about 5,000,000 of unregenerate persons under the influence of our Baptist churches. These we must give the gospel or they will probably never receive it.

With the view of ascertaining some just idea of the destitution of our Southern land, the Board addressed three questions to the Corresponding Secretaries of our State Boards as follows:

1. How many men would be required to supply the religious destitution of your State?

2. What amount would be required to support them?

3. What amount would be needed to supply them with houses of worship and other necessary equipment?

Answers which were received from eight States—Kentucky, Mississippi, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Texas—show that for these States alone there would be required 1,393 missionaries, $480 000 to support them besides what their fields of labor would supply, and about an equal amount for church building annually for the next ten years. This means that including the remaining States within the Convention, there would be required to supply our religious destitution 2,000 missionaries, an annual expenditure of not less than $500,000 to support them and afford them houses of worship and other facilities requisite for the work.

These facts force upon us the conclusion that, great as has been our success, the work of our Baptist churches has been only half accomplished, and in view of the rapid increase of our population in the near future, it becomes us to redouble our diligence, and let the dawning of the coming century see a thousand missionaries working under our Board, State and Home, gathering from this whitening harvest sheaves for the garner of our Lord.—Home Field.

Very great interest in the early establishment of the Baptist Female University is manifest over the State. Our people are making subscriptions with seemingly great pleasure. There are a few, however, who are going to make what they call a liberal contribution so soon as we open the school. "We will send our daughters." Some have told us this with an air of satisfaction quite apparent as to the valuableness of the contribution. Many thanks for the school must have patronage, and the young women who come will find a most hearty welcome, but where are the young women going to stay? Whose house will shelter them? Let us be frank, and say that this school will be quite sure of a large patronage if we make it what we say—first class in every particular. The people will patronize this school for their own accommodation and not for the accommodation of the school. If we had no other contributions than patronage we would be obliged to depend upon the trees to shelter the students from the summer showers and winter snows. If we make the school to be for our young women what Wake Forest College for our young men, it will be the greatest contributor to our people they ever had, for it will be dollars in their pockets. A man refuses to take stock in a cotton factory, but insists on an equal share in its dividends, is to us an analogous case. Since the cost of educating our young women is quite an item to be considered, is it not right for us, one and all, to burden ourselves for once to reduce the expenses of female education? To build and endow this institution means first class educational advantages at cost, and such cost as our people can afford. The amount of money saved to our people in actual cash in twenty years will be more than two hundred thousand dollars. I am not counting the good such an institution will do, in the present calculation.

Let us all put forth very earnest efforts in raising the needed amount of money, certainly not less than two hundred thousand dollars. There is no doubt about our ability to do this and even more. From what we have seen and heard over the State, we apprehend only one trouble about the patronage of such a school, and that is to provide room for those who are coming.

It seems to us exceedingly unfortunate to postpone opening the school longer, but if we open the school September 1896, our friends must come to our help most liberally. We believe the Lord has his men and women to do his work. Some have money, some have real estate that can be used, and some have strong minds and bodies. The Holy Spirit direct.

O. L. STEDMAN, Sec. Bd. Trustees.

When shall we be rid of the fiction that "giving the hand of fellowship" has anything to do with church membership? One who has been baptized after acceptance by the church is a member, and subject to discipline for "unchristian conduct," whether he has received the hand of fellowship or not. But it is for the church to decide, after formal investigation made, whether one of its members has been guilty of unchristian conduct. It is not for any individual, whether pastor or lay member, to decide so grave a question.—Examiner.

Church Music.

BY REV. SAMUEL PORTER.

That the service of song in the house of the Lord is an element of genuine worship is evident from the repeated mention of it in the Scriptures; and if worship is must be rendered in the Spirit, for God is a Spirit and must be worshiped in spirit and in truth. Spiritual singing is of divine appointment in Christ's church, but church music, in the ordinary acceptation of the term, is often foreign to the spirit of true worship. "Be filled with the Spirit," says the Apostle, and immediately adds, "speaking to yourselves in psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord."
